HISTORY OF INDIA.

VOL II

LOYDON

A and G A Spottiswoode,
New street Square

HISTORY OF INDIA

UNDER

THE TWO FIRST SOVEREIGNS

OF

THE HOUSE OF TAIMUR,

BABER AND HUMÁYUN

BY WILLIAM ERSKINE, ESQ.,

TRANSLATOR OF "MEMOIRS OF THE EMPEROR BABER.

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOL II .

LONDON
LONGMAN, BROWN, GREEN, AND LONGMANS
1854

CONTENTS

OF

THE SECOND VOLUME.

HISTORY OF HUMÁYUN

BOOK FOURTH

FROM HUM (YUM'S ACCESSION TO HIS EXPULSION FROM INDIA

CHAPTER I

AFFAIRS OF HUBLATUN FROM HIS ACCESSION TO HIS INVASION OF WALWA AND GUJRAT

A D						Pago
1530	Hum'iyun's accession -	-	•	-	-	1
	Difficulties of his situation	-	-	-	-	2
	Competitors for the throne	-	-	•	-	3
	Unsettled state of the Empire	-	-	-	-	4
	And of foreign relations	-	-	-	-	5
	Character of Humáyun	-	-	-	_	ıb
	Provision for his brothers	•	-	-	-	6
	Pretensions of Kumrán	-	-	-	_	ıb
1531	His advance towards Hindust	เม	-	-	_	1b
	Captures Láhúr -	-	-	-		7
	And occupies the Penjab	-	-	-	-	8
	Concessions of Humnyun	•	-	-	_	ıb
	Campaign against Kalinjer	-	-	-	-	9
	And to the eastward -		-	-	_	ıb
	Humáy un returns to Agra	-	-	-	~	10
1532	Campaign against Chunár	-	-	•	~	ıb
	Interrupted by the progress of	Behade	r Shah	-	•	11

	•
A D	37			Page
1 200	Nominal capitulation of Shir Khan	•	-	• Ĭ1
1533	January 20 Children Ollith	-	•	- 12
	Muhammed Zemán Mírza	-	-	- 1b
3 50 4	Is imprisoned, and escapes to Gujrát	-	-	- 13
1534	Sattan Miles and his Boll	3	-	- ıb
	Progress of Behåder Shah	-	•	- 14
	Measures of Humayun against the Af	gháns of	Bebûr -	- 15
	Arrested by the advance of Behader S	Shah .		- 16
	And Túthr Khan Lodi -			ıb.
	CHAPTER II
	Affairs of gujrát and ma	LWA
	Marie and Angeles
	GT GT 0.27
	SECTION I
EAR	LY MISTORY OF THOSE KINGDOMS PROGRE	SS OF BEE	ÁDER SU	AII,
	Disruption of the Empire under Sul	tan Muh	ammed
	Toghlak	•	-	17
	Kingdom of Gujrát Kingdom of Malwa	•	-	18
	Prosperity of Gujrat, its importance -	•	_	19 20
	State of Malwa	-	-	21
	Position of the early Musulmans in Indi	n -	_	22
	Princes of Malwa		_	25
	Mahmúd II		_	1b
	Intrigues of Moháfez Khan	_	-	26
	Interposition of Medini Rao	-	-	ıb
	Rájpút League at the court of Malwa -	-	-	27
	The Kings of Delhi and Gujrat interfere	-	-	28
	Defensive measures of Medini Rao -	-	-	ıb
	The Rajpúts all-powerful in Malwa -	-	-	30
	Mahmud attempts their dismissal, is dis	comfited	-	1b
	Escapes to Gujrat, his restoration -			31
	Expedition against the refractory Rajpút	s, and d	eteat	32
	Dismemberment of Malwa	-	-	83
	Behåder Shah in Gujrát	- -	-	1b 34
	Rána Ruttonsı and Beháder Shah ın Ma	- 33 4/1	.	34 35
	Mandu taken Behader Shah proclaimed King -	_	-	1b
	Partition of Malwa	-	-	36
ل ا	FRINKION OF THEIRE			50

A D						Page
A 1,	Capture of Silth-ed-din by Beli	ider -		•	-	36
	Citastrophic of Rusen			-	-	37
	Turther successes of Behader Sh	nlı -	•	•	-	39
	$1 (1107.1	T
	COLDING OF MINA	יי אנייו	TIS
	Relations of Gujrut and Chestur	-		-	-	39
	Successes of Behader Shah in M	alwa ar	id R ijp	ut ina	-	10
	He forms a league against Hum	is un -		-	-	11
	Joined by Sultan Ala-ed-din I c		l lus s	on Lat	úΓ
	Khan Lodi	•		•	-	11
	And by Mulrimmed Zeman Mir.	71 -			-	12
1534	Hum yun remonstrates without			-	•	ıb
	Operations of the allies -		-	-	-	15
	Their entire defeat		-	-		ıb
	Hum'iyun invades Malwa -			-	-	46
1535	Storm and sack of Chestur by I	Schader	Shah	-	-	48
	The armies of Hum iy un and Be			Mander	ır	11)
	The latter entrench themselves		~	•	_	19
	Distress in Behader's Camp -		-	_	-	52
	Flight of the King, his troops	plunder	ed and	oursuce	1	53
	Investment of Mandu -	•	-	-	_	55
	Description of that capital	•	-	-	-	ıb
	Overtures of Behader -		-	-	_	ıb
	Mandu escaladed -	-	-	_		56
	Behader escapes to Gurit	•	-	_		1b
	Mandu plundered by the Imper	anlısts	-	-	_	57
	Humáyun supreme in Malwa	•	•	-	-	1b
	SECTION	111
	CONQUEST OF GUIRAT	ווטוו גמ	WUY
	Humáyun advances to Gujrát			_	_	59
	Behåder flics to Diu -	_	_		_	60
	Night attack on the Imperial ca	amn	_	•	_	61
	Humnyun gives over Cambay t	o milaa	·0	_	_	62
	Description of Champanir	· P6	•	_	_	1b
1536		-	_	-	•	64
	The Governor Ekhtiúr Khan	_	_	_	-	65
	Massacre of the garrison, and	ımmene	e boots	,	-	66
	Indolence and revels of Hu	mivun	nnd .	their c
	sequences	-	, 4114	mon (2011	- 67

AIII

		CONTENTS		Page 70
7III A D	He retrea Behader (Negotiat Anarchy Behader Rapid (Huma) His ad He de Hum Arra	es with the Logical est with the Logical est against lum marches against lum with an early and an early an early an early an early and an early	collect the revenue ent of Gujrat gra and from Malwa	70 1b 72 1b 173 74 1b 75 1b 76 10 77
	1536	Reaction in Gujrát in fav Surat and Barúch occupi Surat and Barúch occupi And Cambay and Patan And Cambay and Patan Indecision of the Imperia Behader advances towa Behader advances towa Danger of the Imperia Danger of the Imperia Danger of the Imperia Pusaffection of Mírza Precipitate retreat fro Pursuit by Behúder Pursuit by Behúder The Mírza and his a The Mírza	our of Behuder ed in his name ial Generals, Ghuz rds Ahmedubud I army Askeri and the Chi Askeri and the Chi om Alimedubud rmy at Champanir o admit them s Agra mpanir bujrut pis Askeri in Rujpu gra getic provinces agetic provinces and the Poltuguese	atúna za	81 82 83 84 1b 1b 85 86 1b 1b 1b 1b 1b 90 91 92 93

				1	- دره ا
n n.	Alleged reappearance of Behider				95
	His adherents retire to Ahmed ib id		•	•	th)
	His immediate successors			-	ab .
	All Middle West
	CHAPTIR III
	ALCARS OF KHORAS (NO KA	SDARTE
529	State of Khorás in	-		-	qq
	Inroads of Obeid Khan and the U-bel	ñ	•	•	ıb
1530			•	•	ili
	32 Again overrun it, and besiege Her-	st	-		od
1532	Which is relieved by Shah Tahmasp		•	-	100
-	The Uzbeks once more expelled	•	-	-	16
1533		-	•	•	101
1535		-		•	al)
1536		nders	•	-	ıb.
	Attempts on Lahur by Muhammed &	m în Mi	r-1	-	102
1535	New invasion of Khorisin by the U-		•	-	ıb
1536		•	•	-	103
	And Herát, which is pillaged -	•	•	-	ıb.
1537	•	•	•	-	101
	And retreat of the Uzbeks -	-	•	•	սև
	Tahmasp occupies Kandahár -	•	•	-	ւն
1538	Which is retaken by Kimrin -	-	•	•	105
	CHAPTER IV
	ALFAIRS OF BINGAL	••
	SI CTION 1
	STATE OF BENGAL - HISTORY OF	SHIR LH
150
153	1	•	•	-	107
	Shir Khan in Behar and Bengal	-	-	-	108
153	Indolence of the Emperor at Agra		-	-	109
109		Instory	-	-	110
	Repairs to the court of Sultan Ibráhi Succeeds to his father s jugirs -	m Lodi	-	-	117
152	Overthrow of the Afghan Dynasty by	n Dában	-	-	118
-02	Shir Khan favoured by the Afghan 1	y Daver	Dal.	-	119
	Hig alogotion	Ling of	Dellar	-	ıb
	THE CHARLOU -	•	-	-	120

CONTINTS

CONTENTS

γp						Page
	Intrigues of his enemies	-	-	_		120
	Division of his jugirs ordered	1 -	_	-		121
	He refuses to divide them, at	nd is exp	elled	-		1b
	Reinstated by aid from one o	f Báber'i	s Gover	nors	_	122
	Increases his resources	_	~	-	_	123
1528	Visits Baber at Agra -	-	-	-	-	1b
	Meditates a restoration of the	Afghán	Empir	e -	_	124
	Withdraws suddenly from the	e court	-	_	_	125
	Is reconciled to the King of I		-	_	_	1b
	Becomes Prime Minister, and		n invas	non	_	1b
	A conspiracy formed against		-	-	_	126
	The King flies from Beliur, wh		aded fr	om Ber	ngal
	The invasion defeated by Shi		_	•	_	128
	Rival claimants of the Crown		-	-	-	1b
1529	Sultan Mahmúd Lodi acknow	ledged	-	-	_	129
	Expelled by Baber, who occu		úr	-	_	130
	Shir Khan extends his jágírs			-	-	181
	Acquires Chunúr -	•	-	_	-	ıb
1531	Sultan Mahmud renews his pi	retension	5	-	-	132
	Is joined by Shir Khan	-	-	-	-	133
	Advance of Humhyun -	•	-	-		ıb
	Treachery of Shir Khan, and	dispersion	n of th	e Afgl	án
	forces	-		_	-	1b
	Shir Khan retains Chunar and	l his júgí	rs	-	-	184
	Consolidates his resources	-	-	-	-	ıb
1535	Plunders to the North of the	Ganges		-		135
	Takes possession of Southern		-	-	-	1b
1537	And invades Bengal -	-	-	-	-	136
	· ·
	SECTION	п
	CONQUEST AND LOSS OF BE	NGAL BY	HUMAYU	124
	37 / A				_	188
	Humáyun at Agra		•	•	_	139
	Prepares to attack Shir Khan	- "	ndore i	- aftar c		103
1538	Lays, siege to Chunar, whi	ch surre	nuers :	enter b	-	140
	months		•	- _		142
	Shir Khan in Bengal -			_	_	1b
	Humáyun advances to Benáres Capture of Gour, and reducti	on of Ro	naal an	d Reh	бr	~~
		~ -				16
	by Shir Khan Humayun summons him to sub	mut_ha	refuses		-	143
	Humáyun traverses Behár, an	น อบบายเล	ches th	e Term
	- ·	- e ubbron		•	-	ıb
	garhi pass -

Surprise and rout of the Imperial advanced guard

Humayun enters Bengal, occupies Gour, and subdues the Shir Khan gains Rhotas by treachery -

Indolence of the Emperor and court

A.D

Plans of Shir Khan

whole province

Retreat of the enemy -

Page

145

146

147 ıb

149

150

	Shir Khan re-occupies Behar and the passes	-	-	151
	Lays siege to Juánpúr and Chunár -	-	-	ıb
	Revolt of Hindal Mirza at Agra -	-	_	152
	Humáyun retreats from Bengal, lus dange	ous sit	u-
	ation	-	_	153
	Mírza Askerı forces the passes into Behár	_	_	155
	Shir Khan proclaimed King	_	-	1b
	The two armies approach	~	_	ıb
1539	Shir Shah's tactics, Operations at Chonsa	-	-	156
	Distress of the Imperial army	-	_	157
	Rebellions in Hindustán	-	-	159
	Treasonable conduct and vacillation of Hindal	Mírza	~	ıb
	He attacks Delhi	-	_	165
	Kámrán Mırza called in to relieve it -	-	-	dı
	Hindal retreats to Agra	-	-	166
	Kámrán also revolts	-	-	ıb
	Pursues Hindal, and receives his submission	-	-	ıb
	Marches against Shir Shah, but returns without	ıt fighti	ng	167
	Continued distress of Humáyun at Chonsa	-	-	ıb
	He sends an Envoy to Shir Shah	-	_	168
	Negotiations and armistice	-	-	169
	Negligence of Humáyun	-	-	170
	Attack by Shir Shah	-	-	ıb
	Slaughter of the Imperialists	-	-	171
	Danger and wound of Humáyun -	-	-	ıb
	His army annihilated	-	-	172
	Proceedings of Shir Shah -	-	-	173
	Humáyun makes his way to Agra -	-	-	174
	Shir Shah supreme on the Lower Ganges	-	-	175
	-
	CHAPTER V
	HUMÁTUN'S EXPULSION FROM HINDUSTA	(N
1539	Humáyun joms Kámrán at Agra -	_	_	177
3330	Humiliation of Hindal	_	_	178
	Humáyun prepares again to attack Shir Shah	_	_	179
		. =	-	110

Y D					Page
1540	Illness and retreat of Kamran -	-	_	_	180
	Defeat of Shir Shah's advanced arm	γ -	_	_	181
	Haider Mirza Doghlat in Humáyun'	s camp	_	-	182
	His character of the Emperor -	-	-	_	183
	And account of the campaign -	~	•	-	185
	And battle of Kanauj	-	_		187
	Other accounts of that disaster	_	-	-	190
	Flight of Humáyun	-	-		191
	He arrives at Agra	_		-	193
	Proceeds towards Delhi -	-	-	-	194
	And onwards to the Penjab -	-		-	195
	Shir Shah at Delhi	-	_	-	196
	His parties pursue Humáyun across (the Satl	le ₁	_	197
	Selfish conduct of Kamran -	-	٠.	-	ıb
	Treaty among the Imperial brothers	-	-	-	198
	Their want of union	•	-	-	199
	Treachery of Kámrán	-	-	-	200
	Shir Shah receives his overtures	-	-	-	ıb
	Enters the Penjab	-	-	•	201
	The imperial family quits Lahur	-	-	-	ıb
	Kámrán departs for Kábul -	-	-	*	202
	Hindal for Sind and Gujrat -	-	-	-	1b
	Humáyun meditates an expedition to	Kashmi	ír	•	ıb
	Recent events there	-	-	-	203
	Kámrán thwarts the plans of Humáya	ın	-	-	204
	Who proceeds towards Sind -	-	-	- :	205
	Hindal rejoins him at Gul-Balúch	-	-	- :	207
	They pass the territories of Bakhshui	Langa	-	- 1	208
1541	And reach Sind	-	-	- 2	209
	Present state and past career of Huma	iyun	-		1b
	The Afghan Supremacy restored in	India 1	ınder	Shir
	Shah	-	-	- 2	210

BOOK FIFTH

HUMÁYUN IN EXILE

CHAPTER I

HUMÁYUN'S RESIDENCE IN SIND

SECTION I

FIRST RESIDENCE IN SIND

λD						Pago
541	State of Sind on the arrival	of Humá	yun	-	-	212
	Conduct of Shah Husein	-	-	-	-	213
	Humáyun at Rohri -	-	-	-	_	214
	His followers detached over	the count	ry	-	_	215
	Distress in his camp -	-	-	-	-	ıb
	He sends Envoys to Shah H	lusein	-	-	-	216
	Who procrastinates and atter		nduce H	umáyun	to quit Sind	`-	-		-	ıb
	Humáyun lays siege to Bhek	er	•	-	_	218
	Scarcity in Upper Sind	_	-	_	-	ıb
	Humáyun at the camp of Hi	ndal	-	-	_	219
	His marriage to Akber's mot		-	-	_	220
	He returns to his camp	-	-	_	-	221
	Intended desertion of Hind	lal preve	ented by	the E	m-
	peror's concessions -	_ ^	_ `	-	_	ıb
	Dismissal of Shah Husein's I	Envoy	-	-	_	222
	Humáyun advances to Sehw		-	-	-	223
	Description of Sehwan, to w	hich he l	ays siege	-	-	ıb
	Approach of Shah Husein	-	•	-	-	224
	Difficulties of the siege, and	d deserti	ons fron	ı the l	m-
	perial camp	-	-	-	_	ıb
	Progress of the stege of Bhel	ker	•	-	-	226
	Humáyun urges Hindal to a		t Shah I	Tusein	-	227
	Defection of Yadgar Nasir I		-	-	-	ıb
1542	Shah Husein seizes the Emp	peror's flo	tılla	-	-	228
	Humáyun retreats from Sel	hwan wi	th the l	oss of	hıs
	baggage	-	-	-	-	229
	Reaches Rohri, and crosses t	he Indus	-	-	-	ıb
	Conduct of Yádgár -	-	-	_	_	231
	Disorganization of Humáyur	's forces	-	-	-	232

AD	Threatened attack of Yádgár -	•	-	_	Page 234
	Despondency of Humáyun, who	retreats i	to the d	esert
	of Márwár	-	-	-	ıb
	SECTION II	r
	AYUN IN THE DESERTS OF MARWAR A		D, A SECO) TO T	IME
1542	March of Humayun from Bhcker	to Uch	-	-	236
	Obstructed by Bakhshui Langa	-	-	-	238
	March to Deráwal	-	-	-	1b
	To the Bikanir and Júdpúr territ		•	-	240
	Maldeo and Humáyun send spie	s to each	other's I	Iend
	Quarters	-	•	-	1p
	Insincerity of Maldeo	-	•	-	241
	Retreat of Humáyun	-	-	-	242
	A covering party formed, and a	successful	skirmis	h of
	Cavalry	-	-	-	244
	Hostile Embassy from Jeselmir	-	-	-	246
	Humayun arrives at that town	~	-	-	ıb
	Proceeds to the Greater Desert	-	-	-	ıb
	Extreme want of water -	-	-	-	247
	Second Embassy from Jeselmír	-	-	-	248
	Continued distress for water -	•	•	-	ıb
	They reach Amerkot	-	-	-	249
	Friendly conduct of the Rána -	-	-	-	1p
	Anecdotes of Humáyun -	-	•	-	250
	Stay at Amerkot	-	-	-	252
	Recent events in Sind, and procee	dings of Sl	hah Huse	ein	ıb
	Flight of Yádgár Mírza to Kanda	hár -	-	-	253
	Resolution of Humáyun to invade	Jún -	-	-	254
	Birth of Akber	-	-	-	1b
	Description of Jún	-	-	-	255
	Humáyun's stay there	-	-	-	256
	Increase of his force	-	-	-	1p
	Approach of Shah Husein -	-	-	-	257
	Disgust and defection of the Hind	u allies of	Humhyı	ın -	1b
	Shah Husein attacks him unsucces		-	•	258
1543	Biram Khan joins Humáyun-his	history	•	-	1b
	Renewed scarcity in the Imperial	camp	•	-	259
	Destruction of the foraging detach	ment	-	-	261
	Shah Husein proposes terms -	-	-	-	262
	Humáyun agrees to quit Sind -	-	-	~	ıb

SECTION III

HUMÁTUN'S ROUTE FROM SIND TO SÍSTÁN

A D				Page
1543	Recent State of Afghanistán	-	_	264
	Kamran in Kabul	_	_	ıb
	Askeri in Ghazni	_	-	ıb
	Kamrán's Expedition to Badakhshán -	-	-	265
	Hindal in Kandahir	-	-	ıb
	Embassy of Kamran to Shah Husein -	-	-	ıb
	Met by Humáyun	-	_	ıb
	Difficulties of his advance towards Kandahár	-	-	ıb
	Hostile preparations of Askeri	-	-	266
	He advances to take Humiyun -	-	-	267
	Hasty flight of the Emperor	-	-	269
-	Arrival of Askeri	-	_	270
	Akber taken, and sent to Kandahár -	-	-	1b
	Hum'iyun flies towards Sistán	-	-	271
	Temporarily detained by a party of Báluches	-	-	272
	Proceeds through the Germsir -	-	-	1p
	Enters Sístán	-	-	274
	CHAPTER II HUM(TUN IN PERSIA
1544	Hum'syun's reluctance to enter Persia	-	-	275
	His reception and occupations in Sistán	-	•	1b
	Sets out for Herát and Meshhid -	-		277
	Regal entertainment by the Shah's orders	-	-	ıb
	Stay at Herát and Meshhid	-	-	279
	Proceeds to join the Shah	-	-	280
	Sends forward Biram Khan as Envoy -	-	-	1b
	Treatment of the Ambassador at Kazvín		-	281
	Humáyun at Kazvín — Deputation from the	Shah	-	282
	Interview of the Sovereigns	-	-	283
	Humáyun at the Persian Court	-	-	284
	Intolerance of Tahmasp	-	-	285
	Grand hunting party	-	-	286
	Intrigues against Humáyun Jealousies of the Sovereigns	-	-	288
	Attempts to convert Humáyun to the Shía S	- oot	-
	League between Humáyun and Tahmasp	-	-	291
	Parting festivities	-	-
	Humáyun prepares to set out for Kandahár	_	_
	Remarks on his treatment by the Shah	_	_	297
	And his own behaviour	_	_	299

CHAPTER III

HUMÁYUN IN AFGHÁNISTÁN

SECTION I

HUMAYUN'S CONQUEST OF KANDAHÁE AND BÁBUL. — EXPEDITION TO BA-

A. D						Page
1545	J i a		-	-		301
	Affairs of his brothers	-	-	-	_	302
	The Germsír surrendered	_	-	_	-	303
	Capture of Bist -	-	-	-		304
	Preparations of Kamran,	who r	emoves	Akber	to
	Kábul	-	-		_	ıb
	Kandahár besieged by Humá	yun	~	_		306
	Mission of Biram Khan to K	ábul		_	_	307
	Irresolution of Kámrán	_	-	-	_	308
	Progress of the siege of Kan	dabár	-	~	-	1b
	Defection of Kámrán's chief	Nobles	; -	-	_	309
	Distress and desertions in the	Garrie	30n	-	-	310
	Surrender of the town	-	-	-	-	311
	It is given over to the Shah's	Officer	rs -		_	313
	Affairs of Badakhshan	-	-	-	-	ıb
	Escape of Hindal and Yadgái	r Mírza	, -		-	314
	Isolation of Kámrán -	-	_	-	-	315
	Dissensions between the Pers	ians an	d Imperi	alists	-	316
	Humáyun supplies himself wi				-	317
	He seizes Kandahár -	•		-	-	318
	Divides the district among his	Noble	es	-	-	320
	Sets out for Kábul -	-	-	-	-	321
	Is joined by Hindal, Yadgar,	and oth	iers	-	-	322
	Advance of Kamran, and dese			yun	-	323
	Kámrán sends an Embassy	•	-	-	-	324
	Escapes to Ghazm	-	•	-	-	1b
	Humáyun occupies Kabul and	recove	rs Akbei	: -		325
	Kámrám flies to Sind -	- ,	-	-		3 2 6
	Congratulatory Embassies to I	Tumáy:	an	-		19
	Yádgár Mírza imprisoned	-	-	-	- ,	327
1546	Humáyun sets out for Badakh	shán	-	-		328
	Yádgár Mírza put to death	-	-	-		1p
	The army of Badakshan defea	ted by	Humáyu	n i		329
	The country submits -	•	-	-	-	330

	CONTENTS				XVII
A. D.					Page
	Dangerous illness of Humáyun	-	-	•	330
	Kamrán recovers Kábul	-	-	-	332
1547	Humáyun marches once more agair	ist it		-	333
	SECTION II.
,	CAPTURE AND LOSS OF KABUL BY KAMP	ка́к — ні	s submiss	TON 334
1547	Kámrán in Sind	-	-	-
	Leaves Sind on Humáyun's illness	-	-	-	335
	Surprises Ghazni and Kábul -	-	-	-	336
	His cruelties	-	-	-	1b
	Humayun advances against him	-	-	-	337
	Is deserted by many Nobles -	-	-	-	1b
	Resolves to attack Kábul -	-	-	-	338
	Defeat of Kámrán's General	-	-	-	1b
	Humáyun takes the outer fortificat	ions	-	-	339
	Progress of the siege	-	~	-	1b
	Brutal conduct of Kamrán -		-	-	341
	His distress and submissive applica	itions	-	-	343
	He escapes		. ~	-
	Flies to Badakhshan, and thence to			-	345
	Humáyun enters Kábul, which is p	lundered	i -	-	346
	Sends in pursuit of Kámrán	-	-	-	ıb
	Who returns with an army from B	alkh	-	-	1b
	And attacks Badakhshan -	-	-	-	347
	Humáyun moves to meet him -	-	-	-	348
1548		-	-	-	ıb
	The Rebels escape to Kamran -	-	- .	-	352
	The Governor of Badakhshán decl	ares for	Humáya	n -	ıb
	His advance	-	-	-	353
	Repulse near Talıkán	-	-	-	355
	The fort invested	-	-	-	356
	Submissive offers of Kámrán -	-	-	-	ıb
	He surrenders	-	•	-	357
	His reception by Humáyun -	-	-	-	358
	Humáyun settles his northern dom:	inions	-	-	359
	And returns to Kúbul	•	-	-	361
	SECTION III.
STATE	OF KASHMIR -EXPEDITION TOWARDS B.	уген — н	REVOLT AN	נם כה	EFEAT of Kámrán
1548	State of Humáyun's court -	_	-	_	362
	Embassies from Káshgar, and to P		-	_	364
V	OL II a

_	002.2				Pa	are
viu					26	54
				•
	1.m/r	-	•	_		b
A D	Embassy from Kashmir	mt	-	_	_ 3	65
	Embassy from Kashini Recent history of that country	, J	-	-	e.
	And of Haider Mirza And of Hamiyun to Kas	٠.	-na th	e 1070810	n or	366
	And of Haider Mills to Kas	յիտնք,	anu cr	-	- (
	The invites Humayun to Zan	_	•		_	367
	Recent history of that count. And of Haider Mirza He invites Humayun to Kas	- 4+ OT	-	-	_	368
	India His character and administr	ម្រាប្រធ	_	-	-	ıb
	His character and	-	1	_	-
	His character to Position of Kamran Position of Kamran	nst B	ilku -	_	_	369
	Position of Khmran Humayun's expedition agai	_	-	-	-	370
1549	Humáyun's exposition lum Kámrán fails to join lum	. ,	_	-	_	ıb
	Kamran latte to ander of El	оек		-	-	371
	Great and Bullen	-	_	-	-
	Siege and Survey Delays of Humáyun Delays of Humáyun Sudden attack by the Uzb	oks	•		-	372
	Demys stack by the Uzb	-62				ıb
	Sudden attachmence of Kar	nruu				373
	Continued was re-bole adv	ยมดอ		-	-
	Continued absence of Real Continued absence of Real Repulse of the Uzbek adv	ent ·	-	1. 176b	տ1 ՝	374
	Repute resolves to rem	_a Aı	oht ton	ards Mac		_ 376
	Repulse of the Uzber at Humáyun resolves to reta Panic in his army, rout, Panic in his army, rout,	Una m	0	-	•	_ ıb
	Panic in his army, rous, Panic in his army, rous, Humáyun winters in Ká Humáyun winters in Ká Pangs of Kámrán	bul	•	_	-	- 377
	Humáyun winters he Proceedings of Kámrán His attempt on Badaklis			duz		-
15	Humáyun Willers Proceedings of Kámrán Proceedings on Badaklis	John B	ind on 1	Cundan	_	- 378
	Proceeding Badakha	;Hui, -	- -	-	-	_ 1b
	His attempt Trulab	•		-	•	379
	Returns to the Tizbe	KS	-	_	-	380
	T. Josephieu D. Trei	.ul	-		_
	Is defeated by the Excites a revolt in Kak Excites a revolt in Kak Humáyun prepares to	goige t	ıım	-	_	381
	Excites to prepares to	36120 -		-	_	_ 382
	Humayun prepared Is surprised by Kamra Want of zeal among F	n	2- Ch	nefs	-	- 1b
	T 21171111000 T	1.5 m H V	um -	_	-	383
			yun	-	_
	Want of zeal among F Want of zeal among F Flight and wound of He is joined by a rein Proceeds to the No	CHOOL	nent	-	noturn	to
1	Flight and by a reif	Morcer	ad nre	epares to	I Cruz-	384
	He is Joined the No	orth,	and b.		•	_ 385
	Proceeds to the	-	-	_	-	386
	Kabul a Tempan	_	-		-	2007
			-	-	_	_ 387
	Conduct of Humay He occupies Kabul He occupies Humay	-	_	-	_	d_{I}
	He occupied Humáy	un		-	•	_ 390)
		18 Chi	ets	mran me	et -	_ 391	1
	Advances of Huse compact with he armies of Huse Humayun endeavor	. 6vun	and IX	illia to ne	gotiate	_ 399
	mile ormies of Hun	110	successi	ully to a	· -	~ 00·	0
	The arm endeavor	ars un		-	_	_ 39	3
	Orders an attack	-		-	_	_ 39	14
				-	-
	Defeat and fight	T Para	abul •
	Deron frun re-occu	Inco –
	Defent and flight of Humáyun re-occu		amto N	TV		- LOTTH	TO
		SE	OTION		TION OF	HUMAIUM
		,	/w I	BTERMINA
	OF	KAMH		NDIA		_ {	395
	STREEQUENT HISTORY	RE	COARR 1			•	397
	Bungar	-, -,	n	-		-	55.
	-t 1	វេត្តយោធ), II	-	-
	1551 Wanderings of Humi	áyun	-
	Repose of Hum.
	I

BOOK SIXTH

- 421

ıb

422

Returns to Kibul

Payourable state of his affairs

He resolves to reconquer India

1554

THE SUL DYNASTA IN INDIA

CHAPTER I.

SULTAN SHIP SHALL SUR.

1540	Shir Shah occupies the Penjah on t	he thg	it of H	ımí-
	vun and Kamein	-	-	-	423
	The Gakers refuse to submit to him	-	•	-	-,25

A.D				Page
	They defeat his detachments	-	-	425
	He erects the strong fortress of Rhotas	-	_	426
1542	And returns to Dellii and Agra -	-	_	427
	Quells a revolt in Bengal	-	_	428
	Resolves to reduce Malwa	_	_	ıb
	Guáliár surrenders	-	-	429
	Recent state of Malwa	_	-	1b
	Káder Shah assumes the Sovereignty -	-	_	1b
	Quarrels with Shir Shah	-	_	430
	Who marches against him	-	_	ıb
	Apparent reconciliation between them	-	-	ıb
	Artifice of Shir Shah	-	-	431
	Flight of Kader Shah to Guji at -	_	-	1b
	Attempt to seize the Nobles in Malwa -	-	-	ıb
	Kader Shah returns, and is defeated -	-	-	432
1543	Rántambór surrendered to Shír Shah, who	retur	as to
	Agra	-	-	1b
	Multán occupied in his name	-	-	ıb
	His administration	-	-	433
	He returns to Malwa	-	-	434
	Capitulation of Raisen	-	-	ıb
	Treachery of Shir Shah, and massacre of th	e garrı	son	1b
	His schemes on Marwar	-	-	435
1544	Invades it with a large army	-		436
	Is met by the army of Marwar -	-	-	437
	Excites dissension among the Rájpúts -	-	-	1b
	Desperate attack on his camp	-		438
	Retreat of Maldeo	-		439
	Shir Shah turns off towards Cheitur -	-		1b
	And thence to Kalinjer	-		440 1b
	Capture of that fort, and death of Shir Shah			441
	His character, abilities, and great designs	_		446
	Scanty records of his Civil Administration	-	-	110
	CHAPTER II
	BULTAN IBLÁM (OR SELÍM) SHAH SÚR	•
1545	Shir Shah's second Son placed on the throne			147
	Weakness and profligacy of his elder brother		_	148
	Meeting of the brothers, who proceed toget	uer to	- 4	149
	Capital	-		50
	Islam's scheme for seizing his brother fails	to Bis	_	ıb
	Formal submission of Adel Khan, who retires	אועניטן,		51
	Further attempt to seize him	-	- 7	, U.A.

A. D					Page
	He flies to Khowas Khan in Mewa	ít -	-	-	451
	They are joined by some of the ch	ief Amirs	, and n	ıarch
	on Agra	-	-	-	ıb
	Alarm of Islam on their approach	-	-	-	452
	He moves out to meet them -	-	-	-	453
	Defeat, flight, and disappearance of	of Adel K	han	-	454
	Islam secures his father's treasure	s in Chún	ar	-	ıb
	Procures the deaths of the hostile	Chiefs	-	-	ıb
	Extent of his dominions -	-	-	-	455
	His jealousy of the Governors of	Malwa an	d Mult	án -	ıb
	Threatened revolt in the Penjab	-	-	-	456
	New works at Agra and Delhi	-	-	-	457
1546	The armies of Hindustán and	the Penja	áb mee	t at Ambîla	-	-	-	ıb
	Defeat of the rebels	-	-	-	458
	Islám occupies the Penjáb -	-	-	-	459
	And repairs to Guáliár -	-	-	-	ıb
	Fate of Khowás Khan -	-	-	-	460
	Power of the Afghan Nobles unde	er the Súi	Dynas	ty -	461
	Shujaa Khan of Malwa -	-	-	· -	1b
1547	Attempt on his life by an Afghan	-	-	-	462
	His quarrel with Islam -	-	-	-	463
	Who invades Malwa	-	-	-	ıb
	Flight and restoration of Shujaa I	Than	-	-	ıb
	Temporary success and final defe		m Hun	aáyun
	ın the Penjáb	-	-	-	464
	Disgraceful conduct of Islam after	the victo	ry	-	1b
	He advances to Rhotas -	-	· -	-	465
	Contests with the Gakers -	-	-	-	1b
	Discontents in his camp -	-	-	-	ıb
	He makes peace with the Gakers	on their e	xpelling	g the rebels	-	-	-	466
	Who retreat towards Kashmír	-	-	-	1b
	And are exterminated in the defile	:s -	-	-	467
	Islám constructs Mánkót -	-	-	-	1b
	His narrow escape from assassinat	10n -	-	-	1b
1552	Kámrán visits his camp -	-	-	-	468
	Advance and retreat of Humáyun		-	-	1b
	Meditated destruction of Láhúr,	and remo	oval of	the capital to Mánkót	•	-	-	469
	Mutual suspicions of Islam and hi	s Nobles	-	-	470
1553	Death of Islám Shah	-	-	-	471
	His character and policy -	-	-	-	ıb
	Administration of justice -		-	-	475
	Account of Sheikh Alái and the M	Iehdevis	-	-	1b

CHAPTER III

SULTAN FIRÚZ SHAH SÚR

1553	Accession and murder of Firuz Shah			Pag
1000	Account of his uncle and murderer, Mobares	- Trlian		- 48: - 48:
	and and and the tree is a source.	2 17111111		- 40
	CHAPTER IV
	SULTAN MUHAMMED SHAH ADEL SÚR	. .
1553.	Accession of Mobarez Khan, or Sultan M	Iuliamr	ned
	Shah	•	-	485
	His character	-	_	ıb
1554	Death of Schander Khan Firmuli at the Deri	búr	-	487
	Revolt and defeat of Tay Khan -	-	-	488
	Character of the Munister Himú -	-	-	490
	Spread of disaffection	-	-	493
	Revolt of Ibráhím Khan in Biána -	-	~	1p
	He takes Dellu and Agra, and assumes the Sc	vereigi	ıty
	Distracted state of the Empire -	-	-	494
1555	Revolt of Ahmed Khan in the Penjab	-	-	495
	Opposed at Farra by Ibráhím Khan, whom he	defeats	3 ~	496
	Occupies Agra and Delhi	-	~	497
	Declared Emperor by the Afghan Nobles	-	-	າb
	Humhyun enters the Penjab	•	. ~	498
	His General Biram Khan defeats the Afgha	ns on t	he	400
	Satley	-	~	499
	Humayun defeats and expels Ahmed Khan	_	-	ıb
	Ibrahim again takes the field -	 !//	-	16
	Advance of Mohammed Shah's forces under H		-	1b
	Who defeats Ibrúhim, and besieges him in Biú	1111	-	1b 500
	Revolt of Muhammed Khan in Bengal Retrent of Himú from Biúna towards Behár	-	_	1b
1550	Flight and fate of Ibráhím Khan	-	_	501
1556	Himú joins Muhammed Shah near Kalpi	_	_	502
	Defeats and destroys the army of Bengal	-	_	1b
	Humáyun at Delhi	-	_	503
	His death	-	_	ıb
	Hímú sent ngainst Akber		_	ıb
	He re-occupies Agra and Delhi -	-	-	ıb
	Is defeated and killed at Panipat -		-	1b
	Subversion of the Afghan Dynasty -	•	-	11)
	Defeat and death of Muhammed Shah in Behar	•	-	504

A. D

Page

504

2	His character His son Shir Shah Remarks on the Afghán Dynasty in India -	-	504 1b 1b
	Competitors for the Sovereignty at the time of Humyun's restoration	1á- -	505
	BOOK SEVENTH
	HUMÁYUN'S RECONQUEST OF INDIA, AND DEAT	н
554	Humáyun resolves to attempt the reconquest of India	ւ -	506
	His suspicions of Biram Khan	-	507
	Who entertuns him magnificently at Kandahár	-	ıb
	And arranges to accompany him on his invasion	-	ıb
	Humáyun's preparations at Kábul	-	509
	He is joined by Biram Khan	-	1b
	Sets out on his expedition, and reaches the Indus	-	ıb
l555	State of India	-	510
	Humáyun crosses the Indus	-	511
	Occupies Rhotas and the Northern Penjab, and enter	ers
	Láhúr	-	ıb
	Successful progress	-	1 b
	Occupation of Sirhend	-	513
	Continued distractions in Hindustan	-	514
	Biram Khan crosses the Satlej	-	1p
	Battle of Machiwara	-	515
	Advance of Sekander Shah	-	516
	Humáyun supports Biram	-	1b
	Battle of Sirhend	-	517
	Flight of Sekander and dispersion of his forces	-	518
	Shah Abul Maalı	-	1b
	Decisive effects of the victory at Sirhend -	-	519
	Humáyun re-occupies Delhi	-	520
	Distributes the provinces, which are rapidly reduced	-	ıb
	Surrender of Biána	-	521
	Frequent insubordination of Humáyun's Officers	-	522
	Revolt of Mirza Suleimán in Badakhshán -	-	1b
	Misconduct of Abul Marli in the Penjab	-	523
	Superseded by Akber, who expels Sekander Shah	-	524
1556	Account received of the death of Humayun -	-	526
	Humáyun's plans for the Government of the Empire	-	ıb

	CONTENTS	Lugo
VZZV PD	Particulars of his death, which is for cealed Alarm excited by this event Danger of the crisis Character of Humáyun	527 - 529 - 1b - 530
	Character of

SUPPLEMENTARY REMARKS

ON THE STATE OF GOVERNMENT AND MANNERS IN KABUL AND THE SURROUNDING COUNTRIES DURING THE REIGNS

ON THE STATE OF THE OWN DE	ING COO.
AND THE SURROUNDS OF BABER AND HUM	AYUN.			536
TO BER ALL		_	-	538
a regal et	_{iquette}	_	-	539 540
Government and regal et	-		-	540
The Court State of the Provinces	-		-	543
State of the	-	• [-	, ıb
The army	-		-	- 544
Fortresses Large cities	-		-	_ 545
Inhabitants Inhabitants of just	108			546 548
A aministration	-	•	-	- 340 - 1b
Religion Men of learning and	piety	-	 	549
Men of learning		•	-	, ib
Tateraturo	-	-		550
Sciences Architecture		•	-	- 551
State of morals	wher ranks	-		- 552 - 1b
State of morals Condition of the high		-		- 117
And of the people		-	•
And of the Far Revenue Absence of free In	istitutions Absence

HISTORY OF INDIA.

BOOK FOURTH

FROM HUMÁYUM'S ACCESSION TO HIS EXPULSION FROM INDIA

CHAPTER I

AFFAIRS OF HUMÁYUN FROM HIS ACCESSION TO HIS IN-VASION OF MALWA AND GUIRÁT

HUN (TUN'S ACCISSION — DII FIGULTIES OF HIS SITUATION — COMPETITORS FOR THE THRONE — UNSETTLED STATE OF THE EMPIRE
— AND OF LOREIGN RELATIONS — CHARACTER OF HUMÁYUN — PROVISION FOR HIS BROTHERS — PRETENSIONS OF KÁMRÁN — HIS ADVANCE TOWARDS HINDUSTÁN — CAPTURES LAHUR—AND OCCUPILS THE PLNJ'S — CONCESSIONS OF HUMÁYUN — CAMPAIGN AGAINST KALINJER — AND TO THE EASTWARD — HUMÁYUN RETURNS TO ACRA — CAMPAIGN AGAINST CHUN'AR—INTERRUPTED BY THE PROGRESS OF BEH (DER SHAH — MOMINAL CAPITULATION OF SHÍR KHAN EMBASSY FROM BEH (DER SHAH — MUHAMMED ZEMÁN MÍRZA — IS IMPRISONED, AND ESCAPES TO GUJRÁT — MUHAMMED SULTAN
MÍRZA, AND HIS SONS — PROGRESS OF BEHÁDER SHAH — MEASURES OF HUMÁYUN AGAINST THE AFGHÁNS OF BEHÁR — ARRESTED BY THE ADVANCE OF BEHÁDER SHAH — AND TÁTÁR KHAN LODI

^{*} He was born in the citadel of 1508, March 6) and mounted the Kabul, A и 913, Zikada 4, (A D throne A и 937, Jemadi I 9 (A D VOL II

HISTORY OF INDIA He ascended the throne in the city of Agra, on the 29th of December, A D 1530, three days after the late Emperor's death The usual solemnities followed, the chief nobility presented themselves at the Derbar, and tendered their allegiance, and money was scattered BOOK IV among the populace The public prayers were read, л в 1530 Humáyun 8 and coin struck, in name of the new prince accession, л и 937, A D 1530, Temádi I 9 Dec 29 Difficulties of his situation

But, though the son of the great Baber thus mounted the throne of Agra, his situation was not free from danger and difficulty. Even in his own court, and in the army, all was not sound In that age, the right of succession to the crown was very unsettled the claim of the eldest son to succeed his father was acknowledged in a general way, the order of succession was not in practice rigidly adhered to The public feeling was little hurt when any other of the sons, or an aspiring uncle, made his way to the throne sword was the grand arbiter of right, and every son was prepared to try his fortune against his brothers The custom of granting large governments or appanages to the younger princes, gave them the means of asserting their ambitious pretensions by force, at the head of armies In the present instance, other principles unfavourable to the regular succession were in operation The conquest of Hindustan had been begun only five years before, and was still in progress Humayun had not latterly been employed in any military command in that country of course, military The army was not a national one, connected by common language and country, but a mixed body of adventurers, Chaghatái, Uzbek, Moghul, Even the Chaghatai chiefs, who had enjoyed most of the Emperor's confi-Persian, Afghan and Indian dence and favour, were not perfectly unanimous Though

1530, Dec. 29) His mother was Maham Begum, a relative of Sultan Husein Mirza of Khorásán

bernama, f 35 v Was Mih-am, "My Moon, 7 term of endearment converted into a name?

attached to the family of Báber, as the representatives CHAP I of that revered prince and of the great Taimur, yet no A p 1530 emment chief or head of a tribe considered the crown itself as beyond the range of his ambition. It was the age of revolution, and the kingdoms on every side, -Persia, Samarkand, Bokhára, Hissar, Balkh, and Hindustan itself,-saw the throne occupied by adventurers, or the immediate descendants of adventurers, not more distinguished than themselves. The length of time during which the late Emperor's health had been declining had given time for parties and intrigues to be formed among them, which his talents and respected name had lutherto prevented from bursting out, but which were not the less dangerous on that account We have seen by what a minute accident a plan of the competing prime minister himself, for setting aside Báber's son throne altogether, had been defeated Syed Mehdi Khwaja, the candidate in whose favour he had acted, seems to have been of a religious family, was a son in-law of Baber, and known to the aimy, a division of which he had often led Muhammed Zemán Mírza, another great lord of the court, and a descendant of Taimúr, being a grandson of the celebrated Sultan Husein Mírza Balkia of Khorásán, and who had also married a daughter of Báber, was supposed to have in his interest a formidable party, consisting of many of the most powerful men in the army He was a man of talent, and had been employed by the late Emperor in many important commands Muhammed Sultan Mírza, also a descendant of Taimúi and grandson of the late Sultan of Khorásán by a daughter, was a third nobleman, who, from his royal birth and high station, was thought worthy to aspire to the thione. All had their followers and adherents The very supposition that such men might be placed in hostility to the legal heir, rendered their position dangelous, and it might in some circumstances seem safer to incur the immediate risks of revolt than to endure the lingering annoyances and real dangers of suspicion. Under such circumstances, a thousand unforeseen accidents might occur to blow the smouldering embers of intrigue and faction into a flaine

Unsettled state of the 1 mpire

Nor was it only in the court and in the camp that dangers were to be apprehended The Empire was far from being yet consolidated, when Baber died It was only five years since that able prince had entered India, and, during that period, his life had been too busily employed, in military expeditions, to admit of his devoting the needful time to settling the details of the internal administration of the kingdoms that he had conquered He had entered the country as a stranger and a spoiler, he had defeated the armies and broken the power of the reigning dynasty, but the only hold which he, or his race, yet had upon the people of India was military force Of the two great classes of which the population of India was composed, the Hindus could have little unity of feeling with their Muhammedan conquerors Both religions are, in their particular ways, exclusive The Hindus admit of no proselytes, regard all strangers, even their rulers, as not only far behind them in the road to final happiness, but as, at best, only successful barbarians, many of whose habits they view with disgust and abhorrence. The Musulman, too, though eager for proselytism, is an exclusive religion, which looks with hatred or contempt on every other, and is very unfavourable to the existence of much sympathy between the believing lord and the infidel subject, especially where that subject adds to his other crimes that of idolatry. But the difficulty was not less, even with the old Muhammedans. India, for centuries, had been governed by Muhammedan dynasties of foreign descent. The last of these had been the Afghán, and chiefs of that race, with their followers, were scattered all over the kingdom, and held the most important offices and the most valuable Formidable power of the Afgháns.

jágíis These they considered as their buth-right, CHAP I and they were indignant that so noble a prize, so long enjoyed as an inheritance, should be wrested from them Though repeatedly defeated in the field, they were still numerous and powerful, tipe for tevolt, and ready on the first signal to fly to arms, in what was a personal as well as a national cause They had also the advantage of possessing a rallying point The cause of Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, the brother and successor of the late Sultan Ibiáhím, was still supported by Baban and Bayezíd, the old heads of the Afghán nobility, who, though lately driven into the recesses of the eastern provinces and of Behár, were only waiting for a fit opportunity to return, and re-occupy the kingdom from which they had been expelled, and their countryman Shir Khan, one of the ablest men of the age, had already taken up arms in Behar and Bengal, about the close of Báber's reign

Of the princes and states beyond the limits of the Foreign Empire, the King of Bengal was friendly to the Afgháns and had given protection to Sultan Mahmud Lodi, whose daughter he afterwards mairied The Rájpúts, though stunned by their late discomfiture, were powerful still, and, though the kingdom of Málwa at that moment possessed little strength,—being in a state of deplorable confusion from the intestine factions that had long torn it to pieces, and made it a piey to its neighbours, — yet, in Gujrát, Beháder Shah was fast rising into power, had added to his territories on every side, and, from the mere extension of his conquests, was likely soon to come into direct collision with the Emperor of Delhi *

At such a crisis, the personal character of the plince of Humáywas a matter of deep importance. If we remove the un glare of eulogy thrown over the actions of all Asiatic ^{*} Abulfazl, in the Akbernáma, Baber's Memoirs, passim Tarikh-e Khafi Khan, Ferishta, BOOK IA

A D. 1530

sovereigns by the historians who wrote in their own time, or in that of their immediate descendants, we shall find that Humáyun, though a prince of lively parts and elegant accomplishments, brave, and on the whole of a humane temper, was volatile, fond of pleasure, and deficient in those enlarged views so necessary for conducting the affairs of an extensive Empire, as well as in that decision and spirit of command, without which no prince can secure the respect and confidence of his subjects Provision for his brothers One of Humáyun's first acts was to assign jágírs to be held by his brothers. Kámrán he confirmed in the kingdoms of Kábul and Kandahár, which seem to have been bestowed on him by his father. To Askeri Mírza he allotted the province of Sambhal; and that of Alwar or Mewát to Hindal Mírza. He confirmed his cousin Suleimán Mírza in the government of the little kingdom of Badakhshán. His nobles, and the army, he conciliated, as is usual with Asiatic princes at the commencement of a new reign, by conferring on them titles, khiláts, and other marks of honour, and by munificent largesses who advances towards Hindustan, A H 938, A D 1531 But the want of union among the brothers was not long of showing itself. No sooner did Kámrán, who was at Kábul, hear of his father's death, than, disdaining the ample dominions he had enjoyed under his father, and in the possession of which his brother had consented to confirm him, he consigned Kandahár to Askeri, collected an army, and, in the true spirit of brotherhood among Asiatic princes, marched for Hindustán, under pretence of congratulating Humáyun on his accession, but in reality to try the strength of his sword, and to see whether his own good fortune might not raise him to the throne of Delhi itself. Humáyun, alarmed at the news of his motions, and harassed by the dangers that surrounded him, despatched an envoy to meet the Mírza, and to announce to him his intention of adding the countries of Peshawer and Lamphan to the term- char i tories which he already enjoyed But Kamian's views A. B. 1531 were too extensive to be satisfied even with that concession He crossed the Indus, and, having traversed the greater part of the Penjab, drew near to Lahur, the capit il

Pretensions of Kámrán,

7

There he found that Mu Yunis Ah, who had been captures the governor under Baber, was futhful to his trust, and Lahur adhered to Humayun To have bestowed the time necessary for reducing the capital of the Penjab by regular military operations, might have been fatal to his enterprise. To gain possession of it without delay therefore, Kuman resorted to stratagem. Having atranged his plan, he one night affected to be violently oftended with Keracha Beg, one of his chief Amirs, and publicly, in the Deibar, reviled him in the most harsh and unmersured terms. Next night the Beg fled from the camp with all his followers and sought refuge in Lahúr. In those days of versitile and unstable allegiance, such a defection had in it nothing uncommon Mn Yunis Ali, delighted to have gained a man of so much consequence, went out of the city with an honorary procession to meet and welcome him He afterwards treated the Beg not merely as a political, but as a personal, friend, gave him constant invitations to partake of the hospitality of his table, and made several social and friendly parties for his amusement Kerácha Beg coolly watched his time, till, one night, after a convival entertainment at the Mn's palace, where, in consequence of the lateness of the hour, the soldiers had been allowed to go home to their quarters, he seized his opportunity, perfidiously took his host into custody, got possession of one of the gates and despatched messengers to Kamrán to announce his success The Mirza, who had been waiting with much anxiety, no sooner learned the result of the stratagem, than he hastened to the gate with a strong force and entered Lahúi without resistance Mír Yúnis Ali was then relieved from custody, and Kámrán, who wished to give the whole proceeding the air, not of a conquest, but of an ordinary assumption of the government, apologising to Yúnis Ali for the violence he unwillingly employed, asked him to enter his service, and to retain the office he had held. This the Mír declined, and was allowed to leave the city and to join Humáyun

BOOK IV A D 1531

And occupies the Penjáb A H 938, A D 1531

Concessions of Humayun. After this first success, Kámrán took possession of all the neighbouring provinces, so that, in a short time, the whole of the Penjáb, as far as the Sutley, acknowledged his authority

Still, however, as if nothing uncommon had occurred, and as if he had been acting all along like a faithful subject, he continued, by his ambassadors, to assure Humáyun of his attachment and fidelity, and, at the same time, petitioned, in the humblest terms, to be allowed to hold the territory of which he had thus become The Emperor, who, before these transpossessed actions were brought to a conclusion, had become involved in troubles and difficulties on every hand, affected to accede cheerfully to a request, which he could not without danger refuse He signified his assent, and, to save appearances, ascribed his large concessions to the ties of kindred which united them, and the wishes expressed by their late father. After some delay, a firmán was accordingly issued, bestowing on Kámrán the government of Kábul, Kandahár, and the Penjáb, a grant which exalted that prince to the possession of dominions and power nearly equal to his own. Kámrán, who had a turn for poetry, delighted with the success of his schemes of ambition, in the fulness of his joy, addressed several odes to Humáyun, in which he exhausted all the powers of song to express his gratitude. The Emperor, either flattered by his high-flown praises, or to gain time and to confirm him in his pacific dispositions, farther rewarded the royal poet by bestowing on him, what seems a most imprudent grant, the rich char i province of Hissái-Fiióza, an acquisition the more acceptable to the Mirzi as it lay nearly on the high road between his possessions in the Penjab and Delhi Each probably attempted to deceive the other. At all events, a friendship founded on such a basis could be neither sincere nor lasting These transactions with Kamran , Au 937 which occupied a considerable part of two years, have vn 1531 been recorded in this place, to avoid interrupting the -2 future course of the narrative

Shawal or

Before his relations with Kamian began to bear a Campaign threatening aspect, Humayun, about five or six months Kallnjer after his accession, had set out to besiege the strong All 937 fort of Kalinjer, in Bandelkandt, the possession of zikader, which was necessary at once to strengthen his frontier, and to open an easier communication between Malwa June and his dominions on the Jamna and the Ganges The Rua of Kalinger was probably in the interest of the Afghans When Humayun had blockaded the fort about a month, and had made some progress in his advances, he was alarmed by the information that Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, supported by Biban Khan Jilwám and Sheikh Bayezid, the most eminent leaders of the Afghans, had again invided the provinces east of the Ganges, had taken Juánpúi, and was overrunning the country in great force Eager to meet the invaders, he proposed a treaty to the Raja of Kalmjer, who gladly gave a large sum of money to hasten his retreat ‡

Humáyun, on leaving Kalinjer, directed his course And to the to the eastward, crossed the Ganges, and reached the

* Akbernama, f 35-37, Khafi Khan Some specimens of Kamran's verses may be found in the Akbernama, f 37

† The siege of Kalinjer, according to the Akbernama, occurred in A и 937, according to Ferishta, A 11 938 As Humayun seems to have left Agra in the last months of 937, had afterwards to march to Bandelkand, and lay a month before the fort, he must have raised the siege in A 11 938

I Akbernáma, Tabakát-1-Akbert, f 173, 174, Kholaset-ul- Fowarikh, f 255, Kháfi Khan, Abulfazl, f 35, says twelve mans of gold and other valuable considerations.

```
HISTORY OF INDIA
BOOK IV town of Doura, when he was met by the Afghans in A battle ensued, in which Sheikh Bayezid was slam, and Sultan Mahmud and his Afghans completely dispersed, as his friends affirmed, by the treachery of Shir Khan Mahmud was soon after expelled from the province of Juánpúr, and fled to Patna and Bengal, whence he never returned, and where he died
              The Emperor, having defeated this invasion, settled the country, and reinstated Sultan Juneid Birlas as his heutenant in the government, returned to Agra, a natural death *
             where, on the anniversary of his accession, he gave a grand entertainment, in the course of which, besides Humily un 11ch presents and other gratifications to his nobles, in returns to elephants, Jewels, &c, he is said to have distributed Agra.
               among the officers of his court and army no less than twelve thousand khiláts, or honorary diesses, two thou-
      , 11 93B,
                sand of which were richly embioidered and ornamented Jemadi I.
                   The most important object of policy for the Em-
       Dec. 19
                 peror of Delhi at this moment, next to that of crushing with precious stones † the seeds of rebellion in his own family and court, was undoubtedly to break in pieces the power still possessed by the Afghans throughout India, and to become Campaign
                   master, if possible, of the course of the Ganges secure these objects, the Emperor soon afterwards against Chunar
                    again took the field, and marched towards the fort of Chunár, in the province of Behár, a place of extraordinary strength, and one of the most important л н <sup>938</sup>, positions on that river brated Shir Khan, who, since the defeat and flight of Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, had risen to the first distinction on the river Sini," probably an error of the transcriber for Gumti No date is given, nor are Kalinjer or
                         * Kholáset-ul-Towarikh, f 255
                                                       + Tabukát-1-Akbern, f 144, Fe-
                        In the translation of Jouher, the Juanpur mentioned battle 15 said to have been fought on the banks of the Goompty of Humayun, P 3 In the original, rishta, 11 72
                         it is said to have been at "Daurch
```

among the Afghans Formerly it had belonged to CHAP I Sultan Ibráhim, but soon after his defeat and death (P. 1531-2 had submitted to Baber, as we have seen, and, by a series of events to be afterwards mentioned, had very recently passed into the hands of its present master Humayun, desirous both to possess the fort and to humble the owner, had sent a large force in advance to invest it, and now himself followed and laid close siege to it, at the head of a formidable army At his approach, Shir Khan, leaving his son, Jilal Khan, in the fortress with a strong garrison of trusty adherents, retired to the higher grounds, and hovered round the imperial camp, for the double purpose of harassing it and of succouring the besieged. After the blockade by the prohad lasted three or four months, Humayun, who, for hader shah hader shah tunately for the Afghan chiefs, was surrounded by hader Shah enemies, received intelligence, with some alarm, of the ripid progress made by Behadei Shah, the King of Gujrit, in Malwa ind Nagoi Shii Khan, seizing the favourable moment, sent ambissadois to the Emperor to sue for peace, to express the Ishan's gratitude to the Emperor and his illustrious father, by whose patronage he had attained his present rank, to make professions of submission, and such offers as, while they saved the dignity of the sovereign, left the Khan in possession of his stronghold Humáyun, little disposed to protract a siege which might be drawn out to a very inconvenient length, and had already interfered with most important objects, concluded a capitu- Nominal lation with Shir Khan, who was perfectly willing to of Shir make ample promises, flattering himself, that when khan the imperial troops were withdrawn, it would cost him nothing to act as he pleased, and to pursue his own policy, unfettered by any flimsy treaty that had been forced upon him A peace was, therefore, concluded, by the terms of which he agreed, that his son, Kutb Khan, should join the Emperor's army, with a body

BOOK IV of Afgháns; and the young prince, accordingly, along with Isa Khan Hijáb Sirwáni, his viziei, did wait upon Humayun, and accompany him on his march into Gujrát . While there, Shír Khan having found the time favourable for revolt, and Humáyun being busy reducing that province, Kuth Khan contrived to make his escape, and rejoined his father *

Embassy from Behader Shah. ан 939, A D 1532 -3

On relinquishing the siege of Chunár, Humáyun returned to Agra, where he gave audience to an embassy that Behåder Shah had sent, for the purpose of quieting any apprehensions which he might entertain in consequence of the lapid progress that prince was making in Málwa, and in the Rájpút territories mission he received with much pleasure, as circumstances rendered it important that his declared enemics should be as few as possible He dismissed the ambassadors with every mark of distinction, and with assurances of his own pacific intentions, and turned himself to averting the dangers which threatened him in his own court and in the heart of his dominions

Muhammed Zemán Mirza.

The Emperor had long entertained a jealousy of Muhammed Zemán Mírza's ambitious projects, and now resolved to take away from him all means of carrying them into execution It has been mentioned that he was the son of Badi-ez-zemán Mírza, and giandson of the famous Sultan Husein Mírza Baihra, of Khorásán After his father's kingdom had passed into the hands of the Uzbeks, he had resided at the court of Paber, with whom he is said to have been a particular favourite, and had married one of his daughters

* Akbernama, f 42, Ferishta, 11 pp 110-113, Jouher, c 2, Tar Khafi Khan, Tabakat 1-Akben, f 174, Tar Nizami, f 213, Nisábnúma Áfgh f 88, Far Bed f 117 The Fabakat, Nisabnuma, Ferishta, Khifi Khan, and the original text of Jouher, call this young prince Kuth Khan fazl calls him Abdal Reshid, and is followed in the translation of Joulier The Khol ret-ul-Towarikh, f 275, solves the mystery, calling hum " Kuth Khan, generally known as Abdal-Reshid

had been honoured with the most important commands char i Many of the northern Chaghatár chiefs, who formed vo 1503 4 the Emperor's great strength, had much influence in his court and filled the chief offices in the country, were attached to this prince. We have seen that, in the late reign, he hold the government of Behái. The events that preceded his imprisonment are not known with much certainty Abulfazl affirms, that he formed a party and carried on intrigues in conjunction with his cousin, Muhammed Sultan Mirza, also a grandson of Sultan Husein Minza, but by a daughter, as well as with Muhammed's son, Ulugh Minza, with whom at with Muhammed's son, Origin article, men, after an 940 this crisis he rose in rebellion a second time, after an 940 this ros of Ap 1503 4 having been once purdoned, that, to check this revolt, Humayun led an army down the Ganges, and, when opposite to Bhupui, sent a strong detachment across to the right brink of the river, under the command of his cousin, Yádgai Nasii Muza, who defeated the rebels, and made Muhammed Zeman, Muhammed Sultan, and Wali Khub Muzi, prisoners * The narrative of other historians makes it more probable that the Emperor, acting on his belief or suspicion of their suspected treasonable designs, had arrested the first of these prisoned, princes, in his government of Behar, by means of an armed force, before any using took place, and afterwards served the others as his accomplices Muhammed Zemán, on his carnest professions of fidelity, was pardoned, and sent under the custody of Yadgar Taghar Beg to be imprisoned in Biana, but he had not been escapes to long there before he wrought upon his keeper not only to allow him to escape, but to accompany him in his flight He reached the court of Behader Shah, where he was well received Muhammed Sultan Mirza, with Muhamhis sons, Ulugh and Shah Mirzas, when thrown into med Sultan prison, were ordered to be blinded by the fire pencil, his sons

A D 1534

BOOK IV that so an end might be put to their public life, but, from the indulgence of the operator, it was so lightly applied that the structure of their eyes remained unimpaired They, too, effected their escape from prison. about the same time, and hastened to Kanaúj, where Muhammed Sultan soon saw himself at the head of a respectable army of six thousand men, - Chaghatais, Afgháns, and Ráipúts $

Progress of Behhder Shah. A II 941, A D 1534

While Humáyun was occupied at home in dreamy speculations of false science, and by dangers within and without his court, which he found it difficult to avert, the King of Gujrát was pursuing his victorious career. So decisive were the advantages which he gained over the Rána of Cheitúr, whom, after overrunning Malwa, he now attacked in his own dominions, that he was emboldened to advance and lay siege to Cheitúr itself, the capital of the Rájpút. The Rána, in his distress, despatched an envoy to ask succour from Humayun, who could not see with indifference the rapid progress of a rival rendered more odious to him by the protection which he ostentatiously afforded to the refugees from Delhi Humayun, thus invited, moved forward with a considerable army, as far as Gualiar, as if to assist the Rana There he encamped

A Briggs's Ferishta, it p 73, Khufi Khan, f 40 , Tabakat-1 1kberi, f 145 Abulfizl and Ferishti do not mention that Muhammed Zeman was ordered to be blinded, which the author of the Tabakat-1-Akberi, and of the Tarikh-1-Bedauni do The former says, that they did not injure the organisation of the iris of his eye, so that he soon recovered his sight (f 145), and is followed by the Kholaset ul-Towirikh, f 255 There were two modes at that time employed in blinding princes, who were the objects of jealous. By the one, the eye itself was cut with a lancet by the other, a heated plate, or sometimes a heated pencil of brass or iron was applied to it, till the eight was destroyed. The latter was often preferred in the case of princes, since, the form of the cychall not being destroyed, the appearance of the countenance was less injured There is some disagreement among historians as to the chronology of these events. I have followed the leading authorities in the way that seems to me best fitted to reconcile this difference for about two months, and despatched an ambassador CHAP I to Behader to demand that he should desist from his A D 1534 enterprise against Cheitúr, and, at the same time, deliver up the trutors who had fled from the Emperor's dominions Neither demand was complied with, and the Emperor, with some loss of reputition, soon after decomped, being compelled by the necessity of his affairs to murch toward Juánpúr and the Behár provinces, to repress new disturbances which had arisen in that quarter. The Rana, upon this, despaning of any effectual assistance, was glad to purchase the temporary retreat of Behader Shah, by consenting to pay a large sum of money, and by sending him as a propitiatory offering, a celebrated crown and belt adorned with jewels of immense value, and other costly presents

Humayun determined to employ the interval of quiet, Mersure which this prefication promised to afford, in putting against the an end to the perpetual invasions and insuriections of Behar the Afghans of Behar, and in punishing his own rebel-

* These are said to have been the crown and regalia which Sultan Mahmud of Valwa carried off from the tent of Kuth Shah of Gujrit (v n 856, Sefer 1, a n 1452, Feb 23) and which fell into the hands of Rana Singa of Cheitur, on the defeat of Sultan Mahmud II of Malwa, about a n 925 (a p 1519) Ferishta, iv pp 39 263 It will be afterwards seen that, from Behader Shah, they were said to have passed to Soliman the Magnificent, Emperor of Constantinople

There seems some difficulty, however, in the transmission of these regaliz. "When Runa Sanga defeated Sultan Mahmud, and made him prisoner," says Biber, (Mem p 385), "the Sultan had on a splendid crown-cap and golden girdle, which fell into the hands of the prgan, who, when he set Sultan Mahmud at liberty, retained them

They were now with Bikerming His elder brother, Ruttonsi, who had succeeded his father as Rina, and who was now in possession of Cheitur, had sent to desire his younger brother to deliver them up to him, which he refused to do By the envoys, who came from him to wait on me, he now sent me (Q) tendered?) " this crown and golden girdle and asked Biana in exchange for Rantambor &c. We nowhere hear of their being regained from Baber or his successor Yet the Mirit-e Ahmedi, agreeing with or following Ferislita, makes Bikermajit s mother give this very "waistband and jewelled crown, which had been captured from Mahmud Khilji I, of Malwa, when the Runa defeated him" to Behader Shah, to induce him to raise the siege. Bird s transl p 244

A D 1534

the advance of Behåder Shah and Tátár

BOOK IV lious nobles. For this purpose, having collected a large army, he once more marched from Agra, and had reached Kınár, in the district of Kalpi, on the Jamna, Arrested by when his progress was arrested by the intelligence that Behåder Shah had again laid siege to Cheitúr, and that, supported by him, Tátár Khan, the son of Sultan Khan Lo.1. Alá-ed-dín Lodi, the uncle and rival of the late Sultan Ibráhím Lodi, was advancing, at the head of a formidable army, to assert his father's claim to the throne of Delhi He hastened back to Agra, and took immediate measures for repelling the aggression, and for hurling back the danger on the head of Behader Shah *, whose success seemed now to threaten ruin to the house of Taimúr But, as Malwa and Gujrát are soon to become the scene of important operations, it becomes necessary to interrupt for a while the course of the narrative, in order to give some idea of the political state of these countries at this period

f 35-37 does not mention the two * Tabakát-1-Akberi, f 145, Ferishta, ii 72-74 The Akbernáma, months' encampment at Gualiúr

CHAPTER II

AFIAILS OF GUIRÁT AND MALWA

SECTION I

KINGDOMS - PROGRESS OF EARLY HISTORY OI THOSE BLILIDER SHAH

DISPULTION OF THE EMPIRE UNDER SULTAN MUHAMMED TOCHLAK - LINGDON OF GLURAT - LINGDON OF MALWA - PROSPERITY OF GLJEAT - ITS IMIORTANCE - STATE OF MAIN L - LOSITION OF TARLY MUSULMINS IN INDIA - PRINCES OF MALWY -MAHMUD II - INTRIGUES OF MODE (117 KHAN - INTEREOSITION OF MEDÍNI RAO - RÁJIÚT LLACUE, AT TILL COURT OF MALWA -KINGS OF DILLII AND GUJILLT INTERFERI -DIFENSIVE MEASURES OF MEDÍNI RAO - THE RÁJPUTS ALL-LOWERIUL IN MALWA -MARMUD ATTIMITS THE IR DISMISSAL - IS DISCOMFITED - ESCAPES TO GUIRAT - HIS RESTORATION - FYPEDITION AGAINST THE RE-FRACTORI RÁJPLTS, AND DEFEAT — DISMEMBERMENT OF MALWA -BLH (DER SHAH IN GUJR (T - RANA RUTTONSI AND BFH (DER SHAH IN MALWA - MÁNDU TAKEN - BFHÁDER SHAH PROCLAIMED KING - PARTITION OF MALMA - CAPTURE OF SILAH-ED-DÍN BY BEH DER - CATASTROLIE OF RAISEN - FURTHER SUCCESSES OF BEH (DER SHAH

THE kingdoms both of Malwa and Gujrát, at a former period, nearly a century and a half before the time of Humáyun, had been included in the kingdom of Delhi About the close of the fourteenth century, on the decline of the Toghlak dynasty, when the empire fell to pieces, many of the provinces, and among others Gujrát med Togh and Malwa, became independent sovereignties insane violence and brutal cruelty of Sultan Muhammed

CHAP II.

Disruption of the empire, under Sultan Muham-

Toghlak of Delhi had spread universal alarm over his dominions Having, by his profusion, exhausted the treasury, he imposed taxes beyond what his subjects could bear He rigidly enforced them, and the landholders and peasantry, to escape from his tyranny, fled to the woods and wastes He tampered with the coin, and the distress and ruin, which in all circumstances follow an injudicious meddling with the currency, were soon experienced He attempted to remove the population and city of Delhi to Doulatábád in the Dekhan; and thousands of the wretched inhabitants perished on the road and after their arrival, of fatigue, want and misery in every shape Famine, civil war, robbery, murder, and anarchy, all over his dominions, marked the close of his reign Driven to desperation by misgovernment, each district and province was forced to provide separately for its own safety, so that, from the mere necessity of substituting some kind of government for the misrule and rapine that prevailed, several new dynasties arose in the principal provinces of the empire

Kingdom of Gujrát. A H 793, A D 1391

The nobleman who at that crisis rose to be King of Gujrát was Mozeffer Khan His origin is uncertain. While some describe him as having been the son of a low spirit-distiller, or water-carrier, others, with more probability, represent him as the son of a Hindu chief converted to Muhammedanism. The menial office, which he is said to have filled in the palace, argues little, as men of rank in all countries have been eager to fill offices nominally menial, about the person of the sovereign, and Báber †, a judicious and careful reader of history, describes the employment to have been that of cup-bearer. The disorders which at that period pervaded India, and the consequent confusion and indistinctness in the narrative of the historians of the time, leave us rather uncertain as to the extent of Gujrát, when its governor assumed the symbols of royalty His capital was Nehrwala or Patan, but what now forms the southern part of the province did not then belong to it The new King, however, an active and able man, speedily compelled the various Rajas of Kattiawár, and the western peninsula, to acknowledge his authority, and to pay tribute. He, likewise, tuined his arms against the Raja of Eder, and expelled him from his dominions

^{*} Ferishta, vol 1v p 3

CHAP IL

Emboldened by this success, he ventured at a future Kingdom of time to invade Malwa That country had also recently undergone a revolution, similar to what had occurred in Gujrát, and from the same causes Khan, a Ghúri Afghán, from governoi had become king, and his son Hosheng now reigned A strong An 810, party, however, opposed his government, and called in to their assistance Mozeffer Shah of Gujiát, who readily The hostile armies met near marched to their aid the ancient town of Dhár in Malwa, and, after a desperate battle, in which Mozeffer was wounded and Hosheng unhorsed, victory declared for the invader, and Hosheng was forced to take refuge in Dhár, where he was besieged, and soon after compelled to surrender Mozeffer, leaving a part of his army in Malwa, to retain it in subjection, returned with his prisoner to Gujrát But he had hardly turned his back on his new conquest, when, the officers whom he had left in command having made some burdensome exactions on the inhabitants. the party that had called him in, who wanted an ally not a master, rose and expelled his troops, setting up a king of their own This change of affairs induced him A H 811, to release Sultan Hosheng from confinement, and to An 1408. send him, accompanied by a strong force, to assert his rights, and the different internal parties, tired of the evils which civil war had brought on their country, soon after united, and once more acknowledged Hosheng as King of Malwa

Prosperity of Guirát. A # 815-847, л в 1412 -1443

After the death of Mozeffer Shah, several of his descendants increased the territory of Guirát His grandson, Ahmed Shah, a very distinguished prince, and the founder of Ahmedábád, reduced under his power nearly the whole country that forms the present Gujrát, including the low lands to the south below the Gháts, the Northern Kokan, and the Island of Bombay, he forced the Rajas of the western peninsula, and other chiefs bordering on his dominions, especially the Raja of Champanír, who, it is affirmed*, could at that time bring sixty thousand men into the field, to pay tribute, and he carried his victorious arms in different campaigns into Khándesh, and Málwa, the capital of which he besieged Under him, and his immediate successors, Gujrát obtained a high degree of prosperity

A IT 863~ 917. A D 1459-1511

One of them, Mahmud Shah Bigara, was particularly successful He besieged and took the strong and, in the opinion of the natives, impregnable hill-forts of Girnál or Júnagar, and of Champanír †, he did much to consolidate the kingdom within, and without, he extended his marches in different expeditions, as far as the Indus on one side, and Doulatábád in the Dekhan on the other, at the same time that he carried on an active war, by sea and land, with the Portuguese

A # 917-932, д в 1511-1526 л и 932

Ramzán 26 л D 1526

July 6

* Ferishta, iv p 66

† It is pretended that the reduction of these two strong hillforts gave rise to Mahmud's appellation of Bigara (from ba, two, and gar, a fort) Ferishta mentions another and more probable origin, namely, the colour of his mustachios

His son, Mozeffer Shah II maintained the glory of He restored the King of Malwa to the throne of that kingdom, from which he had been expelled by a combination of Rajput chiefs, taking Mandu from them by storm To this prince, with the intervention of the short reigns of two of his brothers, Sultan Behider Shah had succeeded, and now swayed the sceptre cour in of Guirit

That kingdom had always an extraordinary influence Istimportover the neighbouring states, and could ruse irmes, and subsidise troops, with a facility apparently disproportioned to its extent. But few countries in the world are more blest in a fertile soil and a favourable climate, and the possession of the great emporar of Cambay, Diu, and Surat, besides other convenient harbours, had enriched it with the most active commerce of any portion of India. The greater part of the trade of that country with Persia, Arabia, Africa, the Red Sea, and Europe, besides an active coasting trade, passed through its hirbours, and the various commodities imported from these regions were conveyed over Hindustan, and the north of the Dekhan, through its provinces, and by its merchants. The benefit of this trade overflowed upon the country, which become a garden, and enriched the treasury of the prince. The noble mosques, colleges, palaces and tombs, the remains of which still adorn Ahmedahad, and its other cities, to this day, while they excite the admiration of the traveller, prove both the wealth and the taste of the founders

The same circumstances which, on the decline of the State of Toghlak dynasty of Dellii, induced the governor of Gujrát to assert his independence, had, as his been noticed, a similar effect on Diláwer Khan, the governor of Malwa, who also assumed the sovereign power in his capital of Dhar We have seen his son Hosheng A II 804 defeated and made prisoner, and again restored to his kingdom by the Sultan of Gujrát - Hosheng Ghúir was the founder of Mandu After his death, the intrigues in his court led to the murder of his successor, and the son of his prime minister was raised to the throne, under the title of Sultan Mahmud Khilu * He was an ullet Have the Khilji monarchs any They are generally described as connection with the Ghilji Afghans? Turks able prince; but the country, in consequence of the dissensions that always attend a change of dynasty, was harassed for some time by civil wars The weakness of the kings of Delhi, at this period, enabled Sultan Mahmúd to extend his dominions on different sides, and he reduced the important forts and districts of Bhílsa, Chándéri, and Hoshengábád in Malwa ried his arms into the centre of the Rájpút states, reduced Kambelmér in Mewar, and besieged the mountain capital of Cheitúr He even aspired to the throne of Delhi, and engaged in war, not only with the King of Gujrát, but with the kings of the Dekhan, of Khándesh, and of Juanpur, with which last he had quarreled about the possession of Kalpi on the Jamna He levied contributions on Kota and Biána, and added Mandsúr, Mandelgar, Búndi and Rantambór to his dominions one time, he overran Gujrát, but was finally defeated, near Ahmedábád, and compelled to retreat from that country He was one of the most distinguished princes of his age, and, in his reign, Malwa attained the summit of its power and glory

A n 839, A n 1436

Position of the carly Musulmans in India.

Much of the time of all the Musulman kings of India, and among others of the Sultans of Malwa, seems to have been employed in reducing to subjection the half-independent. Hindu chiefs in or bordering on their states. The Musulmans had no hold of the country, but by military force. Their capital was a camp, and the different towns and forts that they occupied, were posts in an enemy's country. The great mass of the population had no sympathy with them, either in religion or civil policy. The popular religion was considered by their conquerors as a guilty idolatry, which it was, to a certain degree, sinful even to tolerate; and pious or bigoted princes were often led to persecute their pagan subjects. They had no general system for conducting their internal government. The will of the ruler, capricious and uncertain at best, but to which there was no check, was the acknowledged rule * For CHAP IL tunately, the old inhabitants were strongly attached to their own system of village and district government, Which remedied many of the evils of political neglect and oppression to which they were exposed, and they continued to be warmly devoted to such of their native chiefs as still maintained their authority in their herechiefs as still maintained their authority in their nerestantion of their ditary states. As the Musulmans extended their power, of their first by arms, and afterwards gradually by colonisation influence and proselytism, the range of territory enjoyed by these little Hindu chieftains was gradually diminished, and the power of many of them was, in the end, altogether extinguished The superiority of the Musulmans increased every day

The causes of this were various and character

They were strangers, and felt that their power, and in ter some degree their existence, in India, depended upon their mutually supporting each other which was increased by their being placed among infidels and heathens, whom they regarded as the enemies of God, and whose lands and wealth they willingly imagined were unjustly withheld from the true believer, whose natural portion they were, formed another bond of union They had also a burning zeal for making proselytes, indifferent whether by argument or force, and then great power was naturally attended with great success The Hindus, on the contrary, long divided, even under their own great monarchies, into petty principalities that had little intercourse with each other, but in the way of quarrel or hostility, had no principle of union, except in cases of intolerable oppression, and that only Their prinagainst the immediate tyrant of the hour ciples of quietism led them to acquiesce in any govern-Royal Assatic Society, vol n) especially his additional remarks on the Urf, or customary law, P 157 * See General Vans Kennedy's admirable little "Abstract of Mu-hammedan Law," (Journal of the

ment once established, and though they might lose they could not gain by proselytism, since with them religion was a matter of birth, and every one was held to be bound for life to the class and faith in which he was born, so that, by their tenets, no converts could be received. In war, too, the Muhammedans, who were not always biaver than their Hindu enemies, owed their superiority to the same causes that have ensured success to the Europeans in modern times. They had more active energy of character, were more intelligent, were more ready to change their policy and their tactics as experience required, and had the unspeakable advantage of being constantly joined by new crowds of adventurers from Tartary, Persia, Arabia, and Afghánistán These adventurers flocked to support them, inspired with all the ardour, activity, and enterprise natural to men who had still their fortune to make, and whose minds and bodies were still unenervated by the impatience of exertion, and the habit of self-indulgence which in India are almost inevitably generated by the physical and moral influences that surround those educated in the country It is to be remembered, too, that though the great majority were bold, hardy, ignorant, and unpolished adventurers, many of them were men of no mean class, gentlemen and scholars, some of whom had served in the wars of different countries, while others had their minds enriched with all the literature, both of the Túrki nations and of Persia and Arabia This literature, which we are too apt to despise, while totally ignorant of its nature and extent, however defective in some of its branches, if measured by the standard of modern Europe, was yet extremely valuable, not only as affording some acquaintance with the positive sciences and arts, but as, to a certain degree, counteracting the harsh bigotry of the Muhammedan religion It had a tendency to open and refine the reason and imagination by the ample stores of history, as well as of moral truth curr in and ingenious speculation, which it possessed, while its poetry, enriched and animated by the genius of such writers as Verdausi Hafer, Sadi, and Jami, -names that fall dead on a western car - displayed an enthususm, a sublimity, and a grace, to which the west, since the most favoured ages of Greece and Rome, had nothing to compare These new comers constantly infused a fresh spirit of aidour and enterprise into the descendants of their countrymen, whom they found in India, they generally occupied the higher offices, and, in several instances, on a change of dynasty, were elevated to the throne. The Musulmans, inflamed by the spirit of political and military adventure, were generilly on the offensive, an invaluable advantage, the Hindus, with the mertin common to their character and cherished by their religion, and with the passiveness often found in old establishments, acted merely on the defensive Of these foreigners, in Hindustan in general, the Túrks and Moghuls, the Afghans and Persians, were most numerous, while, in Gujrat and the Dekhan, the adventurers of these races were often counterbalanced by the Abyssimans and Arabs observations may serve to account for the nearly uniform success and progress of the Muhammedan arms, with a few remarkable exceptions to be afterwards In Malwa, nearly all the great chiefs were Hindús; many of them Rájpúts, the bravest of the Hindús, who have more feeling of common origin than usually belongs to their countrymen

The reigns of the son and grandson of Sultan Mah- Princes of múd Khilji were chiefly remaikable for the disgusting Malwa. sensuality and wanton cruelty of these princes That %16 A P 1469of Sultan Mahmud II was more important valour and activity that characterise usurpers had in Mahmad now, after several generations of regular succession, given way to the incapacity and ignorance of life and

A R. 916. A D 1510.

Intriques of Moháfez

Interposition of Medini Rao

Khan

A. H 917. A. D. 1511

business, that are the lot of hereditary princes, when educated under ambitious ministers, and confined to the pleasures and amusements of the haram Mahmúd, a weak prince, but personally brave, was raised to the throne by his father's will and the influence of the minister, Moháfez Khan; though he had two elder brothers The Sultan soon felt that he was a mere puppet in the hands of a party, who sought to govern in his name He had ambition enough to wish to deliver himself from this thraldom, and to assert his authority For that purpose, he fled from the palace, and thus, for a time, escaped from the personal restraint to which he had been subjected Alarmed at this manifestation of an unexpected spirit, Moháfez Khan attempted to throw down the idol he had raised, and placed Mahmúd's immediate elder brother on the throne, under the name of Muhammed Shah Sultan Mahmud was, at first, supported in asserting his authority only by the Persians, Arabs, and Abyssinians immediately about the court, but, as these foreigners, though numerous and personally brave, had not been long enough settled in Malwa to establish any extensive influence among the natives, and so depended chiefly on their individual numbers and vigour, he must have sunk under the power of his rival, had he not been opportunely joined by Medini Rao or Rai, a powerful Rájpút chief, who brought over to his cause not only the force of his own tribe, but the support of the great body of the Hindu population, the example of so eminent a leader being followed by many other men of rank and consequence Moháfez, and his king, Muhammed Shah, were in the end driven out of Malua, and took refuge, first in Gujrát, and next in Berár But this did not restore the country to repose, for, on the death of the eldest brother of Mahmud, a party declared his son Mahsós king, under the title of Hoslieng This prince, however, seeing no prospect of success, soon gave himself up to Sultan Mahmid, who CHAP II had thus the satisfaction of having one of his rivals in his power, while the other was driven into exile events were passing, between that important period of Báber's life when he was driven from Ferghána, and that when he once more attempted the conquest of Transoxiana, after the defeat and death of Sheibáni Khan

while Medini Rao, his prime minister, managed every- Malwa thing with absolute authority, the jealousy which always subsisted between the Rajput and Musulman lords was not abated The former, - from meeting together at court, instead of residing as formerly detached in their little principalities, and from their reliance upon, and pride in, the talents of the minister, -had gained more of that principle of cohesion, which is as necessary for the permanence of political as of physical bodies, than is usually attained among Hindu chiefs Muhammedan lords, on the other hand, mourned to see their king and the country directed by Pagans remove this grievance, a confederacy was formed among them, under Bohjat Khan, then the chief of Chándéri, in which the pagan Rais of Gondevána were induced to Medini Rao, however, who did not slumber, was successful in detaching from the league Sekander Khan of Bhilsa, one of the principal confederates Alarmed at this defection, the Musulman lords invited the exiled Muhammed Shah Chándéri, that they might once more

But though Mahmud thus became the only sovereign Ruput in Malwa, his throne was far from being secure, for league at the court of oppose him to his younger brother, Sultan Mahmúd But still, even with the assistance of his name, finding themselves unable to cope with Medini Rao, they called ın Sultan Sekander Lodi of Delhi, and Mozeffer Shah of Gujrát*, resolved, at any cost, to check this Hindu

^{*} Ferishta, vol 1v pp 252, 253

influence, and to defend the Muhammedans, now overborne by the power of the Rájpúts

The Kings of Delhi and Gujrát interfere.

The King of Delhi, Sultan Sekander Lodi, glad of so favourable an opportunity of extending his influence over the kingdom of Malwa, sent a body of twelve thousand cavalry, under Imád-ul-mulk Lodi, to assist Muhammed Shah, while, on the side of Gujiát, Mozeffer Shah, at the head of an army, entered the country, and advanced as far as Dhár At the same time, Sekander Khan of Bhílsa, who had lately joined the Sultan, once more revolted and sided with the confederates Rao, undismayed by the dangers that encompassed him on every hand, resolved to bend his chief force, in the first place, against him whom he regarded as the most formidable opponent While he despatched an army against Sekander Khan, to keep him in check, he himself marched to meet Mozeffer Shah, who had now approached Mandu, engaged and defeated him, and drove him back into his own country Against Sekander of Bhilsa, his arms were less fortunate, for the general sent to oppose him having fallen at the close of a successful action, Sekander rallied his broken troops, and totally defeated Mahmud's army, thus deprived of its leader *

Medíni Rao, on his return from his campaigns against the troops of Gujrát, neglecting, for the present, Sekander Khan, who after his victory had retired to Sivás, advanced to meet the more important invasion that threatened him from Chándéri The force there collected was led by his rival Moháfez Khan, accompanied by Muhammed Shah, and was composed of the disaffected nobles of Málwa, and the Delhi auxiliaries The hostile armies approached, and lay opposite to each other, neither party being in haste to bring the contest to a final issue, by hazarding a decisive battle. At this crisis, the prince, Mahsós (Hosheng II), who was in Sultan Mahmud's camp, and Sadr Khan, an officer of great rank and consideration, deserted and joined the invaders, carrying along with them a large body of cavalry By this defection the affairs of Sultan Mahmud seemed to be brought to the brink of ruin Fortunately for him, however, the general in command of the auxiharies of Delhi, presuming too much upon the value of his services, and mistaking the feelings of those whom he came to succour, insisted with Bohjat Khan of Chándéri, the chief of most influence among the insurgents, and the real leader of the revolt, that the public prayers should be read in the name of Sultan Sekander Lodi. as the supreme sovereign This he absolutely refused to admit Besides such attachment as he may have had to Muhammed Shah, for whom he was fighting, his own power, and that of the other confederate nobles, rested on the weakness of their King, and they were little disposed, by acknowledging a more powerful prince, to resign all their own importance. This produced a coolness, which was followed by Bohjat Khan's withdrawing himself from the camp of the allies Sultan Sekander probably discovered that Malwa was not yet ready to fall into his hands, and the Delhi auxiliaries were soon after recalled In the extremity to which Their suche, in his turn, was reduced by these losses, Muhammed Shah, resolving to strike a bold coup-de-main, despatched a strong body of his troops, by a circuitous route, to surprise Mándu But this detachment was overtaken and defeated, and Moháfez Khan, who conducted it in person, was slain. In spite of this disaster, however, Muhammed Shah and Bohjat Khan, who had again joined him on the retreat of the Delhi troops, succeeded, by the intervention of Sheikh Oulía, a holy man, in concluding a peace with Sultan Mahmud, by which Raisen, Bhilsa, and Dhamoni were assigned to Muhammed Shah, as a provision for his support, at the same time that a general amnesty was granted to all his followers, and Medini Rao was glad thus to be able to put an end to hostilities, which exhausted the kingdom and endangered its independent existence

* Ferishta, vol. 1v pp 253, 251

Defensive measures of Medini

Rao

CHAP II

Subsequent history

To conclude the history of this little kingdom, some years after these transactions, Muhammed Shah died, leaving a son Ahmed Shah Sultan Ibráhím Lodi, who had now succeeded his father in the throne of Delhi, and who professed to be the ally and protector of the prince, carried him off, and committed the charge of his forts to such persons as he supposed to be in his own interest When Rána Sánga, the head of the Hindu interest, advanced to attack Sultan Ibráhím, the governor of these strongholds, being much more attached to the Rajputs than to Delhi, revolted, and all these places, with Chanderi and many other towns, fell into the hands of the Rana, who bestowed them on his allies, the leading Rajput chiefs of Malwa. and Bhilsa he gave to Siláh-ed-dín, and Chandéri to Medíni Rao *

TheRájputs all powerful in Malwa.

The conclusion of a peace, and the discomfiture of the Musulman confederacy, had left Medini Rao and the Rajputs all-powerful at the court of Malwa filled the principal offices with their dependents, the royal guards were composed entirely of Rajputs unsuccessful attempt made to secure Mandu for the Muhammedan interest by revolt, gave a colour for removing the few Moslems who still continued to hold any charge of importance Except the personal servants of the king, about twenty in number †, few were left in any situation of trust The king either taking an alarm at these proceedings, or wrought upon by the complaints and representations of the discontented Musulmans about his person, resolved for once to act with vigour and to dismiss his Rajput troops

Mahmud attempts their dismissal

^{*} Ferishta, vol 1v p 256 Ferishta

⁺ Tabakat-1-Akberi

would have been no cass task even for the ablest prince. The mode of doing it adopted by Mahmud, proved only his weakness and ignorance. It is usual, in many parts of India when a master discharges a servant of some consideration with whom he wishes to part on friendly terms to present him as a marl of his good will a little betel nut, and lime verapped up in a leaf *, as is done to a guest when taking leave. As the Raput troops amounted to forty thousand, the king ordered that number of partiets of j in to be prepared, and sent in baskets to Medini Rao, that he might present them to the troops and at once dismiss the whole The Raports, influend at the indignity colled bear m upon Medini Rio to depose Milimud and at once to cles ite his own son, the Rin Rin in f, to the throne The immister by his influence, contrived to suppress this mutiny but Mahmud tired of the restraint under which he felt himself, and too pusill mimous to resort to any politic or manly meisure, - with distardly imbecality attempted by means of his household servants, to assessmate Medim Rio and Silbhan, his principal ministers Silbhin fell murdered under their blows, but Medini R io escaped, severely wounded. No sooner did the troops hear of this violent outrige, than they rushed to the palace, which they attacked, but were repulsed by the personal bravery of the king and his immediate ittendints, and were once more appeared by Medini R 10, who was, to appearance, again received into fivour ! Mahmud, however, not long after, contrived to escape from the palace, with but a few atten- recipes to dants, and made good lus way into Gun it.

From Gurát, he soon returned, accompanied by A 11 1921 Mozefier Shah, then king of the country, at the head of a powerful army Medini Rao, though deprived of that authority which in monarchical countries attends

[·] Pan supari

[†] Rai of Rais

[‡] Tabikat-i-Alberi, f 153 , Icrishta, vol iv p 257

BOOK IV the name of king, took active measures to sustain his cause He left his son to defend Mándu, and himself hastened to meet the invaders in the field, but, soon finding himself too weak to oppose the army of the two

Ills restorntion

A # 924 Sefer 3 A D 1518 Fcb 24

kings, with any hopes of success, he retreated, and, having reinforced the garrison of Mándu, proceeded to Cheitúr, to solicit succour from Rána Sánga, at that period the chief of the Rájpút race The allied sovereigns, advancing, took Dhar, and then besieged Mandu, which, in the course of a few days, surrendered on terms, but the terms were broken by the besiegers, the place attacked and carried by surprise, and nineteen thousand Rájpúts, without discrimination of age or sex, are said to have perished, -numbers falling in the johar or voluntary massacre, by which the sack of the place was accompanied * Mozeffer Shah, having reinstated Sultan Mahmud in his capital, returned to Gujrát, leaving an auxiliary force behind him under Asof Khan

But though Sultan Mahmúd was thus restored to his capital and the adjoining provinces, a large portion of Malwa was still hostile to him Medini Rao possessed Chándéri and Gagrown, while Siláh-ed-dín held Bhílsa, Raisen, and Sarangpút, some of the most important forts and districts of Malwa While these chiefs were nearly independent, or dependant rather on the Rána than on Mahmud, their extensive territories could hardly be reckoned parts of his kingdom Sultan Mahmud resolved, therefore, to reduce them to obedience, and led his own troops and his Gujrát auxiliaries against Gagrown, which he besieged Expedition against the refractory Raiputs.

> Medíni Rai, having been joined by Rána Sánga from Cheitur, advanced with a formidable army to its assistance On hearing of this movement, Mahmud raised the siege, and made several days' march to meet him On the last of these days, the Sultan, after a long which are detailed in the Tabakát- -Akberi, ff 455, 456

^{*} Ferishta makes the siege last some months, and says nothing of the treachery, the particulars of march, came to his ground about seven kos from the CHAP II enemy Rána Sánga, however, who had heard of his approach, and who was determined to attack him while his troops were fatigued and in disorder, mounted and moved forward As he approached the camp, he came upon scattered parties of Mahmud's men, but, even when he had reached the main army, found all in disorder, and no regular opposition was attempted It could hardly be called a battle Thuty-two of the Defeat of chief nobles of Malwa fell in the contest and rout that ensued, as did Asof Khan, and hundreds of the Gujrat auxiliaries Sultan Mahmúd himself was taken prisoner, after an obstinate resistance, in which he received several wounds. He was, as we have seen, generously treated by Rána Sánga, and restored to his kingdom, partly, perhaps, by the influence of Medíni Rao But, as Medini Rao, Siláh-ed dín, and Sekander Khan of Sivás besides a number of small chiefs, 1e- and dis tained their possessions, and, as Rána Sánga had him-member of self seized upon many districts, insomuch that not Malwa above a tenth part of the kingdom of Malwa remained in the Sultan's hands, the revenues of the state were miserably impaired Indeed, it was generally believed that the Rána was restrained from occupying the whole kingdom only by respect for the power and influence of Mozeffer Shah

SECT I

But the impiudence of Sultan Mahmud soon involved Behåder him in new dangers On the death of Mozeffer Shah, Shah ir Gujrat. Behåder Shah, after two reigns of only a few months' A H 932, duration, succeeded to the throne of Gujrát, and Chand Khan, his younger brother, fled to Mándu, where he was entertained by Mahmud Attempts were made to engage in his cause the Emperor Báber, who, by this time, had gained possession of the throne of Delhi, and a correspondence was carried on between

^{*} Tab Akb f 457, Ferishta, iv p 262

BOOK IV Delhi and Mándu, for that purpose. Information of this reached Beháder, who smothered his resentment for the moment, but resolved to take the earliest opportunity to revenge the injury

Bilber in Rajputana A 11 934, A D 1528

About two years afterwards, Báber himself appeared on the stage of Malwa After he had defeated Rána Sánga, he turned his arms against Medíni Rao, the chief supporter of the Rájpút interest in Malwa, and took by storm Chándóri, the seat of his power, with the slaughter of all its defenders, and of that eminent man himself. He restored it to Ahmed Shah, Muhammed Shah's son, whose cause he affected to espouse, leaving a "governor over him" It was the Emperor's intention to have followed up his success by reducing Bhílsa, Raisen and Saiangpúr, the Chiefship of Siláhed-din, and then to have marched to Chertur to attack the Rána in his capital, but this plan he was forced to abandon, by insurrections, which made his presence necessary in the eastern provinces *

Rapa Ruttonsi and Behåder Shah In Milwa

At this period, Rána Sánga died, and was succeeded by his son Rána Ruttonsi Sultan Mahmúd, thinking this a favourable opportunity to iccover what he had lost, with that spirit of restless incapacity which marked his character, sent an army to attack and plunder the Ruttonsi, in revenge of this new Rána's territories injury, marched into his dominions, upon which the Sultan advanced from Sarangpúr to oppose him Here he summoned to his standard Siláh-ed-dín (with whom he had, a few years before, been at war, and whom he had even deprived of Sarangpur) and Moyin Khan, the adopted son of the late Sekander Khan of Sıvás now, when too late, attempted to conciliate these chiefs On Moyin Khan he conferred the title of Masnad Khan, and presented him with a scarlet pavilion, to Siláhed-dín he gave some additional villages, near his various

A 11 926. A D 1520 pagn's But the Sultan had ceased to command then CHAP II confidence; and these noblemen, - believing that the favours conferred upon them were intended to serve a present purpose, while his hatted wis in nothing abated, and that they had every thing to apprehend from his intrigues, -- soon after left his camp and joined the Rana Meanwhile Behader Shah, seizing the opportunity for which he had been in wait, of prosecuting his revenge had also entered Malwa. The Rana, with the Malwachiefs who had joined him, marched towards the King of Gurat, that all might act in concert Sult in Midmud, filled with alarm it this revolt and double invision sent to Behader Shah, professing his readiness to wait upon him but, under various frivolous protexts, constantly put off the time of meeting. Behader, at length, in he of his insincerity, pushed on to an an-Mendu, his capital, into which the Sultan had thrown Ap 1511 himself, and, after a short stege, took it by escalade Milliand tell into his hands, and was at first treated taken with respect, but three days afterwards, on some of- shat in 12 fence real or pretended, Behider Shah proclaimed him- R hader self lying of Malwa, and next day sent off the Sultan, Shah proclaimed in chains, with twenty of his sons, under an escort of king an hundred horse, to be confined in the hill-fort of Champing But the escort that attended him being attacked, near Dokid, during the night by a party of shahan is Bhils, he was put to death by his guaid, to prevent a rescue This event occurred only three months after Hum iyun had mounted the throne *

SILT I

March -M andu Shidin 13

* Lerishta, in the History of Malwa, (vol iv p 368) fixes the date of the storming of Mundu, on the 9 Shithm, A 11 (32, (22 May, A n 1526) This can hardly be correct, as Baber, (Mem p 376) in Moharrem 904, (Jan 1525), speaks of Sultan Mahmud as still in Mandu The real date is probably A ii 937, Shabin 9, (A D 1531, March 8), that assigned in the Tabakate Akberi, and by I crishta in the History of Gujrat (vol is p 115) In the History of kandesh (vol iv p >10), I crishta seems to place the reduction of Mandu, and, consequently, the death of Sultrn Mahmud, m A n 959 (A D 1532-3) The Mirit-1-Ahmedi (Bird stransl p 258) makes the escalade of Mandu take place

Partition of Malwa Behåder Shah and Rána Ruttonsi now overran all Malwa The capital, with the western and noithern provinces, Behåder added to his dominions. The Rána, on the other hand, seems to have added little to his own immediate territories, but the Malwa lords, who had espoused his interest, and who, for some time before, had acknowledged his authority, he confirmed in the possession of Ráisen, Rantambói, Sarangpúi, and several other extensive districts

Capture of Siláh eddin by Bchhder A H 938, A D 1531

The ambition of Behåder, nourished by success, was not to be restrained by conventions and treaties. Siláh-ed-dín or Silhádi was too powerful a subject not to be viewed with jealousy, and he determined to ruin him That chieftain's son, who was in Behader's camp, was sent to invite his father to wait upon the King, who wished to consult with him before returning to Gujrát * The Rájpút, leaving his son in Ujein, met Behåder Shah near Dhår That prince entered the fort, accompanied only by Silhádi, whom he there treacherously seized, with the two Raiputs by whom the chief was attended One of them, laying his hand on his dagger, drew it, and prepared for resistance "Forbear," said the chief, "it is me whom you are killing" "'Twas in your defence it was drawn," said his faithful follower, "but, since my act endangers you, thus I slay myself, and escape the misery of seeing you a prisoner" With these words, he inflicted on himself several mortal wounds, "and so," says the Musulman historian, "went to hell" Behåder's pretext for this out-1age, and for his quarrel with Siláh-ed-dín, was that the pagan had in his scraglio several Muhammedan women, and even some ladies of the haram of a deceased Sultan

20 Shábín, (A H 937) and the surrender of Mahmud Shah follow, 12 Moharrem, A H 938, (26 Aug 1531) Ferishta makes him killed five days after the escalade (14 Shaban) The Tabakáte Akberi makes his death occur on the Sheb e-Berat (15 Shaban) one day later, f 450 Instead of twenty sons, Ferishta gives him seven

* Fabrkate Akberr, ff 391 459, Baber's Mem pp 312 376 The King, after getting Siláh-ed-dín into his power, entered his dominions, and, with little opposition, gained possession of Ujein, Sarangpur, and Bhilsa finally besieged the brother and one of the sons of that chief in the strong fert of Raisen, which contained also his wives and family, and, after a long siege, reduced it to the greatest distress

CHAP II, Sect 1

Silhadi, though in captivity, and even, it is said, com- catastrophe pelled to renounce his own religion for the Moslem creed, most keenly sympathised with his afflicted subjects Seeing no prospect of ichef from an aimy sent to his assistance by Rana Ruttonsi, a prince far inferior in all respects to his illustrious fither, and in which his own son Bhopat served with the shattered remains of his force, was compelled to seek relief in submission or despur A capitulation was at length entered into, on condition that the fort was to be given up, but that the lives, liberties, and honour of all who were in it should be respected, and that Silah-ed-din was to be set at large That chieftam asked permission to enter the fort for the purpose of bringing out, the females of his household, in terms of the treaty. Here he had to sustain the reproaches of his wife, Durgáwati, a daughter of Rána Sánga, who, distrusting any Moslem promises, declared her resolution to die free and unblemished, and concluded her invectives by setting fire to a pile that she had reared, which consumed in its flames the palace and seven hundred beautiful females that were in the Siláh-ed-dín himself, stung to madness, put on his armour, and, accompanied by his brother, rushed out with their devoted followers, and died the death of Ráipúts Beháder bestowed Ráisen, with Bhílsa and Chándéir, on Alem Khan Jilál Khan Jigat*, a noble-

the beginning of his brother Sultan Ibráhim's reign See also Baber's Mem pp 349 335

The Mirate Ahmedi calls him Sultan Alem Lodi He seems to have been the son of a Sultan Jilálkhan, who aspired to the throne in man, who had lately held the government of Kalpi, under Báber, but who had subsequently fled from that place, and renounced his allegiance. Having thus strengthened his power in Malwa, Beháder returned in triumph to his hereditary dominions.

Further successof Behaler Sach Auf 9 6 Auf 1529

Besides his conquests in Malwa, Behåder Shah had extraordinary success in other quarters He marched through the territories of his nephew, Miran Muhammed Khan, the prince of Kandesh, to succour Imád-ul-Mulk, the King of Berár, when attacked by the kings of Beder and Ahmednagait, and, diving the invaders before him, advanced by Jálna to Doulalábád He compelled Burhán Nizám Shah to acknowledge him as King of Ahmednagar, as well as Gujrát, and to read the public prayers in his name. He gained some important advantages over the Portuguese, who infested his domimons He was fond of state, and affected much pomp and splendour, both in his court and camp His armies were numerous, and the Prince of Kandesh, and the King of Beiár, served in them with their auxiliaries, as did the legitimate Prince of Malwa, who was allowed or compelled to attend his court I ан 939, ав 1532-

* Baber's Mcm p 378, Ferishta, vol iv pp 270 118

† Briggs's Ferishta, vol in p

189, vol iv p 112

† The greater part of the preceding narrative is from the Tabakate Akberi, iff 389—392 Ferishta, Hist of Gujrat, vol 19pp 1—123, Hist of Malwa, Ibid pp 167—269, Hist of Kandesh,

Ibid p 310, corrected by a few short notices in Báber s Memoirs

It may be remarked, that the different histories of Ferishta vary from each other in several particulars, especially in the chronology In each, he probably followed the historian of the particular dynasty whose annuls he was writing

CHAPTER H

AFI AIRS OF GUJR T AND MAINA

SECTION II

CONQUEST OF MALMA BY HUMAYUN

RILATIONS OF GUJRAT AND CHITTLE - SUCCESSI'S OF BEHADER SHAH IN MALWA AND RAJPLTANA -HIT LORMS A LLACUE AGAINST HUMAYUN - JOINED BY SULTAN AL (-ED-DIN LODE AND HIS SON, TATER AREA TODE - AND BY MUHABUPD FINEN MIREL - HU-MANUA REMONSTRATES WITHOUT PHILOT -- OPERATIONS OF THE ALITES - THEIR INTHE DELLAT - HUMBLE IN THE MALKET STORM AND SACK OF CHITTER BY BUILDER SHAH -THE ARMIES OF HUMANUM AND BUILDED MEET AT MANDSUR - THE LATTER INTPENCE THEMS! LYPS -DISTRESS IN BUILDER'S CAMP -FLICHT OF THE KING-HIS TROOLS LLUNDELFD AND PURSUED -INVEST-MINT OF MINDU - DESCRIPTION OF THAT CALITAL - OVERTURES OF BUILDING MANDL ESCALADED - BUILDER ESCAPES TO GUJRÁT -MANDE PLUNDERED BY THE IMPERIALISTS - HUMAYLA SUPREME IN MALWA

THE destruction of the kingdom of Malwa, as an inde- CHAP II pendent state, entirely changed the political relations which had subsisted between the rulers of Gujrát and Relations of Formerly, they were often allies, hencefor- Cheitur ward, they of necessity became direct rivals The spoils and provinces of that extensive country were the prize for which both contended In this contest, the means which they employed to attain their objects were diffe-The King endeavoured to occupy the country directly by his own troops, the Rána, to secure an ascendency by the intervention of chieftains of great local influence The wealth and commercial prosperity of Gujrát enabled Beháder Shah to bring into the field a large regular army and a powerful artillery, the Ráma's gallant followers were ever prepared to sacrifice their lives for their chief or their tribe, in the day of battle, but they had no means of keeping the field for any great length of time, or of securing permanently such conquests as they made. A battle being gained, or a city stormed and pillaged, they were eager to return to their homes, with their glory and their plunder. The constitution of the Rájpút states, a confederacy of tribes or of little chieftains, was little suited for retaining distant possessions.

The attack of Behader Shah on Sıláh-ed-dín had

Successes of Behader Shah,

brought the Rana into the field, in his defence But the Rapput army were no longer directed by a warrior like Rána Sánga Rána Ruttonsi, after a short reign, had yielded the sword of command to his brother Bikermájít * This impolitic prince, having disgusted the chiefs, who formed the strength of his armies, could offer but an imperfect resistance to the attack of Beháder; who now, flushed with victory, invaded his territories, year after year. In the summer after the death of Siláh-ed-dín, following up his success, he reduced the important fortress of Gágrown, and sent an army to besiege Rantambói Though compelled to hasten back to Diu, to check the encroachments of the Portuguese on his coasts, he next season returned to Malwa, marched victorious through its provinces, and, not only wrested from his rival the conquests made by Rána Sánga in that kingdom, but even advanced into the Rána's hereditary dominions, and besieged him in ди 939, др 1532=

a 11 940 in Malwa

and Rájpu tána

* The period of the death of Ruttonsi, and accession of Bikermá jít, is not well known. The Musulman historians do not fix it, and the chronology of the Rájputs themselves is in general extremely erroneous As Colonel Tod allows Ruttons a reign of five years, and as he ascended the masnad in A H 934, his death may be placed A H 930

Cheitur itself. We have seen, that, in spite of the march of the Emperor Humáyun, as far as Guáliár, to his assistance, the Rana was compelled ignominiously to purchase, at a high price, the retreat of the King of Guirat

These continued successes added fuel to the naturally ambitious temper of Behåder. He and Humayun had against Hunow become neighbours, and the events of the last miyun. campaign had shown that they must inevitably soon come to a collision. The King of Gunat, indignant that his prey should have been wrested from him, looked round for means to occupy and injure the Emperor, and they were not wanting

Many Afghan Amus, and other refugees from Delhi and the eastern provinces, who had been driven into exile by the successes of Baber, had fled to his court for shelter Sultan Behåder, who had himself been a fugitive from Gunat at the time of Baber's invasion, and who had spent some time in exile at the court of Sultan Ibráhim Lodi, as well as at Juánpúr, stood in too great awe of the late Emperor to hazard any hostile proceedings during his lifetime. But after the succes- Joined by sion of Humáyun, he was incessantly urged by Tátár sultan Ala-Khan Lodi, and other fugitives from what had been the and his son Afghan, and were now the imperial, dominions, to lend Khan Lodi, them even a moderate aid, as they boasted, with that, to be able, if not to exterminate the Chaghatái invaders, at least to drive them back beyond the Indus We have seen that Sultan Ala-ed-din Lodi, the father of Tátár Khan, the uncle of the late Sultan Ibiáhím, and twice an unsuccessful competitor for the throne of Delhi, had been sent by Bábei to be imprisoned in the distant fort of Kila-Zefei, in Badakhshan, foi reasons unknown, but probably for the crime of being dangerous from his birth and his pretensions Having escaped from custody, by the assistance of some Afghán merchants, he found his way in disguise, through many perils, across the Afghán country and Baluchistán, to the court of Gujrát. Beháder, who had long resisted the solicitations of the exiles, at last, prompted by what he regarded as his own wrongs, yielded to their importunity; and, entering into their views, began to make preparations for an attack on Humáyun He secretly employed considerable sums in drawing off the adherents of his rival, and received, with distinguished favour, the refugees from Agra, who flocked to his court.

and by
Muhammed Zemán
Mutza.

It was about this period that Muhammed Zemán Mírza, having escaped from Biána, arrived in his camp*, with his keeper, Yádgár Taghái Beg, whom he had seduced to accompany him in his flight. Beháder Shah, situated as he was, and indulging the plans which he did, regarded the arrival of a prince of his rank and talents as a fortunate occurrence, and warmly entered into his animosities. The fugitive confirmed the opinion given by Tátár Khan, of the ease with which the Emperor might be expelled. He represented the discipline of the army as relaxed since the late Emperor s death; the troops, as giving themselves up to ease and luxury, the nobles, as discontented, and both the native and Afghán chiefs and officers, as only waiting for an opportunity to revolt

Humáyun remonstrates without effect. These proceedings could not escape the notice of Humáyun, who called upon Beháder Shah to dismiss Muhammed Zemán Mírzaf, and the other rebels and

* An instance of Behåder's luxurious and ostentatious magnificence is mentioned on this occasion. When Muhammed Zeman reached Behader's camp, before Cheitur, he was suffering from the heat of the weather. His physiciaus recommended Gul-kend (candied conserve of roses) to allay the heat. The Mirra sent to ask Behader for a small quantity, and received forth-with twenty cart-loads. The King had been accustomed to his a spirit distilled from it. Farithe-Bedaum, f. 129

4 No mention is made of any

ficiently intelligible indication of what he would have attempted, had the internal disorders, which occupied him at home, admitted of his marching beyond the limits of his own dominions Behåder, offended at the tone of his rival's remonstrances, now entered heartily into the views of the exiles, and lent every assistance in his power to the claims of Sultan Alá-ed-dín or Alim Lodi, who once more put forward his pietensions to the throne of Delhi Tátár Khan, Alim's son, who managed the affairs of his father, urged the King to declare for him openly, contending, that the Emperor's army, in its present state, would not dare to meet that of Gujrát But Beháder was still anxious not to come prominently forward, and it was, therefore, arranged, that the intended attack should have only the air of an unauthorised irruption of the Afghan refugees, for the recovery of their former empire, and that the King himself should not appear to take any share in it He privately, however, supplied them with large sums of money, to enable them to put their army on an effective footing The amount stated, probably with some exaggeration, to have been not less than a million sterling *, was sent to Rantbór, to be employed by Tátár Khan Adventurers and exiles flocked to his standard, from every quarter, and a formidable force was soon ready to take the field

ан 941, ар 1534An extensive plan of operations was formed, and vigorously acted upon Sultan Alá-ed-dín Lodi, Tátár Khan's father, led a considerable force † to Kalinger,

* Twenty kror of old Gujrát gold coin, which Abulfazl (Akbernama, f 37) estimates at double the currency of his time, or forty krois. This, if reckoned in rupees, would give forty millions sterling, which cannot be admitted. If ieckoned in dams, the current mode of Treasury computation, it would amount to one million sterling, if in double dams, to two millions Briggs's Ferishta calls the sum three krors of rupees, or about three millions sterling

† I have been sometimes tempted to believe that this army was commanded by Ala-ed-din or Alim Khan Jilal Khan Jigat, who, we have seen, now held Raisen, Bhilsa, and Chanderi Abulfazl, however, says

Bengal and Behar, and hastened back to Agra Meanwhile, however, he ordered his brothers, Hindal and Askeri, his cousin, Yádgár Násir Mírza, the son of his late uncle, Násir Mírza, and Kásin Husem Sultan, Uzbek, with eighteen thousand horse, to proceed without delay to check the invaders, rightly judging, that, if their giand army was defeated, the others could do little mischief When the approach of the imperialists, inferior as they were in number, became known, the invading troops were seized with a sudden panic, and large bodies of them deserted every day and returned home; insomuch that, in a short time, of this great aimy, collected with so much parade and expence, not more than three thousand horse remained with Tátár That nobleman, indignant at the treachery of his mercenaires, stung with shame at the result of his high promises, and defeated in his long-cherished schemes of ambition, when they seemed on the very eve of being accomplished, hesitated for some time whether he should fight or retreat Impelled, however, by indignation and despair, he came to a conflict with the enemy at Mandráel, where the brave followers who still adhered to him were routed with great slaughter, and lumself and three hundred of his officers slain. was soon recovered, without a blow, and the other two invading armies, on hearing of these calamitous events, retreated into the territories of Gujrát †

Humayun Invades Malwa, Eager as Humáyun was to repress the disorders that were arising in his dominions on the Ganges, and in Behár, he saw clearly that he could not with safety leave behind him a victorious prince so formidable as Beháder Shah, who had shown the worst dispositions, and whose dominions now approached so near to his capital It was evident that, should he proceed to Bengal, and should Beháder, after reducing Chertúr,

† Albernama, f 37, 38, Fe-

^{*} Ferishta says, ten thousand rishta, vol ii pp 73, 74

BOOK IV

A D 1535

Storm and sack of that place

A D 941 Ramzán 3 A D 1535 March 8

odium which would attend such an interference, would not attempt directly to interrupt the operations of Musulmans, engaged in a holy war against infidely This opinion prevailed, the operations of the siege were pushed on with redoubled fury, the defences were battered by the cannon of Rúmi Khan, a Turkish engineer. who was assisted by Portuguese and other European artillerymen; and finally, a mine was sprung, which left a broad and accessible breach A storm followed, on the 8th of March, A D 1535, when the fort was carried by assault, in spite of every effort made by the courage and despair of the Rájpúts. The garrison, seeing that all hope was gone, proceeded to put to death their wives and women, who, on their part, voluntarily presented their bosoms to the sword, or rushed into the blazing pyre, to avoid the defilements of slavery, and to maintain untarnished the honour of their tilbe * The remaining Ráipúts, then, clothing themselves in their yellow died garments, the well-known sign of despair and death, sallied out to meet their assailants, and were cut off to a man. The victors, on entering the city, found only a heap of ruins and a lifeless solitude The booty, which was great, was divided among the victorious troops.

The armies of Humáyun and Beháder meet at Mandsur Behåder Shah had now nothing to detain him from inarching to chastise the invader of his dominions. To account for the inaction of Humáyun, at this important crisis, we are told, that, on reaching Sarangpúr, and being informed that it was the opinion of Behåder's councillors that, as a faithful believer, he would not attack a prince engaged in a holy war, he declared that they only did him justice, and immediately ceased

• Akbernáma, as above, Tabakáte Akberi, ff 145, 146, Tod s Rajasthán, vol 1 pp 311, 312 From native authorities, Col Tod estimates the number of women. who perished in this johár, at thirteen thousand, the loss of the Rajputs, in the siege and storm, at thirty two thousand, the flower of their tribe from all offensive operations There was now, however, an end of this point of honour On hearing of the fall of the Rápút capital, Humáyun left Ujein, where he then was, and moved to the northward, while Behader Shah, marching to meet him, the two armies soon came in sight of each other, on the banks of a large tank, near the town of Mandsúr *

The tents of the army of Guil at were not all pitched, The latter and the army itself had not yet come to its ground, when intrench themselves its advanced pickets were attacked and driven in upon their centre with some slaughter, by a body of the imperial horse This little incident had an effect on the spirits of the troops on both sides Táj Khan and Sadr Khan, two of Behåder's most distinguished officers, strongly urged him, while his troops were still flushed with their success at Cheitur, and before they had tried the discipline and vigour of the Túrki wairiors, to lead his men at once to battle, in which they would assuredly exert themselves gallantly Rúmi Khan, however, who commanded the artillery, and who had much influence with the king t, was of a different opinion He had with him about three hundred Turkish artillerymen, besides eighty Portuguese and Franks commanded by a native Portuguese, named San Jago, who had received the title of Feringi Khan Rúmi Khan was an Ottoman Turk, who had been honoured with the title of Khodáwend Khan He had learned his art in the Turkish service, which, about this period, was distinguished for superiority in the management of heavy artillery The

 Akbernama, f 38, Tabak Akberi, ff 146 395 Jouher, (in the original) chap it says, that the imperial army halted near Talwar (or Tilur, or Tisur), that Behader, after taking Chestur, had directed his march for Gujrat, but was intercepted by the Emperor, near Mori, a town dependent on Burháupur Jouher does not appear to give a very distinct account of any campaign before that of Bengal, though, as hetells Kamran Mirza, in Ramzan, A и 960, that he had been nineteen years in the Emperor's service, he was probably with him at this time The Tabakát calls the place Sırsur

† Lafitau, Hist des Decouvertes des Portugais, vol 1 p 209 4to

воок IV. trade of the sea-coast, and the capture of several Portuguese ships, had furnished the king with an excellent train, which Rúmi Khan pronounced to be second only to that of the "Kaisar of Rúm." He said, that it would be foolish to throw away their superiority, by renouncing the use of the force in which they most excelled, that it would be better to cover themselves by trenches on all sides; to strengthen their lines by their cars, waggons and carriages, and to plant their guns so as to make their position impregnable to the enemy, that the Moghuls, as they called the imperialists, with their usual daring and impetuosity, would soon be seen to gallop up to the lines, within range of their shot, when they would be swept off in crowds, that, when they saw themselves unable to make any impression and beginning to suffer from scarcity, they must, in the end, be compelled to retreat, that, then was the time for the royal horse to follow, and cut them off in detail, in their long retreat, when exhausted and broken as they would be Rúmi Khan's success at Cheitúr, and previously at Raisen, under circumstances very different from the present, gave perhaps an undue weight to his opinion, which prevailed, and was acted upon For a time, skirmishes daily ensued, in which the invaders, from the quality of their troops, had uniformly the advantage, when, however, they followed the flying foe close to the trenches, they were soon made aware of the risk, and, as might have been foreseen, ceased to approach them *

Become disheartened

The fortified camp of Behader was, indeed, unassailable, but it was in danger of becoming his prison. The Chaghatái army had all the advantage of daring and activity. They soon taught their enemies to dread them, and showed a decided superiority, not only in discipline and in close combat, but in more distant fighting, from the use of the bow The Gujrátis, whose CHAP IL defensive at mour could not resist their powerful arrows, after some experience of their energy and skill, did not willingly meet them in the field, and became dispirited, while the ardoui and enterprise of their invaders daily increased At this crisis Behåder was strengthened by the arrival of Sultan Alim, of Kalpi, with the troops of Rusen and Chándéri

While the armies thus lay facing each other, it The"Comhappened one night that some young officers, who had bat of Friends," met at a drinking party in the Emperor's camp, having indulged in liberal libitions, began to vaunt their prowess, and to exalt themselves, as nowise inferior to the heroes of former days Waimed with their own boasting, and with the effects of the wine, they armed, mounted, and, in spite of the efforts made by their soberer comrades to prevent them, sallied forth, to the number of about two hundred, to have a dash at the enemy, and rode right for the hostile camp When they had nearly reached it, they chanced to fall in with a division, under one of the Gujráti generals, who, on seeing them approach, drew up his men, about four thousand in number, to receive them The young enthusiasts, not deterred by this disparity of force, charged in amongst them without hesitation Guirátis, astonished as they were, nevertheless at first stood their ground, and a short but sharp conflict ensued, but, being confounded and daunted by the unusual energy of the assailants, and numbers of them falling, they finally gave way, and fled back to their camp in confusion In Humáyun's aimy this "Combat of Friends," as it was called, was loudly celebrated, and an official report; published, in a lofty strain, to make it generally known, while, in the camp of Beháder, it spread equal dismay, so that afterwards few

^{*} Tabak Akberi, f 396

BOOK IV

A p 1535
Sbáwál 1
April 4

of his troops willingly ventured beyond the protection of their field works and batteries. On one occasion, indeed, on the day of the rejoicings for the close of the Rámzán, Muhammed Zemán Mírza, anxious to distinguish himself among his new allies, advanced out of the trenches with about five or six hundred men, as if to challenge a combat, and was met by a party from the opposite side. His followers, after shooting a few arrows, retreated, and contrived to draw their pursuers within the range of the artillery, which poured in its fire upon them with terrible effect.

Distress in Beháder s camo

To act upon a plan of operations altogether defensive and passive, in an entrenched camp, is always dangerous, but, above all, in an open country. It places every advantage of daring and enterprise in the hands of an active enemy, and seldom fails to terminate in the discouragement of the troops who are placed on the defensive, and in their being cut off from all their resources The Chaghatai Turks, having established their ascendency in the field, and not choosing to shatter their force by throwing themselves on the lowering barricades of the enemy, scoured the country on every side, cut off all foraging parties, intercepted all supplies of grain, provisions, and stores, and nearly succeeded in blocking up the Gujrátis in their position, which was thus impregnable to no purpose All the grain and provender in the neighbourhood was exhausted, and the Gujráti troops did not venture out to bring them from a distance Scarcity was soon followed by famine They were glad to subsist on horse-flesh, and on the vilest foods Multitudes of men, as well as horses and camels, perished from hunger, and, in the end, the army of Behader found themselves nearly in the same condition in which, rather more than two centuries

^{*} Jouher says, that grain sold was not to be had even at that price for four and five rupees the sir, and later, the Mahrattas were placed previous to the famous cour in battle of Pumpát

Extreme as the distress of the Guirátis had now rught of become, it was not easy to adopt any new plan of the king operations On the other hand, it being announced tionef his to the Emperor that a fortunate day was at hand, he resolved to attempt a general assault. But the misery of the enemy had already reached its height. Behåder, in despur of being able, by any active exertion of his dispirited troops, to extricate himself from his unhappy situation, resolved to break up his camp, and to consult his safety by flight. On the 24th and 25th of sunday, April, accompanied by his nephew, Miran Muhammed April 4-5 Khan, prince of Kandesh, and ifterwards for a short time King of Guirát*, Malu Khan, then governor, and afterwards King of Malwa, under the title of Kader Shah, and three or four other confidential friends, in the last watch of the night, making his way through a rent in the royal tent, he left the camp unnoticed, and, first taking the road to Agra, to clude observation, soon after turned round towards Mandu Sadr Khan. ind Imád-ul-mulk Khaseh-khail, with twenty thousand cavalry, set out at the same time for that place by the direct road, while Muhammed Zeman Mirza, with inother body of men, took the road of Lahúr, to attempt to excite revolt in that quarter. The heavy artillery, having been loaded and crammed with powder, were burst

Humáyun, who had intended early next morning to make his attack, hearing a continued noise, accompanied with an occasional discharge as of great guns in the enemy's lines during the night, and ignorant of the cause, thought it probable that a general attack upon his camp was intended. He stood, with a body

* Briggs's Ferishta, vol iv pp Mobarck Khan (Did he afterwards ^{127, 128} The same author, vol is assume that name?) p 76, calls the ruler of Kandesh,

A D 1535

воок iv. of thirty thousand cavalry, mounted and in arms, ready for battle. All night long the alarm, confusion, shouting, and uproar in the Gujráti camp, mixed with discharge of artillery, continued. When at length the departure of the King became known to his army, it immediately broke up and dispersed, but it was only in the course of the first morning watch that the Emperor learned the real state of things, accompanied with the information that Behåder Shah had disappeared Upon this the imperial army burst into the deserted camp, and a general pillage ensued Property of every description, baggage, horses, and elephants, fell into the hands of the soldiers Many, of all ranks, were made prisoners Humáyun, pursuing his advantage, not only dispatched a large force, under Yádgár Násir Mírza, to follow the flying enemy, but himself set out soon after with a body of horse, and hotly urged the pursuit The Gujráti cavalry, under Sadr Khan and Imád-ul-mulk, seem to have made good their retreat, bravely fighting and closely followed by the Emperor, with three or four thousand horse, all > the way to the very gates of Mándu, which they succeeded in entering, though not without great loss Behåder Shah, by taking bye-roads, and passing through a wild and unfrequented country, also reached Mandu *

Pillage of the camp

Pursult of the fugltives.

> * Akbernáma, f 38, Tabak Akb ff 146 395, 396, Ferishta, vol ir p 76, vol iv p 127, Kháfi Khan, &c There are some differences among historians regarding the flight of Behåder Ferishta, 11 76 says, that Sadr Jehán Khan was one of the five who accompanied The Tabakate Akberi also says, that he was attended by five Amirs of noto The Muntekhibul-Towárikh (ap Briggs, iv p 128 note) says, that he was accompanied by a guard of an hundred officers Khafi Khan makes him attended, in his retreat, by Sadr Khan and four thousand horse, and, after the surrender of Mandu, introduces Humáyun complimenting Sadr Khan upon the gallantry with which, in the flight, he had twice extricated his sovereign from his pursuers, by his personal exertions, on one of which occasions, Humáyun himself had nearly engaged the King hand to hand Ferishta, too, alludes to the same circumstance, vol 11 p 77 This supposes that Behåder, after leaving the camp, joined Sadr Khan's force, which is probable The Ak-

The place was closely invested by the Emperor, who chap is fixed his head-quarters at the adjoining village of Nálcha *

Among the numbers who entered the imperial ser- Mandu vice after the victory of Mandsur, one of the first was Desertion Rum Khan, who, probably on no better grounds than Khan the want of success that had attended his advice, was accused of having betrayed his master, in the late operations, by a secret understanding with the enemy According to one account, Behader, before setting out from Mandsur, ordered one of his officers to put him to death, but the man, who had formerly received some favours from the Khan, gave him private notice of his danger, so that he escaped to the hostile camp, where he was well received, and immediately employed †

Mándu, at that time the capital of Malwa, is a place Description of great strength "The site of Mandu," says Sir of that John Malcolm, "was very inviting The space chosen by Hosheng Shah for his future capital is thirty-seven miles in circumference. It extends along the crest of the Vindhya range about eight miles, and is parted from the table-land of Malwa, with which it is upon a level, by an abrupt and rugged valley of unequal depth, but nowhere less than two hundred feet, and generally from three to four hundred yards in breadth On the brink of this valley "--- " and on the summit of the ridge of the Vindhya mountains, which form the southern face of Mándu, a wall of considerable height was built, which, added to the natural strength of the ground, made it unassailable by any but a regular attack I

After Behåder Shah had been a few days in the Overtures place, he proposed a conference, offering, as the basis of a treaty, to give up Mandu, with all its depenbernama and Tabakat are chiefly † Lafitau, Hist. &c vol 1 p 212 followed in the text † Malcolm's Central India, vol 1

p 29 * Khafi Khan, MS A f 43

BOOK IV

AD 1535

Mándu escaladed dencies,—that is, the kingdom of Malwa,—reserving to himself Gujrát and Cheitúr. The proposal was accepted; and Sadr Khan, on the part of Beháder, and Moulána Muhammed Bergholi, on the part of Humáyun, accordingly met*, and proceeded to arrange the definitive articles Meanwhile, the garrison being thrown off their guard, relaxed in their watchfulness Late at night, about two hundred of the imperial troops, taking advantage of the circumstance, applied scaling-ladders to a remote part of the walls, which they mounted Having assisted their comrades by ropes to gain the top of the works, they next let themselves down into the town, and took possession of the nearest gate, which they opened to their countrymen, who rushed in in considerable numbers

Behåder escapes to Gulrát.

No sooner did the news of this irruption reach Milu Khan, who had charge of the works t, than, mounting the first horse he could find, he galloped off to give the alarm to Behåder Shah, then fast asleep The King, starting up at the sound of Milu Khan's voice, between sleeping and waking, took to flight, with only two or three attendants. As he proceeded through the town, he was joined by Bhopat Rai, the son of the late Silhádi, and one of the leading chieftains of Malwa, who overtook him, with about twenty horse They had reached the Esplanade gate I, which seems to have led into the citadel, when they met about two hundred of Humáyun's cavalry Beháder Shah, without hesitation, bravely charged into the midst of them, and was followed by all his little party He succeeded in breaking through, and, accompanied by Milu Khan and one other attendant, entered the fort of Songar, the citadel of

* The conferences were held at a place called Nili Sabil (the blue road)

† It is not perfectly clear what character Milu Khan bore, in the court of Behader He is sometimes called governor of Mulwa, but there seems reason to believe that he was nominally prince or Wali of Malwa, under the overbearing protection of Behåder

1 Derwareh, Sire Meidan

Mandu He did not venture, however to prolong his stay there. Having had his horses, with much difficulty, hoisted by ropes over the wall during the night, and himself descending the precipice that surrounds it, he finally, with excessive toil and danger, gained the high road to Gujrat An Uzbek, formerly in his service who had deserted to the enemy, and was stationed near the fort recognised him in his flight * and informed the officer in command that he had certainly seen the lying; but this information was not believed, or acted upon so that Behader was not pursued, and, ly fore he reached the fort of Champanir about fifteen hundred men had joined him

by the im

The escalade of Manda by Humayun's troops being Manda wholly unexpected on both sides, no intelligence of it reached the Emperor at Valcha that night nor till near retails. eight o'clock next morning. When informed of what was going forward, he flew to the Delhi gutet, by which he entered. Here he found the combit still maintained, in the streets, and Sadr Khan, though wounded, gill mily keeping his ground near the gate of his house. In this obstinate defence he persisted, till some of his officers, seeing the hopeless nature of his resistance, seized the rems of his house and led him in it to Songir, into which many of the troops that had escaped from Mandu also threw themselves three whole days, the victorious army was incessantly employed in plundering the houses of this fine town, before a stop was put to their rapacity

The Imperor, eiger to pursue his flying enemy, in- Humayun supreme lu Awlrif.

 Toulier rays, that he escaped through the trenches of Hindu Beg by his commance. But, as Hindu Beg afterwards quarrelled with Biram Khan and his party, the occa ional charges made against him, by their adherents, are to be received with caution. Abulfarl, with more probability, affrms that the Uzbek made his report to his superior, Kasim Husein Khan, who who was himself an Uzbek, and who commanded in that quarter

† The gate by which Behader entered was the Choli-Mheisur gate

A b 1535

BOOK IV vited the garrison of the citadel to surrender Khan and Alım Khan* of Kalpi were the principal officers in the place; and, from necessity, entered into a negotiation After some delay, arising chiefly from apprehension of the Emperor's resentment, a capitulation was concluded, and the fort surrendered, on condition of quarter to the garrison Sadr Khan was received with much courtesy, applauded for his fidelity to his sovereign in his reverse of fortune, and for his distinguished gallantry, and honoured with the Emperor's friendship, while Alim Khan was treated with great severity, being mutilated, by having his foot cut off, as a deserter from the imperial service. The reduction of Mándu put Humáyun in possession of the whole open country of Malwa, which he thus in some measure conquered, by a single blow

> There were two Alim Khans, Alim Khan Lodi, the brother of Sultan Sekander Lodi, and Alim Khan Jigat of Kalpi, apparently the son of Jilal Khan, the brother and rival of Sultan Ibrahim Lodi person taken in Mandu, I suppose to have been the latter Yet there is considerable uncertainty fazl, in Akbernáma, ff 38, 39, and the Tabakute Akberi, ff 146 396, call this person Sultan Alim Khan The Tarikhe Bedaum, f 140, calls him Sultan Alim Khan Lodi. The Mirát-e Ahmedi says expressly, that he was the brother of Sultan Sekander Lodi, who had been driven from Kalpi by Humayun, and, accompanied by twelve thousand horse, sought an asylum with Sultan Behader The greatness of the jagir bestowed on him proves him to have been a man of no small note.

The expressions used in describing his punishment are par kirdeh riha and par buridend rishta tells us, that he suffered capitally, vol iv p 128

We afterwards find a Sultan Alim Khan, commanding the Gujrati left, at the battle of Mahmudábád, and in possession of the jagir of Dan-

CHAPTER II

AFFAIRS OF GUJRÁT AND MALWA

SECTION III

CONQUEST OF GUJRÁT BY HUMÁYUN

HUMÁYUN ADVANCES TO GUJRÁT — BEHÁDER FLIES TO DIU — NIGHT ATTACK ON THE IMPERIAL CAMP —HUMÁYUN GIVES OVER CAMBAY TO PILLAGE. - DESCRIPTION OF CHAMPANIR. - IT IS CAPTURED BY ESCALADE - THE GOVERNOR, EKHTIÁR KHAN - MASSACRE OF THE GARRISON - AND IMMENSE BOOTY - INDOLENCE AND REVELS OF HUMÁYUN — AND THEIR CONSEQUENCES — DEMONSTRATION HUMÁYUN'S FAVOUR FROM SIND — SHAH HASAN ADVANCES TO-WARDS PATAN AND MAHMUDÁBÁD — HE RETREATS — BEHÁDER SHAH AT DIU - NEGOTIATES WITH THE PORTUGUESE. - ANARCHY IN GUJRÁT — BEHÁDER DEPUTES IMÁD-UL-MULK TO COLLECT THE REVENUES - RAPID INCREASE OF IMÁD'S FORCE. - HUMÁYUN MARCHES AGAINST HIM - HIS ADVANCED GUARD SURPRISED - HE DEFEATS INAD -HUMÁYUN AT AHMEDÁBÁD -ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF GUJRÁT - ADVICE OF HINDÚ BEG -ALARMING INTELLICENCE FROM AGRA - AND FROM MALWA. -HUMÁYUN RETURNS TO MÍNDU - TRANQUILLIZATION OF MALWA.

The destruction of the combined armies of Gujrát and Malwa, in the trenches of Mandsur, the possession of Mándu, and the disappearance of every armed force Humáyun that could oppose him in Malwa, encouraged Humáyun sets out for to pursue his success, and to follow Behåder Shah into his own country Only three days after the fall of the citadel, the Emperor, with ten thousand cavalry, hastened by forced marches towards Gujrát, ordering the rest of his army to follow without delay

CHAP II. SECT III

A D 1535
Arrives at Champanír

Behader flies to Diu.

When he arrived at Champanir, he encamped at Imádul-mulk's tank, opposite the Piph gate Behader, who had put the fort in a condition to stand a long siege, and had sent away the crown and state jewels with a quantity of treasure to Diu, no sooner heard of his arrival, than, giving his final instructions for its defence, he left the town by another gate near the Leshker Taláo, and fled for Cambay * Before setting out, how-ever, the large town of Muhammedábád-Champanír, situated under the hill on which the fort stands, was set on fire by his orders or with his connivance Humáyun's troops entered in time to assist in extinguishing the flames The Emperor, eager to have Behåder Shah in his power, leaving Mír Hindú Beg with the bulk of his force to invest the citadel, himself set out, attended only by a thousand horse, in pursuit of the flying prince Behåder no sooner reached Cambay, where a hundred war-grabs, which he had built for the purpose of combating the Portuguese, were stationed, than, setting them all on fire to prevent their falling into the hands of his enemies, he renewed his flight, proceeding towards Diu The same day on which he left Cambay, Humayun arrived, and then, says his historian, for the first time, "encamped on the shore of the salt sea," which none of his ancestors had ever He sent on a party to overtake the Sultan, who, however, made good his entrance into Diu. His pursuers returned back with a rich booty, collected in the neighbourhood of that city †; and thus, says Abulfarl, was the conquest of Mandu and Gujrát accomplished, in the course of this year

A H 942, which beglas 2nd July, A D 1535

· Kambáit

† The Akbernáma, f 39, Tabakate Akberi, f 146, Taríkhe Bedaum, f 140, and Khafi Khan, make Behader fly, and Humájun follow, to Ahmedabad, the Labakát adds, that that city was entered and plundered by the Emperor's troops
It is more probable that Behader, as reported in the Tab Akb f 396, and by Ferishta, fled directly to Cambay, where the Tabakát says, that he only staid long enough to get fresh horses, ff 146 396 v

While Humáyun lay encamped near Cambay, with the diminutive force that he had brought along with him, Malek Ahmed Lád and Rakn Daúd, -chiefs sub- Night atject to Behåder Shah, and who possessed the greatest imperial influence in the adjoining districts of Kolwara, seeing that the Emperor was attended by so inconsiderable a number of troops, and was not apprehensive of any attack, pointed out to the rude Koli and Gowar chiefs in the neighbourhood, how favourable the moment was for surprising and plundering his camp, and easily induced them to concert measures for a night attack This could hardly have failed of success, but for an unforeseen accident An old woman of one of the tribes, who became acquainted with the plan, resolved to turn this knowledge to account Repairing to the imperial tent, she told a servant of the household, that she had some information of most urgent importance, which she could communicate only to the Emperor's private ear As the woman was steady in her asseverations, and seemed to be an honest and decent person, her apparently extravagant request was complied with, and, being brought before the Emperor, she gave a clear and detailed account of the plan of an attack, which was that night to be made upon him Surprised, yet doubtful, he questioned her, what motive could have led her to make a disclosure so injurious to her tribes-The woman told him in reply, that her son had been seized, and was detained as a slave, by one of his servants, and that all she wished, in return for the service she was now doing his Majesty, was to be able to deliver her child from captivity, adding, that if her information was found false, he might inflict any punishment he pleased both on herself and her son The lad was sought for and found, and both were placed in The troops were ordered to be on the alert, and the Emperor withdrew to a rising ground at a little distance, to watch the event

BOOK IV

A D 1535

It is defeated

All was quiet during the night, but just before the day began to dawn, the Bhils and Gowars, to the number of five or six thousand, suddenly burst into the camp*, and rushed towards the imperial tents, which they completely plundered, putting to death all whom they met Having succeeded in this, their first object, they next spread themselves on every side, bearing down all before them. As soon as the light appeared, the Emperor led down the troops that were with him, against the disorderly assailants, whom they found dispersed and plundering in every quarter of the camp They were soon routed, and pursued in their flight with much slaughter Humáyun, enraged at this attack, in which many of his followers fell, issued orders for setting fire to the neighbouring, and probably innocent, town of Cambay, which he gave up to be pillaged by his followers

Humáyun gives over Cambay to pillage

Description of Champanir From Cambay, Humáyun returned back to Champanír, which he found still blockaded This important fortress occupies the upper part of a hill that rises towering out of the level plain, in the south-eastern portion of Gujrát, and is visible over a great part of

* Akbernáma, f 39 , Tabakate Albert, f 147

This surprise seems to have been more complete, and the loss sustained in it greater, than Abulfazl acknowledges, for, not only was the camp plundered, but several men of eminence fell Jam Firozeh, the chief of Tatta, who, when driven from his dominions by the Arghuns, had joined Behader Shah, at Baroda, in A H 935, (A D 1528) and whose daughter Behader had married, (Ferishta, iv 110) was in the Emperor's camp, having been made prisoner at the rout of Mandsur He was put to death, on this occasion, by the persons in whose custody he was, to prevent his being rescued. The famous Sadr Khan Gujráti, who had followed Humayun, was also slam -Akbernama and Tabakat, as above In the plunder of the Emperor's baggage, a number of books, which the Linperor always carried with him as the companions of his leisure, were destroyed or lost Among these, Abulfarl particularly notices a splendid copy of the Taimurnima, or History of the great Taimur, written by the pen of Mulla Sultan Ali, and illuminated by Ust of Behz id, a famous painter, "which," he adds, " having been recovered, is now in the imperial library" It was probably the Zefer-numa of Sherf ed din Ali Yezdi that rich and populous country. The fortress is sur- char if rounded on several of its sides by steep and nearly perpendicular rocks, which, among the natives of India, have gained it the reputation of being impregnable to active operations. It had an upper and a lower fort, the one rising above the other, while the extensive, and at that time magnificent town of Muhammedábád-Champanir, extended on one side along its base Humayun, who had clused the place to be invested on his first arrival there, on his return from Cambay planted his battering cannon against it, and continued the siege and blockade, but without apparent effect. The fort was bravely defended by Ekhtuar Khan, the son of a Kazı of Neri'd, one of the finest districts of the king-The Khan, an officer of great resolution and intelligence, and faithful to his prince, vigorously defended the towers and works that were attacked, and mghtly annoyed the besiegers by the fire from his wallpieces, and by throwing showers of rockets into their batteries and camp. He had established a secret understanding with the wood-cutters and some of the villagers of the surrounding country, who, tempted by the high prices given for their supplies, penetrated through the ravines of the hill, which, being covered by jungle and thorny plants, were nearly maccessible to persons on foot, and totally impervious to horsemen These peasants, however, by their acquaintance with the by-piths of the hill, and by forcing themselves through the thickets, continued to carry quantities of giain and oil to the foot of the fort wall t, when the

• See Lieut (now Col) Wm Miles a account of this fort in the Transactions of the Literary Society of Bombay, vol 1

† Ferishta says (vol 11 p 78) that this was a needless precaution on the part of the governor, as the fort was provisioned for a siege of some years. Khafi Khan, the historian, who afterwards, in the reign of Sultan Alim Behader, was himself governor and collector of the fort and district of Champanir, and who consequently knew the place well, says, that the fort is by no means of such strength as to enable it to stand out against the attack of an imperial army, and he ascribes garrison, letting down the price from above by means of ropes, drew up in exchange such provisions as were thus supplied.

A n 1535 G

BOOK IV

Its capture by escalade

After the blockade had been thus protracted for upwards of four months, Humáyun, who had become impatient of the delay, while making the circuit of the place, in order to discover some spot where it might be possible to attempt an escalade, in passing near the gardens of the Kábul suburb, observed a party of these peasants issue from the wood Riding up, he began to question them about their employment in such a place They affirmed that they were wood-cutters occupied with their trade, but as they could produce neither hatchets nor any other implements of that calling, reasonable suspicions were excited The Emperor, according to the fashion of the country, instantly commanded them to be seized and beaten, assuring them that the punishment should not cease, till they had declared the whole truth Seeing no remedy, they confessed everything, and, acting as guides, conducted the Emperor's party back through the paths by which they had gained the foot of the fortifications

The rock, and wall by which it was surmounted, were found to be sixty or seventy cubits high, and so steep and smooth, that it was impossible to climb them Humáyun, who saw that the garrison entertained no apprehension of an attack in this quarter, fixed upon it as a fit place for attempting an escalade. For this purpose, he ordered seventy or eighty iron spikes to be inade, and, one moonlight night, repairing with a chosen band of followers to the ground, he caused the spikes to be driven in to right and left, at the distance of a cubit above each other, in the face of the hill wall. This being effected without observation, some of the

A 11 943, A D 1536

> the merit of the long resistance which it made, to the skill and gallantry of Ekhtiár Khan In the time of Humáyun, however, the attack of fortified places was very imperfectly understood bravest of the warriors, eager to distinguish themselves char if under the eye of the Emperor, mounted, to the number of thirty-nine The Emperor was next about to ascend, when Biram Khin besought him to wait till those who were mounting should be higher up, when the road would be cleir. The Khan hunself then begin to ascend, the I'mperor followed, and was the forty-first" on the top of the wall. About three hundred men mounted by this non lidder, in safety, before daybreak

While this was going forward, the troops which were stationed in the batteries before the place, had been ordered to open a cannonade, and to make assaults on the other side of the fort, so is to draw off the attention of the enemy. In this they succeeded, the garrison, ignorant of what was passing behind, were intent only upon acpelling the open and visible attack in front, and, as the morning dawned, suddenly found themselves assuled in rear by a shower of arrows. While yet stunned by this unlooked-for occurrence, the sound of the kettle-drum and trumpet from behind, announced that the Emperor himself was among the assailants Confounded by the advintage thus unexpectedly gained over them, and ignorant of the numbers of the enemy who had effected an entrance, they were struck with terror, and the escaladers succeeded in seizing a gate f, by which they admitted the rest of the besiegers Ekhtrir Khan, with some of his troops, escaped to the Governor upper fort, or Ark, where he was again invested, but Ekhilar the whole magazines of grain, oil, and other necessaries being in the lower fort, which had been taken, he was next day compelled to surrender on promise of quarter First week Besides being a brave soldier, Ekhtiár Khan was emi- of Scher, July 20-26 nent for his acquirements in science, especially in geometry and astrology, and was also a poet, and a

According to some the fortieth and Tabakat), Mulba (Ferishta) [†] Called Mouliah, (Akbernama

BOOK IV

л р 1536

Mussacre of the garrison

Immense booty man of letters, qualities, we are told, which had favoured his rise at the court of Behader, and afterwards recommended him to the special favour of the Emperor * The whole garrison, the governor and his family excepted, were barbarously put to the sword The treasure and property found in Champanir are said to have been immense. Being, from its situation, regarded as impregnable, great quantities of jewels, precious stuffs, and bales of rich goods of every description, which had been laid up in it as a place of security, besides arms, armour, provisions, and warlike stores fell into the hands of the victors Much gold and treasure of former kings of Gujrát were also dug out of the ground, where they had been hid "Humáyun," says Ferishta, "gave to his officers and soldiers as much gold, silver, and jewels as could be heaped on their respective shields, proportioning the value to their rank and merit, and the merchandises and rich cloths of Rúm, Khita and Ferang t, which had been there collected to a vast amount, were at the same time plundered by the captors "I

* Akbernuma, MS f 40, B ff 78, 79, Tabak ite Akberi, ff 117 396 I know not whether "Amán" always means an offer of quarter In its consequences, it is often a surrender at discretion

† Turkey, China, and Europe

‡ Ferishta, vol 11 p 80, copied, adding what regards the shields, from the Tabakite Akberi, which Ferishta often follows, f 146 See also, f 386

A lively idea of the manner in which valuable property was sometimes hid, in India, may be gained from the account given by Jouher in his Memoirs of Hum iyan, chap ii, of the discovery of part of the treasures of Champania A few days after the fall of the fort, one of Behidler Shah's officers, named Alem

Khan, came and made his submission to Humayun As he was supposed to be in the Sultan's confidence, several of the Emperor's advisors recommended that he should be serred and put to the torture, to make him discover where the treat sures were concealed, but this the Emperor would not suffer, as Alem Khan had come in of his own accord, but he allowed him to be invited to a brinquet, and there plied with wine, and interrogated on the subject A banquet, accordingly, 1 15 prepared, and when the good cheer had produced its natural effects upon the Khan, he was asked about the Alem Khan, gratified by his reception, replied, that his Majesty had only to make the water of a certain large re-cervoir be arawn

After this event, Humayun, instead of prosecuting the decisive advintages he had gained, and which placed the whole kingdom of Gurrat at his mercy, spent Indolence his time near Champann, on the banks of the Dourish of Hutank, in celebrating his successes by sumptuous entertunments, and enjoying the immense wealth that had fallen into his hands. The long succession of these festivities withdrew his attention, for a time, from the cares of state, and the discipline of his troops, which was gradually relaxed. Neglecting their military duties, they give themselves up to those excesses in which rich and idle soldiers are wont to indulge. His affairs fell into confusion, the government of the provinces was neglected, and, even his own camp became a scene of uproar and insubordination and revels

A striking instance of this spirit soon appeared party composed principally of the secretaires, librarians, armour-bearers, clerks, and others, in the service of the Emperor and his chief nobles, imitating the example of their lords, were enjoying themselves in a grand banquet it the gardens of Halal, in the vicinity of the When heated with wine the story recorded of Tamúr in the Zefei náma, but borrowed from a much more ancient fible, was read to them The great conqueror, near the beginning of his career, and in his days of difficulty, is said to have taken, from each of his forty companions, two arrows, which, tying in a bundle, he offered to them to be broken Fach, in suc-

A Injurious

off, when treasure vould be found enough to satisfy the whole army This bing reported to the Imperor, he caused a number of buckets and other vessels to be collected, to empty the tank. While the people were thus employed, the Ishan remarked, that there was a much more expeditious mode of doing it. He made them dig under the tank, where an outlet or drain was found, which, being opened, the water quickly ran off. An immense quantity of trasure was discovered, and immediately divided among thearing The Ishan afterwards pointed out a well, that was found to be filled with gold and alver, which had been melted into bars. No part of this last treasure was given to the troops

BOOK IV A D 1536

cession, tried in vain. He then presented their own two to each, who broke them with ease Whereupon, with a voice of authority, he drew the moral, and told them, that, if they remained united and assisted each other faithfully, making common cause, no enterprise was too arduous for them to achieve

The revellers, as they listened, applied the incident to their own situation They counted their party, which was found to consist, not of forty, but of four hundred Flushed with the recent successes and with wine, they magnanimously resolved to imitate the great Taimúr,-to set up for themselves, and to attempt no less than the conquest of the Dekhan, at that moment the grand resort of adventurers Hurried away by this heroic resolution, they instantly set out for the south. Nothing could be more wild than such an attempt, made by men in their circumstances, in a body, and by one effort, though many of them were probably persons who, individually, might have successfully aspired to high eminence They lived in an age and country of revolutions, they seem to have been men of some education, and every day proved the wonderful superiority of the hardy and enterprising men of the north over the natives of India Even in the Dekhan, the principal offices were filled by their countrymen, of a rank originally not much superior to their own But such an enterprize as was in this instance attempted, was an act of madness, and should have been punished only as a drunken frolic

Next morning, when the heroes who composed this chivalrous band were wanted in their various offices, not one of them was to be found. The cause and direction of their flight, however, became speedily known, a thousand men were sent in pursuit, they were overtaken, and brought back in bonds to the imperial presence.

The day of the week happened to be a Tuesday,

CHAP II Sect III

when the Emperor, according to the funtastic astrological funcies, on which at this period of his age he acted, clothed in red robes, the colour suited to Mars, the guardian planet of the day, was sitting in state on the throne of wrath and vengeance He, too, though the judge, was probably still labouring under the effects of his previous excesses The descriters were brought it, in smill parties*, and sentence pronounced on them with a capitations crucity, embittered by the levity with which it was accompanied. Some were trimpled to death by elephants, some were beheaded, some had their ears and noses cut off, some their fingers pired awiy In the evening, the Imain, or leader of the religious service in the mosque, who was a min of no great understinding, read, according to custom, a portion of the Koran, after the first genuflexion. The chapter that he chose was that which alludes to the destruction by the divine writh, of the masters of the clephant, who impiously attempted to destroy the temple of Mckka It displeised the Emperor, as it chosen with some illusion to his own recent employment;

. The details of this judgment, as given by Abulfazl (Akbernama, f 10) are very disjusting, and exlimbit the viretched punning propensity of our James I, but on an occasion when it is not ridiculous, but revolting. The sentences pronounced depend on idiomatic Persian phrases, hardly trunsliteable "Some of the culprits," says he, " having stretched their head beyond the line of duty, had their bodies relieved altopether of the burden of the head, some, who, not I nowing hand from foot, (i e foolishly) had struck their hand in rebellion, were deprived of both hand and foot, a band, who, from self-concert (khud bini), had not lent their ears to the imperial commands, could find neither care nor nose (bini) in their usual place

Others, who had touched the limits of revolt with the tips of their fingers, were unable any longer to discover the figure of their fingers, on their fists,' &c

† This Chapter, CV, entituled "The I lephant, is a very short one, and does not seem to contain much matter of offence. Humay in probably referred to himself the expression of "Master of the I lephant," and behaved that allusion was made to such as had recently been trodden to death.

"In the name of the most merciful God!

"Hast thou not seen how the Lord dealt with the Masters of the I lephant? Did he not make their treacherous design an occasion of drawing them into error and send BOOK IV A D 1536 and, when the service was over, he ordered the Imám to be trodden to death by an elephant, for charging him, by insinuation, with tyranny Moulána Muhammed Bergholi, a learned and saintly personage, high in the Emperor's favour, interceded for the Imam, and pleaded that, being an ignorant man, he did not understand the Koran, and meant no ill But this interference only further enraged the Emperor, who vented the passion, with which he was still inflamed, in reproaches directed against the intercessor himself, and the sentence was carried into effect. When, however, Humáyun's rage had somewhat evaporated, and when he had leisure for cool reflection, he was seized with the deepest sorrow and remorse, and spent the ensuing night in tears and lamentations.

Demonstration in Hu mayun's favour from Sind

Shah Hasan advances towards Patan

It was, probably, about this time that a demonstration, for the purpose of favouring Humáyun's invasion of Behader's territories, was made on the side of Sind The Emperor, when he marched to attack Gujrát, wishing to create a diversion in his favour by a formidable inroad into that kingdom from the north and west, wrote to Shah Hasan, the ruler of Sind, inviting him to lead his army towards Patan, there to await farther With this requisition Shah Hasan complied, and marched, with a considerable force, from Nasirpúr on the Indus, by way of Idphal, towards Patan in Guj-Khizer Khan, who was governor of Patan-Nehrwála, for Beháder, on hearing of his approach, being resolved to make a vigorous defence, directed all the neighbouring cattle to be driven within the inclosure of As soon as Sultan Mahmúd Khan Bheken. who commanded the advance of the Sind army, and plundered the country and the villages as he marched along, had arrived, with five hundred cavalry, within about seven kos of the town, he encamped At the against them flocks of birds, which cast down upon them stones of baked clay, and rendered them like the leaves of corn, eaten by cattle?"

* Akbernáma, f 40

same time, he sent a message to the governor, inviting him to suirender to Shah Hasan, who was on his route to attack him, with a large army, and offered to allow him and his family to leave the town unmolested, and to retire in safety, wherever they might wish to go Khizr Khan returned for answer, that Behåder Shah was safe in Girnál, and that he, as a faithful subject, would defend to the last extremity the city entrusted to his care The envoys, who were of the Jháreja tribe, desirous that their mission should not be altogether fruitless, then waited on the governor's mother, to whom they held out the policy of sending some propitiatory offering to the invaders, and prevailed upon her to present the sum of a lak of Firuzshahis to Shah Hasan, and thuty thousand to Sultan Mahmud, to mduce and enable them to leave the Patan territory, and to march on

Next morning, Shah Hasan arrived with the main body of his army, near Patan Sultan Mahmúd, a man of impetuous courage, was eager to be allowed to push forward into Gujrát, but Shah Hasan halted, and sent on messengers to the Emperor to announce his arrival, and to ask farther orders Meanwhile, Khizr Khan's people arrived with the presents, which seem to have secured the city of Patan from molestation Mahmud, however, extended his plundering excursions His troops to the close vicinity of Mahmudábád, in Gujrát, and to Mahhis followers were enriched by the plunder of that midabad. wealthy and flourishing country

Here, the diversion from Sind terminated, Shah Farakh, one of Sultan Hasan's puncipal generals, having represented to him, that, should Humáyun order the Sind army to join his own, the Arghuns and Terkháns of Sind, who were at present satisfied with their condition, -if they once witnessed the luxury in which the Chaghatáis lived, and the wealth gained by the impenal army, in consequence of the division of the royal

BOOK IV A.D 1536 treasure,—would certainly become discontented, and that many of them would exchange his service for that of the Emperor—Shah Hasan acquiesced in the justice of this representation—He, therefore, dispatched messengers to report to Humáyun, that he had received information that the Kilmiti and Jitwi tribes, invited by the Zemindars of Sind, had entered that country, during his absence, and threatened to throw every thing into confusion, so that his immediate return was indispensable—Without waiting for an answer, he led back his army, by way of Radhanpúr, inflicting severe chastisement on the Jháreja and Sodha tribes, as he went along *

He retreat

Behader Shah at Diu

When Sultan Behåder fled from Champanir, he took refuge in the island of Diu, on which stood a rich and populous seaport town, as well as a royal palace was the great emporium of the coasting trade of that part of India, since it possessed a safe harbour, which saved the necessity of encountering the banks and shallows of the Gulph of Cambay, and Surat had not yet absorbed the commerce of Gujrát The Portuguese, who, since the discovery of the route to the East by the Cape of Good Hope, aimed at a monopoly of the Indian trade, and had become the tyrants of the west coast, from Ceylon to the Red Sea, were eager to establish themselves at Diu, not only in order to have the command of the Gulph of Cambay, -and of the coast of Gujrát Proper, and of the Kókan on the one side, and of the peninsula of Gujrát and the coast of Kach and Sind on the other, -but to be enabled to intercept the trade of the Persian and Arabian Gulphs with Behåder had been, for some time, at war with the Portuguese, but, latterly, had entered into an accommodation with them In his distress, he was now

Negotiates with the Portuguese

^{*} Tarikhe Sind, ff 119—151 Champanir, A n 912-3 (A D)
This incursion evidently occurred 1556) while the Emperor's army lay at uiged by those about him to apply to them for succour To this he consented, as a measure of temporary relief, though, at the same time, he privately dispatched an embassy to Soliman the Magnificent, the Sultan of Constantinople, with rich presents for the Sultan, valued at six hundred thousand pieces of gold *, besides large sums of money to pay the auxiliary force that might Nuño d'Acuña, the Portuguese viceroy, thus called upon, agreed to furnish assistance, but only on condition that he should be allowed to elect a fortification at Diu, for the protection of his fleet, and put in possession of the sea-tower which commanded the entrance of the harbour These demands he represented as made solely for the necessary security of his troops and shipping, and undertook that his countrymen should levy no duties or customs on ships, whether entering or sailing from the port, and should exercise no act of sovereignty The King, in his distress, acceded to these terms, and no sooner was his consent given, than the Portuguese, who had long sought in vain to settle at Diu, set to work, and in forty days erected a fortress, which was impregnable, at least to their enemies, and made them in reality masters of the island, and of the trade of the whole coast The Portuguese affirm, that, in return for this concession, they afforded Behader Shah the aid of five hundred Europeans, of whom fifty were men of note †

After the fall of Champanir, the whole country of Anarchy in Guirát, as far noith as the river Myhi or Mehindri, had come into the Emperor's hands, and was occupied by his orders, but so much does he seem to have been engaged in discovering and enjoying the rich treasures of Champanir, that nobody was appointed to conduct the government, or to collect the revenues of the provinces beyond that river 1, though, in the universal

^{*} Lafitau, vol 1 p 213

[†] Tab Albert, f 386

[†] Briggs's Ferishta, vol iv p 134

A D 1536

panic that prevailed, they had been altogether abandoned by the officers of Behader, civil and military The landholders and raiats in that quarter, left in this singular piedicament, wrote to Sultan Behåder, to whom they were still attached, to represent, that the revenues of the country were now due, but that there were no collectors to receive them; and that, if his Majesty would appoint a proper person, they should be paid to him as usual

Behader deputes Imad-ulmalk to collect the revenues

We are told that Behader Shah, sitting in council, mentioned the tenor of these letters; and asked, who would repair to Ahmedábád, and undertake the management of this business All were silent, till Imádul-mulk, a distinguished nobleman, who had been a slave of the King's *, boldly offered himself for the enterprise, but required, as an indispensable condition, that, in consideration of the perturbed state of the country, and of the peculiar exigency of affairs, he should have the sole and absolute power to demand or 1 cmit the revenue, to make grants of land, or pay away money, as he judged expedient, without being liable to be called to account at any future time. This being assented to, he set out on his mission, with only two hundred horse, and marched for Ahmedabad As he went along, he appointed officers to collect the revenues of the province, wrote and delivered grants of land or of pensions to different persons, in whom he could confide, and who had weight in the country, and was joined by them and their followers in such numbers, (especially by the zemindars of Sorath or Kattiawar,) that his force growing as he advanced, by the time he reached Ahmedábád, which he occupied, he found himself at the head of not less than ten-thousand horse He now expended, with open-handed liberality, the revenues which he collected, and, the cause being

Rapid increase of his force

^{*} Ferishta (iv p 80) calls him a Circassian, the Tabakat, a slave, popular, his army speedily increased to thirty thousand CHAP IL men Mujahid Khan, the chief of Junagar, joined him with ten thousand followers, and the army received a valuable reinforcement by the arrival of Beháder's European soldiers †

SECT III.

When the news of these transactions reached Hu- numayun mayun, they roused him from the trance of pleasure in against which he had too long indulged Leaving Terdi Beg Imad. in charge of Champanir, and having made a second division among his troops of the plunder that had been collected, he marched straight for Ahmedábad, and crossed the Mchindii, Askeii Miiza, with Yadgar Nasir Mirza, and Hindú Beg, being ordered to keep one march in advance of the army Imad-ul-mulk, emboldened by the success that had hitherto attended his exertions, set out from Ahmedábád with his army, now amounting to fifty thousand men, and prepared to meet him By a forced march, he suddenly, about Imad surmid day, when the heat was most oppressive, and no advanced attack was apprehended, came by surprise upon Askeri guard Mirza, who was lying, with the advance of the imperial army, between the town of Neriad and Mahmudabad,now a heap of ruins, at that time a flourishing city Yádgár Násir Mirza had taken his ground about a mile to the right, and Hindú Beg his, as much to the left The Gujráti army came upon Askeii with such expedition, that he had not time to form his troops, which were scattered in all directions, but he retired, with such as were at hand, into a thicket of thorny milkbush, that was hard by, and there took up a position The Gunatis, without following the Mirza or attempting to improve their victory, dispersed to plunder the

^{*} The Tabakat, ff 147 397 says fifty thousand. He is said to have given all who joined him with two horse, one lak Gujruti, 2,500 rupees, according to price. Ma-

homedan Hist. vol iii p 789 † Akbernama, f 40, Tabakate Akberi, as above, Ferichta, u 80, iv 128, Khafi Khan

BOOK IV

л b 1536

Is routed by the main army

camp They gained, indeed, a rich booty, but fell into mextricable disorder The two wings of the imperial army soon came in sight, marching in battle order At their approach, the enemy at once abandoned the camp; and Askeri Mirza, at the same time, issuing again from the jungle, reared his standard, beat his kettle drums, and pressed upon them in their retreat The Gujrátis were broken and defeated, and were pursued, as far as Ahmedábád, leaving more than two thousand dead on the field When the Emperor reached the scene of action, he is said to have inquired of Khodawend Khan*, who had been in the service of Behader, and was well acquainted with the composition of his armies, if he should have another battle to fight, or if the business was over The Khan answered, that, if Imád-ul-mulk was himself in the battle, the business was over, but, if not, that his Majesty might expect another bloody bout Humáyun sought eagerly to discover how the fact stood, and, from two men, who were lying wounded, he ascertained, with pleasure, that that nobleman had himself commanded in the fight †

Humayun nt Ahmedábád Next day, the imperial army marched forward, Askeri Mírza commanding the advance, as before When the army reached Kankaria‡ tank, close by Ahmedábád, where it encamped, the Mírza, to whom the Emperor had given the government of that city and the surrounding districts, preferred a request, that the troops should not be allowed indiscriminately to enter the town, as it would be the certain rum of the place

* Khod iwend Khan was the title of Rumi Khan, now in Humayun's rervice.

† Tabak ite Abberi, f 148, Albern ima, f 40. The only intelligible account of the action is that of Nizam-ed-din, the author of the Tabakate Alberi, or Larikhe Nizami, who had it from his father, Muhammed Mol im Hirvi (of Herat), who was then Mirza Asleri's vazir Abulfizh estimates the loss of the Gujratis at three or four thousand men. He men ione Alim Khan Lodi, as commanding the Gujratileft. The accounts of Fere has and Khan Khan are evidently meorrect.

‡ Or, Kularia—Hamilton

CHAP II

SECT III

Orders were in consequence issued, to station guards at every gate of the city, and that none but Asker Mirza and his people should be permitted to enter The more effectually to preserve the inhabitants from injury, the Emperor led his army across the Sabramati, so as to interpose that river between his camp and the city, and took post at the beautiful village of Sirkich, still an object of interest, from the splendid tombs of the kings of Gujrát, which it contains From his headquarters there, accompanied by his principal officers, he visited the magnificent palaces, mosques, and colleges of his new capital, which was then certainly one of the richest and noblest in the world

The conquest of Gujrát being now nearly complete, Ille arthe Emperor turned his thoughts to the settlement of for the gothe country and the preservation of what he had gained vernment Askeri Milza retained Ahmedábád, and was raised to the dignity of viceroy The veteran Hindú Beg, with a large force, was to act as minister and commanderin-chief, and to send or carry assistance wherever the exigencies of the service required Terdi Beg retained Champaníi, Yádgár Násir Mírza had the district of Patan-Nehrwála, Kásım Husein Sultan, Uzbek, had Barúch and Nousán, with the port of Surat, Dost Beg Ishekagha * had Cambay and Baroda, and Mir Bochak Beliáder, Mahmúdábád †

Hindú Beg

It appears to have been at this crisis that the Em- Advice of peror was urged by some of his counsellors, especially by Hindú Beg, to make some permanent settlement of the affairs of Guirát, so as to enable him to march back, with the great body of his army, to the provinces of the Ganges, which, while he was overrunning Malwa and Gujrát, were already suffering deeply from the miseries of invasion and revolt Their advice was, to giving Baruch to Hindu Beg, and Baróda to Kásım Husein Sultan

Chamberlain † The Tabakát makes a different allotment of some of these places, set apart a sum equal to one or two years' pay of his troops, to reserve the rest for future exigencies, and to restore Sultan Behåder, nominally, to the throne of Gujrát This, they affirmed, would not only add to his reputation for generosity, but would enable him to govern that country in the easiest and most peaceful way, and at the same time to provide for the safety of his other dominions. The Emperor, however, could not bear the idea of appearing to give up kingdoms, on the conquest of which he valued himself so much. The future history of his reign proves that the advice was a sound one. It was impossible, with the force that he possessed, to maintain kingdoms so extensive and so scattered as he now occupied, especially as the natives of Gujrát showed a decided partiality for the old dynasty of their kings. Situated as he then was, Behåder would probably have consented to become his vassal, and to have left in his hands the principal forts of the kingdom.

BOOK IV

Alarming intelligence from Agra,

Humáyun, after having divided the country among his Amírs, pushed on towards Diu in pursuit of Beháder Shah, who had taken refuge there. Scarcely, however, had he reached Dandúka, about thirty kos from Ahmedábád, when he was overtaken by expresses from Agra, bringing him the most alarming intelligence. His long absence from his capital, and the great distance to which he had marched with the main body of his army, so as to be almost lost sight of, had encouraged the disaffected to rise in several quarters. The Afgháns in Behar and in the East were again active. Muhammed Sultan Mírza, assisted by his sons, Ulugh and Shah Mírzas, had made himselt master of the country from Kanaur to Juánpúr, and caused the Khútba to be read in his own name. Symptoms of commotion and revolt had begun to show themselves even in the provinces on the Jamna, and close around Agra. Dispatches of similar import followed in rapid and from Malwa

state of tranquillity He was fond of the climate of Malwa, and lingered there with pleasure He established several of his most confidential servants in the province, by bestowing on them estates and jágírs, and his affairs once more seemed to assume a promising aspect.

CHAPTER II

AFFAIRS OF GUJRÁT AND MALWA

SECTION IV

LOSS OF GUJRÁT AND MALWA

REACTION IN GUJRÁT, IN FAVOUR OF BEHÁDER. — SURAT OCCUPIED IN HIS NAME — AND BARÚCH — AND CAMBAY — AND PATAN — INDECISION OF THE IMPERIAL GENERAIS — GH (ZANFER DESERTS — BFHÁDER ADVANCES TOWARDS AHMEDÁBÁD — DANGER OF THE IMI FPIAL ARMY — DISAFFECTION OF MÍRZA ASKERI — AND THE CHIEFS — PRECIPITATE RETREAT FROM AHMEDÁBAD — PURSUIT BY BHIADER — THE MÍRZA AND HIS ARMY AT CHAMPANÍR. — TERDI BEG REFUSES TO ADMIT THEM — THEY MARCH TOWARDS AGRA. — BEHÁDER TAKES CHAMPANÍR — AND RECOVERS ALL GUJRÁT — HUMÁYUM INTERCEPTS ASKERI, IN LÁJFUTÁNA — THEY RETURN TO AGRA — STATE OF THE GANGETIC PLOVINCES — SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN OF HINDAL MIRZA — LOSS OF MALWA — BFHÁDER SHAH AND THE PORTUGUESE — DEATH OF BEHÁDER — FATE OF DIU — ALLEGED REAPPEARANCE OF BEHÁDER. — HIS ADHERENTS RETIRE TO AHMEDÁBÁD — HIS IMMEDIATE SUCCESSORS

But this was only a transient gleam of prosperity Gujrát had been overrun, indeed, but it was far from being settled. The conquerors were still considered in the light of strangers and marauders. Hardly had Humáyun turned his back on the province, when revolt began to show itself. Beháder Shah had succeeded in concluding a treaty with the Portuguese, by which they agreed to furnish him an auxiliary force. He was also busy in raising a body of five or six thousand Habshi or

SECT IV

Reaction in Gujrit in favour of Behader A D 1536 Surat occupied in his name,

Abyssinian slaves * His partizans, within the country, were not idle Rúm Khan Sefer, the engineer who had conducted the building of Surat castle †, seems to have shut himself up in it, and another officer established a fortified position near Nousán, at the mouth of the Taptit, and they maintained themselves against the invaders, by the aid of the Gujráti fleet These officers, being joined by Khan Jehán Shirázi, now ventured to act in concert, on the offensive, drove Abdalla Khan, a relation of Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek, the governor of the district, from the Nousári territory, after he had held it little more than three months, and seized the city of Surat Abdalla Khan retreated to Barúch, the seat of Kásım Husein's government, while, following up their success, Khan Jehán marched his troops by land towards Barúch, at the same time that Rúmi Khan, with the ships &, in which were embarked the heavy baggage and artillery, sailed round the coast and ascended the Nerbáda to that town Kásım Husein. not prepared for such an attack, abandoned the place, and retired towards Champanir, whence he proceeded to Ahmedábád, to solicit assistance from Askeri Mírza, the viceroy, and Hindú Beg, the commander-in-chief and Barúch,

But these were not the only enemies whom the partizans of Humáyun had to encounter Syed Ishák, who received from Beháder Shah the title of Shitáb

* The Habshis are properly Abyssimans, but negroes of all descriptions are often, in common speech, so called

† General Briggs, Ferishta, (as well as Major Price, Retrospect of Mahomedan History, vol 111 p 726 note) supposes that Surat castle was built by Rumi Khan Khodawend Khan, who was Behåder's engineer at the siege of Cheitur, and who afterwards conducted the siege of Chunar for Humayun But Rumi Khan was a common name for chief engineers, who were frequently Rumis or Osmanlı Turks. The builder of Surat castle, buried near the Mirza Shami mosque at Surat, is not Khodawend Khan, (who died at Chunar, after the fall of that place, a deserter from the Gujrát service,) but Rumi Khan Sefer (Akbernama, f 41) who was with Beháder Shah at the time of his death, and who, as here mentioned in the text, retook Surat and Baruch

‡ Or, Tápi

& Grabs.

A D 1536

Descriton of Ghúzanfct

Behåder ndvances towards Ahmedábud

Danger of the impe rial army

Disaffection of Mirza Askeri and the chiefs.

* He was the brother of Kásım

† Or, "but he is not an auto crat," (self-governed)

God" Gházanfert, a nobleman of rank, and his own foster brother, whispered to one who sat by him, "That may well be, for he is not himself." † The person to whom the words were addressed, similed, which the Mirza observing, insisted on knowing the cause, and, when told, was extremely incensed, and placed Gházanfer in confinement In a few days that officer made his escape, or was released, and deserted, with three hundred horse, to Sultan Behåder, whom he strongly incited to march upon Ahmedåbåd, assuring him that he was well acquainted with the counsels of the enemy, who were all most anxious to retreat, and were only looking for a pietext "If you have any doubts," said he, "put me in confinement, march against the Moghuls, and, if they meet you in the field, then punish me as you please" Many invitations coming to Behåder, at the same time, from his numerous adherents in the districts, all urging him to march to their rehef, he was finally induced to move upon Ahmedåbåd Everywhere he was received by the people with tumultuous acclamations of joy, his army swelled as he moved along, and he soon encamped at the town of Sirkech, nearly opposite to the capital. The situation of the imperial army, at this time, was one of considerable danger. It was in the midst of a hostile, and probably incensed country. Humáyun's hundred horse, to Sultan Behåder, whom he strongly hostile, and probably incensed country Humáyun's troops had been forced to abandon all the principal towns, except Champanír They had now, however, been concentrated, and Mírza Askeri,—the viceroy, with Hindú Beg, Yádgár Násir Mírza, and Kasin Husein Sultan Uzbek, his principal officers,—encamped at Sirganj, near Asáwel, a suburb of Ahmedábád, on the left bank of the Sabramati, with nearly twenty thousand horse, facing Behader Shah It is alleged, that, at this momentous crisis, Hindú Beg strongly advised Askeri Mirza, as the only way of preserving Gunat, to assume the ensigns of royalty, and to declare himself independent, arguing, that not only would this declaration encourage the inhabitants to join him, by the hope of more effectual protection, but that his own soldiers, having their king among them, would be elevated to much higher exertion and daring, and would more cheerfully devote themselves to his service Asken Minza hesitated, but finally rejected the advice, at least in the form in which it was offered

Khan

It does, however, appear that, at a council in which were met Askeri, Yádgái, Hindú Beg, and all the principal Amírs then in Gujrát, Terdi Beg excepted, it was the general opinion that, as Humáyun persisted in remnining at Mándu, and sent them no assistance, it was vain, as matters stood, to think of resisting Behåder Shah in the field, and, acting under the influence of the discontent and disaffection produced by existing circumstances, they resolved to march to Champaníi, to seize upon the treasure, to proceed to Agia, and there declare Askerı Mírza Emperor, and Hudú Beg visir, assigning, at the same time, suitable appointments to all the other Mirzas and officers who joined A retreat was accordingly resolved upon, only three days after they had encamped at Sirgani, over against Behåder

It happened, on the last of these days, that a shot Precipitate from one of the Mirza's guns struck the audience-tent from Ahof the Sultan, and threw it down Enraged at the medabád. occurrence he sent for Gházanfer, that he might deal with him in terms of his own agreement Ghâzanfer entreated that the sentence might be deferred till the armies were fairly drawn out, adding, that he still maintained his former opinion, and had sure information that the Mirza was to retreat in the course of the night.

And, accordingly, the Mirza and his Amirs did retreat, without fighting, and with such precipitation and confusion that they left behind them, not only their stores and heavy baggage, but even their private baggage and wearing apparel, and made a forced march of ten kos, on the road to Champanir. A retreat, under such circumstances, while it emboldened the enemy, disheartened their own adherents, and threatened irretrievable ruin to their affairs.

Pursuit by Behåder

This sudden change roused the activity of Behader Shah, who had entered upon the campaign with many uneasy forebodings He now pursued the retreating Ilis advanced body, commanded by Syed Mobárek Bokhári, came up with the imperial rear, under Yádgár Yadgar halted his troops, wheeled round, Násir Mírza and met the pursuers bravely. A severe action ensued The Mirza's troops displayed great gallantry, many of the advance were slain, and others fell wounded into the Mirza's hands The enemy did not follow beyond Mahmúdábád, and Yádgár, unmolested, rejoined the main body of his own army Askeri Mírza continued his retreat in a state of discouragement and alarm, and with such confusion that many of his soldiery were drowned in crossing the Mehindri, which lay in his route. Behåder Shah advanced as far as that river, and halted *

The Mirza and his army at Champanir

Terdi Beg refuses to admit them When the Mirza reached Champanir in his disastrous retreat, Terdi Beg, the governor, who had heard of the plans of defection that had been debated in his council, and had communicated them to the Emperor, received him with caution, and, while he gave the troops all the assistance in his power, did not suffer them to enter the fort. The day after their arrival, the Mirzas sent to inform the Beg, that they and the army under their command were in a state of the most complete destitu-

vol 11 p 81, Bird's Miráte Ahmedi, pp 248—250, Jouher, c 2

^{*} For the preceding events, consult the Akbernáma, f 41, Tabakat-e Akberi, f 148 397, Ferishta,

Behader takes Champanir,

воок iv Behåder Shah did not venture to cross the Mahendri, AP 1536-7 which is only fifteen kos distant, but no sooner did it march in the direction of Agra, than he moved forward and advanced to Champanir In spite of the strength of the fort, and of its being, it is said, amply supplied with provisions and stores to support a siege, Terdi Beg abandoned the place, and withdrew on capitulation, taking along with him as much of the treasure as he had the means of transporting He may in this have followed the orders of Humáyun, and, indeed, in the present state of affairs, and with the prospect of retreating from Malwa, the only effect of resistance would be the inevitable destruction of the garrison, and the loss of the whole treasure The town and fort were immediately occupied by Behåder Shah, who thus saw himself once more in possession of the whole kingdom of Gunat and recovers all Gurát.

Humayun intercepts Askeri in Rájputana

They return to Agra

Terdi Beg, on leaving Champanír, repaired directly to Mándu, where he was received with distinction by the Emperor, to whom he had acted a faithful part To prevent the conspirators from executing their new purpose, Humáyun pushed forward by forced marches for Agra, taking the route of Cheitur By a fortunate accident, the two aimies met in the Cheitur territory, while on their march The Mirzas, taken by surprise, saw no remedy but to feign submission and obedience The Emperoi, being in many respects in equal difficultics with themselves, shut his eyes to the past affected to be satisfied with their explanations, and bestowed upon them princely presents. The united aimy then marched towards Agra, where its presence was imperiously required *

* Akbernáma, f 41 , Tabakat-e Akben, ff 149 397, Ferishta, v n pp 82, 83, Tar Bedauni, f 140, Jouher, c 2 Jouher, in the original, does not affirm that Yadgar went privately to the governor, or that he alleged the King's orders, as in transl p 7 words are, "Nusir Mirza comes into the fort of Champanir, and says to Terdi Beg, 'Give me the treasures Terdi Beg answers, with all his troops The two armies soon met face to face; but when they were on the point of engaging, a strong north-wester * rising, blew such clouds of dust right in the eyes of the insurgents that they could not keep their position The imperial troops, who had the wind on their backs, availing themselves of their advantage, pressed hard upon the enemy, whose retreat was soon converted into a flight Hindal, after taking possession of Belgrám and the surrounding country, pursued the remainder of their army, as they marched to form a junction with Ulugh Mirza He overtook them at Oud, where Muhammed Sultan and his sons, having concentrated all their force, halted to check his advance The two armies lay opposed to each other for nearly two months, when news arrived, that Humáyun had left Mándu, and was on his way back to Agra This decided Muhammed Sultan to bring on an action, as his only chance of safety He marched out of his trenches, an engagement ensued, in which the imperial troops had the advantage. The insurgents, dispirited by their continued want of success, began to despair, and soon after dispersed. Muhammed Sultan Mirza, and three of his sons, fled to Kuch-Behart, while Mirza Hindal, following up his advantage, went on to Juánpúr Having soon after heard of Humáyun's arrival at the capital, he left the army and joined his brother there I

Loss of Mnlwa. Meanwhile, the Emperor was less fortunate on the side of Malwa No sooner was it known in the surrounding countries that he was on his march back to Agra, than Bhopal Rai, the chief of Bijagar, a district that lies to the east of Malwa, finding that no garrison was left in Mándu, entered and occupied the place There he was speedily joined by Milu Khan, who

^{*} Bád-e-kibla ‡ Akbernama, f 41 , Jouher, † Jouher has Koh-Khanda Behar c 2

[†] Jouher has Koh-Khanda Behar c s ncar Parman (or, Parbatián)

SECT IV

aspired to the throne, which he ascended under the CHAP II title of Káder Shah, and by Mirán Muhammed Fárúki of Kandesh As the Emperor's troops appear to have been entirely withdrawn, they met with no opposition anywhere, and soon took possession of the whole country, and thus the kingdom of Malwa, as well as that of Gujrat, slipped from the unsteady grasp of Humáyun *

But while the course of events was thus once more Transacso favourable to Behåder Shah, that monarch was not tions between Bedoomed long to enjoy his prosperity Fourteen days hidder Shah and the fall of Champanír, he hastened back to Diu Portuguese. His negociations with the Portuguese had become complicated When his fortunes were at the lowest ebb, he had received some assistance from them, as has been mentioned, and, at the same time, had sent rich presents to the Portuguese Viceroy of Goa, inviting him to come to his aid with a more powerful force The Viceroy, Nuño d'Acuña, had accordingly obeyed his call, and set sail from Goa and Chewel, with a large fleet and army But when he reached the coast of Gujrát, understanding that the Emperor of Delhi's troops had in the interval been driven out of the country, he began to apprehend, that, as his services were no longer necessary, he might not gain those advantages to himself and his followers, and that increase of terri- A H 943, tory to his country, which he had anticipated quarrels had arisen before the King's arrival, between the Portuguese and his officers, in consequence of the insulting pretensions and encroaching spirit of the foimer Behåder would gladly have seen his troublesome allies removed from Diu, where the building of the new fort was hurried on upon a plan infinitely more extensive than had been reckoned upon Both parties, however, dissembled their feelings

Akbernama, ut supra.

BOOK IV л ^{п 1537} Death of Behader

Behåder Shah, on his arrival in the neighbourhood of Diu, attempted to restore confidence by acting with the utmost frankness, putting himself boldly in the power of the governor of the castle, and visiting him in his The Viceroy, who arrived off Diu about this time, appears to have blamed the governor for not availing himself of the opportunity thus offered to seize the King, for the purpose of extorting from him the cession of some towns and sea-ports which he was anxious to possess To repair this oversight, D'Acuña feigned sickness, and sent a message to inform Behåder, who had spent some days in the vicinity in hunting, that he was come, at his call, with powerful succours, and would wait upon him as soon as his health allowed The Sultan, thrown off his guard, or perhaps suspecting no ill as intending none, laid ceremony aside, and towards the close of the day rowed off from the shore, with only a few attendants and went aboard the admiral's ship, to visit him, and to inquire after his health No sooner, however, did he see the Viceroy, than he plainly perceived that his illness was Ramzán 3, a mere pretence, and felt vexed that he had gone Teb 13 Viceroy, on his part, had probably been taken unprepared by Behåder's sudden and unexpected appearance During the conversation that ensued, a page came in and whispered something in his ear thin little modern and whispered show that the work of the which the wind in the state of the wind in which the wind in the state of the wind in which the wind in the wind in which the wind which the wind in which wind in which the wind in which wind in which the win mind in which the King then was, this little incident increased his uneasiness and excited his suspicion He continued to sit, however, though the intercourse was forced and constrained, till the Viceroy, rising, requested to be excused for a few moments, as he wished to show his Majesty some presents that were intended for his acceptance, and left the cabin This confirmed the suspicions of the King, who hurriedly intimating a desire that they might be sent after him, started up and hastened to his boat the governor of Diu castle, when Emanuel de Souza, coming up in his baige *, invited him to visit the new fortifications Rúmi Khan Sefer, who was in the boat with the King, advised him to decline the invitation, as treachery was probably intended, but the King desired de Souza to come into the boat De Souza, in attempting to step from his own barge into the King's, fell into the sea, but was taken up by Behader's atten-This occasioned considerable bustle and confusion, the cause was unknown, but the act of diagging de Souza into the boat, was observed by the Portuguese in the numerous vessels that lay on every side Hastily concluding that an attempt was made upon their countrymen's life, in their eagerness to succour him, they closed round the King's boat, into which some of them leaped The instant consequence was upioar and menace, blows speedily succeeded Behåder, totally unprepared for such an occurrence, and now confirmed in his suspicions of treachery, threw himself into the sea, and was followed by Rúmi Khan After swimming for some time towards the shore, as he approached a Portuguese vessel, one of the officers held out an oar to assist him in getting in, when a soldier who stood by, struck him on the face with a halbeit, and his example was imitated by others of his contrades, who repeated their blows, till Behåder sank dead in the Rúmi Khan was saved by a Portuguese to whom, on some former occasion, he had shown kindness De Souza, the governor, was struck and fell overboard, during the scuffle in the King's boat Neither his body nor that of the King could be found †

This scene passed before the eyes of the inhabitants Fate of Diu

* Abulfazl's account is, that a Feringi magistrate, (Kazi Fering) by which, I suppose, the governor de Souza is meant) having stept before him as he left the Viceroy, insisted on his remaining, upon which the Sultan, drawing his sabre, cut him down, and leapt into his own boat, seeing this, the Portuguese boats that were around closed in, and Behåder and Rumi leaped into the sea

† Akbernama, ff 41, 42, Tabakat e Akben, ff 397, 398, Ferishta, and General Briggs s note, vol 11 pp 130—141 CHAP II Sict IV

of Diu. They were filled with alarm at the sight, and, as they concluded that their town would be instantly plundered by the Portuguese, leaving their houses, and abandoning all their property, they rushed in such numbers to escape from the place, that many were crushed to death in the crowds that overflowed at the gates, while numbers were drowned in crossing the narrow channel that separates the island from the mainland The Viceroy left no effort untried to quiet the fears of the survivors, and to bring back the rich traders and other inhabitants of the town, but at the same time he took possession of the King's palace, the arsenals, and all the public magazines Only a small sum in money was said to have been found by the officers commissioned to take possession of the treasury*, which gave use to the belief, that they, as well as the Viceroy himself, were guilty of extensive embezzlement, but the jewels, furniture, artillery and stores certainly seized, are said to have been of immense value, besides an hundred and twenty ships, which also fell into their hands † Each party charged the other with treachery

* Lasitau, vol 1 pp 256, 257

+ Behåder Shah was the most magnificent, and for some time the most fortunate, prince of his age When first driven from Champanir, in his despair, he had resolved to abdicate the throne and pass the rest of his life at Mekka Turkish historian, Ferdi, according to Chevalier de Hammer, "relates," says General Briggs, " that when Behåder Shah was compelled to retreat to Diu, he sent his family and the royal jewels to Medina. They consisted of three hundred iron chests, the accumulated wealth acquired from the Hindu princes of Junagar, Champanir, Abugar, and Cheitur, and also the property of the kings of Malwa. These gorgeous treasures never returned to India.

but fell into the hands of the Grand Signior of Constantinople, who, from their possession, became entitled to the appellation of Soliman the Magnificent. The celebrated waist-belt, valued at three millions of aspers, which had been three times taken and retaken in the wars of India, was sent to Soliman, by the ambassador whom Beháder Shah deputed to Constantinople to solicit the aid of the Grand Signior against Humáyun "Briggs's Ferishta, vol 17 p 141

The original accounts of the death of the Sultan, as given by the principal Indian and Portuguese authorities, have been extracted at considerable length by Gen Briggs, (iv pp 131—141) who concludes, that Behåder and the Viceroy "were in this melancholy affair. That Behåder, if actuated by evil intentions, should have put himself unattended in the power of his enemy, seems hardly ciedible. The Vicerov, without desiring his death, would probably have willingly seen him his prisoner The catastrophe was evidently brought on prematurely, by accidental circumstances The conduct of the Portuguese after the event, may be held as the best proof of their disposition before it The spirit which in that age regulated the proceedings of Europeans towards the princes of America or of Asia and their subjects, was that of the most unprincipled cruelty and rapacity, in no degree superior to that of the buccaneers of a later period The Portuguese have kept possession of Diu, thus acquired, from that time to the present day

SECT IV

Sultan Behåder was only about thirty years of age, Alleged reand had reigned between eleven and twelve years, when appearance of Behader he was cut off The internal confusion and misery which followed made his subjects long look back with regret to the splendid, and, in general, tranquil period of his reign, while the deplorable circumstances attending his death, which deprived him of all funeral honours, produced a belief, in this as in several similar instances fondly indulged by the common people, that the King resolved each to seize the other, that the followers of both knew the intentions of their respective masters, and suspected the opposite party, so that nothing was wanting to bring about bloodshed but such an affray as arose, originating entirely out of an accident, which blew the embers of suspicion and mistrust into a blaze, and produced the melancholy result which has been related " Ibid I have taken rather a different view of the subject I see no evidence that Behåder had formed any design against the person of the Viceroy In case of need he probably would not have been very scrupulous as to the means he employed to defeat the aims of the Portuguese, but, in fact, his whole conduct was conciliatory He put hunself unarmed and defenceless into the power of his enemy He was passive in the whole affair No overt act of treachery on his part appears He had little to gain by seizing the Viceroy, it would only have transferred the command to the next in rank. The case was different had the Viceroy got the King into his power The Portuguese, by their conduct after the event, threw light on their intentions before it.

BOOK IV was not really dead, and would one day return to govern his dominions with glory. Many pretended that he reached the shore, and there were various reports of his reappearance, on different occasions, both in Gujiát and the Dekkan It was, in particular, currently reported and believed that a person appeared in Nizam-ul-mulk's territory, whom that prince acknowledged as Behader Shah, and as such played with him at chougan*, that, a crowd gathering about him, the concourse of people was marked by the Nizam with some uncasiness, and the same night the stranger disappeared from his tent, having been put to death, as was conjectured, by that prince It is added, that Mulla Kutb-ed-din, of Shiráz, who had been Beháder's preceptor, was then m the Dekhan, and conversed with the stranger, and that he affirmed, with the most solemn asseverations, that it was Behåder, and that he reminded the Mirza of many incidents of which they alone were cognizant †

Ilis mother and nobles retire to Ahmedabád

As soon as the death of Behader was ascertained, the Portuguese viceroy sent to Makhduma Jehan, the King's mother, at once to condole with her on the melancholy event, and to remove all blame from humself ascribed the whole unfortunate affair to unpremeditated and unforeseen accident, and offered to lend her any assistance which it might be in his power to afford at the present juncture But she rejected his offers with indignation, considering him as the murderer of her son, and, accompanied by the Prince of Asír, and the principal nobles, set out for Ahmedábád

His Immedlate successors

While they were on the road, and while all Behader's household and family were over whelmed with sorrow, Muhammed Zemán Mírza, who had returned from the fruitless expedition against Lahur, on which he had been sent by the late king after the dispersion at Mandsúi, fell in with them, and professing the deepest distress, joined the camp, under pretence of assisting in the usual rite-of mourning By his show of sympathy, and his char if soothing attentions, he so far insimuated himself into the queen-mother - favour, that she is said to have been prevaled upon to adopt him as her son. He succeeded in scizing a large portion of the public treasures of Gur it from those who had charge of them, though, of the royal treasure and stores in Din, part had been plundered during the confusion, and the rest had fallen into the hands of d Acuna He at first made a show of revenging the murder of Behader on the Portuguese, but soon after, observing the extent of their power he altered his plan, courted their support, and sought, by large sums of money to induce them to proclaim him Sultan In this he at last succeeded, the khutha being read in his name in the Sefa Mosque, at Diu, under He collected an army of twelve thoutheir authority sand men, Moghuls and Hindust ims, and for some time maintained the style of a sovereign prince. But Imadul-mulk, supported by the nobles of Guprat, having proclaimed Miran Muhammed Shah Fuuki, of Khandesh, a sister's son of Behader's, who was at that time driving the imperial troops from Malwa, to be King of Gujrat, marched against Muhammed Zeman, attacked and dispersed his forces, and compelled him to fly to Sind Muhammed Zemán did not remain long there, as his presence was far from being agreeable to Shih Hasan, the ruler of that country, so that he, at last, found himself under the necessity of once more returning to Hindustán, and of throwing himself on the elemency of the offended Humayun The new king, Mirán Muhammed Shah, reigned only six weeks, and was suc- A # 944. ceeded by Mahmud Khan, another nephew of Behader Shith, who reigned several years under the name of Mahmud Shah He was a son of Behader's brother, Latif Khan, who was at that time a prisoner in Burhánpúi *

^{*} Albernama, f 12 , Briggs 8 I crishta, vol iv pp 112-114 VOL II

CHAPTER III

AFFAIRS OF KHORÁSÁN AND KANDAHÁR

STATE OF KHORÁSÁN — INROADS OF OBEID KHAN, AND THE UZBEKS — THEY ARE EXPELLED FROM KHORÁSÁN — AGAIN OVERRUN IT — AND BESIEGE HERÁT — WHICH IS RELIEVED BY SHAH TAHMASP — THE UZBEKS ONCE MORE EXPELLED — JÁM MÍRZA IN HERÁT AND KANDAHÁR. — SIEGE OF THE LATTER PI ACE — RAISED BY KÁMRÁN —
WHO ROUTS THE INVADERS — ATTEMPTS ON LÁHÚR, BY MUHAMMED
ZEMÁN MÍRZA — NEW INVASION OF KHORÁSÁN BY THE UZBEKS — OBEID KHAN BESIEGES MESHHÍD — AND HERÁT — WHICH IS PHLAGED — ADVANCE OF SHAH TAHMASP — AND RETREAT OF THE UZBEKS — TAHMASP OCCUPIES KANDAHÁR — WHICH IS RETAKEN BY KÁMRÁN

BOOK IV

State of Khorásán, a 11 935, a d 1529

Inroads of Obeld Khan and the Uzbeks

While these events were passing in Malwa and Gujrát, Khorásán and the Persian frontier were the scene of important transactions After the great defeat which the Uzbeks sustained at Jám, about nine years before this time, it was expected that Khorásán would, foi a long period, have been delivered from their inroads and invasions But they were an enemy not easily daunted That same year, as soon as Shah Tahmasp had quitted the province, Obeid Khan again collected an army, crossed the Amu, and marched against Meshhid, which he took possession of, after a blockade of two months Thence he proceeded to Herát, besieged it for seven months, and took it by capitulation His Sunni real is said, by the Persian writers, to have led him to retaliate the Shía persecutions of Shah Ismael and his successor, and even to put to death many of the opposite sect, as Shias and heretics

They are expelled from khorasin, Next year, the victorious Uzbek advanced to Farra, which he beleagured for some time, but without success, so that he was compelled to raise the seige, and, on hearing of the march of Shah Tahmasp into Khorasan, CHAP III. at the head of seventy thousand men, he hastily aban- A B 936, doned Herát, and retreated to Merv He summoned all the force of the Uzbeks to join him there and the Sultans, from beyond the Amu, obeyed his call But when met, their opinions differed Kuchum Khan, of Samarkand, the Grand Khan, dying, was succeeded by his son Abusaid, who set his face against the war, declaring his resolution not to join in it, and advising Obeid to His views were supported by some other chiefs, and Obeid, seeing himself thus deserted, and hearing of the Shah's near approach, turned his back, with an indignant heart, upon Khorásán Shah Tahmasp, having expelled the enemy, marched to Herat, and the fishstandard of Persia again gleamed over the whole pro-Having established his brother Behrám Mírza as viceroy, with Gházi Khan, of the Taklu tilbe, as his Protector and Amír-ul-omra, he returned to Irák

Obeid Khan, though unsupported by the Uzbek con- Agrin overfederacy, next year sent a detachment into Khorásán, A 19 937, who maiched as far as Meshhíd, but were driven back A 19 1531 by the local force Nothing dismayed, however, by this 1epulse, he, the following season, again entered the A in 938, country with a powerful host, having induced the other Uzbeks to join him, and marched straight for the capital, while divisions of his troops overian the provinces of Meshhid, Asterábád, Sebzáwái and Bostám with va-110us success For a year and a half, the country was and besiege plundered in all directions, and Obeid continued to push on the siege of Herát Shah Tahmasp, completely and prinfully occupied by the rebellion of Aláma Taklu in Azerbánán, who had called in the Osmanlı Turks to his assistance, was unable to succour them At length, famine began to rage in the besieged capital habitants were expelled, their provisions, money and property seized by the domineering Taklus, and the floors of their houses dug up to discover hidden tica-sure Cats and dogs, and food deemed the most impure, were eagerly eaten. The strength of the troops, who suffered alike from want and fatigue, began to fail. An offer was made to give up the place, provided Obeid would withdraw his troops a march or two, so as to let the garrison quit the city unmolested. He, on the other hand, haughtily insisted that they should march out and defile under his tent-ropes. This condition Behrám Mírza and his Taklu allies rejected, and the operations of the siege were continued.

BOOF IA

which is relieved by Shah Tahmusp, Meanwhile, however, Tahmasp, having quelled the rebellion of Aláma, was proceeding by forced marches to the relief of Herát. A party that he sent out surprised the Uzbeks who were in Asterábád, one morning when most of them were in the bath, put them to death with little resistance, and sent him five hundred heads. The Uzbeks, who held Sebzáwár, were in like manner attacked, but retired fighting bravely, first to Nishapúr, and then to Meshhid. Abdal-azíz, who was near that city, hurried to Herát with seven thousand horse, to support his father. Obeid did not venture to meet the Shah in the field, and retired to Bokhára, while Shah Tahmasp once more entered Herát, to the great joy of the inhabitants, and spent the winter in the neighbourhood.

and the Uzbeks once more repelled Jemédi II 2 A D 1632, Dec 30 A H 939, A D 1533

In the spring, he sent a division of his troops to reduce the adjoining province of Ghuijistán among the mountains, and was preparing to retaliate upon the Uzbeks by invading Máwer-al-neher, when the news that his grand enemy, Soliman the magnificent, was on his march to attack his dominions in the west, compelled him to relinquish his intention. As the Taklu Turks had been guilty of great oppression during the government of their chief, and were very unpopular, he named his brother, Sám Mírza, to be Viceroy, ap-death The Mínza effected his escape to the Germsír, whence he soon after proceeded to Tabas Having by this exploit secured the western part of his dominions, Kámrán neturned back to Láhúr

Unsuccess ful attempt on Lahur by Muhammed Zeman Mirza

It was while he was absent on this expedition, that Muhammed Zemán Mírza, who, it will be recollected. after the rout of Behader Shah at Mandsur, had set out to try his fortune, or to make a diversion on the side of the Penjáb, reached the borders of Sind Shah Husein. the son of Shah Shuja Beg Arghún, the sovereign of Sind, unwilling that an ambitious prince of such pretensions should enter his dominions, encouraged him to proceed to the conquest of Láhúr, which he represented as a tempting and practicable object, since Kámrán was absent with the army in Kandahár, so that that fertile and populous country was left comparatively de-The Mirza accordingly went on to the Penjáb and laid siege to Láhúr But unfortunately for his views, Kámián Míiza returned victorious at that very erisis, and the invader saw hinself forced to retire with precipitation, and to return to Gujiát, which he reached with a few followers in the utmost want and misery We have seen that he there enjoyed a short-hved sove reignty, before he was compelled to flee once more to Sind, and finally to Hindustán

New invision of khoris in by the Uzbeks, A 11 911, A D 1535 The march of Sam Mara to attack Kandahar, was a signal for the Uzbeks to renew their inroads. In the north, a body of five or six thousand entered and laid waste Khorasan. Sufian Khalifa, the governor of Meshhid, an undaunted but hot-headed soldier, was successful in coming up with, and defeating them. To the castward, another inroad was made from Ghurjistan Khalifa Sultan Shamlu, whom the Protector had left governor of Herat, having marched to repel them, with a motley and ill-assorted body of troops, collected in haste, in absence of the regular forces, was attacked, defeated and slam. The inhabitants of Herat, thus left without a head, sent to invite Sufián to take charge of char in the capital, his success in desultory waifare having gamed him great reputation all over the province Leaving his son in Meshhid, he obeyed their call Obeid Khan, finding that Khorásán continued with- Obeid Khan out troops, and without a governor, once more crossed Meshbid, the Amu at the head of an immense army, and besieged A in 942, Meshhid Despatches were sent to recal Sufián, who promised soon to be at the holy city, when he would slay Obeid, and send his skin to the King, stuffed with Setting out from Herat with only three thousand horse, he, on the road, filled a bag with hay, and ostentatiously carried it along with him, lest the Uzbeks, by not leaving a blade of giass around Meshhid, might defeat his boast. The first detachment that he met, he dispersed, but getting nearer the town in his insane career, he was hard pressed and compelled to take shelter in an old ruin, where he obstinately defended himself several days, subsisting his followers on the flesh of their horses, but was in the end taken and put to death

The unfortunate city of Herát was now again in im- and Herát, The heutenant whom Sufián had left minent hazard in charge of it, used his endeavours to make the people of the town and country join in its defence severities that he exercised for that purpose disgusted and enraged them, so that they sent to call even the Uzbeks to their relief Obeid, arriving, besieged the city for five months, while the inhabitants endured all the miseries of war and famine At length, three hundred Uzbeks, having gained entrance by night into a bastion, it is said by treachery, the city was taken, the garrison flying into the citadel of Ekhtiár-ed dín All the horrors of a city taken by storm ensued Oberd afterwards gained possession of the citadel by a treaty *, which is taken and pillaged

воок іу

in which it was stipulated that the garrison were to be allowed to march out with all their property. But, as they left the fort, they were all stripped naked and marched for Bokháia, the greater part of them perishing miserably by the way

Advance of Shah Tahmasp, A H 943, A D 1537,

During four months, Obeid held possession of Herát, and the Sunni persecution of the Shías was renewed. At length, Shah Tahmasp, compassionating the sufferings of his subjects, seized an interval of comparative peace, and set out for Khorásán. As he approached, Obeid Khan, eager to keep permanent possession of that province, proposed to meet him in the field. The other Uzbek chiefs, however, preferred a retreat, and, though it was then winter, the invading army set out to regain their own country by the route of Balkh. Tahmasp reached Herát unopposed, and sent to Tabas to bring Sám Mírza, who had shut himself up in that town after his flight from Kandahár. He was pardoned for his rebellious designs, and for the invasion he had made, as was pretended, without the royal authority, and some of his servants were put to death, as being his evil ad-hammed Mirza, another young prince, and Muhammed Khan Sherf-ed-din Ughli Taklu, was placed beside him in Herát, as Protector, and Amír-ul-omra.

Khorásán was now committed to Sultan Mu-and retreat of the Uzbeks

Having cleared Khorásán of enemies, and provided for its safety and the proper administration of affairs, Shah Tahmasp now turned his eyes to the side of Kandahár That province had been dependent on Herát in the days of its prosperity, and the Shah, though he had pietended to be ignorant, and to disapprove, of Sám Mírza's attack on it, now entered it himself with a powerful army The capital does not seem to have been placed in a sufficiently defensible state, after the late siege Khwája Kilán, from the want of provisions and scarcity of military stores, seeing no hopes of being able to stand a siege, resolved to shun an in-

Tahmasp occupies Kandahár, effectual contest, put in order his palace, which was char in magnificently furnished, and arranged all its rich carpets and sumptuous gold and silver plate, to be ready for the reception of the Shah - He then left orders with his deputy, Kanji Khwaja, that, on his Majesty's approach he should present him with the keys of the fort and public offices and deliver a messige in his name, that is the khwain from want of wirlike stores, had not the means of either defending the place or of meeting him in the field, as, if able, he would have done, -he thought that the next most honourable course he could pursue was to put his house in order, and in that condition, leave it for the guest whom he could not entert un in person. He then withdrew, and retired, by way of Sind and Uch, to Lihur Mirza Kunrin was much offended it this conduct and did not admit him to his presence for a whole month after his arrival, complaining, that the Khwaja had not held out even for a short time so as to admit of his bring relieved. The Khwija's vilour, judgment and fidelity were indisputable, and this attempt to soften the asperity of war may, perhaps, be regarded not only is a proof of the refinement of the man the friend of Biber, and of the politiness that originated in the liberal studies so successfully cultivated in the Court of that prince, but, perhaps as i symptom of the growing civilisation of the age so rudely checked by the confusion and turmoil that followed

K curan lost no time in preparing a force for another which is expedition ignist Kandihar Leiving his cousin, Kimen. Mirza Hader Doghlat, who had lately arrived from Kishghar b. vay of Badakhshan, to conduct the government of Lahur in his absence, he sat out before Kamrin's arrival, Shah Tahmasp had quitted Kandahar, which he left under the charge of Bidagh* ли 944, лр. 1538 Khan Kajar, a great noble of his Court, and of the tribe of the present royal family of Persia. The fort sustained a siege of some length, when Bidágh Khan capitulated and surrendered it, on condition of being allowed to return home with his troops. Kámrán, having put the place in a state of defence, marched back to Láhúr

Though two or three inroads were made into Khorásán by the Uzbeks, during the life of Obeid Khan, who died AH 949, no great invasion was attempted, and that province remained in possession of the Persians during that period, and enjoyed comparative tranquility.

^{*} For the events in Khorásan and Kandahár, see the Alem-arái-Abási, ff 24-28, Akbernáma,

MS A f 39, MS B f 77, Tabakat-e Akberi, ff 146—149, Tarikh-e Bedáuni, f 140

CHAPTER IV

AFFAIRS OF BLNGAL

SECTION I

STATE OF BENCAL -- HISTORY OF SHIR KHAN

STATE OF THE EMPIRE - SHIR KHAN IN BEH (R AND BENGAL - IN-DOLENCE OF THE EMPLROR AT AGRA - SHIR KHAN, HIS CHA-RACTER, FAMILY, AND HISTORY - REPAIRS TO THE COURT OF SULTAN IBRAHÍM LODI - SUCCEEDS TO HIS FATHER'S JAGIRS -OVERTHROW OF THE AFGILAN DINASTY BY BABER - SHIR KHAN TAYOURLD BY THE AIGH N KING OF BEHAR - HIS ELEVATION -INTRIGULS OF HIS ENEMIES - DIVISION OF HIS I GIRS ORDERED - HE REFUSES TO DIVIDE THEM - AND IS EXPELLED - RED-STATED BY AID FROM ONE OF B BER'S GOVERNORS - INCREASES HIS RESOURCES - VISITS RABER AT AGRA - MEDITATES A RE-STORATION OF THE APGRIN EMPIRE - WITHDRAWS SUDDENLY From the court — is reconciled to the king of behar — BECOMES PRIME MINISTER - AND REPELS AN INVASION - A CON-SPIRACY FORMED AGAINST HIM - THE LING FLIES FROM BEHAR-WHICH IS INVADED FROM BENGAL -THE INVASION DEFEATED BY SHIR KHAN -- RIVAL CLAIMANTS OF THE CROWN -- SULTAN MAH-MUD LODI ACKNOWLI DGED - EXPELLED BY BABER, WHO OCCU-PIES BEH (R - SHIR KHAN EXTENDS HIS J (GIRS AND POWER -ACQUIRES CHUNAR - SULT IN MAHMUD RENEWS HIS PRETENSIONS - IS JOINED BY SHIR KHAN - ADVANCE OF HUMÁYUM - TREA-CHERY OF SHIR KHAN, AND DISPERSION OF THE AFGILIA FORCES - SHIR WHAN RETAINS CHUN (R AND HIS J (GIRS - CONSOLIDATES HIS RESOURCES - PLUNDERS TO THE NORTH OF THE GANGES -TAKES POSSESSION OF SOUTHERN BEHAR-AND INVADES BENGAL

When Humayun reached Agra, on his return from Gujrát and Malwa, he found the affairs of the empire in

BOOK IV

A D 1536
State of the Empire on Humáyun's return from Malwa.
A H 943.

A D 1536

great disorder We have seen that, from the time of his accession, there were dangers to his government, which it required a strong and steady hand to aveit Even in his own court, the fidelity of several of his great Amírs, some of them the most distinguished among the Túrki and Chaghatái nobles who had accompanied Báber in his wars, was tottering and had failed Muhammed Zemán Mírza, as well as Muhammed Sultan Mirza and his sons, had broken out in open rebellion, and, though defeated, the latter of them were still in arms The situation of the country itself favoured such attempts It was but recently subdued, and the emperor's followers were strangers to the inhabitants A great proportion of the kingdom of Delhi was composed of little states, more or less independent, and not easily reduced to order Even in the Doab, and in the vicinity of Agra itself, there had for ages been a set of refractory chieftains, who willingly seized every opportunity, when the power or attention of the government was relaxed, to indulge in plundering depredations, and while Humáyun was absent in Malwa and Gujrát, these freebooters had carried their inroads to the very gates of the capital Such petty and unset-tled states were ever ready to join a bold adventurer

Shir Khan in Behar and Bengal But the most concentrated opposition to his arms was presented in the eastern provinces of Juánpúr and Behár. These countries had, at no distant time, been the seat of an independent kingdom, which, though it had been subdued by Sultan Sekander Lodi, had revived under a new dynasty, the Loháni, in the time of his son Sultan Ibráhím, and had only recently been again subdued by Báber A bold attempt made by the Afgháns to renew, in that kingdom, the Lodi Dynasty of Delhi, under Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, Ibráhím's brother, had been defeated only by the energy of that illustrious prince All the materials of revolt and resistance, however, were amply scattered over the

I istern provinces. They had for many years been the cuar is the itre of wir, the minds of the inhibitants were unsettled had become furnharised to change, and were dmost stringers to regular government. Though the old Sherki, and the more recent Lohan dynasty had disappeared, and though the attempts of Sult in Mahmud I odi, and of Muhammed Sultan Mirza, to revive the kingdom had failed Shir Khan Súr, a new candid ite for distinction and power, though is yet in an humbler form had started up, was extending and consoliditing his influence, gradually but with consummate still in Behar and on the side of Bengal, and by his vilour in the field and the equity of his fin meml administration was guing the admiration and the affection of his subjects. The Afghans, in every part of India began to turn their eyes to him, as the leader, who at some future time might be destined to restore to them that proud ascendency of their nation, the loss of which every man of them so deeply deplored

As Humayun, in his expedition to the westwird, had necessirily been attended by a large proportion of his best troops, some of the provinces on the Jamna and Ganges were held by very scanty detachments encumstance, the long absence of the Emperor from Inscipital, and latterly his losses and want of success, hid encouraged the discontented and turbulent, so that, though Handal Marza had been successful in quelling the revolt of Muhammed Sultan in Juanpúi, a great part of the country was in a very unquiet state

Hum yun, for some time after his return, fixed his indolence residence it Agri. The loss of the kingdoms which he of the Finhad subdued with so much glory, and the generally term unfavourable posture of his affairs, preyed upon his mind, and affected his spirits and his health sought relief in the habitual use of opium, which, if for a time it de idened his uneasy feelings, soon affected both his judgment and his temper. For about a year,

BOOK IV A D 1536-7

he passed most of his time in his private apartments, and rarely held any councils. He could not, however, overlook the disorders that disturbed the immediate neighbourhood of his capital. They were soon quelled, and heavy contributions raised on the offending zemindárs, in punishment of their rebellious or predatory inroads.* It had been his resolution that his first expedition, when he again took the field, should have for its object to wipe off the stain upon his glory, by once more conquering Malwa and Gujiát. But there were soon demands for his presence much nearer at hand

Shir Khan, A 11 944, A D 1537 About the end of this period, Sultan Juneid Birlás died, a veteran of great eminence, who for some years had governed Juánpúr and the eastern provinces, and who, by his talents and the weight of his character, had restrained the ambitious attempts of Shír Khan, now decidedly at the head of the Afgháns in India, both in genius and reputation. No sooner, however, was that restraint removed by his death, than Shír Khan, who already possessed a great part of Behár, ventured to launch out into bolder enterprises, and to turn his undivided force against the province of Bengal, and his success in that quarter was such as speedily to break even the slumbers of Humáyun

Ills character,

Shir Khan, who, afterwards became king of Delhi under the title of Shir Shah, was one of the most extraordinary men whose name appears in the history of India. His character has been represented in very different lights by different authors. As he was long the grand enemy of the house of Tainiu, whom for a time he drove out of India, by their partisans he has been drawn in very unfavourable colours. But the evidence of less prejudiced writers, and of facts, must restore to him the high praise and honourable distinction that,

^{*} Akbernama, f 42, Terishta, iv 83, Khifi Khan, 15 with all the imperfections of his character, are justly char is lus due

His original name was Ferid, he was the son of and family Hisan and grandson of Ibraham*, an Afghan of the tribe of Sur, who dwelt near Peshawer clumed descent from the ancient kings of Ghúr, who reigned in the mountains that he between Kabul and Herat, and Lerishta, on the supposition that the Súi tannly had established this claim, holds it to be the most illustrious of the Afghins † The marriages which they formed in that part of the Afghán country to which they removed t, prove them to have been of what was deemed an honourable race though Abulfazl relates that Ibrahim was originally a horse-dealer. It is by no mems improbable that even a well-born Afghan may have engaged in that occupation or that, when leaving his own country for India, he may have invested his little fortune in a venture of horses, as is often done at this day. Ibrahim arrived in India in the reign of Sultan Behlúl Lodi, in search of milit ny service, which he procured served under some Amirs of distinction, and remained for a time, first at Hissar Firuza and after-

* The Albertum, f 11, calls Ibrahim the grandfather, Shibertheil, or according to Col Prices reading, Shirakhil The Nisabnima c Afghinin, f 81, makes Hasan Khan the father, to be of the tribe (t ufa) of Mati, and family or clan (galala) of Sur † Vol 11 p 99 The Tar Bed f 145, describes him as being az deh leh ibarat az Ifghán est," the town that takes its name from the Afghin" Can this be Deh-Afghan in a suburb of Ix ibul?

When Sultan Behlul was scated on the throne, he invited a number of his countrymen from Roh, a district inhibited by the Afghans

" Roh," continues the author of the Tabakit e Akberi, "has the same mening as Iroh (a hill). The country comprchended under that name extends in length from Swat and Brjour to the township of Siwi, which is dependent on Blicker, and in breadth from Hasan-Abdal to Kabul and Kandahar. It is bounded by the Daman-koh" I ab Akb ff 35 169 A similar passage occurs in Lerishta This extent of country includes nearly the whole of Afghanistan-Proper Instead of the words following " Hasan Abdal to Isabul,' the Tarikh c Nizami, f 207 reads, " Kandahar hes on the confines of this hill-country "

wards at Shámlu, or Simla, a district in the province of Agra *

Ibráhím's son, Hasan, who was born in Hissár, early in life entered the employment of Rai-mal, a Hindu (the grandfather of Rái-Sál, an officer of eminence in Akber's court), under whom he probably gained some insight into revenue concerns. He afterwards went to Juna, in the district of Sahsarám, in Behár, to Nasír Khan Loháni, one of Sekander Lodi's most powerful nobles, in whose employment he remained some time. and having, by his faithful service and intelligence, distinguished himself among his equals, was admitted into his master's confidence On Nasír Khan's death. Hasan entered into the service of that nobleman's brother, Doulat Khan, and from his passed into that of Baban Khan Jilwáni, a distinguished Afghán chief, in which he advanced himself, was actively employed in much business of importance, and became his principal adviser His reputation finally became such that when Jemál Khan was appointed to the government of Juánpúr, he was taken into his service, in which he spent the rest of his life, received from him in júgíi the valuable districts of Sahsarám and Kháwáspúr-Tánda, places dependent on Rhotas in Behar, and was sent to take possession of them with five hundred hoise †

And history Hasan's eldest son was Ferid, afterwards known with so much distinction as Shin Shah Omens seldom fail to attend the birth of every eminent man, and they were not wanting to Ferid's His mother, when with

• The Akbernama has Simla in the district of Narnul The Tab Akb, f 169, Narnul, the Tar Bed auni, f 147, Narnul, in Hissár-Firuza, the Kholaset al-Tow with, f 271, and Nisabnama, f S1, Nimla, in Narnul

† Albernima, f 12, Tabakut-e Alberi, f 169, Tar Niz f 207, Tar Bedaum, f. 145., Lenshta, vol. n. p. 95. et seq., Kholinet ul-Towirikh, f. 271., Khin Khan, f. 50., Nisibnama e Afoh min. f. 81. The Tabal at, Lenshta, and Nisibnama, do not mention any circumstances of Ha and life, till he entered the service of Jensal Khan, in Sultan Schamber Lodi's tin 6.

child of him, dreamed that the moon, in its full brightness descending from heaven, entered her womb Waking her husband, she communicated to him her dream, upon which he struck her several blows. Surprised, she angrily asked him what he meant, and was told, that the sages of former times had advised that one who had a fortunate dream ought not, by dreaming again the same night, to run the risk of counteracting its happy influence, and that his blows were intended to prevent her again falling asleep. In like manner, we are told of Lerid, that when he was about four years old, as he was one day childishly whining to his father to give him a dirhem, a wise and holy derwish who was near, exclaimed aloud, "Great God! the Emperor of Hindustan is crying for a dirhem "* This expression filled his fither with delight, as confirming his wife's dream, and inspired him with high hopes of his son's future eminence, hopes which the boy's opening talents

Hasan had eight sons, two of them, Ferid and Nizám, by lus wife, a noble Afghán lady, the other six by different slaves or concubines, three of them, Suleimán, Ahmed and Mádár being by one mother hardly necessary to remark that while, by the Musulman law, the number of wives is limited to four, that of concubines is left unlimited, but that, as all of them live in the master's house like the wives, under the same superintendence, and hable to the same punishment for infidelity, and as consequently no more doubt exists in the one case than in the other as to paternity, the children of both classes are acknowledged by the law, and entitled to a share in the paternal succession, much as, for the same reasons, was customary among the patriarchs and Jews in ancient times not partial to his Afghán wife, and his fondness for seemed early to justify

^{*} Ishol al-Tow f 271

Sulcimán's mother, who had acquired a great ascendency over him, led him to show more favour to her sons than to his other children Ferid, who, even when little more than a boy, evinced a proud and decided temper, unable to brook this preference, left his father's house, and repaired to Juánpúi, where he placed himself under the protection of Jemál Khan, his father's patron Hasan wrote to his son to icturn, and to Jemál to send him back, that he might be instructed in learning, and trained up in the accomplishments suited to his station; but Ferid resisted every solicitation of the friendly Khan, saying that Juánpúr, which was a large city and abounded with learned men, was a much better place for instruction than such a village as Sahsaiám He, however, applied himself ardently to the pursuit of knowledge He is said to have studied the Arabic and Persian languages, and the religious and civil code of the Musulman law, as contained in the Koran and the commentaries upon it, and such was his delight in the beautiful poets of Persia, that he was able to repeat by heart the whole poems of the celebrated moralist and poet Sádi * With such acquirements, it is not wonderful that he soon came to be considered as a great scholar among his countrymen, the Afgháns, who, though distinguished in aims, have always been noted for their dulness in letters and the arts Besides this, he took pleasure in frequenting the monasteries and colleges of the Derwishes and other religious orders, and courted the society of the Ulema, or Muhammedan lawyers and

* The author of the Tabakáte Akberi, (ff 169 35) himself a man of letters and versed in Persian hierature, speaks doubtfully of Feríd's scholarship He mentions his reading the Káfia (or, Arabic Grammar) with the commentaries and other books, "such," says he, "as the Guhstán, Bostán, and Sekandernáma, which were then generally read by the people of Hind, and made himself acquainted with the principles of morals and with some books of history." This would suppose but a limited course of study, and such it probably was The Nisábnama mentions, as part of his reading, history and the Akhláqi-Suri, f 81 bis doctors as well as of the Sheikhs and men of saintly char is reputation, studied their manners and habits of thinking, and secured their fivour, which he retained through life, and which was often of singular advantage to him in his plans of ambition. His father heard of the young man's reputation, when he visited Juánpúr a few years Their relations interfered to make up their guarrel, and to prevail upon the son to return home As Has in was himself about to attend the governor of Appointed to manage Ju inpur with his troops, he offered Terid the manage- his fathers ment of both his jugirs during his absence, a burden Jagurs which the youth consented to undertake, on the express understinding that, though many of the officers in the rights were his own near friends and relations, he was to have the absolute direction of all, so as to be able, he said, to govern the raints with importiality, by gentleness and justice, and to relieve them from the ignorant oppression which he saw exercised over them by his countrymen

Terid accordingly repaired to the jugits to act as misjudi-Sheikhdar or military collector, and soon gained the told meaconfidence of the inhabitants, by the kindness with which surce, he treated them, and his invariable regard to justice, from which neither the calls of interest not the claims of relationship could divert him Soon after his arrival, he also showed the bold decision of his character head men of some villages in the jagir, who had been refrictory, refused to wait upon him, which was equivalent to withdrawing from his authority. These he determined to punish, and consulted the officers of the jagir as to the best means of effecting his object was told that, as all the troops had gone with his father, it was necessary to put off any operations till then But this dilitory conduct, and passive acquiescence in injury, were little suited to the energetic He gave orders to make two character of Ferid hundred saddles, borrowed one horse from the headman of every village in his Perganas, and selecting the most active of the men who had seen service and lived scattered about in the jágír, supplied them with money and clothes, animated their zeal by his example and promises, mounted them on the borrowed horses, and led them against the rebels. With unexpected speed he destroyed the houses and property of the refractory, and made some of them prisoners, at the same time seizing a number of their wives and children, whom he retained as hostages

Having quelled all opposition in the interior of his little territory, he next proceeded to punish some turbulent neighbours, who, from the woods and hills on the limits of the jágír, trusting to their inaccessible fastnesses made frequent inroads, plundering and harassing the cultivators. As they refused to meet him or to give suitable redress, he marched such a force as he could collect into their country, till he came near their chief town, which they had fortified as a castle or fastness. There he halted; drew a trench round his camp, and, cutting down, day after day, a portion of the jungle by which the enemy's fort was surrounded and defended, he at length reached their stronghold, which he regularly attacked and finally stormed, killing numbers of the defenders, and making the rest prisoners. These early acts of resolute determination inspired his rude neighbours on every side with such alarm, that they never after troubled him, but remained quict and inoffensive, paying him regularly an annual tribute. The freedom from internal and external oppression

Prosperity of his districts The freedom from internal and external oppression enjoyed in his villages, soon drew to them an influx of cultivators from all the districts around, so that he was enabled to bring into cultivation nearly the whole of the waste lands within their limits. He relieved the inhabitants from many burdensome exactions, neither molesting them himself, nor suffering others to molest them, insomuch that the produce of the jágír was soon amoringly increased the villages flourished the in-curring habitin's pursued their industry in quiet, and he him self was extremely beloved. Hasan, who some time ifter paid a visit to his pigirs was delighted with the order populcusness and general prosperity which he everywhere vitnes ed $

But says the native historian as the love of gold and Federald sommer are the great disturbers of human society and motor of private funder so the mother of Suleman redous of the reput trong nd importance which I crid was drily comming and auxious that her son should have the management of the pager exerted the influence which she possessed over His me mind, and had succeeded in extracting from him a promise to transfer to her sons, when they came of a cothe management of the Pergames. His mayes, however well aware of the heartlurning in his family, and the injury to his estate, that such a change would occasion and, having every re son to be satisfied with Lend's conduct, put off from time to time the performance of his promise. But new land I crid, whose observation the intrigues that were carrying on and the perplexity of his father could not escape, put an end to his difficulties by resigning in disgust, the charge of the rights, to which his brothers Suleman and Ahmed were immediately appointed

Though Has in used every endeavour to soothe the injured feelings of Terid, by representing the appointment of his brothers is made merely with a view to mitrate them into business, while he was still to be the heir, the young min once more resolved to leave his father's house. Sult in 1bi dim I odi had now become Repaire to king it Agri, whither I end repaired, with his brother of sultan Nizain, and entered into the service of Doulat Islam Iodii Iodii Lodi, one of the great Amns of the court | Ferid, by his tilents and assiduity, gained the esteem and

^{*} Iab Alb f 170 , Iar Niz fi 272, 273 , Isrishta, vol ii ff 207, 208 , Ishol al Ioward h, pp 99, 100

patronage of that chief, who, having on some occasion asked in what way he could serve him, Ferid serzed the opportunity of informing him how he was situated, that, though the son of Hasan by a noble Afghán lady, his father, now in his dotage, bewitched by the arts of a favourite Hindu concubine, who had gained unlimited power over his mind, had set him aside from the management of his jágír, and had bestowed it on her sons, he represented both the revenue and military force of the districts as falling into decay, and the soldiers as discontented, but added that, if he and his brother were put in possession of the jágírs, he would undertake that, while one of the two brothers remained in the perganas to manage them and to take care of their aged father, the other should at all times attend the Sultan with a body of five hundred horse

When Doulat Khan took an opportunity of representing these circumstances to Sultan Ibráhím, the king coldly remarked, that he must be a bid man who could depreciate and undermine his own father. Doulat informed Feríd of this repulse, but at the same time kept up his spirits by increasing his allowance, and by assuring him that he would neglect no opportunity of still effecting his object. Feríd, by his liberality and generous qualities, gained the heart of his patron, to whom he still continued attached, and whom he accompanied in his daily attendance at the derbár. A short time afterwards, Feríd's father having died, Doulat Khan, once more waiting on the king, renewed his application under more favourable circumstances, and secured for his follower a grant of the jágírs of Sahasrám and Kháwáspúr-Tánda, in consequence of which, Feríd returned to Sahasrám with a strong retinue, and took possession of the jágírs, which he again governed with his former moderation and justice.*

Appointed to succeed his father in the jágírs.

^{*} Taríkh-e, Nizámi, f 208 fol- 102, and by Tar Bedauni, f 145 lowed by Ferishta, vol n pp 101,

Sulcimán, unable to oppose his brother thus supported CHAP IV by the 10yal authority, repaired to Muhammed Khan Súr, a relation of the family, who then held the government of Junda and Baksár, with fifteen hundred horse By this time the invasion of Báber had begun, and a decisive battle was daily expected Suleiman's patron promised that, if the Sultan was successful, he would carry him to court and secure for him his jágíts impatience of Suleiman, however, who complained that, while he was waiting, his mother and family were without house and home, induced Muhammed Súr to send a confidential person to attempt to bring Ferid to The reply was that Ferid was an accommodation perfectly willing to share with his brothers whatever belonged to the private inheritance and estate of his father, but would part with none of the military or political power entrusted to him by his prince, observing, in the words of a well-known saying, that one scabbard could not hold two swords, nor one city contain To this arrangement Suleimán would not necede, insisting on having a share in the government of the of the jágírs, and Muhammed Khan was preparing to Afghán dynasty by restore him by force, when news airived of the defeat Biber and death of Sultan Ibráhím

а и 952 A D 1526

In the disorders and wars that followed the overthrow of the Afghán kingdom of Delhi, Ferid was not inactive * He remained attached to the interests of his tribe, and noined Behar Khan, the son of Deria Khan Lohani, when, Shir Khan supported by the Afgháns of India, he occupied Behár, favoured by the Afghán favoured by

* It does not appear what part Hasan took in the Lohani rebellion, but, from his connection with Nasir Khan Lohani and Baban Khan Jilwani, who were so active in the revolt, we may conjecture that he sided with the insurgents Terid went to Sultan Ibrahim, was it resorting to his father's enemies?

while Suleiman sided with the rebels

It may perhaps be suspected that the whole of Hasan's service with Nasır, Doulat, and Baban was in the reign of Ibrahim, and during their revolt, not in Schander's time the chronology is very confused

BOOK IV
king of Behár

and assumed the ensigns of royalty as king of the Eastern provinces of Behár and Juánpúr, under the name of Sultan Muhammed Feríd's bravery, his knowledge of affairs, and his assiduity speedily gave him a high reputation in the council and camp of the Afgháns He was much employed in business of importance, and became a personal favourite of the king

His prowess and elevation An accidental occurrence raised him to still higher distinction. It happened that, the king being one day on a hunting party, a tiger unexpectedly made its appearance. Ferid, who was present, bravely pushed forward, and was fortunate enough to attack and slay the ferocious animal with his sabre. The King loaded him with praises, and honoured him with the title of Shir-Khan (hon lord). He rapidly rose from one office of trust to another, until he was at last appointed Atálik, or Governor, of Jilál Khan, the Sultan's son and heir, an office which implied the highest degree of rank and confidence.

Intrigues of his enemies, This proud elevation could not be attained without exciting the envy of his compeers. Shir Khan, having some time after obtained leave of absence, went to visit his jágirs, where he seems to have remained beyond the prescribed period. The occasion of injuring him, thus offered, was not lost on his enemies. The King one day took notice of the circumstance, and spoke of it with some appearance of dissatisfaction. Muhammed Khan Súr, the governor of Junda, Suleimán's pation, who was present, seized the occasion to throw suspicions on the fidelity of Shir Khan, insinuating that his delay was owing to his desire to wait the arrival of Sultan Muhammed Lodi, a brother of the late Sultan Ibráhím, who was at this time a candidate for the throne of Behár as well as Delhi. The King, irritated at the moment, and moved by these insinuations, threw out some ingry expressions against Shir Khan, upon which cave is Muhammed Khan suggested, that the most effectual way to keep him in order was to bestow his jagir on his halt-brother and rival Sulciman, who had managed it in their fathers lifetime, and had been fixed on by The disthim as his successor. Sulem in was at that time living James or under Muhammed Khan's protection. Though this was dered rejected as being too strong a measure against one who had been guiley of no active or overt offence, yet the party hostile to Shir Khan succeeded in procuring from the Sultan an order for dividing the right among the brother-

[•] Tar Nizami, f 209, Khol f 145, Ferishta, vol ii p 103 al-Tow f 273, Tar Bedauni,

But Shir Ishan had become too strong to be removed nt will, in such turbulent times. A firman was indeed issued that an account of Hasin's estate should be taken for the purpose of making an equal division between his sons, and this duty was entrusted to Shir Khan's enemy Muhammed Khan Sur To'a demand sent by that officer, that Shu khan should divide with his brothers the jugir which he had so long unjustly withheld from them a reply was returned, that they needed were not now in the Roh (or Afghan mountains), to divide them where ill the sons shared in the father's lands, that here the land was the king's, granted for the support of troops and followed his pleasure, that he held his land by a special grant of Sultan Ibraham, and that his brothers had no concern whatever with it, but that he had already declared his readiness to grant his brothers their due share of their father's prayate property, which was all that in law they were entitled to demind *

On acceiving this answer, the governor of Junda, is expelled. glid of in opportunity to enforce his demand by arms,

* Tar Niz f 200 Nie ibn itna, f 83 The Rob is the Affilian Highlands I his argument of Fe ridr is precisely that of the feudal system. It marks the difference between allodial and feudal lands The tenure by military service affords the best explanation of the origin of primogeniture nook iv. immediately despatched his slave, Shadi, with a large body of troops, to put Sulcimán in possession of Kháwaspur-Tanda, with orders, if Shir Khan made any resistance or opposition, to seize Saliasráin, and all the rest of the jágír also Shír Khan, who did not anticipate such active measures, was taken by surpuse. He wrote, however, to his deputy in Khawaspur,—who was Malck Saka, a slave, the father of the celebrated Khowás Khan,—to harass and delay the invading troops on their route by every means in his power, but on no account to engage in a general action * till he himself arrived. Unfortunately Malek Saka, hurried on by his impetuosity, or by a desire of distinguishing himself, rashly met the invaders as they approached Kháwáspúr, was defeated, and slain

This deranged all Shir Khan's plans, and deprived him of those means of resistance on which he had depended The enemy, pursuing their advantage, advanced to Sahsarám, and he was forced to abandon the jugir Some of his friends now advised him to repair to the court of Sultan Muhammed, but, dreading the influence of Mohammed Khan Súr with that monarch, he preferred throwing off his allegiance to the king of Behår, and entered into a correspondence with Sultan Juneid Bulás †, who was then governor of the province of Kaira-Manikpur on the part of Baber, and who agreed to receive and protect him He waited upon Juneid with rich offerings, submitted to him his claims and his means of enforcing them, and in the end obtained from him a body of troops to assist in recovering his country. With these he advanced, and Muhammed Khan Súr, unable to resist him, fled to the Rhotas hills Shir Khan now, not only regained his

Reinstated by ald from one of Báber's governors.

of an illustrious family, is said to have married a sister of Baber's Khol al-low f 273

^{*} The Tar Nizámi rather intimates that Saka had power to en-

r Sultan Juneid Birlás, an amir own lágírs, but seized Junda and several other adjoin- CHAP IV ing districts that belonged to Muhammed Khan him-Having liberally rewarded the auxiliary troops Increases that had accompanied him, he sent them home, with tor, and suitable presents for Sultan Juneid

His scattered family and clansmen now returned He recruited his forces, took again into his service many inhabitants of the country who had fled to the hills, and speedily became very formidable With the fore- His gener sight and sound judgment which formed so remarkable a part of his character, he now wrote to his late enemy Muhammed Khan, begging him to pardon the steps which necessity alone had compelled him to take, that he might secure his own possessions, from the usurpation of his brothers, assured him that while he was determined to retain his own jágír, he had no desire to interfere with the possessions of one whom he honoured as an uncle, and invited him to return from the hills, and resume possession of Junda and his other districts He, at the same time, sent him the whole amount of the revenue that had been collected from the perganas during his occupation of them, besides a large sum of arrears, which the former managers had returned in their accounts as irrecoverable, but which Shir Khan, from his thorough knowledge of revenue concerns, had been able to realise This act of generosity ever after

ous policy

As soon as the state of his affairs at Sahsarám permitted, Shir Khan, leaving his brother Nizam in charge of his jágíis, again visited Sultan Juneid Birlás at Karra, and accompanied him to Agra, where he was attached Muhammed Khan to his interests

bernáma, f 42, the Nisabnáma e Afgh ff 81-84 , the Kholasetal-Towarikh, ff 171-173, Kháfi Khan, ff 50-52, and Stewarts History of Bengal

The preceding narrative is from the Tabakát-e Akberi, ff 171, 172, Tar Nizámi, ff 207-209, which Ferishta, vol 11 pp 98-108, and Tar Bed ff 145, 146, have followed, and is modified by the Ak-

BOOK IV
Baber at Agra.
A H 934,
A D. 1528

Meditates a restoration of the Afghán empire, presented to the Emperor Báber, whom he attended in his expedition against Chandéri

Shir Khan remained for some time in Baber's camp, where he had the best opportunity of observing the manners and policy of that prince, and of his ministers. His keen eye saw defects, even where to others all seemed to be sound. One day, in conversing with some of his Afghan friends, he happened to remark, that, from all the observations he had made, he thought it by no means an impracticable thing to drive these foreigners out of Hindustan. To their inquiries, on what he founded this opinion, he answered, that the Emperor, great as were his talents, applied but little to business, so that everything was left to his ministers, who, being selfish and corrupt, did not attend to the interest of the state, that the Afghans unfortunately were divided, constantly at enmity with each other, and consequently powerless, but that, could they be brought to lay aside their mutual animosities and support him heartily, he did not doubt that he could himself accomplish the business. His friends laughed at the idea, and jeered him on his wild and impracticable fancies

About the same time, he was one day invited to an entertainment at the Emperor's, where some solid dish* was placed before him, and only a spoon with which to eat it. Having in vain asked for a knife, he at length drew his hanger, and, cutting up the meat into small pieces, proceeded to complete his meal with the spoon, perfectly indifferent to the smiles and remarks of those who were diverted with his Afghán rusticity. Báber, when the incident was pointed out to him, turning to Mír Khalífa, his prime minister, quietly remarked, "this Afghán is a man of sense and spirit," and, being informed of his conduct towards Muhammed Khan, he did not hesitate to predict his rise to future greatness.

Shir Khin got notice of this conversation of the Em- char is peror and his minister, and understanding that his own observations to his friends had been repeated to him, withdraws apprehensive that he was viewed with suspicion, fled from the from the camp the same night, and returned to his jugir To excuse this step he wrote to his pitron Sultan Juncid that he must not regard this precipitate retreat as owing in the slightest degree to disaffection, that having learned that his old enemy Muhammed Khan had urged Sult in Muhammed to send an army to occupy his jign's while he was absent in the Chaghatái camp, and knowing how much delay must necessirily occur, before he could in the regular way obtain permission to leave the cump, being hard pressed, he had ventured to depirt at once without loss of time, and begged Juneid to assure his Majesty how faithfully he continued to be attached to his service. Sult in Juneid saw plainly that these were more professions, and was much offended But, while Shir Khin thus attempted to excuse his Isroconflight, seeing no prospect of succeeding at the Emperor's king of court, he sought to be reconciled to Sult in Muhammed This he easily effected, and soon after, accompanied by his brother Nizim, repaired to the court at Patna, where he was joyfully welcomed by the king and restored to the office of Atálik, or protector, to his son Jilál Khan [©]

It was not long after his return to the court of Sultan Muhammed Loham that that prince died, and was succeeded by Jilál Khan, his son, still a minor, who was proclaimed king under the name of Sultan Jilál-ed-dín Affairs were for some time conducted by the young king's mother, Bibí Dudú, in conjunction with Shír Khan, who became prime minister Ilis usual ability Decomes did not forsake him upon this elevation. He stienuously excited himself to maintain the prosperity and reputation of the kingdom, which was still in its infancy Makhdúm Alim Khan was the governor of Hájípúr, an important province on the north of the Ganges, at that time belonging to Bengal. He had for some time cultivated Shír Khan's friendship, and having quarrelled with his master, Nasret Shah, now entered into a close alliance with the Khan. Enraged at this injury, Nasret sent Kuth Khan, the governor of Mongeir, with a large force to invade Behár, to punish the regent, and to seize the country, and afterwards to root out his own rebellious subject from Hájípúr Shír Khan, who was able to bring only a very inferior army to meet the invaders, tried every art to effect an accommodation, but in vain He therefore resolved to hazard the issue of a battle, marched against the enemy, whom he boldy attacked, and, by his superior skill and hardihood, totally defeated, with the loss of their leader,—the whole elephants and camp equipage, as well as the military chest of the army of Bengal, falling into his hands.*

^{*} Far Niz ff 210, 211, Tab Ferishta, v ii pp 106, 107, Khafi Akb f 172, Tar Bed f 146, Khan, f 53

Repels an Invasion

A conspirncy is formed against bim His success on this occasion, added to the high reputation he had already obtained, only increased the envy and dislike with which he had previously been regarded by the Loháni Afgháns, the young king's relations, who now formed a conspiracy for the purpose of cutting him off, and engaged the king himself in it. They alleged, probably not without foundation, that his ambition extended beyond the mere office of regent, and did not stop short of the crown itself. Though his vigilance, and some quarrels among themselves, enabled him to discover and to defeat the schemes of the conspirators, he failed in the attempts which he made to cut them off. But he waited on the young King, Sultan Jilál-ed-dín, to whom he represented the implacable hostility of the conspirators, and the guilty

^{*} Tar Akb. f 172, Tar Nız Lohánis are also called Nuhánis f 311, Tar Bed f 146 The fortified, and in which he was soon besieged. Here the two armies lay for some time opposed to each other, and had daily skirmishes In these affairs, and from the constrained situation in which he was, in a hostile country, Ibráhím Khan suffered so much, that he was at last obliged to send to his master to solicit reinforcements Shir Khan, discovering this, and finding his army in high spirits, led them out to offer battle to the enemy It was joyfully accepted Ibráhím drew out his army, which was strong in aitillery and elephants, and marched to meet them Shir Khan added stratagem to bravery The battle began with great ardour on both sides, but while Ibrahim was engaged in front, in keen pursuit of a party of the retreating enemy, he was attacked in the rear by a body of chosen troops, who had been posted in ambush behind an eminence, under the personal command of Shir Khan Ibrahim was defeated and slain, with the flower of his troops All his artillery, elephants and baggage, fell into the hands of Shir Khan, and the young King, Sultan Jilál-ed-dín, escaping with difficulty from the field of slaughter, sought refuge in Bengal * This decisive success freed the dominions of Behar from foreign enemies †

Is entirely defeated by Shir Khan

> But these were not the only rivals who contended for the possession of the eastern provinces, so miserably distracted by war and faction. There were three rival princes who aspired to Behár. Sultan Jilál-ed-dín Sherki, the representative of the older Sherki dynasty of Juánpúr, which for a long time had nearly disappeared from the stage, but still possessed Benáres and other districts, and who had placed himself under the Rival claimants of the crown.

placed at this time by most historians Tab Alb, Albernama, Nisabnama, &c But Baber's Memoirs prove that Taj Khan was still alive, and in possession of the place, at the close of the ensuing campaign, pp 431, 432

^{*} Tab Akb ff 172, 173, Tar Nızámı, f 211, Tar Bedáunı, f 146, Nısábnáma-e Afg ff 184 —186, Ferishta, vol iv pp 98 —109, Kháfi Khan, ff 52, 53, Khol al-Towár ff 278, 274 † The acquisition of Chunár is protection of Báber, to whom he submitted Sultan Chap iv Jilál-ed-dín Loháni, the son of Behár Khan, who, when driven from his kingdom of Behár, had fled to the territory of Bengal, where he now was, and a third competitor, Sultan Mahmiid Lodi, the brother of the Sultan late Sultan Ibráhím Lodi, also appeared in the field *

After the rum of his hopes on the side of Delhi, by the defeat of Rána Sánga and the death of Hasan Khan of Mewat, he had remained for some time in the territones of Chertúr, but being at this time invited by several powerful Lodi chiefs and some zemíndárs of the country, who had assembled at Pana, he now joined them His pretensions were favoured by various classes, as well as by the numerous friends of the Lodi family Indeed, he had with him the good wishes of the Afgháns in general, who, whatever party feuds existed among them, would gladly have seen the race of Lodi restored to the throne of Delhi The recent destruction of the Loháni dynasty of Behár, by the flight of the King to Bengal, had made it clear to the inhabitants of the eastern provinces, even of such as had formerly revolted from the Lodis and opposed them, that, unless the Afgháns of every tube united under some new chief, their reign was over, and that no individual was so likely to unite the whole Afghán population of India in a steady union as a member of the royal race of Lodi This feeling produced a temporary union Sultan Is univer-Mahmúd was universally acknowledged He entered sally acknowledged

ledged

 There seems to be considerable confusion, in many instances, in the native historians, or their transcribers, between Patna, Panah, Pateh, and Tehia, which differ only by the points Sultan Mahmud is made by Ferishta to come down from Patna, upon Shir Khan The Tar Nizami, f 212, has Tirhateh The Tai Bed f 147 has Patna, but immediately after mentions his going into Behár The Nisábnáma-e Afgh f 87 has vilaet-e Patch, Mahmud is invited to that country, and thence enters Behar It seems to have been the district of Panah (or Pateh or Tehia) in Bundélkand, where the Afghans assembled before marching into Behar It is often, probably by the fault of the copyists, confounded with Patna, which is better known

A н 935, A D 1529 End of February Behár at the head of a few troops, rapidly made himself master of the town of that name, and of the greater part of the province, and was proclaimed King. He soon found himself at the head of a large army, amounting, according to the reports brought to Bábei, of no less than a hundred thousand men. Shíi Khan, who saw the tide strongly running in Mahmúd's favour, however willing he might have been to maintain his own pretensions, saw that he did not possess the means of stemming the torrent, waited upon Sultan Mahmúd and acknowledged him. The territories of Behár were parcelled out by the Sultan among the leaders of the insurrection, little probably beyond his own jágír being left to Shír Khan, but, at the same time, the Sultan granted him a written agreement, by which he stipulated that, as soon as he was in possession of Juánpúr, he would resign Behár to Shír Khan, in full dominion.

Is expelled by Baber, Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, having sent Baban and Bayezíd across the Ganges to the province of Sirwar, with a strong army, himself advanced up the rivei and laid siege to Chunár, while Shír Khan crossed over and occupied Benáres The advance of Báber, from Agra, soon put an end to the hopes of Mahmúd On his approach, Benáres was hastily abandoned, and the siege of Chunár raised Sultan Mahmúd retreated in confusion towards the Són, his aimy broke up, and he was soon after obliged to pass to the left bank of the Ganges, where he too, like his rival Jilál-ed-dín Lohám, sought refuge with the aimy of Bengal Upon this dispersion, Shír Khan sent to Báber his submission, which was accepted, and Jelál-ed-dín Lohám, making his escape from the Bengal army, where he felt himself a prisoner, also submitted Báber, as we have seen, defeated the army of Bengal, as well as that of Baban and Bayezíd, who were pursued across the Ganges and Janna, into the territory of Bandelkand, whence, at a future time, CHAP IV they once more entered Behár Báber assigned a jágír to Jılál-ed-dín Loháni, the late sovereign of Behár, and who occumade provision for several thousands of the Loháni troops, who had followed that prince's fortune

ples Behár

At the conclusion of the campaign, the Emperor returned to Agra, leaving Muhammed Zemán Mírza governor of Juanpúi, and entrusting the government of Chunár and other districts of Behár to Sultan Juneid Birlás, the governor of Karra-Mánikpúr, under whom Tái Khan Sarangkhani had the immediate command in that fortress Baber did not visit the eastern provinces for the two last years of his life Shir Khan, being now a dependent on the empire, seems to have been left in full possession of his jagir The country, after so many wars and revolutions, was in a very distracted state *

This interval, and the confusion that prevailed over shirkhan all the eastern provinces, afforded Shir Khan a favour- extends his jágírs and able opportunity of extending his influence, his reputa- power, tion with his tribe, and even his territories † Noi did he neglect it Among other important acquisitions, he acquires became master of Chunár, about the end of Báber's reign, or the beginning of that of Humáyun ! That celebrated fort lies on the banks of the Ganges, above Benáres, and, from its strength and position, commands the country around, and especially the course of the It had been held under the late Sultan Ibráhím Lodi, by Táj Khan , who afterwards continued to hold it in Baber's name Taj Khan was much under the influence of his wife, Lád Malek, a high-spirited lady,

^{*} Baber's Memoirs, pp 405-

[†] Ibid p 407 Sewart, Hist. of Bengal, p 120, makes the event take place A H 943, but this date is much too late From many authorities it appears that it was in Shir Khan's possession as early as A n 937

d Táj-Khan was the son of Julál-Khan Sarangkhani, one of Sultan Ibráhim Lodi's great Amirs.

of Turkoman extraction, of great beauty and accomplishments, who, though childless, entirely possessed his affection This inevitably excited the jealousy and hatred of his other wives, whose sons resolved to put her to death One of them, the eldest, assaulted her one night with a sword, but the wounds which he inflicted were not mortal, though the cry spread over the harem that they were murdering Lád Malek On hearing the alarm, Tái Khan, with a naked sword in his hand, hastened to attack the assassin, who, seeing that he could not escape from his father, turned upon him, and laid him dead upon the spot As all Taj Khan's sons, except the murderer, were too young to be able to conduct the government, Lad Malek, who had the affection of the garrison, became mistress of the fort, and by her address induced the chiefs and zemindars of the districts subject to Chunár to acquiesce in her assuming the management of the whole jágír Shír Khan, who was not far off, finding how matters stood, entered into an understanding with Mír Ahmed Túrkomán, Lad Malek's uncle, seized and confined the delinquent, who had fled into his territory, and, after some negotiation, it was arranged that he should marry Lad Malek, which he did, and by that means gained possession of the valuable country of Chunár, with the fort, which is the key of that part of the province, with all the treasures that had been accumulated in it, as a place of safety *

Sultan Mahmud renews his pretensions A 11 937, A D 1531 In spite of his late discomfiture, Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, soon after the death of Báber, had found means to collect another army of Afgháns, and resolved to march against Juánpúr He summoned Shír Khan, who still in secret professed attachment to his cause,

^{*} Akbernáma, f 35 , Tabak Akb f 173 , followed by Ferishta, 11 p 110 , Tar Niz f 212 , Ni-5úbnama-e Afgh f 86 , Kholaset

al-Tow f 274, Kháfi Khan, ff 33, 34 A statement of the treasures found in Chunár is given in the Nisábnáma, f 87 to join his army. Shir Khan was in reality little curray disposed to reader him any active assistance, and made so many delays that Sult in Malimud, by the advice of his Amers who were not unaware of his character and views contrived, in marching for Jumpur, to take his route through Shir Khins jugir of Silisium. This is to the quickened the lukewerm diligence of the crafts Afghan, who is the Sultan approached came out to receive him with every mark of honour, give him a splendid reception and jemed him in prosecuting the emplign On the approach of the Mighan army the troops of Humayun under Sultin Juneid Birles, ibindoned Jumpur* and Sult in Mahmud was soon master of the country, is fir is Karri Mankpur and Laknau

Humayun was it that time, as we have seen occupied some ef vith the siege of Killinger which on he iring of the nauption of the army of Behar into his territory he rused and marched strught to meet them. On hearing of his approach, Sult in Mahmud concentrated his force. When the two armies were encomped facing each other, and ready to engage. Shir Khan, offended that Bahan Khan like mit and Bayezid Khan Lermuh two old and distinguished leaders of the Afghans had been preferred to him in the command of the army to which he Tredere aspired sent recerct message to Mir Hindu Beg Kochin, Khan and exeterin Moghul chief who was at this time Humayun's dipendin Anni-ul om i and commander in chief, to assure him Whan that he continued the uty friend to the house of his patron Biber, which he would prove by his deeds, and proposed that, when the two armies were engaged, he should draw off his own division and retreat, so that the defeat of the pretender would be certain. Accordingly, in the bittle that ensued, while the two armies were engaged he retreated with all his troops. A general panic

^{*} Iab Alb fl 173-171, Tar + The Nis dinama calls Bahan, Niz f 212, Terr hta, Nissb- "valad Ata Lodi, f 86 nama, f 67

ensued Sultan Mahmúd was entirely defeated, with the loss of his whole camp and of the symbols of sovereignty He fled to Patna,* disgusted with the world, and believing that he was persecuted by fate, renounced public life, gave himself up to devotion, and some years after†, died in Orissa

Shir Khan retains Chunar and his jagirs Humáyun, after this victory, having replaced his governors, hastened back to Agra Hindu Beg was sent to receive possession of Chunái, and to garrison the castle with imperial troops But Shír Khan's purpose had been served, and he delayed from time to time, under various pretexts, to surrender the place, so that, in the end, Hindu Beg returned to court, without having effected his object

ан 938, ар 1532 We have already seen that, in the following year, the Emperor, determined to break the power of Shii Khan and of the Afghans in Behar, laid siege to Chunar, but that, being called away by the rapid progress of Behader Shah in the west, he found himself obliged to enter into an agreement with Shir Khan, by which he allowed him to retain Chunar and his other territories ‡

And consolidates his resources For nearly five years after this period, the disturbed state of the provinces on the Ganges, and the Emperor's absence from his dominions, while engaged in the conquest of Malwa and Gujrát, left Shíi Khan an invaluable opportunity, which he did not neglect, for extending his dominions and his power. It is said that when Beháder Shah, the king of Gujrát, found himself hard pressed by the powerful invasion of the Emperor, anxious to create a diversion that might draw off the whole or a part of his troops, he sent envoys to Shír Khan with large sums of money, to induce him to

• The Tar Niz f 213 calls it Batch, Tar Bed f 147 Tehiat

A 11 915 The Nisibnama in

[†] According to Perishta, he died that same year, the Par Niz f 213 places his death in A ii 919, so does the Tar Bedauni, f 147 Phe Kholas al-Pow f 275 places it in march to his assistance Shir Khan, it is said, having CHAP IV got the treasure into his hands, pretending that his difficulties at home prevented his marching to a distance, proceeded to accomplish his own plans of aggrandisement, and left Behåder to his fate

[‡] Iabak Akb ff 17, 174, Akbernama, f 12, Ierishta, vol u pp 110—113, Niesbrama Afgh ff 88, 89, Khafi Khan, f 55

Shir Khan's success was much assisted by the revolt Plunders to of Muhammed Sultan Mirza and his sons, on the side of of the Laknau and Juánpúi, which threw that portion of the Ganges A # 941, eastern provinces into confusion He profited by this A D 1535 occurrence to make excursions into the provinces north of the river, and to seize immense booty, not probably paying any very scrupulous attention to the rights or interests of either of the contending parties returning from one of these piedatory inroads to the A II 942 north of the Ganges, he found means to come unexpectedly on Ulugh Mírza, Muhammed Sultan's son, who was then lying on the Siru or Gogra, defeated him by a stratagem, and, turning round, plundered Benáres

Enriched and emboldened by this success, he soon after turned his arms against the Sultan of Bengal Having marched across Behar with a large force, he reduced Patna* and the neighbouring territory, which Takes possession of Southern

* At this period, when going with some friends through the bazaar of Patna, a religious mendicant, who was sitting in a corner silent and buried in meditation, suddenly burst out, as if inspired, exclaiming, " Behold the king of Delhi walking on foot ' Shir Khan accepted the omen, which was the stronger, as the man was regarded as a simpleton, took his handkerchief, tied a knot in the corner of it to hold firm the response, and resolved to follow his fortune up to the throne itself Nisábn f 89 This anecdote might have been published to influence his followers, but one recorded by Abulfazl in the Albernama, and which occurred soon after, serves to illustrate not only the habits of thinking of the time, but of the individual When Shir Khan entered Bengal. being desirous of knowing what was to be the event of his enterprise, he invited to his court a famous astrologer, who was then with the Raja of Orissa, informing him that, as he had strange notions and unusual plans in his head, he wished for his presence that he might have the benefit of his skill. The Raja, who, like some European princes not long before, kept his astrologer shut up as a kind of state prisoner, refused to let him go The astrologer, however, wrote to Shir Khan, that for a year to come he would not be completely master of Bengal, but

A D 1537

A 11 943 And Invades Bengal

BOOK IV had for some time been occupied by that potentate Not content with this, he proceeded downwards to the farthest limits of Southern Behár, and at Surajpúr, above Mongeir, engaged and defeated the Bengal army, and improving this advantage, took possession of the whole country His ambition and his success did not stop short here, he entered the kingdom of Bengal itself That country had not been free from the convulsions that had afflicted the kingdoms around the death of Nasret Shah, which happened some time before this invasion, he was succeeded by his son Firúz Shah, who, after a short reign of three months, was murdered by his uncle Sultan Mahmúd Shah this prince, Shir Khan now carried on a successful warfare, defeated him in several actions, driving him before him, and at last shut him up in his magnificent capital of Gour, to which he laid siege An insurrection of some zemindars of Behar called off Shir Khan for a time, but the siege was conducted in his absence by Jilál Khan, his son, under the guidance of Khowás Khan, the ablest of his generals * > that he would become so on a date which he mentioned, and that, moreover, on that very day the river Ganges would be fordable for one hour, and, says Abulfazl, himself an adept in astrology, as he predicted, so it happened • Akbernama, ff 42, 43, Ferishta, vol ii pp 109-113, vol 1v p 350 Stewart's Hist of Bengal, p 118 The exact time of the death of Nasret (or Nasib) Shah is uncertain Ferishta, in the Hist of Bengal, vol. 1v p 352, tells us that he never could ascertain whether Nasib died a natural death, or was murdered, but that he died A II 945, after a reign of eighteen years In this there is some mistake His predecessor, Alá-ed-dín, is stated to bave died A n 930 (vol 1v p 350), so that, if Nasib died in A n 945, his reign was only of fifteen years In Ferishta, General History, vol 11 pp 108, 109-118, the actions elsewhere ascribed to Nasib in the last part of his reign, are given to Mahmud in the early part of his Stewart, Hist of Bengal, p 117, says that Nasret was murdered A H 940, after a reign of thirteen years, though some historians, he thinks inaccurately, make him die A H 948, after a reign of sixteen years Abulfazl (Akber-náma, f 43 v) calls the king of Bengal defeated by Shir Khan, Nasib Shah The second siege of Chunar occurred in A ii 945 It is possible that Nasib may have died during the siege of Gour, which was in the same year, though not

The report of these rapid successes had alarmed CHAP IV Humáyun, during his residence in Gujrát and Malwa, and now, after his return to Agra, made him march with his grand army to re-establish his authority in The events that followed, it is now time to A is 944, Behái detail probable, as Stewart makes Mahmud die in A n 945, the same year, which would allow only a few months for his reign I should be inclined to fix upon the early part of A H 943 as the time of his death

CHAPTER IV

AFFAIRS OF BENGAL

SECTION II

CONQUEST AND LOSS OF BENGAL BY HUMÁYUN

HUMÁYUN AT AGRA — PREPARES TO ATTACK SHÍR KHAN — LAYS SIEGE TO CHUNAR, WHICH SURRENDERS, AFTER BIX MONTHS - SHIR KHAN IN BENGAL - HUMÁYUN ADVANCES TO BENÁRES - CAPTURE OF GOUR, AND REDUCTION OF BENGAL AND BEHAR, BY SHIR KHAN -HUMÁYUN SUMMONS HIM TO SUBMIT, HE REFUSES -HUMÁYUN TRAVERSES BEHAR, AND APPROACHES THE TERIA-GARHI PASS -PLANS OF SHIR KHAN - SURPRISE AND ROUT OF THE IMPERIAL ADVANCED GUARD - RETREAT OF THE ENEMY - SHIR KHAN GAINS RHOTAS BY TREACHERY -HUMÁYUN ENTERS BENGAL, OCCUPIES GOUR, AND SUBDUES THE WHOLE PROVINCE -INDOLENCE OF THE EMPEROR, AND COURT -SHIR KHAN RE-OCCUPIES BEHAR, AND THE PASSES - LAYS SIEGE TO JUÁNPÚR AND CHUNÁR - REVOLT OF HINDAL MIRZA, AT AGRA. -- HUMÁYUN RETREATS FROM BENGAL. HIS DANGEROUS SITUATION --- MÍRZA ASKERI FORCES THE PASSES INTO BEHAR. - SHIR KHAN PROCLAIMED KING - THE TWO ARMIES APPROACH - SHIR SHAH'S TACTICS, OPERATIONS AT CHONSA -DISTRESS OF THE IMPURIAL ARMY -- REBELLIONS IN HINDUSTAN --TREASONABLE CONDUCT AND VACILIATIONS OF HINDAL MIRZA. --HE ATTACKS DELHL -- KÁMRÁN MÍRZA CALLED IN TO RELIEVE IT - HINDAL RETREATS TO AGRA. - KÁMBÁN ALSO REVOLTS -- PURSUES HINDAL, AND RECEIVES HIS SUBMISSION - MARCHES AGAINST SHIR SHAH, BUT RETURNS WITHOUT FIGHTING -CONTINUED DISTRESS OF HUMÁJUN AT CHONSA -HE SENDS AN ENVOY TO SHÍR SHAH, NEGOTIATIONS AND ARMISTICE - NEGLIGENCE OF HUMÁTUM -ATTACK BY SHIR SHAH - SLAUGHTER OF THE IMPERIALISTS -DANGER AND WOUND OF HUMÁYUN - HIS ARMY ANYMILATED -PROCEEDINGS OF SHIR SHAH -HUVATUN MAKES HIS WAY TO AGRA -SHIR SHAH SUPREME ON THE LOWER GANGES

поок IV Тноиси Humáyun's return to Agra had been hurried on by the reports that had reached him of the alarming Progress of Shir Khan in Bengal, and by the recent death of Sultan Juneid Birlás, which had added still Humayun at Agra farther to the disturbed state of the eastern provinces, he, however, wasted a twelvemonth, after his arrival in the capital, in pleasure and inactivity, before he seriously resolved on taking the field The first wish of his heart was to have again marched into Málwa and Gujrat, and to have retrieved his affairs in these provinces Burhán Nizám Shah, of Ahmednagai, who was A II 944, assailed by his neighbours in the Dekkan, as well as from Gujrát, sent an embassy, offering to assist Humáyun in a new invasion of that country But the danger Prepares to from Shir Khan's unexpected progress draw off the Khan from Shir Khan's unexpected progress drew off the Rhan Emperor in another direction Sensible, at last, of the danger of any farther delay in seeking out and combating his indefatigable enemy, he made every preparation for an active campaign He despatched his Amírs to their different jágirs to expedite the march of their contingents, while he committed the government of the principal provinces of the crown to his most eminent nobles Delhi, he entrusted to Mír Fakr Alı, Agra, to Mir Muhammed Bakhshi, Kalpi, to Yádgár Násir Mırza, his cousin and brother-in-law, and Kanáuj, and the adjoining country, to Núr-ed dín Muhammed Mírza, who also had married a daughter of Báber Having sefer 8 concentrated the whole moveable force that he could July 17 command, the Emperor set out, and proceeded down the Jamna, sometimes by land, sometimes by water, accompanied by his brothers, Askeri and Hindal, and taking with him a part of his haiem. On the way, Muhammed Zemán Mírza, whose pardon had been negotiated by his wife, a sister of Humáyun's, met him, with a body of troops, who still accompanied him, after all his elevations and misfortunes, and was honourably

^{*} Briggs's Ferishta, vol. 111 pp 228, 229

JOOK IV A D 1537 8

received. Chunár was the first object of the campaign. Shír Khan, being still absent in Bengal, the moment was regarded as favourable for an attack. Before the army reached Chunár, Kutb Khan, his second son, whom he had left in charge of it, retired * to the neighbouring hills of Bhaikanda, to observe and harass the besiegers from without, leaving Gházi Khan Súr†, the father of the future king, Ibráhím Shah Súr, to conduct the defence within

Lays slege to Chunár The place was strong, well provided with stores and ammunition, and defended by a brave and numerous garrison. In spite of every effort on the part of the assailants, little progress was made. Rúmi Khan, Beháder Shah's celebrated engineer, who had left him after the disastrous discomfiture of Mandsúr, was now Humáyun's Mír-Atesh, or Grand-Master of Ordnance, and directed the operations of the siege. When it had lasted several months‡, seeing that his battering guns

* According to Jouher, this was on the Sheb-e-Berát, 16 Shabán, which would be the 18 Jan A D 1538 Six months, between Agra and Chunár, is a long time

† Bedaum, f 141, says that it was Jilal-Khan, and that he retired in a boat during the siege

‡ Rumi Khan, when he found that his batteries did not produce the desired effect, and desirous to ascertain on what part of the fortifications an impression could most successfully be made, is said by Jouher to have resorted to an artifice not altogether singular in barbarous warfare Having caused a faithful and intelligent Abyssinian slave, with whom he had a perfect understanding, to be severely flogged, the slave made his escape by night, and found admittance into the fort. There, with imprecations against the injustice and cruelty of his master, he exhibited his limbs still flagrant from the scourge, explained with truth in whose service he had been, spoke of the skill, as an engineer, that he had gained under so able a teacher, and professed his readiness, in revenge of the injurious treatment he had received, to point out the spots, from which the camp of the besiegers could be most effectually annoyed To evince at once his skill and his sincerity, he showed some defects in the fortifications that required to be remedied officers who had charge of the defences, the better to avail themselves of his remarks, carried him to the most important parts of the works, on which he silently made his observations, and, having gained his object, in the course of a few days he found means to escape and return to the camp, where he communicated his remarks to his master, who acted upon them in his future operations Jouher, c 3

did not make the impression which he expected, he made CHAP IV a more scrutinising survey, and, having discovered that the defences were weakest on the side of the river. besides running some works to cut off the communication of the garrison with the country, and a mine or two on the land side, in furtherance of his pievious operations, Rúmi Khan constructed a battery near the Ganges, in which he placed a huge piece of cannon, to bear on the walls by the river side But soon, finding that, from its distance and position, it did not produce the desired effect, he resolved to attack the river face directly, where the works were weakest For this purpose he constructed a large platform upon boats in the liver, on which he laised a battery, surmounted by a high tower that overtopped the fortifications floating battery he moved across the river by night, and anchored close to the fort This movement was supported by a general attack on every side cannonade ensued, and soon threw down a portion of the wall, by which the besiegers attempted to enter*, but so well did the garrison defend themselves, that seven hundred of the assailants were killed, and the floating battery was half-destroyed by the shot Next morning, artificers were set to work to repair the battery for a fresh attack, when such of the garrison as had not already escaped, seeing that the Emperor was resolved to take the place at any expense, and that there was no prospect of relief, capitulated on condition which surthat then lives should be spared After the surrender, after six Movend Beg Duldi, a favourite of Humáyun's, under months. pretence of an order from the Emperor, caused the hands of three hundred artillerymen to be struck off, a breach of faith for which, on the indignant complaint of Rúmi Khan, he was sharply rebuked by Humáyun The command of the place was conferred

^{*} Jouher says that no breach was made.

on Rúmi Khan, who held it but a few days, when he died, it was strongly suspected of poison administered by some of the nobles with whom he was unpopular He was succeeded in the government of Chunár by Beg Mírak, whom he had pointed out as most fit for the office *

Shir Khan in Bengal. The six months during which Humáyun was detained by the siege of Chunár afforded a most valuable breathing time for Shír Khan, who employed it in the reduction of Bengal, and especially in pushing on the siege of Gour, where his troops were directed, sometimes by himself, and sometimes by his son, Jilál Khan, and his great general, Khowás Khan, the son of the late Malek Saka. After the fall of Chunár, the Emperor moved down to Benáres, where he learned that Shíi Khan was actively occupied in the siege of Gour, and had the prospect of being soon master of the whole kingdom On this, he resolved to prosecute his march into Bengal, that he might check his progress, and had reached the river Són, when news arrived that Gour had fallen

Humáyun advances to Benáres

It appears that after a siege of many months, a scarcity of food began to prevail in the city, upon which the king, Syed Mahmúd Shah, seeing no hopes of successful resistance, and that the place must soon fall, effected his escape in a swift rowing boat, and reached Hájípúr He was afterwards pursued and attacked by a party of Shír Khan's troops, his followers dispersed,

Capture of Gour, and reduction of Bengal and Behar by Shir Khan

* Jouher's Mem c 3, Akbernáma, f 43, Tabakát-e Akbern, ff 149,150 175, Tar Nız f 213, Ferishta, vol 11. pp 83, 84 113, Nısábnáma, f 80, Kháfi Khan, f 45 The Tabakát, f 150, says that the artillerymen were mutilated bahukm (q bihukm) Ashraf, and that their left hand was cut off Abulfazl seems to extend this to all the garrison of two thousand The Tab Akbern, f 175, Tar Nız

f 213 call Rumi's successor, Dost Beg, as does the Nisábnáma Ferishta, following the Tabakut, makes the siege last six months (vol 11 p 114) as does the Nisábnáma Jouher allows six months for the construction of the floating battery and tower There 15 a good deal of diversity in the various accounts of the siege, which it is needless to attempt to reconcile and himself wounded, so that he was soon after com- chap iv pelled entirely to abandon his kingdom, and to seek refuge in the camp of the Emperor * Shir Khan, after his victory, hastened back to Gour, which fell into his hands, and the greater part of the dependent provinces of Bengal and Behar followed the fate of the capital

SECT II

This intelligence induced Humáyun to follow a more Humáyun vigorous plan of operations He saw the necessity of calls upon him to preventing the Afghán from having time to confirm his submit, power in the wealthy and populous kingdom of Bengal He therefore despatched an envoy to Shir Khan, commanding him, without delay, to resign to him the throne, the umbrella, and other ensigns of royalty, with the royal treasures which had fallen into his hands, and, at the same time, to surrender all the territory that he had recently seized, offering to assign to him, ın jágír, the fort of Chunár, the city of Juánpúr, or any other place that he might choose Shir Khan received which he the message with every mark of deference, but declined declines. the offer, saying that the conquest of Bengal had been achieved by years of toil, and the lives of many of his brayest followers, and that he was therefore by no means disposed to part with what had cost him so The envoy, who was detained some time in Shir Khan's camp, on his return, besides reporting as to his mission, informed the Emperor that the Khan had already set out on his way from Ghour to Rhotas and the hill country, carrying with him the immense treasure that he had taken, and which he intended to secure in the fastnesses among the hills

Meanwhile Humáyun, leaving Mír Hindu Beg Kochín, Humáyun his Amír-al-omra, as governor of Juánpúr, with directions for the general management of affairs in that

 Mahmud, in his distress, made application for assistance to Nuño d Acuña, the Portuguese Governor-General of India, who sent nine ships, but they did not arrive till the town was taken Hist Faria de Souza, quoted by Stewart, Hist of Bengal, p 121

BOOK IV A D 1538 A H 945

quarter, marched forward for Bengal At Moniah, a small town between Arra and Dinapur, near the confluence of the Són with the Ganges, he was met by Syed Mahmud Shah*, the expelled king of Bengal, who was still suffering severely from his wounds. As the rainy season had now commenced, many of the Emperor's officers were of opinion that it would be better to suspend operations till its close, since the movement of troops, especially of cavalry, must be attended with extreme difficulty during that season in the low country of Bengal But Mahmud Shah contended, that the earliest moment was the best, that Shin Khan was still unconfirmed in the possession of the country, and, if attacked without delay, could easily be expelled He added, that there was no danger of suffering from want of supplies, as was apprehended by some, since there were granaries in Bengal adequate to the support of many armies Humáyun, persuaded by these reasons, in which there was great weight, and dazzled with the prospect of conquering another kingdom to make up for those he had lost, willingly adopted the views of the exiled monarch Approaches the Teria garbi pass The army continued its march, and before it had quitted the territory of Mongeir, information arrived that Jilál Khan, Shír Khan's second son, and Khowás Khan, his ablest general, had occupied the narrow defile near the village of Teria-garhif,—the grand pass that leads from Behár to Bengal,—and fortified a strong position in the heart of it, for the purpose of checking the advance of the imperial army. On reaching Bhágilpur, between the town of Mongeir and the pass, Mírza Hindal was detached across the river‡, with a back from the Sen to look after Agra and Delhi. The Labake of Akberi and Far Beleinin riv toa. Hir dal Mi zawasze of from Men, or to Agra, to clock and chait of Muhammed Sultan Mirza, and his row,

^{*} The Akbernama and Tar Bed f 141 call him Nasib Shah, which must be erroneous

⁺ Ishagulley Rennell

[#] Joulier, c 1, speaks of Hindal, and Yadar Nas r Mirza's being sent body of five or six thousand men, to act on the op- curr iv posite hink, and, soon after, Jehangii-Kuli Beg and Biram Khan, with a detachment of about the same strength, were sent forward to clear the road by the Teria-garhi and Sikria gaihi pass

The defile which Shii Khan had ordered his son to occupy, is the long and narrow passige lying between the Ganges and the termination of the Rajamahl hills, where, of the east side, the narrow space is, for some distance, washed by that river The ground on the west rises ibruptly into the Rajamahl hills*, here precipitous, and rendered impassable by jungle and thorny shrubs. It is the great natural highway through the hills from Behar into Bengal Khan, seeing no probability of defending Bengal against the formidable army commanded by the Emperor, by resistance in the open field, had given his son a body of about fifteen thousand men, with instructions to defend the upper, or Teria garhi, pass as long as he safely could, but charging him on no account to involve himself in offensive opperations, and, as soon as the main body of the enemy's army approached, and it was known that he, Shir Khan, had reached Shirpur, to abandon his ground, and hasten by forced marches to join him

Shir Khan's plan of operations was to allow Humá- Plans of yun's army to take possession of Bengal, to move by the road of the hill country of Jharkend t, towards Rhotas, and secure his treasure and spoil in the difficult recesses of the hills, or in that fort, if he could have access to it, and then to operate on the Emperor's rear

Shir Khan

Ulugh and Shah Mirza, who had fled at Humayun's approach, and were still exciting commotions. I erishta, v ii p 85, agrees that Hindal was sent to suppress the revolt of Muhammed Sultan Mirza, at Abulfazl, Akbernama, Kanauı

f 43 v, merely makes him sent across the Ganges with five or six thousand men, to co-operate with the grand army

See Rennell's Atlas of Bengal,

Plate, No 15

† Jharkend and Bharkend

A n 1538

Surprise and route of the Imperial advanced guard and communications as he advanced into Bengal, seizing upon Behar behind him, and cutting off all intercourse with his dominions, both in the north and west

When the imperial detachment, under Jehángír-Kuli, approached the defile, they found it strongly fortified. This forced them to halt, in order to examine if the enemy could be dislodged by an attack, or if any other practicable pass could be found, by which their position could be turned, and they taken in the rear. Jilál Khan, seeing the imperial troops encamped so near, and learning that they lay carelessly on their ground, less occupied with securing their own camp than with devising means for assailing their opponents, seized the favourable opportunity for cutting them off, fell upon them by surprise with great fury, wounded Jehángír-Kuli himself, and put numbers to the sword. The detachment was saved chiefly by the valour and conduct of Biram Khan, who had a command in it Collecting some of his troops, he attempted by his gallant resistance to give the imperialists time to rally But, though he made several desperate charges, and even broke through the enemy, yet, as Jehángir's force had been pushed greatly too much in advance, and was consequently left unsupported*, they were overborne by superior numbers, and, unable to recover their ground, were compelled to fall back on the grand army at Kohlgám, between Bhágilpur † and the pass Many officers of rank fell in this affair A violent storm which sank the Emperor's barge at the moorings, attended by a heavy fall of rain,

† The Colgong and Bogilpoor of Rennell Jouher calls it Kahl-

gram One account makes the Emperor here allow his brother Hindal to proceed to the provinces of 1 frhut and Purnía, which were given him in jágír, with directions to settle them, and return with stores and necessaries for the expedition

^{*} Jouher, c 3, makes no mention of any sally, but represents them as being overpowered, while on their march in the narrow defile, by Jilal Khan's men, who were placed in ambush in the overhanging heights ch flooded the surrounding country, prevented the CHAP IV nor from moving on for several days after When able, however, to send forward reconnecting Retreat of to examine the passes, it was found that the who had received notice that Shir Khan with olunder and artillery had reached Rhotas, attained their object, had already abanorks and retreated #

SECT II the enemy

It was at this moment of danger that Shir Khan Shir Khan succeeded in gaining possession of the hill-fort of Rhotas by Rhotas Having lost Chunár, to which he had for- treachers merly trusted as a secure retreat for his family and his treasures, he had now no commanding fortress in which he could deposit them in the moment of need His own country was overrun, and he found it necessary to withdraw his troops from the open country of Bengal In such circumstances, the possession of Rhotas would be of unspeakable advantage to him It hes high up, in a strong country, on the upper course of the Són, was reckoned impregnable, and had never submitted to the Kings of Delhi It would not only be a place of security for his family and treasure, but a most important military post in the warfare he anticipated With caution and secrecy he proposed to the Raja, Hari Kishen Birkis†, to be allowed, in this pressing exigency, to send his harem and family, with his treasure and a few attendants, into the fort, as a place in which they might be safe from all the accidents of war. This was at first refused But Shir Khan employed an able agent, who gained the Raja's favourite wife and his minister by rich presents, and who represented to the Raja, that, set-ul-Towarikh, f 275, describes him as Raja Chintaman, a Brahman The Nisábnama, apparently on good authority, makes Chintaman a Brahman and the Rajah's minister

Albernama, f 43 , Tabakát-e Akberi, f 150 , Tar Bedauni, f 141

[†] Abulfazl calls the Raja, Chintaman Akbern, f 43, the Khola-

BOOK 1V A D 1638. in the doubtul enterprises in which Shir Khan was engaged, it would be an unspeakable relief to his mind to know, that, even should he be deprived of life, his harem and his honour would be safe, and that his wealth, such as it was, the treasures and the plunder of Bengal, instead of falling into the hands of his inveterate enemies, would enrich a friend who had ever been faithful to him. And the Raja, thus strongly urged, whatever were his motives, whether friendship or avarice, was finally persuaded to comply with Shir Khan's request

The plan said to have been adopted by him was not altogether novel, and was founded on the severe and jealous delicacy with which, in the East, women of rank are treated. A thousand dolis, or covered litters, were provided, in each of which was placed a chosen Afghan warnor, in armour, and sent up to the fort. In some of the first, ladies were seated, to cover the deceit, in others were arms When the persons in charge of the gates stopped the dolles at the head of the procession, and began examining them, Shir Khan despatched a messenger to the Raja, to remonstrate with him on the unspeakable disgrace he would incur, were his females exposed to view, and the Raja sent orders to let them pass without examination As soon as all the dolis were within the fort, the armed men issued from them, the bearers and attendants supplied themselves with arms from the dolis, one party advanced to seize the palace, another took possession of the gates, and admitted Shir Khan and his troops Hari Kishen effected his escape by a private passage "Thus," says Ferishta, "fell one of the strongest fortresses in the world into the hands of Shii Khan, together with much treasure, that had been accumulated for ages Although the author, Muhammed Kásım Ferishta, has seen many hill-forts in India, he has seen none to CHAP IV compare with that of Rhotas It is situated on a table-land, on the top of a mountain more than five kos (seven miles) square It has only one entrance, by a very narrow road, along a steep ascent of two miles from the foot of the hill to the gates, and water is found everywhere in abundance, by digging a few feet below the surface "*

^{*} The authorities differ as to the many other particulars, making them number of the dolis, as well as in 300, 1000, and 1200

SECT IL.

As soon as Humáyun found that the passes were Humáyun clear, he left Kohlgám, and continued his march into gal, and oc-Bengal At the same time he allowed his brother Gour, Hindal, at his own request, to proceed to the provinces of Tirhut and Purnia, which he had given him in jágír, enjoining him to bring from thence to Bengal such stores and necessaries as might assist the invasion In the course of a few days, Humáyum took possession of Gour, the capital of Bengal, which, as well as the neighbouring country, he found wasted and ruined by the ravages of war, and the inhabitants in extreme misery and wretchedness In Gourt, dead bodies were still lying everywhere in the streets and bazars, which were covered with rubbish. These marks of war and desolation were soon removed Humáyun met with and sublittle opposition in completing the conquest of the dues the whole prowhole province, which submitted to him in the course vince of the year, and, with the restoration of order, it was speedily restored to comparative prosperity

* Briggs's Ferishta, vol 11 pp 114, 115 See Tabak Akb f 175, Tar Nız ff 213, 214, Abulfazl Akbern, f 48, Tar Bedáun, f 141, Nisábn Afgh f 89, Kho láset-ul-Tow p 275, Jouhers Mem c. 3, Kháfi Khan, ff 55, 56 There is some discrepancy as to the date of the taking of Rhotas Jouher, who accompanied Humáyun on his expedition to Bengal, mentions his hearing of Shir Shah's being in Rhotas before he left Agra, and even makes the Emperor march against it, while Shir Shah was employed in Bengal But his Memoirs were written from memory, at the distance of many years after the events, and, in this, as in several other instances, are probably erroneous

† The old name of Gour was Laknouti, Humáyun, who was very partial to it, called it Jinnetábád (Paradise) After residing in it three months, he was forced to leave it, the troops finding it unhealthy

A D 1538 Indolence of the Fm-

peror and Court Humáyun, thus far successful, was fully alive to all the enjoyments of his new situation. He soon portioned out the whole country into jágírs, which he divided among his principal officers. He was delighted with the fertility, and with all the novelties and luxuries of that rich province. Giving way to the habitual improvidence of his temper, he shut himself up in his private apartments, and resigned himself wholly to frivolous indulgences, and to idle pleasures. He was faithfully imitated by his court and his officers, who, in like manner, devoted themselves to jollity and sensual pursuits. Nothing was done to conciliate the inhabitants, to improve their condition, to strengthen the government, or to secure the possession of the new conquest.

Some time clapsed in this manner, while Humayun and his court enjoyed themselves*, without thoughts of the past, and with little care about the future degrees, the intelligence from the north became less frequent Hindal Mirza did not forward the expected convoys On the contrary, news full of suspicion were brought, first, that without leave, and in spite of the rains which then prevailed, he had marched straight for Agra, and next, that he was comporting himself in a manner not consistent with his fidelity to his brother Humáyun immediately despatched Sheihk Bhúl, to bring back the Mirza to his duty Meanwhile, no reinforcements or supplies arrived from any quarter The little news that did arrive became daily less, and gradually all routes of communication were completely blocked up This state of things might have roused the most unthinking But the inconveniences experienced were only negative, there was no positive and active annoyance pressing close at hand, and the victors thought-

Unsatisfac tory state of his af fairs

* The length of Humáyun's residence in Bengal is not well defined. The Tar Nizámi, f 214, Tar Alb f 175, Nisábnáma e Afgh f 90, male him spend three months in Gour, in pleasure, as does the Tar Bedáuni, f 141 The Tab Akb allows six months for his residence in Bengal, in all, the original of Jouher, nine months

CHAP IV

lessly pursued their career of enjoyment Such rumours of what was going on at a distance as reached Gour, being seldom of a favourable description, were carefully concealed from the Emperor by those about his person, as of too disagreeable a nature for royal ears, so that he was on the brink of a precipice, before he suspected that there was any danger

At length news the most alarming, and which could shir Khan no longer be concealed from the Emperor, arrived in Behár and rapid succession. It was discovered, that not only was the passes. Shir Khan in possession of the passes, but that the country through which they had recently marched was rapidly falling into his power As long as Humáyun pursued his route through Behár, the Khan had shunned He, for a moment, stopped his promeeting him gress on the confines of Bengal, to gain time to remove his booty, from Gour and the conquered country, to the mountains of Jharkend, and to Rhotas, where he deposited it in safety While the Emperor, having fairly passed the defiles, entered Bengal to the south of the hills on the one side, the Afghan descended from his mountain recesses into Behar on the other, and spread his forces once more to the north of the hills, where his own strength lay He was speedily master of the whole province, and had occupied every road by which troops or couriers could pass down to Bengal, so that the Emperor was totally excluded from all co-operation, or even communication, with the rest of his dominions Availing himself of the absence of the imperial aimy, he passed the Ganges, took the city of Benáres after a short siege, and slew the governor Mir Fazli, and seven hundred Chaghatáis Thence he proceeded to Juánpúr, Lays slege which he prepared to besiege It was defended by púr, Bába Beg Jiláir, who had succeeded to that command by the recent death of Hindu Beg The governor had just been joined by Yúsef Beg from Oud, who had got so far with a body of five thousand men, that he was attempting to carry to Bengal, to reinforce the Emperor Yusef Beg * joined the governor to assist in defending the place, and indulged his fondness for action in constant sallies and skirmishes Jilál Khan, Shir Khan's eldest son, taking with him a few thousand men, succeeded in coming up with him while on one of these excursions near Juánpúr Yúsef's officers advised an instant retreat, his numbers being far inferior to the Khan's But, hurried on by the ardour of his courage, he engaged, was defeated and slain, and his troops dispersed Next day, Jilál laid siege to Juánpur Shir Khan's joy at this victory, the first considerable one gained by his troops in the open field against the Emperor's, was very great He regarded it as a happy omen and pledge of future success, observing in homely phrase, that a cock, when once soundly beaten, is not easily brought again to the scratch Bába Beg made a brave and skilful defence of Juánpúr, and despatched expresses to the Emperor and the neighbouring governors of provinces, to ask assistance Meanwhile, Shir Khan blockaded Chunár also He seized the families of the principal zemíndáis of Behár and Juánpúr, as hostages, and sent them in custody to Rhotas His army was now very strong, and his operations, planned and conducted with consummate sagacity, had in all quarters been crowned with success No less alarming were the reports received, at the same time, from Agra, where Hindal Mirza had put to death Sheikh Bhúl, soon after his airival, had thrown off his allegiance, had assumed all the ensigns of sovereignty, and caused himself to be proclaimed Emperor † and Chu nár

BOOK IV A D 1538

Revolt of Hindal Mirza at Agra

> * The Nisabnama (f 91) asserts that Biram Khan, who had not then attained the rank he afterwards did, held a command in Yusef Beg's army bakat Akb f 175, Tar Niz f 211, Ferishta, v 11 pp 83,84, Jouher, c 4, Kháfi Khan, ff 15—17, Nisabnama-c Afgh ff 89—91, Taríkhe Reshidi, ff 365, 366, Tar Bedauni, ff 111, 112

† Akbernama, ff 13, 11, Ta-

For some time, Humáyun affected to treat the news char iv a unfounded and impossible, but he soon found that it was no time to linger where he was He summittents moned a council, to make arrangements, both for his from Benreturn, and for leaving an adequate force to preserve his conquest. Some difficulty arising, as to a proper person to be entrusted with the future command of the province, Humayun proposed to appoint Záhid Beg to be governor of Bengal, and to leave him behind, with a competent number of officers and troops, for the protection of the province. That nobleman had married the sister of Barké Begum, one of the Emperor's favourite ladies, who had often importuned his Majesty to confer some appointment on him The Beg, being present when the nomination was made, asked the Emperor, with some petulance, if his Majesty could find no place but Bengal, in which to make away with him Humáyun, enraged at this unseasonable and insolent speech, vowed that he should put him to death. Záhid Beg, however, escaped from the Council, and sent a message to the Beguin, entreating her to intercede for his pardon This she did, but in vain He was, therefore, obliged to fly privately from the camp, and, along with Han Muhammed Koka and Zindár Beg, two officers of distinction, succeeded in reaching the upper provinces. The government of Bengal was committed to Jehángír-Kuli Beg, a gallant veteran, who was left behind with a body of five thousand horse.

Humáyun, when about to retrace his steps, sent forward Khan Khánán Lodi with the advanced guard of the army, ordering him to occupy Mongeir in Behar, and to hold it till his airival. He himself followed, but from the heavy rains, which rendered the roads deep and nearly impassable with mud*,

This of the rains and mud see Tar Niz p 214 descrives attention. For the months.

much of the baggage of the army was soon lost, many horses perished, and the troops began to endure great hardship. To add to their distress, before the Emperor had quitted Bengal, he learned that a strong body of Shír Khan's troops, under Khowás Khan, had destroyed the gates of Mongeir by fire, entered the town, and carried off Khan Khánán.

Ills dangerous situ ation

The danger was now more urgent than ever difficult straits that separate Bengal from Behái weic still to be passed, the troops were worn out and still to be passed, the troops were worn out and dispirited, and numbers of them suffering from sickness. Humáyun, sending for Askeil Mírza, whose division was reckoned the most efficient in the aimy, offered to reward him to any extent, or, as he expressed himself, to grant any four demands he should make, provided he could extricate him from his present situation. Askeil called a meeting of his principal officers, and explained what had passed. They asked him, what boon he thought of requiring. His answer is a melancholy symptom of the degradation of the court and times of Humáyun. "It is my intention," said he, "to ask a round sum of money, a supply of the most costly manufactures of Bengal, some handsome slaves, and a few cunuchs." His officers, filled with surprise and indignation at his short-sighted selfishness told. prise and indignation at his short-sighted selfishness told him without hesitation, that the crisis was one of great difficulty and danger, from which nothing but their strenuous exertions could relieve him or the Emperor; that they would expect, therefore, to share in some reward proportioned to the extent of the benefit conferred, and proposed, that all of them should be raised to a higher military rank, should receive an increase of pay for their followers, and a large dona-

Dould Khan He had been made Khan-Khanan by Baber He died in prison in Shir Shah s reign

Akbernáma, ff 43, 41, Tabakát-e Akberi, f 175, 1 ar Niz f 211, Jouher, c 1 This Khan-Khanan was Dilawer-Khan, son of

tion in ready money for themselves. On these condi- char iv tions they hoped to be able to extricate the army from its present distress. The Emperor complied with their demands, paid down the money, and added rich presents to gratify his mercenary warriors Having Mirza received a reinforcement of the best troops in the camp, forces the the Mirza advanced, made his way through the passes, passes into Behar and reached Kohlgam, where he halted From that place he sent back to inform the Emperor of his success, and to communicate intelligence, the truth of which he had been able to ascertain. His report was, that Shir Khan was busy besieging both Chunár and Jumpur, was in possession of Behar and the country shir khan as fir as Kanauy, had been encouraged by his success king to declare his independence, by assuming the title of Shah, or King *, and was now collecting a large force at Rhotas

This intelligence seems to have induced the Emperor The two to march up the left bank of the Ganges, till he came proach opposite to Mongeir, where he found Askeii and the Here Muhammed Zemán Mírza communicated undoubted information which he had procured, that Shir Khan was not far off, and was secretly, but carefully, watching every motion of the army of proceeding onwirds by the same bank to Juánpúr, by which route he would have been less liable to meet with interruption, and could have collected reinforcements from various quarters, the Emperoi, - from some false point of honour, as is alleged, lest Shir Shah should boast that he had given up the ordinary high road, which lay to the south of the river, and taken that on the north, to avoid facing him, - was induced to recross to the right bank This movement he is said to have made by the advice of his favourite, Moverid Beg, in opposition to the remonstrances of his ablest officers,

^{*} He probably at this time assumed the style of King of Behar

a n 1538

BOOK IV who represented the miserably unprepared state of the army for active service, worn out, as they were, by a long and difficult march through heavy roads, and nearly destitute of baggage and warlike stores. Having crossed over to the right bank, Humáyun resumed his march upwards, past Patna, till he reached Moniah, at the confluence of the Són with the Ganges *

At Moniah, the enemy, who, though hovering at no great distance, had hitherto hardly shown themselves, were discovered to be at hand in great force were issued to the troops to arm and prepare for action, and, next day, a body of the Afghans appeared in sight

The day following, just as the army was about to march, news arrived that the Afgháns had seized the boat which carried a huge piece of ordnance † that had been used at the siege of Chunár The army, however, crossed the Són; and, on the fourth day, with some skirmishing, reached Chonsat, near which the Karamnassa flows into the Ganges

Shir Shah's tactics

On hearing of the Emperor's march from Gour, Shir Khan had raised the siege of Juánpúr, and concentrated his force. His plan of campaign was laid with great coolness and skill If the enemy pushed forward, for the purpose of bringing on a pitched battle, he resolved not to face them in the open field, nor to hazard the fate of the war on a single great action, in which the imperialists, from the quality of their force, were likely to have the advantage On the contrary, in that case, he proposed to give them the slip, and to re-enter Bengal, as he had formerly left it, by the Jharkend

* Abulfazi makes Muhammed Zemán Mírza join the army before the siege of Chunar (Akbernama, Jouher makes him and Muhammed Sultan Mirza join during the siege, c. 3, the Tabakat makes him arrive at this time with a considerable party, f 150, and Ferishta, v 11 p 85 follows that authority

† Dig Koh-shikan, the hillbreaker

‡ Chonsar Rennell

hills If, on the other hand, the Emperor, instead of CHAP IV marching to attack him, pushed on straight for Agra, then he was to hang on his flanks and rear, cut off his supplies, and harass him on the line of maich, and even, if occasion offered, to attempt a surprise accounts which soon reached him, of the broken and disabled state of the imperial army, induced him, however, to deviate from this plan, and, adopting a bolder system of operations, to march down and meet his enemy face to face *

Accordingly, when the Emperor's army reached Operations Chonsa, about nine in the moining, before they had End of dismounted an immense cloud of dust was seen in the An 945 April 1539 The Emperor gave orders to ascertain whence it proceeded, and soon learned that it was Shir Khan, whose army had arrived by a forced march A consultation was held Kásim Husein Sultan proposed an instant attack, observing that Shir Khan must have come that day eighteen or nineteen kos, and that his horses must be worn out and fatigued, while theirs were comparatively fresh The Emperor was inclined to fall into his opinion, but was induced by Moveiid Khan to defer the attack till next day A bridge was thrown across the Karamnassa, and the army passed and encamped without fighting, which disheartened both Amirs and Shir Khan, who had placed himself in the ducct line of his march, fortified his camp on every side with strong entrenchments

Humáyun's further advance was now checked The Distress of army, brought into this trying situation, was already the Imperial army much weakened by sickness and disease, as well as by the casualties of a long march through bad roads greater proportion of the draught cattle had perished on the march, the rest were worn out and emaciated, numbers of the cavalry, having lost their horses, were dismounted, and forced to accompany the army on foot Even the cavalry horses left were in a wretched condition The troops were dispirited These evils were not likely to be remedied by their present position, cooped up in their camp under the eye of a vigilant enemy The Emperor had lost the power of moving Daily skirmishes ensued, bravely contested, and generally terminating in favour of Humáyun's troops, but in which many lives were lost on both sides Any onward movement must be through the enemy's lines, yet, such was now the reduced and disheartened condition of the imperial army, that it would have been imprudent to hazard such an attack, and without an action of some kind, it was impossible even to change their ground In this situation the two armies remained, facing each other for about two months. During this

BOOK IV A p 1539

* The Tabakát-e Albert, the Tar Bed, and Ferishta, say three months The chronology of Humayun's expedition to Bengal is not very distinctly marked by historians. but some of the leading points may be ascertained He left Agra, A H 944, Sefer 8 (A D 1537, July 17) According to Jouher, the army reached Chunaron the Sheb-e-Berat, Shaban 161 (A D 1538, Jan 18) Six months between Agra and Chunár is a long time, and, as it is agreed that the siege lasted six months, we may suppose that the blockade had begun before the arrival of Humáyun The rains had begun before the Emperor reached Moniah At Patna, he was advised to halt, because the rains had come on Shir Khan is said to have tal en Gour on the 12th of Ferverdin (Ziladeh, A n 914, A D 1538, April), Humáyun remained three months at Gour, and, according to different accounts, from six to nine months in Bengal altogether, the Tabakát, f 150, and Bedáuni, f 141, allow six, Jouher, who was on the expedition, nine 2 All Bengal, we are told, was conquered in the course of A. n 945, which ends May 29 A. D 1539 The month, in which Humayun commenced his return from Bengal, is not specified, but he remained two months at Chonsa, probably, April and May, 1539, before the rains set in, and his final discomfiture occurred A n 946, Sefer 5 (A n 1539, June 23) when he had been nearly three months at Chonsa. On these data, I have attempted to arrange the chronology of the events

¹ Major Stewart, in his translation of Jouher, p 9, makes this occur A 11 945, but there is no date of any year in the original, and it is clear that it is A 11 944

The Sheb-e-Berát of A H 945 would bring it down to A H 1539, Jan 7 ² Ste-art's Jouher, p 13, has screeal months, but the original has nine time some of those who had lost their horses or their health in the Bengal expedition, and found their way to Jumpur and Chungr, contrived to rejoin the Emperor whose situation cooped up as he was, grewdaily worse. Messenger after messenger was despatched to Hindal and afterwards to Kamran, whose arrival at Agra became known beseeding them to turn then arms against Shir Khan and to march to the relief of the Imperor and his army, but not a symptom of succour appeared

CHAP IN Sect II

Indo I it was not on the side of Bengal and Behar alone that the affairs of Humayan were in a dangerous im state. Revolt and rebellion were raging in his capital, A in 145 . and in his own family. Situated as he now was, Humay un in ordin u v circumst inces, might have looked for assistance from his brothers, and the provinces around his capital. But no consolitory ray of hope gleimed upon him from that quarter. Instead of ready succour, Treasonill there was procristmation, intrigue, and treason duct and When Humayun entered Bengal and proceeded to Gour, racillation of Hindal Hind d Mirza instead of remaining to keep the rebels in Mirza check and maint in the communications with the grand army, taking advantage of the scison, abandoned his post, and set out for Agra, without leave. His absence, and the death of Handu Beg, had encouraged and enabled Shir Khan to pass the Ganges, and, as we have seen, to take Benares, defeat Yusef Beg, and lay siege to Juanpar, besides cutting off all the communications of Humayun's army Hindal, who was now in his twentieth year, misled by the evil counsellors who so often surround an aspring prince, and incite him to sacrifice every duty at the shime of ambition, on his arm il at Agra, entered the city, took possession of the Emperor's pulse, issued his orders as if vested with ab-olute power, and seemed to direct his views to the throne itself * [&]quot; Albernama, f 13, Inbal Akb f 150, Jouher, c w, Ferielita.

BOOK IV.

The great officers, whom Humáyun had left in situations of trust, could not witness such proceedings with unconcern The man who, at this moment of danger and turmoil, seems to have exerted himself above all others, was Mír Fakhr Ali*, an old and distinguished officer of Báber's, whom Humáyun had left as military governor of Delhi, under Yádgár Násir Mírza Alarmed at the course which Hindal was pursuing, he hastened down to Agra to meet the young prince, and represented to him, in the strongest terms, the danger to which he was exposing the power and the very existence of the Chaghatái race in India, he pointed out, that it was a moment when, instead of destroying everything by discord and disunion, it was most necessary that every friend of the family of Taimur should exert himself, to break the rapidly increasing power of Shir Khan and the Afghans By such remonstrances, he prevailed upon Hindal to leave the city, to cross over the Jamna into the Doáb, and there collect whatever forces could be brought together, to march and raise the siege of Juánpúr Muhammed Bakhshi, Humáyun's military governor of Agra, readily furnished every assistance in his power from the arsenal and magazines, to equip the troops, and enable them to take the field Mir Fakhr Ali, thus far successful, next hastened to Kalpi, to induce Yádgár Násir Mírza, the Emperor's cousin and brother-in-law, who commanded there, and whose jágír Kalpi was, to put his troops in motion, so as to form a junction with those of Hindal in the territory of Karra, that they might thence proceed in concert to Juánpúr

It happened, unfortunately, that at this time Záhid Beg, Khosrou Beg Kokiltash, Háji Muhammed Bába Kushke, and other discontented and turbulent nobles, who had fled from Bengal, arrived, and had secret communications with Núr-ed-dín Muhammed Mírza, the CHAP IV governor of Kanáuj, who had married Gulieng Begum, Humáyun's sister, and who seems to have been privy to Hindal's designs Núi-ed-dín wrote to Hindal Mirza, announcing the arrival of these noblemen, and at the same time forwarded to him a petition from them, asking his favour and protection, and proffering their own duty and services To this address the Mirza, who, in spite of his change of conduct, had still a strong leaning to his treasonable purposes, returned a gracious answer, which he gave to Muhammed Gházi Taghái. one of his trusty adherents, by whom he at the same time wrote to inform Yádgái Násir Mírza, and Mír Fakhr Alı, of the arrival of the Amíis The Amirs did not wait at Kanáui for his answer, but proceeded to Kol, a jágír of Záhid Beg's Hindal's envoy, hearing of this movement, instead of going first to Yádgái, went straight to meet them The conspirators, finding that Hindal was irresolute or insincere, and being themselves desperate, told the envoy, explicitly, that their mind was made up, that they had for ever shaken off their allegiance to the Emperor, that, if Hindal would assume the imperial dignity, and read the Khutba in his own name, they were ready to be his most faithful subjects, but if not, that they would straightway repair to Kámrán Mirza, and make him the same offer, which would not be refused The envoy, returning to Hindal, reported what had passed, and added his own opinion, that the Mirza was so far committed as to have only one of two measures to adopt; he must either at once call in the Amírs, accede to their advice, and declare himself Emperor, or get them into his power, cast them into prison, and trent them as rebels Hindal, whose mind was misled by high and dazzling projects, was not long of coming to a decision on this alternative * He agreed to accept the proposal of the fugitive nobles, and to raise the standard of rebellion

BOOK IV

It was at this very juncture that Sheikh Bhúl or Behlúl, who had been sent by Humáyun from Gour, on a mission to the Mírza, arrived near Agra He was the elder brother of Sheikh Muhammed Ghous, who had gained Guáliár for Báber, and who was one of the most eminent saintly men then in India The possession of the mysterious names of God, by the secret use of which it was devoutly believed that the most wonderful and miraculous effects could be produced, added awe to his character He was revered by Humáyun as his religious teacher and spiritual guide, and had acted as a councillor to Hindal himself, in his campaign against Muhammed Sultan Mirza and his sons, beyond the Ganges Hindal, on hearing of his approach, went out and received him with every mark of honour He had been sent from Bengal, as we have seen, by the Emperor, when he first heard of the Mirza's defection, to reason with him on the folly of his proceedings, that could only serve to elevate the Afghans on the ruins of the imperial family and race. He brought with him assurances from Humáyun, not only of forgiveness for his past misconduct, but of every favour and exaltation for the future, that the affection and generosity of a prince and a brother could bestow. The weak and wavering mind of Hindal was shaken by these remonstrances of duty and wisdom He had not yet made any irrevocable manifestation of his rebellious intentions, and was once more persuaded to return to his allegiance, and to join in an active effort to drive the common enemy out of the field, and free his sovereign from his distress and peril The very next day, he sent to make fresh requisitions from Muhammed Bakhshi, the governor, of such a quantity of

^{*} Albernáma, ff 43-45, Tab Nisábnama-e Afgh ff 90, 91, Akb 150, 151, Jouher, c 4, Tar Bed f 142

wailike stores and equipments, aims, cattle and money, as would enable him to put his aimy instantly in motion, and to proceed to the relief of Juánpúr With all his demands, the governor, influenced by the Sheikh, professed his readiness instantly to comply, except as to money, all that was in the treasury having already, he affilmed, been disbursed among the troops

Only four or five days had gone on, in this course of vigorous preparation, when Núr-ed-dín Mírza, who had entered entirely into the views of the fugitive lords, arrived from Kanáuj He came, intending to carry into effect the plan that had so lately been concerted and settled between them and Hindal Finding the course things had taken, he, by the weight of his authority, once more produced a change in the vacillating mind of the Mirza Muhammed Gházi was again sent to renew the agreement with them To this they consented, but only on condition that Sheikh Bhul, who was the acknowledged agent of the Emperor in Hindal's camp, and had been the means of breaking the first agreement, should be publicly put to death, an act, they said, necessary to prove at once the sincerity of the Mirza's return to their views, and his fixed determination to enter into no terms with his brother These conditions were acceded to by the prince, and Sheikh Bhúl, who suspected no change of policy, and every moment of whose time was actively employed in superintending the despatch of arms and stores to the camp, and in removing any impediments to the immediate march of the troops, was seized in his own house by Núr-ed-dín Muhammed Mírza, carned across the Jamna, and beheaded on a sandy down * near the gardens of Baber's palace, under the shallow pretence that he carried on a secret correspondence with the Afgháns

^{*} Registán

BOOK IV

The compact of the confederates being thus scaled in holy blood, the rebellious Amirs now moved to Agra, and waited on Hindal, who was proclaimed Emperor, and the public prayers were read, and money coined in his name. The troops were immediately put in motion, but it was towards Delhi, not Juánpúr. Muhammed Bakhshi, deeply shocked at the murder of the Sheikh, waited on the Mirza "You have slain the Sheikh," said he, "why am I spared?" But blood enough had been shed He tried to pacify the faithful Amír, and sent him to the camp The most earnest remonstrances on his cruel proceedings, came from the ladies of his father's Harem When Hindal went to the palace of his mother, Dildár Aghácheh, he found her attired in deep mourning On his reproaching her for assuming the garb of sorrow, at a moment when his accession to the throne called only for joy and festivity, that lady, whose affections made her far-sighted, with tears assured her son, that, far from participating in his delight, she saw, in all that was passing around her, matter only of profound regret and condolence, that she seemed already to be mourning over his bier, that, young and inexperienced as he was, he had given himself up to the guidance of evil counsellors, who had engaged him in a course that could lead only to ruin "And," continued she, "to your other guilt, you have added the stain of innocent blood You have murdered the holy Sheikh Away! and do not defile my palace with your presence" * The prince used every means he could devise to soothe her resentment and sorrow, and insisted on carrying her along with him in his march to Delhi

The news of these procedings at Agra soon reached Yádgár Násir Mírza and Mír Fakhr Ali, who were still at Kalpi, preparing to join Hindal on his march to the cistwind. Perceiving it once that nothing could ensir is be done to prevent the intended revolt, they instintly resolved to strain every nerve to seeme Delhi, and necordingly, proceeding by forced marches, and by a cucuitous route, that they might escape observation, they succeeded in throwing themselves into that ancient cipital Hindal Mirza on leaving Agra, had marched strught for Delhi, expecting to get possession of it with little resistance in the absence of the governor When he arrayed at Hamidpur, near I muzabad, he got notice of their ripid much, and, seeing himself anticipited, hesitated whether or not to go on I mally, Heattacks however he resolved to push forward, and besuge the town. On his murch, he was joined by many of the smaller zemind irs of the neighbourhood

^{*} Akbernama, ff 43,44, Tahak. c 4, Tar Bedaum, f 142, Khafi Akb, Ferishta, 11 85, 86, Jouher, Khan, f 47

The futbful noblemen, who had thrown themselves into Dellir used every exertion to strengthen the works and the gurison and did all that activity and valour could effect to repulse the besiegers. They despatched Komman messenger after messenger to Kamrin Marza, to call called in to him to their ad. That prince was then at the height of his reputation. He had made two successful expeditions from I thur to Kindahar, in the first of which he had relieved, and in the second, he taken that important town His dominions stretched from Hissai-Finuza to Zemin diwer on the one side, and to Badakhshim on the other. On hearing of the distracted state of the empire, the danger of Hum'yun in Bengal, the mereising power of Shir Ishan, and the rebellion of Hindal, Kámian Mirza had determined to advance into Hindustin, and had set out at the head of ten thousand He met the messengers on the road, received their despitches, and moved forward with increased speed, so that ere long news arrived in the camp of the besiegers that he was near at hand, and had reached Sonpat, which hes between Panipat and Delhi Upon

BOOK IV A D 1539 Hindal retires to Agra Kimrin nleo in revolt.

A 31 946,

A 11 1539

Pursues Hindal ,

this, Hindal, seeing all hope gone of gaining the town, abandoned the siege, and hastened back to Agra

The part that Kamran Mirza was to act, in the present state of affairs, was a matter of the deepest importance In his hand was placed the fate of the house of Baber It soon appeared that he pursued a short-sighted policy, and that, while he professed to serve his brother Humáyun, he in reality looked only As he approached

Delhi, the governor came out to meet him Mir Fakhr to his own supposed advantage Ali, having easily penetrated the prince's designs, ventured to offer him his advice He told him that Yadgar Nasır Mirza was in the place, determined to hold it for Humayun, which he certainly would do, if attacked at that moment, that it was Kamran's best policy, whatever were his ultimate views, to follow Hindal to Agra, so as to prevent his gaining a decided influence there, that, if Agra, the capital, fell, Yadgar Nasr would no longer have the same inducement to hold out, and Delhi would then submit without a struggle, suade Kamran to march on to Agra, and Yadgar, thus left undisturbed, employed the leisure afforded hun in strengthening the defences, and adding to the garrison As Kamran approached Agra, Hindal, who had been Joined by none of the Jagirdars of note, finding him self unequal to maintain a contest with his brother, fled with five thousand horse to Alwar, the capital of Mewat, his government His mother remained behind, and, influenced by the representations of Kamran Miran, who became responsible for his safety, soon after prevailed upon him to make his submission to that prince, receives his and to return to Agra In this submission he was receives his and to recurr to Agra Amirs, who had espoused his submission, joined by the refractory cause, and the whole confederates, now apparently united in a common cause, met, and, having cro-sed the Jamns, formed an army on its left bank for the professed purpose of marching against Shir Khan Kámrán Mírza held the chief command The army moved slowly forward a few marches The general marches confidence began to revive, insomuch that traders shir Khan. ventured to carry stores and other supplies, which they attempted to introduce into the Emperor's camp at Chonsa But Kámián was the slave of a guilty ambition, and swayed by bad advisers, among whom appear to have been the fugitive Amirs, who sought to widen the breach between the brothers They sought to convince him that to destroy the enemy, and so release the Emperor, was only laying a snale for his own destruction Influenced by such counsellors, the advance, slow at first, afterwards ceased, and by and by he was persuaded that the season for doing any thing was past, that it was better to return, preserve the stores and munitions of war, and husband his resources, that the troops might be allowed to return home, and make every thing leady for a new campaign, that, meanwhile, should Shir Khan defeat the Emperor, they would be prepared to face him, and should Humáyun destroy Shir Khan, they would possess the means of making terms with arms in their hands Lending a But returns ready ear to such false and shallow reasoning, Kám- gaging him rán led his army back to Agra about the beginning of the rains, abandoning his brother to his fate *

CHAP IV SECT II

Humáyun had now been for two months cooped up continued in his camp at Chonsa, and suffering many privations He could not bring his waiy antagonist, whose camp was deeply entrenched and defended by artillery, to leave it and engage in the open plain, nor was he able, distress of Humáyun at Chousa.

* Albernáma, ff 43, 44, Tar Akb , Jouher, c. 4 , Ferishta, vol. u pp 85-87, Khafi Khan, f 47, Tar Reshídi, ff 365, 366 Several historians, Nizam-ed din Ahmed, the author of the Tabakat-e Akberi, Ferishta, and Khafi Khan, make Kamran assume the title of Emperor From the narrative of Abulfazl and of Jouher, c. 5, and still more from that of Haider Mirza, I think it probable that he assumed the authority, but not the name in face of the enemy, to effect the passage of the Ganges, though he lay close to that river. The superiority which his troops maintained in partial skirmishes was of no avail. He lay in an enemy's country, and the opposite bank, as far as Kanáuj, was overrun by the Afgháns. His only hope of relief was from his brothers, who possessed the means of collecting an army, and marching to succour him, but the news which reached him from Agra, first of the treason of Hindal, and afterwards of the arrival and unworthy conduct of Kámrán, at length convinced him that, while his danger was daily increasing, he had nothing to expect from them. To add to his misfortunes, the periodical rains, which set in with great violence, increased the difficulty of moving, or of receiving supplies or reinforcements. Part of the camp of Shír Shah was laid under water, which forced him to move, with the greatest part of his troops, to the higher ground, two or three kos off, leaving his cannon and fortified position under the guard of a portion of his army But the skirmishing continued, and no prospect of relief appeared

A D 1539

A 11 946, Moharrem A n 1539, June

Te sends an envoy to Shir Sunh

At length Humáyun, compelled by the necessity of his situation, sent one Múlla Muhammed Barghiz, who was known to Shír Shah, to treat of a pacification. He found the new king busy with his spade, in the heat of the day, among his soldiers, who were employed in digging a trench. On seeing the ambassador, the King washed his hands, a temporary awning was spread, and he sit down under it on the ground, without ceremony, and received the envoy. To the observations which the Múlla made, when he communicated the Emperor's message, the King only replied, "Go, and tell your Emperor this from meshe is desirous of war, his troops are not, I do not wish for war, my troops do." He, however, give instructions to Sheikh Khahl, whom he called his Muishid, or spiritual father, an cinnent and pious divine, descended from the famous sunt, Sheikh char iv Fend Shakergan, and, having sent him to Humáyun, a negotiation was entered into

An intercourse of messengers between the camps now Megotia took place the conditions of the treaty were discussed, armistice and were supposed to be nearly arranged. An armistice seems to have followed, the men of the two armies met on friendly terms, and even amused themselves by making pleasure parties to visit the opposite camps Shir Shih took advintage of this calm to despatch Khow is Khan, with some thousand horse, to chastise Rui Mhuti, who had assisted Humáyun, not only with his troops, both horse and foot, but by cutting off the supplies of Shir Shah sarmy, and who had resisted every offer of reward and threat of vengeance that had been made to secure his neutrality. The Khan prevuled, after an obstinute encounter, defeated and slew the Rips, and brought back his head, which he laid at the feet of his sovereign

The treaty was meanwhile in progress", and the Proposed conditions at last settled between the envoys were, that treats ill Bengil, and his old jigir in Behår, should be conceded to Shu Shuh, who was to acknowledge Humáyun as his lord paramount, and to read the Khutba in his name But Shir Shah insisted that, in addition to this, Chunar should be restored to him, and, after some

 As to the supposed treaty of peace, Abulfazl Favs little but declaims against the cunning and treachery of Shir Ishan, Akbern The Iar Nizami, f 214, Tabal Alb f 150, and far Bed f 142, make peace concluded, on condition that Humayun was to be allowed to return home in safety, Shir Khan retaining Bengal as far as Garhi, the khutba to be read in the Emperor s name | Jouher makes him insist on Chunar being given up, to which Humayun was compelled to assent The Nisibnama makes Bengal given up as far as Garlii Ferishta makes Bengal and Behar he ceded to Shir Ishan for the payment of a trifling tribute, and adds that the treaty was signed and ratified by mutual oaths Briggs 8 I crishtn, vol 11 p 87 The Isholaset ul-Lowarikh, f 276, also supposes a peace to have been concluded

BOOK IV

A.D 1539 Negligence of Hu-

mayun.

delay, Humáyun, though reluctantly, was obliged to consent.

Some affirm that this treaty was mutually agreed to, and confirmed by oath, but perhaps no definitive treaty was signed. Preparations were made for breaking up both camps. Shir Shah, having constructed a bridge over the Karamnása, had sent his best men two or three days' march to Behár, on their way to Bengal. The Emperor seems to have withdrawn his outposts. His troops dispersed carelessly about the camp, and all were busy in packing up their baggage and the public stores, and in finishing a bridge of boats, which they were constructing over the Ganges for their return home. The camp was a scene of bustle and rejoicing

Attack by Shir Shah,

Shir Shah, seeing that Humayun and his generals were thrown off their guard, believed that the wishedfor moment was at hand for striking a blow, which should at once avenge the wrongs of the Afgháns, and destroy the Emperor, his army, and the House of Báber The most atrocious breach of faith cost his mind nothing, it was the very basis of his policy directed the troops that had marched, to countermarch secretly and with speed He divided the force intended for the enterprise into three columns, taking one himself*, giving another to his son, Jilál Khan, and the third to his general, Khowás Khan He ordered Khowás Khan to take a circuit with his division, and as the day dawned, to surprise the enemy by the river side, to seize the boats and other craft in the river, and to put to the sword all who came in his way The other two columns were to co-operate by attacking on different quarters It is asserted that Sheikh Khalil, who was in Shir Shah's camp, sent to desire the Emperor to be on his guard against a surprise, as Khowás Khan had marched, about afternoon prayerst, with a

^{* &}quot;Having his back to the as if he had come from the west hibleh," says Jouher, which looks f Namaz-diger Jouher strong body of men, but that no attention was paid to CHAP IV the intimation

The watch, which that night was under Muhammed of the Im-Zemán Mírza, was but negligently kept Before the perialists morning twilight appeared, an uproar was heard in the rear toward the river Soon after was seen a crowd of women and camp-followers, flying in confusion over the whole camp The Afghans were found to have entered, and were slaying all they met, without mercy or dis-The surprise was complete To numbers their sleep became the sleep of death The troops in general had not time to arm, to saddle their horses, or to form in order, before the Afghans poured in on every side Humáyun started from sleep on the first alarm The imperial kettle-drums were beaten, and about three hundred horse soon gathered around him Just as he was mounting his horse, Bába Jeláir and Terdi Beg Kuch Beg joined him He besought them to spare no exertion to bring off the empress, Háji Begum devoted servants, while zealously attempting to execute his orders, were slain fighting at the entrance of the private tents Mir Pehlewan Badakhshi, another officer of distinction, and a considerable number of men, shared the same fate, in attempting the same achievement They failed in their purpose, and the princess fell into the hands of the Afghans At this crisis, Shir Shah himself happened to arrive He ordered his eunuchs and most trusty servants, with a party of armed men, to keep watch round the harem, and to suffer none to be injured The wives and families of the officers and men of the vanquished army fled, and took refuge in this asylum, where they were safe While Humáyun was attempting to collect his troops, a party of the enemy, with an elephant, came down upon him made a sign to some of his household, who were by, to ^{*} The Nisabnáma says that he was reading the Koran

He is wounded,

swims the attack it. As they hesitated, he snatched his spear from the officer who carried it, spurred on his horse, and struck the animal on the head with such force, that he was unable to draw the spear out again Meanwhile, an archer who sat on the howdah, wounded him on the arm with an arrow This compelled the Emperor to retire, leaving his spear in the wound He now called out to those who were near him to join him in a charge, but was not seconded All was disorder One of his followers, seizing his reins, exclaimed, in Oriental phrase, "This is no time for dallying the feast is over, why linger near the food?" and led him towards the river On reaching the bank, he found the bridge broken down At once he spurred his horse, and plunged into the stream, but was soon dismounted * At this moment of danger, a watercarrier swam up to him, presented him with his waterbag, which he had filled with air, and made a sign to the sinking monaich to lay hold of it. He did so, and made his way across, the water-carrier swimming by him and assisting him On reaching the opposite bank, the Emperor asked his deliverer what was his name He said it was Nizám "To me," said the Emperor, in the exuberance of his gratitude, "thou art as Nizám Aulía, and thou shalt be placed on my throne."†

His army annihilated The defeat was complete Shir Shah had left nothing to accident The camp had been attacked on every side, as soon as it was entered on the rear On the river, the bridge was broken down, and boats were in

* "The Emperor came to the banks of the river," says Jouher, c. v "An elephant, Girdbáz by name, accompanied him He ordered the driver to break down the bridge, which he did His Majesty drove his horse into the river, but lost his seat, "&c The Akbernama, f 45 and Nisabnama, ff 91, 92, represent the bridge as being broken down by the Afghans

† Nizám-ed-dín Aulía is a celebrated saint. Some writers make the promise to Nizám to be, that he should occupy the throne for half a day, others, till noon The Labakát calls Nizám, Muhammed Sakka, Muhammed the water-carrier Sec Akbernaina f 45, Jouher, c 5, Tar Bed ff 142, 113 readiness, which sailed up and down, filled with men CHAP IV armed with matchlocks and spears, who killed all they could reach in the water The whole tents, campequipage, baggage, aitillery, stores, and what remained of the treasure, fell into the hands of the conqueror Muhammed Zemán Mírza, Moulána Muhammed Ali, Moulána Kásım Alı, the Sadı, or Head of the Law, many other officers of distinction, and eight thousand of the Emperor's best Tartar troops, perished on this disastrous A II 946, day, besides numbers of inferior note and camp followers This memorable event occurred at the Chúpah Ghat, on the banks of the Ganges, on the 27th day of Sefer 9, June, A D 1539 *

June 27

ings of

When Shir Shah, after the final discomfiture and Proceeddispersion of the enemy, returned to the imperial tents, Shir Shah he dismounted in the Hall of Audience, and humbly prostrated himself in prayer to the Giver of all victory He did not now hesitate to declare a dream which he had on the preceding night. He thought that he and Humayun were both carried into the presence of the prophet of God, who was sitting in state on a throne, and who, addressing the Emperor, told him, that the Almighty had bestowed his kingdom on Shir Shah, and at the same time, taking the crown and cap of authority from his head, placed them on that of his rival, commanding him to rule with justice This dream, he said, he had not published before the battle, lest it should be regarded as a device to inspire courage into the Afghans He sent a courteous message to the captive Empress, condoling with her on the deceitfulness of fortune, but adding that, in former ff 90-92, Tar Bedáuni, f 142, Briggs's Ferishta, vol. 11 pp 81-88, Kháti Khan, f 47 The laríkh-e Bedáuni gives some lines which Shir Shah wrote on the memorable victory which closed the campaign

^{*} In this account of the campaign of Bengal and Behar, and its disastrous close, the authorities chiefly followed have been, Albern ff 44, 45, Tab Akb ff 150 175, Tar Nızamı, ff 213, 214, Jouher s Mem c. 4, 5, Nisábnáma-e Afgh days he had been protected and cherished by the imperial house, and regarded himself as a child of the family, and he promised to send her back, with all the Harem, to Agra, as soon as the Emperor was known to have reached it,—a promise which he faithfully performed. He ordered the same allowances to be issued to all who were in the Harem, that they had previously been accustomed to receive, and commanded that all the other women and children of the vanquished army, who had been made prisoners, should be protected, and allowed to return home, at their own pleasure *

BOOK IV

Humáyun makes his way to Agra.

The Emperor remained but a short time on the left bank of the Ganges, to collect such of his troops as, by the strength of their horses, or in any other manner, had been able to get across the river. Having been joined by his brother Askeri and some other chiefs, they soon after rode off for Agra. He had not advanced far, when he found that he had not yet escaped. all danger, as it appeared that Mir Ferid Gui, an Afghán officer, was following him in the rear, while Shah Muhammed Afghán had taken post in front, to arrest his farther progress. This news so much disheartened the troops, already worn out with fatigue, that fears were entertained lest they should desert that fears were entertained lest they should desert their standards. In this emergency, Raja Prabhan, a Rájpút chief, volunteered with his followers to check the advance of Mír Feríd, so as to allow his Majesty to bend the whole force of his arms against the enemy, who shut up the road by which they were to advance. The offer was accepted, and the Emperor with his followers marched straight against the Afgháns in front, who, intimidated by their determined appearance, abandoned their ground and left the road open. The

Imperor proceeded by way of Kalpi, and, after a rapid char is and liborious march, reached Agra *

Me in while Shir Shah lost no time in improving his Shir Shah victory Besides the force which he despitched in pur- Bengal and suit of the fugitives, he hastened back into Bengal with a strong body of troops, accompanied by his son Julia Khan and attacked Jehangur-kuh, the Emperor's general, whom he defeated in several successive actions That brive officer, unable to keep the field, was compelled to retreat into the territory of some native zemindirs, where he munt uned in obstinite struggle for some time but, in the end, he and most of his troops were overtaken and slun by the overpowering supemornty of the Afghans, so that of his whole army, Derwish Miksud Bengilij was the only man of note who ever responed the Emperor. Shir Shah was now proclaimed king without opposition, in Bengal also, and though he was soon obliged to leave the country 1, to attend in person to his affurs in the north, he directed his attention unremittingly, for the next two years to complete the reduction of that kingdom, and to place its revenue and internal affirs on a sitisfactory footing

The effects of the great victory at Chonsa were not And all the confined to Bengil, they extended in every direction

Gangetic provinces

Jouher, c 5 The Raja, who behaved with so much spirit, is said to be of Aril or Arul There are two Arails One opposite Allahibid, across the Jamna, and one eleven miles S by I from Kannuj (See Hamilton's Hindustan, vol 1. pp =01 =74)

+ He was of the Zuret-g in near Herat, and consequently of a religious family Akbern f 61 Ic-rishta states, vol 11 p 88, that Johangir Beg was expelled from Bengal, and rejoined Humnyun, which is certainly a mistake, as he himself mentions, vol ii p 117, that he was defeated and slain in Bengal

‡ Tar Nizim-i f 214, Tab Akh f 160, Albernama, f 45, Tarikh Bedium, f 143, Nisibnama, ff 91-93 The Nizabnama says that, after muny actions, Jehingir was besieged and alain in Garoli Is this the Garrows? Abulfazl makes Shir Shah halt on the borders of Behar, and send his son, Itlal Ichan, to complete the destruction of Jehangir-Kuli sforce воок IV Shir Shah was soon undisputed master of Behar He crossed the Ganges to renew the siege of Juánpúr, which, with the whole territory dependent on it, surrendered with little resistance. In like manner he overran the rest of the country, east of the Ganges, as far as Kanáuj Not content with this success, he sent his son Kuth Khan across that river, and through the Doub, with a large detachment, for the purpose of reducing the important towns of Kalpi and Etawa on The wide dominions of Humáyun seemed the Jamna now to have shrunk into the narrow space circumscribed by the walls of Agra and Delhi, and his tenure, even of these cities, was far from being secure

A v 1539

CHAPTER V

HUMÁYUN'S EXPULSION FROM HINDUSTAN

HUM YUN JOINS KAMRAN AT AGRA. - HUMILIATION OF HINDAL. -HUMÁYUN PPEPARES AGAIN TO ATTACK SHIR SHAH -ILLNESS AND RETREAT OF KAMRAN - DEFEAT OF SIUR SHAH'S ADVANCED ARM HAIDER MIRZA DOGHLAT IN HUM (1018 CAMP - HIS CHARACTER OF THE EMPEROR - AND ACCOUNT OF THE CAMPAIGN - AND OF THE BATTLE OF KANAUJ -OTHER ACCOUNTS OF THAT DISASTER -FLIGHT OF HUVÁYUN —HE ARRIVES AT AGRA.—PROCEEDS TOWARDS DELIN -- AND ONWARDS TO THE PENJAB -- SHIR SHAH AT DELIH --HIS PARTIES PURSUE HUMÁYUN ACROSS THE SATLLJ - SELFISH CONDUCT OF KINKIN - TREATY AMONG THE IMPERIAL BROTHERS - THEIR WANT OF UNION - TREACHERY OF KAMRAN - SHIR SHAH RECLIVES HIS OVERTURES -- ENTERS THE PENJAB -- THE IMPLRIAL FAMILY QUIT LAHUR - KAMRAN DEPARTS FOR K (BUL - HINDAL FOR SIND AND GUJRAT -HUM (YUN MEDITATES AN EXPEDITION TO KASHMIR -- RECENT EVENTS THIRE -- K MRAN THWARTS THE PLANS OF HUMÁYUN -- WHO PROCEEDS TOWARDS SIND -- HINDAI REJOINS HIM AT GUL-BALUCH -- THEY PASS THE TERRITORIES OF BAKHSHUI LANGA -- AND PEACH SIND -- RECENT STATE, AND PAST CAREER OF HUMAYUN - THE AFGHAN SUPREMACY RESTORED IN INDIA, UNDER SHIR SHAH

HUMAYUN, on his arrival near Agra after his disastrous CHAP V expedition, found his brother Kámrán, who, about a 41 946 month after his impolitic and inglorious retreat, was en- Humávun camped at the Zirefshan gardens When the Mirzas, joins kim Kámrán and Hindal, received intelligence of the Em- run at Agra. peror's discomfiture, followed by certain information that Shir Shah was taking possession of the country on every side, they perceived, too late, that, circumstanced as things were, it was in vain to think of dethroning the Emperor, with any hope of establishing themselves in his stead, and that the only safety of the brothers lay in their union Nor would it have been politic, on the BOOK IV A D 1539 Emperor's part, with the small force that he had been able to save from the wreck of his army, to attempt to punish them for their late defection. As he came near Agra, he galloped forward and entered Kámrán's tent, before the Mírza was aware of his coming * The brothers embraced each other affectionately, and with many tears. They afterwards went and sat down together, in a friendly manner, in the porch of the pavilion. Mutual explanations followed. The veil of silence was probably thrown over the offences of Kámrán, still chiefly secret and in embryo. Hindal's desertion and his open assumption of royalty were pardoned, at the intercession of his excellent mother, and of Kámrán, and he soon after arrived from Alwar, his jágír, and joined his brothers.

Humiliation of Hindal

But as his offence was public, so was his humiliation Humáyun, soon after his return, gave a grand feast in the palace of Báber's garden, to which all the Mírzas and the chief officers and Amirs were invited In the midst of the entertainment, and in presence of the whole assembly, the Emperor, addressing Kámrán, asked him why Hindal Mirza had rebelled Kamran, turning to Hindal, who was present, inquired, what had induced him, instead of assisting his Majesty in his difficulties, to break out into revolt The Mirza, covered with confusion, replied, that he was young and inexperienced, and that some Amírs, such as Záhid Beg, Khusrou Kokıltash, Hájı Muhammed, and others, had misled him by bad advice, but entreated forgiveness of his offences, " Well," said - an answer fatal to a man of ambition Humáyun, " at Kámrán Mírza's entreaty, I do forgive you and them, but correct your views, and amend your conduct, and above all, henceforward do not listen to my enemies" After some farther admonition, he attended the Emperor in this flight See also Jouher, c v

^{*} Tab Alb f 51 The author mentions that his father, Muhammed Mokim, was one of the few who added, "What is past is past. We must now all join manfully to repel the common enemy." The princes and Amirs, applicating his elemency, loudly joined in assuring him that, by his favour and the divine assistance, they would soon extirpate Shii Khan and his race Solemn prayers and yous were repeated, and it was fixed that, as early as was practicable, the imperial tents should be pitched in the Zirefshan guiden, ready for the field *

Not long after the Emperor's return to Agra, the Humavun water-carrier, who had sived his life it Chonsa, pre-deliverer sented himself at the public derbar Humáyun, as soon as he saw the poor man from afu, mindful of his danger and his vow, descended from the throne, and, in strict compliance with the words of his promise, allowed him to mount "the throne of the world," and to occupy it for half a day Whatever commands the new sovereign issued were literally and instantly fulfilled, even where the imperial decrees and usages happened to stand in the way, and the delighted monarch employed his power, during his short reign, to make several of his friends and family happy for the whole future course of their lives This muninery did not escape the ridicule and scorn of Kámián †

Indeed, though policy and necessity united the Prepares brothers for a senson, it was soon but too evident that again to attack shir there was little cordiality between them Meanwhile, however, the levying of troops went on, many Amirs nomed the Emperor with reinforcements from their lagirs, and among others, Muhammed Sultan Mirza

* Touher, c v

carrier, to complete the semblance of imperial power, had his leathern mashek, or water-bag, cut into pieces of the size and shape of different coms, which were gilt or plated, and strapped with his name, and the date of his reign and of the Hejra, as a sovereign prince

[†] Abulfazl, Perishta, and the author of the Ixhol iset-ul- Fow irikh, say that he filled the throne for half a-day Jouher, for two hours (do saat) I he author of the Kholaset adds that the report prevalent in his day was, that the water-and his sons, who had so long been in a state of rebellion, finding, probably, that no single branch of the divided house of Taimur could withstand the overwhelming superiority of the Afgháns, once more sought and gained the imperial pardon and protection. The army gradually swelled, but more perhaps in numbers than in effective strength

HOOK IV

A D 1540

The brothers, after their reconciliation, held many long consultations on the course to be pursued, but, in the state of mutual feeling in which they were, to very little purpose. Nothing was concluded Kámrán strongly urged Humáyun to remain in the capital, and to entrust to him the conduct of the campaign, under-taking, with his army of the Penjab, which amounted to 20,000 men, still fresh and unbroken, to give a good But to this the Emperor refused account of Shir Shah to consent, declaring that, as he had been treacherously defeated by the Afgháns, he was determined to have his revenge in person. During the delays that succeeded, Kámrán, who in no respect entered into the Emperoi's views, showed the strongest desire to return to Láhúr, and repeatedly asked leave to go Every wish of Kámrán's, but that alone, was readily granted In vain did the Miza urge that the government of his extensive territories required his presence. For seven months did he persist in his petitions and entreaties to be allowed to depart, when news arrived that Shir Shah, having cleared Bengal of the imperial troops, had collected a formidable aimy, and was on his maich to attack the brothers * who ndvances to meet him Ramzán, January

Illness and retreat of Kámrán It might have been supposed that such a demonstration would have induced them to unite heartily against the common enemy. But Kámrán had no wish to add to his brother's power, which he still regarded as dangerous to his own independence, and his impatience

Akbernáma, f 46 , Tab Akb
 Bedáuni, f 143 , Jouher, c 5 , f 151 , Tar Niz f 214 , Tar Ferishta, &c

to return to the north was increased by a severe attack char v of illness, which ended in a complication of disorders The climate of Hindustan was unfavourable to his con-His malidy, in the course of two or three February months, was aggravated by a slow fever attended with to April eruptions over his body, great emaciation and the partial loss of the use of his limbs. The power of medicine fuled it was insurated that his complaints were the effect of poison, and he determined to return

"The retreat of K imran," says Haider Mirza*, " was the efficient cause of the rise of Shir Khan, and of the fill of the Chaghat a dynasty" The Emperor spared no entrenty to prevail upon him to leave some of the chief men of his army with their followers behind as auxtharies, but, far from assenting to this, he perversely used his endcayours to seduce such of the Emperor's officers and troops as were in Agra, to accompany him His minister, Amír Khwaja Kilan, who never ceased urging him to quit Agra, was at last sent before with the mainbody of the army, and Kamrán himself prepired to follow

Meanwhile Shir Shah advanced to the Ganges, which Defeat of Shir Shah s ndvanced his younger son Kuth Khan advanced neross the Doáb to attack Kalpi and Etáwa, positions army of importance from their vicinity to the capital. They were held by Yádgái Názir Mirza and Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek, and a part of Kalpı had been given in jágír to Kámrán The Amíis assembled their followers, and being joined by Sekander Sultan with a detachment of Kámrán's troops, marched out to check the progress of the invaders. They had no difficulty in bringing the enemy to an action, and completely routed them in a desperate battle, in which Kuth Khan was left dead on the field His head was cut off, and sent with many others to Agra The victorious generals strongly advised the Emperor to follow up his success, and instantly to take the field in person. He accordingly marched from Agra towards the Ganges to meet and engage Shir Shah.*

BOOK IV A D 1540

Halder Mirza Doghlat in Humáyun's camp

The efforts of Humáyun to detain his brother and his troops at this important and dangerous crisis were unsuccessful, but several of Kámrán's officers were prevailed upon to remain Of these, the most eminent was his cousin, the celebrated Haider Mirza Doghlat †, who, in his own defence, states at some length the arguments used to influence him, and they are curious as showing the feelings of the brothers to each other was high in the Mírza's confidence, and we have seen that he was even left, for upwards of a year, in charge of the government of Láhúr, during Kámrán's last expedition for the recovery of Kandahár Kámrán remonstrated with him on his proposed desertion, and reminded him that he had received him in his Court when an exile from his own country, that he had treated him all along as if he had been a brother, with the most distinguished confidence and consideration, and intrusted to him the chief conduct of his affairs, and that, in return for all this, to leave him, his cousin, at such a moment, when a powerful enemy threatened his kingdom, and his body was wasting under a dangerous disease, would be the height of unkindness and ingratitude. On the other hand, Haider tells us that he had become the Emperor's brother after the Moghul fashion, an engagement which bound them to each other by the strongest ties of honour the Emperor never spoke to him nor addressed him, even in his public firmáns, by any other name than that of brother and friend, a distinction shown to none of the Sultans of the Court, nor even to his own brothers

^{*} Albernáma and Tab Albern, as above

hammed Husein Korkan Doghlat, by the sister of Baber's mother

⁺ Haider was the son of Mu-

on his part also, remonstrated with Haider Mirza, and char v land claim to his services He said, that though Haider was in Kunrán's employment, he himself had really been latterly guided in every thing by his counsels, that as to his being Kimi in's cousin, he stood in exactly the same relation to him, and as for his illness, even if it were real, Huder was no physician present was no ordinary time that, on the issue of the approaching combit with Shir Shah, depended the fate, not of Humivun merely, but of Kami in himself, nay of the whole family of Baber, and of Hindustan itself that if Shir Khan was successful, all was lost, and Kamran would not find himself safe even in Lahur that, as a futhful and enlightened friend of their house, it was Haider's duty to consult the general good and remain behind unless, indeed, he dreaded the issue of the contest, and was anxious to shelter himself from danger by getting to Libur as a place whence, in case of calamity, he could easily betake himself elsewhere at "This reasoning," says Haider Mirza, "was to me conclusive, and I made up my mind to remain Being unable, by any entreaties, to obtain Kámián's permission, I staid without it Kamian Miiza, leaving Islander Mirzy with about a thousand men as auxthartes, and taking with him as many as he could 5, set out for Láhúr and this," continues he, " to the enemy was a victory, and to his friends a defeat"

The selfish and short-sighted policy of Kaiman was His characfatal to his family and Humiyun, with many excellent Emperor and agreeable qualities, had not the tilents required to support a sinking empire We have a character of him, as he was at this time, drawn by an able hand, which

Akb and Nisabnama, f 93, have two thousand. The number carried back is stated at twenty thousand He must have been joined by reinforcements after leaving the Pen-Jab ^{} Ferishta, vol 11 p 89, follows Haider in regard to the number of men left. The Akbernama, f 46, has three thousand under Abdalla Moghul the Kholiset ul- Cownrikh has the same number, the Iab bears every mark of truth and impartiality "Hu-máyun," says Haider Mírza, "as he was the eldest, was the greatest and most distinguished of Báber's sons I have seen few persons possessed of so much natural talent and excellence as he. but in consequence of his having dissolute and sensual men in his service, and of his intercourse with them, and with men of mean and profligate character, such as in particular Moulána Mulminmed Farghan, and others like him, he contracted some bad habits, as, for instance, the excessive use of opium, and the business which, as a prince, he should himself have managed, he left to them Nevertheless, he had many excellent qualities In battle he was steady and brave, in conversation, ingenious and lively; and at the social board, full of wit He was kind-hearted and generous He was a dignified and magnificent prince, and observed much state, insomuch that, though I e me into his service at Agra, in his broken fortunes, when people said his pomp and style were no longer what they had been, yet, when the army was arrayed for the Ganges campaign, at which time the superintendence devolved upon inc, the number of artisans who accompanied him was seventeen thousand, from which the extent of the other branches of his establishment may be imagined "

HOOK IV

State of the imperial army
Ind of Zikada, beginning of April

It was about the beginning of April when the imperial tents were pitched in the Zuefshan garden. The natural consequences of the Emperor's want of success in the preceding campaigns, and of the discord of the brothers, were visible in the bad spirit that prevailed in the camp and court. The higher Amírs, and especially the Chaghatái nobles, were discontented. The army consisted, in a great measure, of troops hastily raised, and who had seen no service. The great body of veterans had perished in the Bengal expedition. In the camp there was a general languor and disaffection. The officers showed little zeal, the troops little ardour, all was disorganised. Shir Shah appears to have recrossed the Ganges on the Emperor's approach, and to have baffled him in an attempt to cross the liver, over which he had thrown a bridge. Humáyun then marched along the banks to Kanáuj. Some of the enemy's ships appearing in the river to dispute the passage, one of the largest was sunk by the fire from the imperial guns. The events that followed may be best understood from the narrative, somewhat abridged, of Haider Mirza, who held a high rank in his army, tinged though in some respects it may be by the colouring thrown upon them by his wounded feelings.

CHAP V

"The unperial army reached the banks of the Ganges Haider in the best way that it could There it encamped, and count of lay for about a month, the Emperor being on one side of the river, and Shir Khan on the other, facing each other The armies may have amounted to more than two hundred thousand men * Muhammed Sultan Mírza, and his sons Ulugh Mírza and Shah Mírza, were princes of the house of Taimur, who had been entertained with every mark of kindness and kingly favour by Báber, but after his death had more than once revolted, had been pardoned and received back into favour by Humáyun They now once more deserted This defection quite changed the face of things Desertion became general in the army The most surprising part of it was, that such as deserted did not go over to Shir Khan, and of course could expect nothing from him general cry was, "Let us go and rest in our own homes" A number even of Kámrán's auxiliary troops deserted, and fled to Láhúr

"The Emperor had with him a formidable artillery,

^{*} The Emperor's army is usually f 214, Nisábnama, f 92, Bestated at 90,000, or 100,000, Shir daum, f 143 Shah s, at 50,000—far Nizami,

BOOK IV seven hundred carriages, each having a swivel, and drawn by four pair of bullocks; and sixty-one heavy guns, each drawn by sixty pair of bullocks, and supplied, not with stone, but with leaden bullets

"As the army had begun to desert, it was judged better to risk a battle than to see it go to ruin without fighting. If the result was unfavourable, in that case we could not at least be accused of having abandoned an empire like Hindustán without striking a blow Another consideration was, that if we passed the river, desertion would no longer be possible We, therefore, crossed over

"Both armies entrenched themselves Every day, skirmishes occurred between the irregulars and the Hindus At length, however, the monsoon rains came on, and there was a heavy fall which flooded the camp. To move was indispensable. Those about the Emperor told him that such another 1ain would ruin the army, and proposed to move to a rising ground, which the inundation could not reach, and which lay in front of the enemy I went to reconnoitre, and found the place suitable for the purpose They wished to march immediately I represented that, when we did march, it would be desnable to divert the attention of the enemy by engaging them in skirmishes, as it would not do to be drawn into a general action, when the army was marching to change its ground that next day was the tenth of Mohariem, when we could draw out our troops in battle array, without advancing on the Afgháns, or courting an engagement, but that if they left their trenches to attack us, we should engage, that a battle we must have in the end, but that, in the first instance, it was best for us to draw up the army in battle array, and plant the heavy cannon and small guns in front, that there were nearly five thousand gunners, who could be stationed with the guns that if the enemy did not come out that day, we should return back to the camp and next day having again drawn out the CHAP V troops in the same order as before we could keep our ground, while the biggige and stores were conveyed, covered by our lines from the old camp to the new ground; and when that was accomplished, we might retire to our new quarters

> battle of Kanáui May 17

"The plan was approved of and, accordingly, next And of the day" the army was drawn out to carry it into effect The rinks were mirshalled, but were unsteady the Moharrem guns and cannon, under the guidance of Muhammed An air, Khan Rum, the son of Ustad Kuh, Ustad Ahmed Rum and Hisan Khalifat, were moved forward to the appointed place, accompanied by the artillers men, and chains were extended between them, as is the practice In the rest of the army were Amirs, - Amirs only in name, who enjoyed governments and 11ch 1igirs, without the slightest fineture of prudence, or knowledge, or energy, or emulation, or nobleness of mind, or generosity, qualities from which nobility draws its name The Emperor placed the author on his left side, so that his right was next the Emperor's left, on the Emperor's right was a chosen band of his tilandch. On my left were placed my actumers, four hundred in number, all tried men, veterans who had experienced the changes of fortune, and were nurtured in hardships. On the dry of the bittle, they were all mounted on tipchák horses, and clad in mail Between me and the extreme left of the centre stood seven and twenty Amírs, all having the horse tail binner † Beyond that was the left wing, the extent and nature of which may be judged of from the other On the day of battle, when Shir Khin marched out with his army in columns, of the seven and twenty horse-tail standards that were with these giert loids, there wis not one that was not

^{*} Roz e-Ashur Moharrem, 10 † Or, more literally, the tugh, or banner of the tail of the Tibet,

or mountain, cow This was held only by Amirs of a high class

BOOK IV A D 1540

emerged from the river on the other bank, a monarch, who at noon had seventeen thousand artisans in his establishments, was mounted upon a wretched spavined horse, with both his head and feet bare Permanence belongs to God alone, the King of kings. The author had nearly a thousand persons, retainers and servants, of whom only sixty escaped out of the river All the rest were drowned From this instance the general loss may be estimated "*

Other necounts of that disaster

Such is the account of Haider Mírza, which, though it bears evident maik of the disappointment and chagiin which embittered his mind, is that of an able man, and an eyewitness who had the best means of information From other authorities, even more disposed to cover the failures of the imperial arms, we may glean a few further particulars of this battle, which, for a season, was decisive of the fate of Hindustán The rains appear to have commenced with unwonted violence, nearly a fortnight before the usual time Humáyun commanded his own centre, Hindal the advance, Askeri the right, Yádgár Násir the left On Shír Shah's side. Jılál Khan with his column, chiefly composed of Niázi Afgháns, advanced against Hindal, Mobáiez Khan led his against Yádgár and Kásim Husein Sultan, while Khowás Khan was opposed to Askeri The action is said to have commenced by a rencounter between Hindal's division and that of Jilál Khan, in which Jilál being thrown from his horse, his troops fell into disorder, and Yádgái, on the left, having gained some advantage over the force opposed to him, drove in the right of the Afghans upon their centre On observing this, we are told Shir Shah led up a body of his reserve, and checked the progress of the imperialists, while Khowás Khan, on his side, rode forward to attack Askeri, whose division instantly fled Humayun in vain attempted to rally his troops, and to seize a rising CHAP V ground His personal exertions were unavailing All agree that in a short time every thing was confusion and flight *

When he reached the Ganges, he found an old ele- Flight of phant, and mounted into the howdah, where he found an cunuch of his household, named Kafur He ordered the diver to cross the inver, but the man told him that the animal was quite unequal to it, and would be drowned Káfur hinted to the Emperor that the man wished to carry over the elephant to the Afgháns, and that it was better to put him to death, that he would undertake to guide the animal On this Humáyun drew his sword, and struck the driver, who fell wounded into the water The eunuch then stepped down on the elephant's neck, and directed him across As they gained the banks, which were very steep, the Emperor found it difficult to mount them, when a soldier, who had just gained the shore, presenting his hand to the Emperor, drew him up Humáyun asked his deliverer's name, and was answered, Shems ed-din Muhammed of Ghazni, in the service of Mírza Kámrán The Emperor made him high promises At this moment he was recognised by Mokadain Beg, one of Kamrán's nobles, who came forward and presented his own horse t

* Akbernama, ff 45, 46, 47, Jouher, c 5, Ferishta, vol. 11 pp 89,90, Kháfi Khan, ff 48,49 The Tab Akb ff 151 166, and Tar Niz f 214., Tar Bed 143, with the Nisábnama, f 93, agree that the Chaghatai army fled with little or no fighting

† Akbernama, f 47, Nisabnama, f 93 Jouher c. 5, Tar Bedaum, f 144, Kholaset-ul-Towarikh, f 260

The narrative of Jouher, which he gives on the Emperors own authority, differs from the account of the others in several particulars " His Majesty further related," says he, "that when he arrived near the bank, it was so steep that he could not find a place to ascend At length, some of the standard bearers (tugh barán), sons of Baba Jelair, viz, Mirza Muhammed and Fers Beg, tied their turbans together, and throwing an end of the cloth to him, he, with some difficulty, climbed up, they then brought him a horse, on which he mounted and proceeded to Agra - Stewart s Jouher, p 22, corrected by the BOOK IV

Shems ed-din afterwards became one of the most distinguished noblemen of the empire, was made Khan Azım, and was the atkeh, or foster father, of Akher, in those days a connection of no small importance

Humáyun was soon after joined by Askeri Mírza, and by Yádgár Násir Mírza, and they all, with the few attendants they could collect, pushed on for Agra. By the road they passed a walled village *, the inhabitants of which, probably accustomed to be plundered alike by the conquerors and the conquered, refused all intercourse with the fugitives, even in the way of buying and selling the necessaries of life, and, it was alleged, attempted to cut off and plunder the stragglers Humáyun, when informed of this refusal, desired Askeri Mírza, Yádgár and Hindal, who had also joined him, to go and punish their insolence If we believe Abulfazl, about thirty thousand of the neighbouring population had by this time risen to defend themselves, or attack the retiring troops But the number on the spot was probably inconsiderable Askeri declined onginal. Stewart calls the tughbáran, "camp-colour men" I suspect the word should be tughdarán, "nobles who had the tugh-banner," Bába Jeláir was a man of high rank.

* The name of this village is not very clear Major Price (Mahom Annals) calls it Bankapur, or Behgánu, Major Stewart's Jouher has Bhyngang My copy of the Akbernama, No 1 f 47, reads Beh-Lánu, or Behgánu, that No 2 f 96, has Bingala In the Memoirs of Jouher, the opposition made near this village is not treated as so formidable as it is by Abulfazl said "that the peasants stopped the road, and one of them wounded Myrza Yádgár with an arrow which the Myrza said to the prince Asken, 'Do you go on and punish these villagers, while I stop to dress my wound' The prince was displeased at this request, and gave the Myrza some abuse on which the other retorted in harsher language, when the prince struck him three times with his horsewhip 'I will repay you after the fashion of kings,' said Yádgár, and struck him several successive blows with his whip, without intermission When intelligence of this unpleasant fracas reached the Emperor, he said, 'They had better have vented their spite on the robbers than on each other What has happened cannot be recalled, but let us hear no more of it ''-Stewart's Mem of Humáyun, p 23, slightly modified from the original Abulfazl makes the first blows proceed from Yádgár going "It is from such want of co-operation among you," said Yádgái Násii Mírza indignantly, "that we are brought to the state in which we are, and still you are not corrected" These words produced an altercation, and some blows of a whip followed on both sides Yádgái and Hindal Mírza then attacked the villagers, and put many of them to the sword Mírza Askeri's conduct on this occasion gave great offence to the Emperor From this place Humáyun posted on to Agra*

He arrive: at Agra,

At Agra, Humáyun found little to console him quarrels of the brothers and their mutual jealousies had thrown every thing into disorder The whole government and aimy were disorganised Kámrán, when he set out from Agia, had induced some of the officers of government, and a great portion of the garrison, to accompany him to the Penjáb The country had been drained of troops to form the Emperor's army, the greater part of which had perished in the Ganges, or by the sword of the Afghans, while the scanty remainder was dispersed in flight There was, therefore, no considerable force in reserve to form the nucleus of a new aimy Nor did any means exist of calling out, in this emergency, the national resources that were still left' The nobles were discontented, the peasantry, a prey to misiule and anarchy, the Afgháns hard in pursuit The Emperor, without entering the city, alighted in the suburbs at the house † of Syed Rafía-ed-dín, a very learned and eminent Sufi doctor, who, like many of the distinguished divines of his time, had a high reputation for political sagacity As circumstances were urgent, Hindal Mirza was sent with his followers into the fort to that in the late battle he saw a troop of derwishes attack his lines, and not desist till they had broken through them This of course referred to something supernatural

^{*} Akbernáma, f 47

[†] The Akbernáma (f 47) makes this visit take place the morning after Humayun s arrival The Nisábnáma (f 94) asserts that, in this conversation, Humayun affirmed bring off the Emperor's mother, sisters and family, with their domestics, and such part of their treasure and jewels as they were able to remove. The Syed, meanwhile, placed before the Emperor, bread, melons, and such homely fare as his house at the moment afforded, and soothed his mind by moral and religious reflections on the instability of fortune. Having breakfasted, the Emperor consulted hum as to the practicability of defending Agra. From this attempt the Syed strongly dissuaded him, as being hopeless, and advised him to hasten forward to Láhúr, where his brother Kámrán's power was still unbroken. When the Emperor departed, he presented him with a horse richly caparisoned, and gave him his blessing. Humáyun, now abandoning his capital, rode off to Síkii. He was soon after followed and joined by Hindal with the household.

NOOK IV

Proceeds towards Delhi Humáyun had not been long at Síkii, in his father Bábei's garden, when an arrow discharged from an eminence by an unknown hand, fell close by his side Haider Míiza and an officer, who were sent to discover whence the arrow proceeded, both returned wounded Apprehensive of treachery, he proceeded on his route to Delhi. He seems to have been in an irritable state, and had but few Amírs left along with him. One of them, Míi Fakr Ah, happening to ride on before him on the road, Humáyun called out angily, "It was by thy advice that I passed the Ganges. Better would it have been that thou hadst perished there than that this should happen. Go immediately, and leave me." Fakr Ah fell back † The Emperor had not a more faithful or zealous servant than the Mír, who died soon after on the road to Suhend

Sefer 20 June 26

But the Emperor was not doomed to retreat in quiet Hardly had he reached his ground at the first stage, at Bijuna on the banks of the Kanbír, when Askeri

[•] Jouher, c 5 , Akbernama, † Jouher, c 6 , Akbernama, f 47

arrived with information that Mir Ferid Gur, who had CHAP V been sent in pursuit of them by Shir Shah, was fast approaching The Mírza, therefore, advised Humáyun to renew his maich without losing a moment, offering, with the few troops still left, to cover his retreat was now unseemly trepidation "In consequence of this advice," says Jouhei, "the (Emperor) mounted his horse and set off, but the followers were thrown into the greatest alaim, not knowing what to do one attempted to assist another, the son paid no attention to his father, nor the father to the son, but each person endeavoured to conceal whatever valuables he had, and to make his escape, and, to add to their distiess, a very heavy rain fell In short, God preserve us from seeing such another day"* The Emperoi, struck with the misery and dismay of his followers, seems at length to have thought of conducting his retreat with some degree of method He ordered the troops to halt, divided them into different columns He himself led the advance, Hindal had the right, Yádgár Násir the left, and the other Amíis brought up the "It was ordered," continued Jouher †, "that if any person went before the Emperor, he should be punished, and his house plundered"

Humáyun at length reached Delhi, where, on the And to the 25th of May, he was joined by Kásim Husein Sultan Mohar-Uzbek, and several other Amíis Hindal and Askeri rem 18 now took leave to proceed to then jágírs, the one to Alwar, the other to Sambhal, for the purpose of making some hasty arrangements on the spot The Emperor did not venture to prolong his stay in the ancient capital of the kingdom, and on the 27th, only ten days Moharafter the decisive battle, he left it On the 29th, May 27 Hindal Mirza and Haider Mirza rejoined him at the village of Rahtak, where he halted next day

^{*} Stewart's Jouher's Memoirs, + Jouher, from the original. p 24

BOOK IV

An 1510 Beginning of Sefer by long marches of ten or twelve kos, they proceeded to Sirhend, which they reached before the middle of June. There Hindal was halted for a few days, while the Emperor proceeded to Máchíwára on the Satley. As the river was swollen by the rains, and as no boats were to be found, they passed it as they best could, and marched on.

Shir Shah at Delhi

Intelligence now arrived that Shir Shah had halted on reaching Delhi, but had sent forward detachments in puisuit, which were only forty or fifty kos off. The Afghán prince, during his whole life, whether from superstition or policy, had maintained a close intimacy with the leading devotees and holy men of his religion, and with the whole body of religious mendicants, whose influence often afforded him essential service in his various political enterprises He seems to have been willing to have it believed that a supernatural power favoured all his designs, and among other means, led him on by dreams and visions of the night. The morning of the discomfiture of Humáyun near Kanáuj, he related that, the night before, he dreamed that he and Humáyun, alighting from their horses, had wrestled between the two armies, after long and keen struggling, the Emperor threw him upon the ground, and made strong efforts to lift him up again from it, but could not succeed, Shir Shah, clinging to the ground, baffled his attempts He himself proceeded to interpret the dream, affirming that his aim and ambition had long been to take possession of the ground of Hindustán, which his dream portended that he would do, and that he would baffle Humáyun Immediately after the battle he pushed after the fugitives, and took possession of Agra, where he got possession of the treasures and arsenals, and then hastened on to Delhi Here he paused for some time to give the orders rendered necessary by his great success. No effectual resistance was now presented to him from any point of the Emperor's peculiar dominions The hopes of the family of Báber were turned to the Penjáb, and to Kábul Shír Shah CHAP V pushed on a strong force in pursuit of the flying monarch, which soon approached the Satley Upon this Hindal Miiza, with the Emperor's rear-guard, crossed that river, and joining the main body, the whole proceeded to Jalindher, between the Satley and Bíah, where Hindal's division again halted, while Humáyun proceeded to Láhúr on the Rávi * On his arrival at Láhúr, Mozeffer Beg was despatched with a body of troops to support Hindal, and encamped on the western bank of the Biah The Afghans, who had passed His parties through Suhend, and crossed the Satlej in pursuit, Humdyun soon appeared on the opposite bank Askeri Mírza across the Satte! arriving about this time from Sambhal, all the four brothers met at Láhúi Muhammed Sultan Mírza and his sons, who, it may be remembered, had deserted from the Emperor's almy before it crossed the Ganges, and had gone to Láhúr, fled from that city, as soon as Humáyun approached it, and went down to Multán † When the imperial princes held their consultations at Láhúr, it was still only the beginning of July, not two Robi I i months since the grand discomfiture of Kanáuj

When Humáyun resolved to bend his flight towards selfish conthe Penjáb, he had cherished a hope that Kámrán might duct of Kámráu. still receive him cordially, and acknowledge and submit to him as his sovereign lord, or at least employ the whole force of his extensive dominions in repelling and humbling the Afgháns He was disappointed in all these hopes Kámrán was much more his rival than his subject, or even his ally The Emperor was received with external honours, and suspicion that could not be disguised At Láhúr he found nothing pre-

Muhammed, the fortunate soldier who assisted Humáyun in mounting the banks of the Ganges at Kanáuj, also came to Láhur, and was gratefully welcomed by the Emperor

^{*} Called also Gandwal, or Goind-

[†] Albernama, f 47, Jouher, c. 6, Tabakat-e Akberi, f 151, Tar Nız f 188 , Nısabnama-Afgh ff 93, 94 Shems ed-din

DOCK 1V → D 1540

pared to meet the common enemy. The conduct of Kámrán at this crisis was unkind to his brother, and ruinous to the family His situation was certainly very trying He was placed between two dangers, and hardly knew whether most to dread his brother or Shir Shah He saw that the hereditary claims of the former might be employed to wrest from him the whole of his extensive dominions, which stretched from Persian Khorásán and the Helmend, to the Satlej and Hissái-Firóza The utmost success of the former would be confined to the conquest of the Penjáb, leaving Kábul, Ghazni, and Kandahár untouched Hence his energies appeared to be paralysed, and he was evidently more anxious to keep under his brother Humáyun and his dreaded pretensions, than to meet and repel the Afghans Could the brothers have trusted each other, and combined to act as their common interest required, much might still have been effected, but there was no sympathy among them, no mutual confidence All was suspicion, jealousy, and distrust

Trenty
nmong the imperial brothers

The Afghans continued to advance When then entrance into the Penjab was known, the brothers, and such of the Amírs as had followed them, or were on the spot, held many consultations, to which the most emnent of the holy men, who then flourished in that country, were invited, that they might at once add solemnity to the council by their presence, and enlighten it by their wisdom. Terms were finally agreed to, after much discussion, and a regular treaty of alliance and concord concluded between the princes, and sealed and witnessed by all the assembly. But signatures and seals were vain, where confidence and unity of purpose were wanting. Neither adversity, nor the progress of events not to be mistaken, could teach them the most obvious lessons of prudence. Each still urged on a separate project of his own. Humáyan, who had been the greatest sufferer, enforced the necessity of unaminuty, and the mischiefs of discord. But his past char v success and conduct were not such as to make them Their want turn to him with much hope, as the leader of a con- of union federacy Kamrin Muza, who, from the first, betrayed the general cause, and consulted only his own individual interest, was unxious chiefly for the speedy breaking up of the congress, that the princes might separate, and he himself be at liberty to proceed to He, therefore, proposed to retreat from Lahur, as soon as it was attacked, into the neighbouring hillcountry, and he undertook to convey the families of his brother- and of their adherents into the highlands of Kabul, above the preses, where they would be sife, after which he engiged to return, and join his brothers Hindal Mirza and Yádgar Nasir Mirza had a plan of They recommended an attack upon the their own fort and territory of Bheker on the Indus, after conquering which, they affirmed that it would be no difficult matter to my ide and subdue Gurát, and, aided by the wealth of that kingdom, to resume operations with a powerful force, in the very heart of Hindustán The plan of Haider Mirra was different still thoughts were turned towards Kishmir, which he had once already oversum, and with which he was well acquainted He advised the princes to occupy and fortify the skirts of the hill-country between Sirhend and Siring, and undertook within two months to be in possession of Kashinir, whither their families could be sent as a place of safety, for which no situation could be better fitted In support of his opinion he maintained that it would take Shin Shah at least four months to bring on to the hill-country his carriages and artillery, on which he chiefly relied, and that, should the Afghans attempt to follow them among the mountains, their army, in a short time, would be completely nuned #

Akbernama, f 17

BOOK IV д в 1540

my hands in the blood of a brother, but will for ever remember the dying words of our respected parent (Báber), who said to me, 'O, Humáyun' beware! beware! Do not quarrel with your brothers, nor even form any evil intentions towards them?' These words are engraved on my heart, never to be erased."

Humáyun, in the exigency in which he was placed, had resolved to adopt the plan proposed by Haider Mírza, and to attempt the conquest of Kashmír After crossing the Rávi, he marched on to the town of Harára which he reached in the morning. Here he

Releb I Nov 1

Hazára, which he reached in the morning Here he was informed that Kámrán, with his troops and followers all in aims, was marching right towards him. The Emperor's followers offered to arm also to repel any aggression, but he forbade them, and waited the issue Kámrán, on coming up, sat down beside him, when they conversed for about an hour The Mírza said, that from the instant he had last set out for Hindustán, so incessant had been his occupations, that he had enjoyed no interval of rest, and that his followers also were quite exhausted. He, therefore, found it necessary to use his endeavours to put his affairs on a proper footing, and to recruit his force, and asked the Emperor's leave to proceed to Kábul for that purpose, promising to return as soon as that object was effected Humáyun assented, with prayers for his safety and success, after which the brothers separated Humáyun then continued his march, and halted about four kos further on, when he got notice that Hindal Mírza, Yádgár Mírza, and Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek, had been induced by Beg Mírak to set out on their proposed attempt on Gujrát Many of the Emperor's followers, upon this, deserted and joined them Hindal's party marched down the Penjáb towards the Balúch country Humáyun, thus abandoned by two of his brothers,

Kámrán departs for Kábul .

Hindal, for Sind and Guzrát

Humárun meditates hastened forward to join his cousin, Haidei Mírza*, in Chap v the projected expedition against Kashmír

e projected expedition against Kashmir

It is necessary shortly to advert to the state of tion to Kashmir parties in that country When Kamran marched from Recent the Penjáb for the purpose of recovering Kandahár events there from the Persians, it has been mentioned that he left Haider Mírza in chaige of Láhúi At that time seveial nobles of Kashmir, who were discontented with the reigning prince of that kingdom, waited on Haider Mírza, who had formerly commanded in Kashmír, and attempted, through his influence, to obtain from Kámrán a body of troops with which to dethrone the present ruler, and restore themselves to their country, from which they were exiled Haider Mirza, who, from the incidents of his past life, took a lively interest in the affairs of Kashmír, entered warmly into their views, but, in spite of all his excitions, was, from various circumstances, always prevented from procuring for them the assistance they desired, while Kamrán remained at Láhúr

Afterwards, when that prince was lying at Agra, Haider Mirza succeeded in prevailing upon him to send Bába Jujkeh, one of his officers, to attempt the adventure along with the exiled nobles But so dilatory was the general in his motions that, before he reached the scene of action, the news of Humáyun's defeat at Chonsa arrived, an event which withdrew the attention of the Mirzas from distant expeditions, and turned it to providing for their immediate safety. The attempt on Kashmii was therefore suspended, and the exiled nobles were placed in the Noushehr and Rájwari † territory, in the opening of the mountains between the Penjáb and Kashmír, to wait better times

The exiles, however, never ceased from uiging Haider Mirza to support their interests, and after Haider

^{*} Haider was the maternal cousin of Baber

BOOK IV

changed Kámrán's service for that of Humáyun, he had regularly communicated their letters to the Emperor, who, in his present distress, seeing nothing better to be done, agreed, with their assistance, to attempt the conquest of Kashmír—He had, therefore, sent forward Haider Mírza, with such of his troops as were willing to join in the enterprise, to Noushehr, which was the most practicable road into the mountain-circled valley, and where he could see and confei with the exiled and the discontented Kashmírian nobles. Haider was to be joined by Sekander Topchi, who had a considerable jágír in that quarter, and by his followers, and in addition to these, Khwája Kilán Beg, one of Kánnán's principal Amírs, was to meet them with a reinforcement. On hearing of the Khwája's airival at Noushehi, Humáyun himself was to join them, and the expedition was to enter the hills.

Kámrán thwarts the plans of Humáyun The accounts of what happened at this period of alarm are very uncertain and contradictory. It would appear, however, that Kámián Míiza, who retired by way of Bhíra, contrived to thwart the plans of Humáyun. Khwája Kilán, who probably governed the Bhira country, had written, both to Kámrán and to Humáyun, with assurances of his fidelity and attachment. On hearing of the advance of the Afgháns within thirty kos of Láhúr, and of the flight of the Emperor and Kámrán towards Bhíra, he had hastened from Siálkot, where he was, to meet them at Bhíra Humáyun, on his part, had set out for that town, eager to meet the Khwája. It was about afternoon prayers when he reached the Jelem, which was much swollen. Anxious to cross, he desired Terdi Beg to lead the way, and to spur his horse into the river. The horse swam awhile, but turned round, and could not be made to go on. Determined to force his way, Humáyun caused an elephant to be driven into the stream, and then plunged in on horseback, and followed it across He thus crossed with forty men about evening CHAP V They rode all night without stopping, and arrived next morning at the town of Bhina Here he found that they had been anticipated by Kámián, who had the dy served Khwaja Kilán in his house, and thus secured his services. While mittated by this sudden disappointment, and his brother's breach of futh Jabar Kuli Korchi, an officer of his guard, offered to him to by violent hands on Kamran said Humáyun, among whose fruits cruelty was not one "No, I refused to slay him at Lahui, and I will not do it here" He could not, however, remain where he was, nor could be perhaps, with safety, venture to push on to Noushehr He resolved at once to turn back, and riding, without halt, down the banks of the river, by noon next day he reached Khushab, where he was well received by Husein Sultan, the governor of the district

The Emperor, confounded and peoplexed by these untoward events, renounced altogether the plan of proceeding to Kashmir, and resolved to join Hindal and Yidgai Mirza in their expedition again Bhekei Haider Mirza meanwhile, adhering to his original purpose, though deprived of the assistance of Sekander Topchi, who retired into the mountains of Saiang, as well as of Khwaja Kilan's co-operation, penetiated the mountain passes of Kashmír, and, as will hereafter be mentioned, was, on the 22d November, less than three weeks after Roled 22 this time, acknowledged in the capital of Kashinii, as Nov 22 sole ruler of the kingdom, without a battle

Humáyun left Khusháb the morning after his arrival, who proalong with the governor, who agreed to accompany wards Sind. him, and had proceeded about six kos, when he reached a narrow pass beyond which the road divides, one branch leading to Multán, the other to Kábul

^{*} Jouher, c 7 Compare Akbernama, f 48, and I ar Nizami, f 188, Tabak Akberi, f 152

BOOK IV

happened that he and his brother Kámrán came to the entrance of the defile at the very same time Emperor wished to enter it first, but Kamran, who now threw off the mask, refused to give way, saying he was determined to take the lead Humáyun was much irritated, and the followers of the princes preparing to assert the right of their masters by force, the affair bore a threatening aspect, when Mir Abul-Baka, a man noted for his sanctity, who belonged to Kámrán's court, 11ding up to the Mírza, remonstrated with him on his conduct. The Mírza was brought to ac quiesce, and the Emperor, passing on first, took the Multan road, after which Kamran following, turned off for Kábul It was observed that Kámrán was accompanied by his brother Askeri, and he was soon after joined by the restless Muhammed Sultan Mírza and his sons, Ulugh and Shah Mirzas, from Multán The family had no sooner heard of the dispersion of the Emperor and his brothers, than they resolved to attach themselves to Kámrán, and overtook him on the banks of the Indus

After some days' march down the desert that hes between the Chenáb and the Sind, the Emperor arrived at Gul-Balúch, where he received information that Hindal and Yádgár Násir Mírzas, who had preceded him in the same route, had been attacked and interrupted by the Balúches, a barbarous and hardy race spread over all that country, who would not suffer the Mírzas to proceed on their route. Here Humáyun halted his little force. It appears that the Mírzas, who had left Láhúr and crossed the Rávi along with the Emperor, after separating from him near Hazára, had marched down into the Multán territory. Their rangers* soon after fell in with a party of Afgháns who escorted Kázi Abdalla, the Sadi, Kámrán's envoy, to Shir Shih. The Sidr was then probably returning curry from a secret mission to the Alghan cump and on his viv to meet his mister. They were all taken and brought to the cump of the Mirzis. The Afghans were put to death, and the Kazi sived at the intercession of a friend. The march of the Mirzas through the western desert listed twenty days, during which period they were subject to the greatest fitigue, and to suffering and danger of every description. The Baluches already occupied these wisters and were in possession of the few strong positions within their bounds, so that they were able to cut the winderers off from water and provisions, and so determined was the opposition which they made to the progress of the Mirzas that, harased and in despurat the increasing difficulties which they daly encountered the princes were forced to retrace their steps, and were now actually on their way back The Emperor while it Gul Baluch, hearing a kettledrum in the desert sent out to discover whence the sound proceeded and found that it was from the camp of Hindal and Yadgar which was pitched only two or three kos off. He sent forward the reverend Mir Abul-Baka who had left human and joined him, after the occurrence it the defile. The holy man who had au- modifiethorsts to invite the Milzis to join the Emperor, was at Cul successful in his mission, and brought them back with Baluch their followers, after which, both the little bands, having once more united, advanced in conjunction on

Before the Imperor, attended by the Mirzis, set out from Gul-Baluch, an alarming report reached them, that Khowas Khan the Afghan general, had been sent in pursuit of the Emperor, and was only twenty kos distint. Hum yun prepaied for bittle, few as his numbers comparatively were, but was soon relieved by BOOK IV intelligence that Khowás Khan had halted, and seemed to have abandoned the pursuit. That distinguished officer, having pushed on to Multán, finding his enemy totally dispersed, and being unable to get any intelligence of the Emperor or the Mírzas, had retired for the purpose of rejoining the main body of the Afghán army. The belief of his vicinity, however, quickened the movements of the Emperor's army, who hastened along once more on their dreary and painful route towards Uch, over against which town, after many sufferings from hunger, thirst, and fatigue, they at length halted, on the banks of the Chenáb, which, after receiving the waters of the Satlej and Bíah, is known by the name of the Gára

End of Shábán End of December

They pass the territories of Bakhshui Langa,

When Humáyun approached the territories of Bakhshui Langa, who was one of the great chieftains of the country, and whose tribe, in times not long past, had given sovereigns to Multán, he was anxious to avert op-position in passing through his country, and especially in crossing the Gára For that purpose, he sent for-ward a mission, who bore a firmán conferring on the Langa the high title of Khan Jehán, and a khilát, composed, among other articles, of a dress of honour, a horse-tail standard, shield and kettle-drum, with four elephants The Emperor required the Langa, on his part, to furnish grain for the supply of the camp, and boats for crossing the river Bakhshui, who dreaded his uninvited guests, seems to have conducted himself with great caution and prudence, did not wait on the Emperor, but sent supplies for present use, accompanied by suitable presents. He, at the same time, encouraged merchants to proceed to the suffering camp with necessaries of all kinds for sale, and furnished boats by which the Emperor was enabled to pass the Gára After accomplishing the passage of that river, near Uch, he moved down the left bank of the Indus to Bheker, the territory of which he reached in the end of January,

A D. 1541, beginning of January

Ramzán 28 January 26 л р 1541 There he encamped at the town of Lohri, CHAP V on the left bank of the river, near the city and fortress and reach of Bheker, which filled the small island in the middle sind of the stream, the opposite bank being occupied by the town of Sakar *

Humayun for several years to come, does not re-present state and appear on the theatre of India He was now completely past career diven out of the empire left him by his father, and was of Hu mayun not permitted to enter, even as a guest, the wide extent of dominions still enjoyed by his younger brother, and of which he was hege lord. His fortune, during the ten years that had elapsed since he mounted the throne, had been various. He had conquered the kingdoms of Malwa and of Gurát, and had been expelled from them He had conquered the kingdom of Bengal, and had been compelled to abandon it These conquests, effected by the superior military skill, and the greater vigoui of mind of his brave Túrki and Moghul troops, and their veteran leaders, seem to have been lost chiefly by the want of any well-combined general plan of operations In his advance into Gujrát and Bengal, every obstacle gave way before the fury of his attack But when in possession of the object of his ambition, he found that he had gained nothing He totally failed in securing the finits of his victory. No sufficient army of reserve, or of communication, supported the victorious troops Wherever the imperial camp moved, all, at first, was conquest and glory But as the government was essentially military, on the aimy all depended any disaster to it was ruin to the government change of dynasty was still so recent, that a most wakeful and patient superintending policy would have

* The chief authorities for these transactions are the Akbernima, ff 47-49, Jouher, c. 7, Terishta, vol ii pp 90, 91, Tarikh e-Sind, ff 151-151, Ishafi The Tar Sind makes the army reach Bheker, Ramzan 26 I adgar Nusir Mirza led the advance of the imperial army, and perhaps arrived two days before the main

BOOK IV

been indispensably requisite in every quarter. The empire had really, as yet, attained no unity, and it had little of what can be called political, or civil, organization, so that the government took its colour entirely from the character of the person at its head. The want of a grand superintending mind was soon felt. There was no adequate provision for the regular administra-tion of affairs in the provinces, no effective system of mutual support among the officers of the empire The head of the government had not the weight of character which inspired awe or reverence Revolt early began to appear in different quarters, and that not merely among the Afgháns, burning to recover their lost greatness, but among the chief nobles of the imperial court itself. The empire of the great Báber was in danger of falling to pieces The discoid of the brothers completed the mischief, for the leading Amírs, seeing no hopes of retrieving affairs by adhering to the Emperor, who, brave and accomplished as he was, was regarded with no confidence, had lost heart, even before they were dispersed by the last last and accomplished. they were dispersed by the last decisive discomfiture It was not yet fifteen years since the defeat and death of Ibráhím Shah, from which event the overthrow of the Afghán, and the use of the Taimúnan, dynasty in India may be dated Of these fifteen years, the vigorous government of Báber occupied only five, the other ten were filled by the indolent and thoughtless misrule of his son. There had not been much time to consolidate the influence of the new race Their power still remained entirely military, so that, when the army of the Túiki monarch was dispersed, and his camp taken at Kanáuj, the authority of the family of Báber seemed to be rooted out from India for ever

The Afghán supremacy restored in India under Shír Shah Shir Shah, whose success made him the representative of the Afghán race, and whose abilities rendered him worthy of the trust, lost no time in pursuing his advantage. Though the Afgháns had been routed in

BOOK FIFTH.

HUMAYUN IN EXILE

CHAPTER I.

HUMÁYUN'S RESIDENCE IN SIND

SECTION I

TIRST RESIDENCE IN SIND

STATE OF SIND ON THE ARRIVAL OF HUMATUN - CONDUCT OF SHAR HUSFIN - HUMÁYUN AT ROHRI - HIS FOI LOWERS DETACHED OVER THE COUNTRY - DISTRESS IN HIS CAMP - HE SENDS ENVOYS TO SHAH HUSEIN -- WHO PROCRASTINATES, AND ATTEMPTS TO INDUCE HUMÁYUN TO LEAVE SIND — HUMÁYUN LAIS SIEGE TO BHEKER. — SCARCITY IN UPPER SIND - HUMAYUN AT THE CAMP OF HINDAL -HIS MARRIAGE TO ALBER'S MOTHER - HE RETURNS TO HIS CAMP -INTENDED DESERTION OF HINDAL, PREVENTED BY THE EMPEROR'S CONCESSIONS - DISMISSAL OF SHAIL HUSEIN'S ENVOY - HUMÁYUN ADVANCES TO SEHWÁN - DESCRIPTION OF SEHWÁN, TO WHICH HE LAYS SIEGE - APPROACH OF SHAH HUSEIN - DIFFICULTIES OF THE SIEGE, AND DESERTIONS FROM THE IMPERIAL CAMP - PROGRESS OF THE SIEGE OF BHEKER -HUMÁYUN URGES HINDAL TO ACT AGAINST SHAH HUSEIN - DEFLOTION OF YADGAR NASIR MIRZA - SHAH DUSEIN BEIZES THE EMPEROR'S FLOTILLA - HUMÁYUN RETREATS FROM SEHWAN WITH THE LOSS OF HIS BAGGAGE - REACHES ROURI, AND CROSSES THE INDUS -CONDUCT OF YADGAR-DISORGANIZATION OF HUMÁYUN'S FORCES - THREATENED ATTACK OF YADGÁR - DE-SPONDFNCY OF HUMÁYUN, WHO RETREATS TO THE DESERT OF MARWAR

BOOK V WHEN Humáyun, driven first from Hindustán, and afterwards from the Penjáb, resolved to try his fortune on the Lower Indus, he had not long left Uch, in his State of disistrous flight before he reached the dominions of Shih Husem Mirza, the ruler of Sind That prince, though he had been forced to relinquish Multan, after sind on the having conquered it from the Langus, as his been Humbyun mentioned, was still the undisputed ruler of Upper and Lower Sind or of Blicker and Latta, and his dominions extended along the Indus, from the sea nearly to Uch To the east of the Indus, the country, wherever the waters of that river or its branches were found, was rich and sooms to have been furly peopled. The more desert portions as far as the borders of the Rapart states were inhabited by various tribes, chiefly Baluches On the west of the river and above Tatti the Lakki hills and the Baluch mountains enclosed Schwan, Bughbin, and Didir with the present Shikarpur, all of which acknowledged Shah Husem as their prince Though he had professed to be dependent on Baber, the dependence was little more than nominal, and he governed his dominions uncontrolled, as an absolute sovereign

Shith Husein was a man of great talent and sagacity, and the events that had been recently passing in Hindust in did not escape his attention. When Humáyun was at the height of his power, and had overrun Gunat, Husein had sent Mir Anka Arghun, as his ambassador, to congritulite the Imperor on his conquests ambiesador, who dist a keen eve on what was passing around him, reported to his master that such was the negligence of Humáyun, and such the arrogance of his officers, that it was impossible that affins could continue long to go on, as they were doing * Events justified the prediction The defeat of Humáyun, however, and more especially his subsequent expulsion from his Indian dominions, filled Shah Husein with uneasy conduct of apprehensions, as he had just reason to look for a visit flusting

BOOK V A D 1541 of at least some portion of the fugitives He had committed the charge of Upper Sind, and of the island fortress of Bheker, to Sultan Mahmúd Bhekeri, with instructions, if invaded, to lay waste the country before the invaders, to leave them nothing but a desert on every side, and to defend himself in his castle to the last extremity. As Humáyun advanced, these orders were punctually executed. On both sides of the river, from Uch to Bheker, and, at a later time, from Bheker nearly to Sehwán, the cattle were driven away, the forage or grain removed or burnt, the inhabitants compelled to migrate, and the villages destroyed

Humayun at Robri Beginning of Ramzán Ramzán 28 January 26 Humáyun left Uch about the beginning of January, A D 1541, and on the 26th of the same month, in spite of the difficulties which he encountered, reached Lohn, and was waited upon by some individuals of the Darícha and Sefiáni tribes, who had remained in the town Next day he moved to the Mírza's College, and the day after to the delightful garden, or Chárbágh, of Báberlú, which he made his head quarters while he remained in that vicinity.

Lohri, or Rohri*, is situated on a high flint rock on the left bank of the Indus, opposite to the celebrated fort of Bheker, which rises near it from a rocky island in the centre of the river. This island had, some years before, been strongly fortified by Shah Husein, and more recently had been supplied, not only with a strong garrison, but with provisions and warlike stores sufficient to enable it to maintain a long siege. "The island fortiess of Bheker," says a late traveller †, "is built upon an oval flint rock, three quarters of a mile in circumference, which divides a stream eight hundred yards in width. The fort itself is strongly built, but it is overlooked by the bank, upon which stands the town

The older writers in general call the Conolly's Overland Tourney, this town Lohri, in modern times vol it p 260 it is always called Rohri

SECT I

LIFE OF HUMATUN

of Rohri It commands the river, and all boats, that pass up and down the river, pay a toll" Still farther to secure his position, Sultan Mahmud had ordered all the boats and other craft on the river to be seized, and moored under the walls of the fort The gardens at which Humayun encamped were about four miles from Rohn, and had been formed and ornamented at great expense, with all the skill and taste of the age and his household occupied the prlace, with the garden in which it was situated, his chief nobles took possession of the rich houses that had been built by the Arghún chiefs in the immediate vicinity, while the rest of the troops were placed in the neighbourhood, and in the grounds, all the way to the town itself, where they gladly enjoyed some repose after their long sufferings *

But the life of Humayun was not doomed to be one His followof quiet It was necessary to make provision for the overthe support of his followers In the course of a few days, Mirzy Hindyl moved with his division four or five kos farther down the river, where he halted, and soon after crossed over to the right bank Yádgái Násir Mírza also crossed, and encamped near him But soon after, for the purpose of extending their quarters, and securing a larger supply of provisions, Hindal marched down to Pater in the fertile province of Sehwan, and Yadgar to Darbila, the former fifty, the latter twenty kos below

Immediately on his arrival †, the Emperor had lost Distress in no time in calling upon Sultan Mahmud, the governor of Bheker, to repair to the presence, and to deliver up the fort to the imperial officers Sultan Mahmud rephed, that he was only a servant of Shah Husein, and that, without orders from his master, his duty would not

Bed f 179 Jouher, 29, calls † Akbernama, f 40, Tab Akb these towns Pat, in the district of f 152, Tar Niz f 188, Tar Suhan (Sehwan) and Bhila

^{*} Akbern ima f 49

BOOK V A. p 1541 permit him to comply with either request. As, however, a serious scarcity already prevailed in Humáyun's camp, Sultan Mahmúd was induced to send to him, out of the provisions laid up in store in the fort, five hundred loads of grain, besides other victuals.

He sends envoys to Shah Husein, The answer of Sultan Mahmud, from which he obstinately refused to depart, compelled Humáyun to refer directly to Shah Husein himself. Without delay he deputed* Mír Táher Sadr and Mír Samander, two of his confidential servants, to the Mírza, who was then at Tatta, desiring them, by every practicable means, to gain him to his purpose. He bade them represent that the Emperoi's coming to Bheker had not been optional, that his object now was, not to interfere with Shah Husein in the government of Sind, but to proceed on to the conquest of Gujrát, and he called upon the Mírza to come and consult with him in person, on the best means of invading that country who procrastinates, The Mirza received the envoys with every mark of honour, and even offered his Majesty the revenues of all the country † from Kalikanda to Betura for the support of his household but, on the grand subject of their mission, he deferred, from time to time, giving them a definitive answer, though he kept their hopes alive by the most artful representations. After a delay of some months ‡, Humáyun, whose patience was exhausted, sent them instructions either to return at once, or to let him know distinctly what prospect they had of success. The envoys wrote in return, begging to be allowed to remain some little time longer, as they entertained fair hopes of bringing their negociation to

^{*} Jouher, c 8, calls the envoys Keber Beg Barili, and Mir T ther Pir-zada

[†] This seems to be the territory lying north-west of the Ran. It is doubtful if it really belonged to the Mirza.

[†] They seem to have been detained upwards of six months, Tar Niz f 189 The Turkhee-Bedum says five or six months, f 179

CHAP I SECT J

a favourable issue But a faither time having elapsed, during which no communication whatever was received from them, and the Emperor's difficulties increasing daily, he despatched orders, commanding the envoys, in case Shah Husein refused to accompany them to the presence, to return without him

On receiving these orders, Mir Samander, one of the and attempts to The Mirza, induce Huenvoys, prepared to return to Rohri seeing that he was unable to create any farther delay, to quit and that the Emperor's army had not been broken up sind by famine and disease, as he probably anticipated, now attempted to remove Humáyun from his territories in a different manner Along with Mir Samander he sent, as his ambassador, Sheikh Mírak, a man descended of the holy Sheikh Puran, whose family was highly revered by all the Arghúns This ambassador, who carried various presents to his Majesty, was desired to represent to him that the produce of Bheker was at all times but scanty, and, far from being adequate to support his Majesty and his troops, was hardly enough to maintain the inhabitants of the country, that, on the contiary, should he maich his army to Cháchkán*, he would find a rich country, fertile and highly cultivated, which could furnish supplies of every kind, to recruit and refresh the army after its late marches and fatigue; that, if the imperial army moved to occupy that province, Shah Husein would himself be at hand to assist then operations, that Cháchkán, from its situation, was admirably suited as a place d'armes for an invasion of Gujrat, a kingdom which Humáyun could reduce with ease, and, aided by its wealth, gradually recover the whole of Hindustán

These plans of conquest seem to have captivated the imagination of Humayún, who, at first, gave his assent

Burnes's Narrative of a Visit to Sind, and Map Edin 1831

^{*} Cháchkán hes east of Tatta and west of the Ran, on the castern branch of the Indus See James

BOOK V

to the ambassador's proposals But his ministers viewed the matter in a different light The country of Cháchkán, which lies to the east of Sind, was inhabited by some brave tribes, whom Shah Husein had been unable to subdue, and must be conquered by the Emperor from its present occupants It had, indeed, rich fields and villages, and was watered by branches of the Indus, but it possessed no fortress, in which, when the army moved forward against Gujrát, the families and heavy baggage of the army could be deposited, so as to be in safety from the attacks of Shír Shah, of Shah Husein Mírza himself, or even of the neighbouring tribes They considered the whole proposal as only an artifice of the crafty Mírza, to remove the Emperor from his territory If Shah Husein was really as desirous as he pretended to be to serve the Emperor, why, they said, did he not give him admission into some one of his own strongholds? Mír Samander, who had studied the Mirza's character in his court, confirmed this view, by declaring that, in his opinion, Shah Husein had really no intention to join the Emperor Humayún having, at length, concurred in this opinion, the siege of Bheker was resolved upon, and immediately When Shah Husein was told that the Emperor had laid siege to Bheker, which, as well as Sehwan, he had placed in the best posture of defence, he is said to have remarked, that he felt quite at ease on that sublect. for that Humayun would not give up the delicious garden in which he dwelt, to go to watch the operations of the siege in the camp over against Blicker, and that

Humáyun lays siege to Bheker

> Scarcity in Upper Sind

was fully verified *

From the time that the imperial camp reached Rohri, multitudes from different quarters seem to have flocked his amirs never would take the place, a prediction which ^{*} Akbernama, f 49, Tab Akb 89, Jouher, 2-9, Tandh-c-Sind, ff 151, 152, Tar Niz ff 188, ff 154, 155

CHAP I

SECT I

to join it The contest in Hindustán had not been merely between two individuals, Humáyun and Shír Shah, it was between two different races, the Túrks and Afgháns When the Emperor and his family were expelled, there was no longer any safety in that country for his countrymen and adherents. Some accounts make the number of persons of every age and sex, who now joined the camp, amount to two hundred thousand, which has an an of exaggeration * The influx of a very great multitude, however, into a country not extensively fertile or well cultivated, and the measures resorted to by Shah Husem for destroying the grain, or preventing its transport to the army, joined to a bad season, soon aggravated the scarcity, which had prevailed from the first, into a famine, so that, all around Bheker, numbers began to perish of hunger † The Emperor opened his treasury to supply the wants of his followers, but every thing speedily rose to an exorbitant price

Humayun had wasted much valuable time, in hopes of procuring a favourable answer from Shah Husein His brother Hindal Mirza had repeatedly asked his permission to attack and occupy the nich province of Sehwan, but was not allowed, that no interruption might be offered to the success of the negociation, which the Emperor had so much at heart That obstacle being now removed, Hindal was at length authorized to icduce the district, and informed that the Emperor himself would soon visit his camp Shah Husein, pursuing the same policy as he had done in regard to Bheker, had fortified the town of Sehwán, and now ordered the whole surrounding country to be laid waste Humáyun, alarmed by some intimations that Humáyun at the camp had reached him, of Hindal's having a design to desert of Hindal from him, and march to Kandahár, quitted for a short

^{*} Tar Sind, f 156

[†] A single loaf is said to have cost a mithkal

A D 3541

воок v time the gardens of Báberlú, in which he had now spent five or six months, and leaving his army to continue the blockade of Bheker, proceeded by Dárbila, where he visited the camp of his cousin, Yadgar Násir Mírza, and stayed two days Three days afterwards he reached Páter, which lies about twenty miles west of the Indus, and was met by his brother Hindal

His marriage to Akber's mother

This visit to Páter is chiefly remarkable for Humáyun's marriage at that place to the mother of the illustrious Akber. During the festivities that attended the Emperor's arrival, Hindal's mother, Dildár Begum, gave a grand entertainment, to which all the ladies of the court were invited, and among them was Hamída, then only fourteen, the daughter of Sheikh Ali Akber Jámi, Hindal's preceptor Humáyun, captivated with her appearance, inquired if she was yet betrothed. and being told that she had been promised, but that the ceremony of betrothment had not yet taken place, "Then," said the Emperor, "I will marry her" Hindal, much offended, observed to his brother, that he had supposed that his Majesty's visit to Páter had been to do him honour, and not to look out for a young bride, but that, if the Emperor persisted in doing any thing so unbecoming, he must quit his Majesty's service Dildar Begum, who overheard this altercation, interposed, reproved her son, and attempted to settle the dispute. But, as Hindal refused to apologise for the unseemly language he had used, Humáyun left the house in high displeasure, and went on board of a boat Dildar, however, followed the Emperor, prevailed upon him to return back, made up the quarrel between the brothers, and next day gave a nuptial banquet, when the young lady* was married, and delivered to the Emperor, with

Early in а и 948, in the summer of ▲ D 1541

Her style after her marriage was Hazret Mariam-makáni, Hamída Banu Begum, Tar Niz f 189

Hamida was of the family of Zhindeh-fil Ahmed Jain,a celebrated saint, Kholaset-ul-Towarikh, f 261

her blessing A few days after this event, Hindal's CHAP L camp having become unhealthy, and a great mortality prevailing, Humayun left it with his suite, and pro- He returns ceeded to the Indus, where he embarked, and sailed up the river to Bheker*

He found his army in great distress, but the evil did not terminate there The signs of ruin and desolution which appeared on every side, joined to the recent Intended quarrel, determined Hindal, who had long ceased to Hindal, serve his brother with much zeal, to come to the resolution of separating from him For some time past Hindal Mírza had been uiged by Kerácha Khan, Kámrán's governor of Kandahár, to repair to that capital, and to assume the sovereignty in the kingdom † In these views he was encouraged by Yádgár Násir Mirza, his cousin and brother-in-law, his great adviser, who agreed to follow him in the adventure cordingly, Hindal having collected all his force, decamped, and took the road to Kandahai, at the same time writing to Yádgár that he would wait for him on the route, and entreating him to lose no time in forming a junction

The news of this movement of Hindal, with information of the designs of Yádgár, reached Humáyun on Jembell I the 8th of September 1541, and led him to apprehend 17 Sept. 8. the total ruin of his affairs He hurried, in alarm, to the house of Mír Abul Baká, his intunate friend, a man of science, and of great weight and influence, both from his personal character, and as being descended of a holy family, and, after a long conference, despatched him to use his endeavours to bring to an accommodation Yádgár Násir, who was at that moment encamped as having for its object to prevent Hindal from accepting Keracha's offers, of which the Emperor had obtained notice

^{*} Tar N1z f 189, Jouher, c. 9, Tar Sind, ff 156, 157 † Nizam-ed-din Ahmed, the author of the Tabakut-e Akberi, f 152, represents Hum iyun's visit to Pater

A D 1541 prevented by the Emperor's concessions about ten kos off, on the opposite bank of the river.* Abul Baká was successful, and concluded a treaty with the Mírza, who agreed to recross the river, and wait upon Humáyun, to remain steady to his interests, and, thenceforward, to do him faithful and active service The return he was to receive, for thus adhering to his allegiance, shows the difficulties to which Humáyun was reduced, when the Emperor reached Kábul, he was to give up to Yádgár, Ghazni, Chirkh, and the district of Lohger, territories which Baber had assigned to the Mírza's mother, for her support, and, when Hindustán was once again recovered, one third of it was to be Hindal's portion. Next day the Mir, having completed his mission, was crossing the river on his way back to Rohn, when the Bheker ment, informed of his mission, and desirous to intercept him, sent out a vessel manned with a strong party, who discharged showers of arrows into his boat The Mir received several mortal wounds, of which he expired on the following day Humáyun was deeply affected by this misfortune, and gave loud vent to his sorrow, declaring that neither the ingratitude of his brothers, nor the treachery of his adherents, nor any of the numerous calamities that had assailed him, had ever unmanned him so much as the loss of this faithful friend Yádgár

Jemádi I. 19 Sept 10

Jemádi I 18

Sept. 17

Násir Mírza crossed the river about a week after, and having ratified the agreement, returned back to his camp

Dismissal of Shah Husein senvoy

At the same time Humayun dismissed Sheikh Mirak, Shah Husein's envoy, with directions to inform his master that the Emperor agreed to all his proposals, but expected that he would evince his duty and allegiance, by repairing to the presence ‡, a test to which,

^{*} Tar Bed f 179

[†] They are said to have been Doulat-shahis and Barghdáis

[†] Akbernáma, f 49, Tab Ak-beri, f 152, Tar Niz f 189, Tarikh-e Sind, ff 157,158, Jouher, p 30, Tar Bed ff 178, 179 in spite of numerous promises, the wary Aighún had no intention of submitting

SLCT I

The Emperor's affins were now in such a situation that his ruin seemed inevitable, unless something decisive could be achieved, and nothing appeared so Humavun likely to ifford relief as an attack on Titta Leaving Schwan Yadgar Násir in the government of Upper Suid, therefore, with directions to prosecute the blockade of Bheker, Humayun proceeded down the river about the Jemadi II end of September He had not advanced far, when numbers of his people left him, and went to the camp of Yadgar, who showed no disposition to send them back Humayun, however, held on in his course along Regel 17. the Indus, and on the 6th of November reached the vicinity of Seliwan

1 acpt. 22

of Schwan

The province of Schwan, which by historians is often Description called also Siwi and Siwistan, is bounded on the east by the Indus, on the west by the Baluch mountains, and on the south by the Lakki range, which runs in upon the Indus It is watered in its whole extent by a branch of that river, called the Anal, which comes down to at from Larkhana Canals from this branch water the fields, intersecting the country in all directions, while, on the west, many streams descend from the hills. It is consequently a well watered, fertile, and prosperous little province The town of Schwan, which also, like the province, is often called Siwi and Siwistán, stands on a rising ground, close to the Lakki hills, on the banks of the Aral, somewhat above where it rejoins the It is commanded by a castle, built on an artificial mound of earth about sixty feet high, surrounded by a strong blick wall that rises from the level of the ground below The Lakki hills, which exclude the refreshing breezes from the ocean, render the climate extremely sultry *

When Humáyun arrived near Seliwan, a party of his

[·] See Burnes's Travels, vol 1 pp 47 50 251

DOOK V A ti 1541

lays siege

troops attacked a body of the enemy, who had issued from the fort, defeated them, and drove them back within the walls Flushed with success, the victors came on board of the Emperor's ship, and represented to him that it would be an easy matter to take the town, which would give them the command of all the surrounding country With too great facility he entered into their views, suspending the march against to which he Tatta, and immediately laid siege to Schwan He probably imagined that it would occasion a delay of but a few days, but here Shah Husein had pursued the same wise policy as elsewhere. He had placed a strong garrison, and a number of his ablest officers, in the fort The country around was reduced to a waste, and the inhabitants and cattle driven away. Even before the Emperor's arrival, the garrison had unsparingly destroyed all the gardens, garden-houses and other buildings, in the suburbs or near the place Batteries were, however, constructed by the invaders, and operations begun and carried on with such vigour that the garrison began to be straitened * Mirza Shah Husein, who had watched the danger as it approached his capital, thought it now time to commence active operations, and marched from Tatta to Sen t, a town on the right bank of the river, not far from the imperial camp, where he entrenched himself and collected a flotilla of ships and boats He nominated Mir Alika Arghún, a tribesman of his own, to the command of Schwan, and ordered him to proceed to strengthen the garrison Mir Alika, seizing a favourable opportunity, passed with his men through the camp of the besiegers, near the bazár, and was not discovered to be an enemy till he had safely entered the Humáyun upon this ordered a mine to be run, place

Approach of Shah Hu scin

Difficulties of the slege

* Akbernáma and Tar Nizumi, and Jouher, as above † Burnes speaks of Sen as a town having at present a population of about 2000 Burnes, 1 p 250 and approaches made with more vigour than ever * In cuse t a short time the mine being fixed, a portion of the wall was thrown down, but to the disappointment of the besigers, is they were preparing to mount the breach, it was found that a new wall had been run up behind Shith Husein incimwhile completely hindered all processons from reaching the imperial cump, either by the river or by land Parties of his troops ranged the country on every side, and want despondency, and discompture seemed everywhere to attend the invaders They found the Arghans brave, and well equipped, and plentifully supplied with all the munitions of war, while their own store of gunpowder began to fail, and they were unable to command the implements necessary for carrying on a suge which, contrary to their expectation was protracted for some months. To add to their misery, the country was overflowed as the river rose, and discuse began to rige. The soldiers, who were without breid, were supported chiefly on the flesh of the camp cattle which they were forced to kill in order to supply their necessities, but, seeing no end to their sufferings they lost heart, and deserted in numbers Such was the pressure of misery, that their example permises wis griduilly followed by several officers, and, ere imperial long, not a few even of the more emment of the camp nobles absconded, among whom Mir Taher is specified, some of them joining Shah Husein, who gave them a favourable reception, while others found their way back to Blicker to Yadgar Nasu Muza, whom they instigated to set out without delay to Kandahar, representing affairs in Sind as utterly desperate

Some time before matters had reached this pass, one Ali Beg Jelár, an old Turki noble, had offered, if allowed only five hundred horse, to fall upon Shah Husem by a forced march, and surprise him where he lay, confident that by such an attack he could discomfit his army But daring enterprises do not suit dispirited troops, and the Emperor found none of his chiefs disposed to join in the adventure

^{*} Akbernama, f 50 , Tab Alb f 153 , Tar Sind, f 159 VOL II

BOOK V

Progress of the siege of Bheker

Yádgár Násir Mírza, when left to continue the blockade of Bheker, had crossed over from the right bank of the river, and taken up his quarters in Kohri harvest that year suffered from the severity of the season, and from the ravages of hostile troops, yet his army had increased in strength The foit of Bheker, as we have seen, is placed on an island in the Indus. where it occupies a very picturesque and a very important situation. It has opposite to it the town of Rohri, on the left bank of the river, and what is now the town of Sakar on the right bank. The river, which is here eight hundred yards wide, rolls past the island in two streams, the one four hundred, the other thice hundred-and-fifty yards broad "The waters lash the rocks which confine them, with noise and violence" "The town of Rori, which faces Bakkar, stands on a precipice of flint forty feet high, and some of its houses, which are lofty, overhang the Indus The inhabitants of these can draw up water from their windows, but a road cut in the rock supplies the citizens with this necessary of life, without risking their lives The opposite bank of Sakkar is not precipitous like that of Roii" $ The garrison of Bheker, who were not disposed to be cooped up without making some active efforts to annoy the besiegers, made two different sallies upon Yádgár Násir Mirza, and twice surprised and cut off a number of his troops A third time they landed from their boats, but were met by the Mirza's men, and a regular action ensued in the sandy plain by the river side, not far from The advantage remained with the besiegers Three or four hundred of the assailants were left dead on the field, some were driven into the river, where they perished, while others succeeded in reaching their boats, and regained the fort. This repulse put an end to these sallies *

CHAP I Srct I

When Humayun found that his difficulties were in- Humayun creasing, and that he was hemmed in on every side by urges Hindal to act Shigh Husein's operations, he had written to Hindal, against Shah Huermestly entreating him to make a diversion in his cin favour, by marching down towards that prince, who would not dare to face him in the field, he added, that he was himself prevented from making such a movement by the certuinty that the fort, during his absence, would receive all manner of supplies, so that the whole labour of the siege would be thrown away. In consequence of this demand, Yadgar despatched a trifling body of 150 horse, under Terdi Beg, to his assistance But it was too late for such a force to be of any service

Yádgai Násir Múza had, before this, begun to play Defection of a double part Shah Husein, who was no stranger to Magar his ambitious views, seized upon the present crisis, Mirza when the affairs of Humáyun were depressed, and those of Yádgár in some degree prosperous, as holding out a favourable opportunity for withdrawing him from his allegiance to his sovereign He had for some time engaged Yádgár in a private correspondence, and now deputed Bába-kuli, his seal-beater, to complete the negociation Shah Husein offered to acknowledge Yádgár as Emperor, to read the khutba in his name, to give him his daughter in marriage, with all his treasure, which was supposed to be very great, and, to complete the whole, the succession to the throne of Sind, as her dower It was artfully represented to the Mirza, that though Shah Husein, who was now aged, had no near relation left to soothe and comfort his declining years, he was not, however, disposed to resign the reins of government while he lived but that it was not necessary for Yádgár to wait the uncertain period of his death, before he ascended a throne that, with the assistance of his father-in-law, he might easily conquer Gujrát, of which he should be put in immediate possession while the whole territory of Tatta would fall to him in the course of nature, on the demise of the Mírza. Yádgár's constancy was not proof against these magnificent offers, and he joyfully acceded to the conditions proposed to him But as he was not yet ready openly to declare himself, and as it was of consequence to amuse the Emperor, he sent forward his camp equipage one march from Rohri, as if he were preparing instantly to set out to join him

^{*} Akbernama, ff 49, 50, Tab Akb f 153, Tar Sind, f 158

Meanwhile, Humáyun, whose difficulties were daily increasing, despatched Abdal Ghafúr, an officer of his household*, to hasten Yádgár Mírza's motions. But the Mírza, having learned from the envoy the disabled state of the Emperor's army, and believing that he had now nothing to dread from his resentment, ordered the tents back to the city. It was at this crisis that, at the desire of the Arghún prince, he seized a ship that was on its way down the river, loaded with grain and provisions for the supply of the famished camp, and delivered it into the hands of Shah Husein, who put the crew to death

Shah Huscin selzes the Emperors flotilla, Shah Husein, relieved from the fear of any trouble some diversion, by his understanding with Yádgár Mírza, was now enabled to bend his undivided force against the Emperor and news soon reached the camp of Humáyun, that the Arghún was on his way up the river with a fleet of boats, in which was embarked a large body of troops, for the purpose of cutting off the Emperor's retreat This intelligence was speedily followed by the astounding information, that the enemy

71kádeh 17 March 3 A D 1542 had seized by surprise the whole of the Emperor's fleet which lay close by the camp, and contained the scanty provision of stores still left for the supply of the army, and so suddenly had this been effected, that some females who were on board, had only time to make Humfyun their escape, half naked, into the camp The siege was from Schimmediately raised, and the army intreated, or rather wan with fled with precipitation, towards Blicker, leaving their his baggage, whole tents, camp equipage, and baggage behind *

CHAP I SECT I

the loss of

A short time before these events, an ambassador who had been sent by Shah Husein to the Emperor, having been plundered by some persons belonging to the camp, Humáyun now sent Monaim Beg, an officer of rank, to offer explanations, and at the same time to urge Shah Husein to cease from the pursuit, and to show some sympathy to his sovereign in distress But the Arghún. who was highly irritated, refused to admit the envoy into his presence, asking what benefits the Emperor had ever conferred on him or his family, that he should now mind his distress Meanwhile, the Emperor continued his retreat, which was hurried and disorderly, every one thinking only of himself, or his own safety Many fell behind, and were slaughtered by the pursuing enemy, others deserted, so that, by the time the Emperor came opposite to Bheker, few of his followers remained with him

Here a new difficulty occurred Humáyun had sent reaches on expresses before him, to desire Yádgár Násir to have boats in readiness to transport his troops, when they arrived, across the river, to Rohri But, on his arrival.

* Albernáma, f 50 , Tar Sind, f 160 , Jouher, c 9 The Taba-kat-e Alberi, f 158 , Tar Niz f 190, says that the siege lasted zeven months If the dates are correct, it could have lasted only four The Tar Bed f 179 makes the siege last eighty days. The waters, however, generally rise in the end of April, from the melting of the snows in the mountains. (See Burnes) The account in the text supposes that they rose in February, so that the Tabakat 18 probably correct, in which case the siege was raised in the course of April

BOOK V A D 1542

no boats were to be found Yádgár had sent privately to invite the Arghúns to come by night, and seize all the boats near Bheker, which they had done To obviate the difficulty and danger of attempting a passage across to the left bank, with the imperfect and uncertain means that he could hastily command, his chief officers advised Humáyun at once to turn off for Kandalahar but he declared that nothers had been acceptable. dahái, but he declared that nothing but dire necessity would induce hun to approach his undutiful and unfriendly brothers, or take refuge in their territories He despatched a party under Roushen Beg, with orders to drive in all cows and buffaloes from the villages for ten or twelve kos around, and of their skins to construct rafts and vessels for crossing the liver These orders were speedily obeyed, and in addition to the conveyances which they afforded, a few boats, which had been sunk in the Indus, were pointed out by two neighbouring zemíndárs, and raised These operations detained Humáyun on the right bank for several days All this while, Shah Husein's fleet was known to be advancing upwards, but, fortunately for the fugitives, the course of the Indus below Bheker is extremely tortuous, and, from the rapidity of the current, the progress of vessels ascending is proportionally wola

Before the rafts could be properly constructed, on the inflated skins of the cattle that had been slain, Shah Husein Mirza had arrived within two kos of the Emperor's shattered party. Numbers of the first detachment that crossed over, fell into the hands of the enemy, who took most of their rafts. This added to the confusion and alarm. The Emperor's followers found difficulty in crossing. Terdi Beg had taken possession of a boat that was lying at the ghát, or creek, on the river side, to convey his people over. One of the Emperor's Ishek-Aghas, or chamberlains, coming up, desired him to quit the boat, and clear it of his goods, conduct The Mírza still continued his secret correspondence with Shah Husein, who insisted that he should give up the two zemíndárs, who had pointed out the boats, in which the Emperor crossed. These men, getting some intimation of their danger, fled to Humáyun's camp. Yádgár requested him to deliver them up, under pretence that he had to settle accounts with them for the revenue of their lands, which lay in his district, and were in arrear. The Emperor sent them with a guard, who had orders to bring them back, as soon as their accounts were arranged. But no sooner had they arrived, than Yádgár took them by foice from the guards, and delivered them up to Shah Husein. Soon after this outrage, he openly assumed a hostile countenance, and never afterwards returned to his allegiance

Humáyun, who by the late events was deprived of such stores as he had previously possessed, and who was in a country where famine raged, procured, with much difficulty, from Yádgár Násir a scanty supply of giain, which was soon consumed. In this exigency, compelled by want, he sent an application by Terdi Beg and some others of his chief officers, to Sultan Mahmúd Bhekeri, the enemy whom he was besieging Mahmúd received the deputation with every honour, presented them with dresses, and gave each of them a sum of money, and a portion of grain He then called a council, at which various opinions were given, but, in conclusion, he sent the Emperor three hundred loads of grain for the use of his household

Disorganization of Humáyun's force But this small provision was soon expended. The camp followers and people of the bazar, seeing this universal distress, gradually went off, and such of Humáyun's troops as did not desert to Yádgár were compelled, from the increasing destitution, to separate, and scatter themselves in small parties over the country, in every direction, in search of food, in which disorganized state they were attacked, and numbers of them put to death by the inhabitants Wherever they had any opportunity of coming to action, they uniformly maintained their superiority but with hunger and want it was impossible to contend, and the brave veterans whitened the plains of Bheker with their bones * Some of them were fortunate enough to make good their way to the surrounding countries, and even the highest of the Emperor's officers, such as Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek, went over to Yádgár, who spared neither promises nor threats to induce Humáyun's remaining followers to abandon their master When he saw them reduced to the last extremity, he sent them an express and open invitation to desert, adding that, as for such as remained in the camp till morning, their "blood must be on their own heads"

^{*} Tab Akb f 154, Tar Niz the first instance, to have been sent f 190. The zemindirs appear, in into the eastle of Blicker

CHAP L Sect L

"After this," says the narrative of the ewer-bearer, "news was brought that Fazáel Beg (who had deserted the day before), intended to seduce his brother Monaim Beg to leave the camp. The Emperor, hearing of this, said, 'Let him come, and he shall meet with his deserts' Having, however, heard that Monaim Beg and Terdi Beg wished to escape, the Emperor sat up the whole night, watching, while these two attended him. When it was morning, his Majesty went to the bath, and desired them to wait his return. No sooner was he gone than the two Begs ran to their horses. Roushen Beg, the wardrobe-keeper†, hastened to inform the Emperor that they were going away. He was sent to call them back, but they did not mind him, so that the Emperor was himself compelled to run and recall them. Seeing no remedy, they came back. Monaim

^{*} Tar Sind, f 160

BOOK V

A D 1542
Threatened attack of Yádgár

Beg was ordered into custody, and Terdi Beg found himself obliged to remain "*

It was impossible for Humáyun long to exist under such painful circumstances He daily discovered new instances of Yádgár's hostility, but such were the difficulties of his situation, that his only chance of accomplishing any thing depended on the junction of the Mirza's forces with his own few and exhausted fol-The Mirza, however, who cherished very different views, had no disposition to meet his wishes He even, at one time, issued out of Rohri, of which he retained possession, intending to attack the imperial camp, and thus finish the contest at one blow. Humáyun no sooner heard of his hostile approach than he drew up his remaining adherents, resolved to sell his life dear In the meanwhile, however, Hashem Beg, a trusty and faithful officer of the Mirza, over whom he had great influence, hearing of his intentions, galloped out of the town after him, seized the reins of his horse, reproaching him with his guilty and impolitic proceedings, and succeeded in making him return back to Rohri *

Despondency of Humáyun Worn out with fatigue, disappointment, and uncertainty, and deprived even of hope, the mind of Humáyun began to sink under the pressure, and he spoke of making the pilgrimage of Mekka, and of adopting a life of piety and seclusion. From this purpose he was diverted by the persuasions and entreaties of the few servants who had followed him in all his changes of fortune, who still continued attached to him, and even now clung to the hope of gaining rank and riches through his means. With tears they entreated him to resign all such thoughts, and to make one more attempt to bring back fortune to his banners, by marching into the territories of Maldco, the Rái of Júdpúr or Marwár

^{*} Jouher's Mem c 9 See also † Tabak Akbers, f 154 Tab Akb f 154, and Tar Bed f 180

CHAP I SECT I I'e retreats

Márwár

Maldeo was, at this time, the most powerful of all the Rapput sovereigns. He was possessed of great Desert of wealth and a very large army, and had added to his hereditary dominions by extending his sway over several of the neighbouring states. He had repeatedly sent to invite Humáyun into his country, professing the most devoted attachment, and offering to support his cause with an army of twenty thousand Raipúts The Emperor's followers flattered him with the belief that Maldeo would be delighted at such an opportunity of meriting his Majesty's gratitude, and that his affairs might still take a favourable turn Yielding to their enticaties, and indeed at a loss what else to do, he finally determined to follow their advice. He made a last effort, however, to work upon Yádgár to join him, but found all his endeavours ineffectual. With a heavy heart, he, therefore, resolved to abandon Sind, and to try his fortune in the deserts of Raputána †

* The Tarikh-e Sind states that at this very time, Humayun received a letter of invitation from Maldeo himself, f 161, and Nizam ed din affirms that he promised to assist him in the conquest of Hindustan, Tar Niz f 191, and Tar Bed f 180

† For the later transactions in Sind, see Akbernáma, f 50 Tabakat-e Akberi, ff 153, 154, Tar Nizami, ff 189-192, Tar Sind, ff 157-161, Tar Bedaum, f 179, 180 , Kholáset ul Towáríkh, f 261. Jouher's 8th and 9th chapters

CHAPTER I

HUMÁYUN'S RESIDENCE IN SIND

SECTION II.

HUMÁYUN IN THE DESERTS OF MÁRWÁR AND IN SIND, A SECOND TIME

MARCH OF HUMAYUN FROM BHEKER TO UCH -- OBSTRUCTED BY BAKH-SHUI LANGA. -- MARCH TO DERÁWAL -- TO THE BIRANÍR AND JUDPÚR TERRITORY - MALDEO AND HUMAYUN SEND SPIES TO EACH OTHER'S HEAD-QUARTERS - INSINCERITY OF MALDEO - RETREAT OF HU-MAYUN - A COVERING PARTY FORMED, AND SUCCESSFUL SKIRMISH OF CAVALRY - HOSTILE EMBASSY FROM JESELMÍR - HUMÁTUN AR-RIVES AT THAT TOWN -- PROCEEDS TO THE GREATER DESERT --EXTREME WANT OF WATER. - SECOND EMBASSY FROM JESELMIR. -- CONTINUED DISTRESS FOR WATER -- THEY REACH AMERICA --FRIENDLY CONDUCT OF THE RANA -ANECDOTES OF HUMLYUN -STAY AT AMERICA - RECENT EVENTS IN SIND, AND PROCEEDINGS OF SHAH HUSEIN - FLIGHT OF YADGAR MIRZA TO RANDAHAR -RESOLUTION OF HUMAYUN TO INVADE JUN -BIRTH OF ARBEIL -DESCRIPTION OF JUN - HUMAYUN'S STAY THERE - INCREASE OF HIS FORCE - APPROACH OF SHAH HUSEIN - DISGUST AND DEFECTION OF THE HINDU ALLIES OF HUMÁYUN — SHAH HUSEIN ATTACKS HIM TINSUCCESSFULLY - BIRAM KHAN JOINS HUMÁYUN - HIS HISTORY -RENEWED SCARCITY IN THE DIPERIAL CAMP - DESTRUCTION OF THE FORAGING DETACHMENT - SHAH HUSEIN PROPOSES TERMS -HUMÁYUN AGREES TO QUIT SIND

A. D 1542. March of Humáyun fromBheker to Uch.

When Humáyun found that he could no longer remain in Sind with safety, he determined to accept the invitation that had repeatedly been sent him by Maldeo, and set out, with the intention of marching to Júdpúr. But as the direct road from Bheker to that place, through the desert, was too dangerous and difficult to be at-afternoon, they were exposed to considerable privations before they reached Mhow where the Bheker territory ended. The same was the case after leaving that town, while they continued their route upwards, through a parched and barren tract, in which they had much to endure from want of every description, but especially from want of water. After a few days' march, however, they arrived at Uch, where they halted and spent about six weeks.

Obstructed by Bakhshul Langa

The ruler of that country, Bakhshui Langa, on whom the Emperor, on his former passage through his dominions, had bestowed the sounding title of Khan-Jehán, or Lord of the World, when now called upon to wait on the Emperor, or to send provisions for the supply of the camp, little pleased with the return of his uninvited guests, not only refused to render any assistance, but offered every obstruction to the people sent out to purchase supplies, so that whatever was procured was taken by force Such was the general distress that the Emperor's followers went out into the jungle, to gather the berries of such trees and shrubs as were in bearing, to assist in sustaining life What was the number of persons that remained with Humáyun at this time, we are not informed *

March to Deráwal But this state of suffering could not be supported for ever Even the scanty supply of fruits and seeds from the forest failed, and it was necessary to move † At directed Other two of the quarters were sent to the imperial kitchen, and the remaining one to the lady exalted as Maríam, Hamída Bánu Begum, who at that time was seven months gone with child of Akber 'Jouher, c. 9 See Stewart's Jouher, pp. 35, 36, which I have altered to bring it closer to the original text

* Jouher, c 9 Jouher particularizes the sanker, or sanger, and the ber trees as chiefly supplying them with sustenance The latter is a wild plum With the former I am unacquainted

† An incident, recorded by Jouher as occurring at this time, more resembles the cruel and tyrannical modery of the princes of Europe in the middle ages, towards their Jewish subjects, than the usual generosity of Humáyun Those who had been sent out to bring in the stragglers, "returned, and reported that a Moghul, to whom the Emperor was in debt, had fallen down his merciful protection, and halted He ordered the water-bags to be filled, and sent back on his own horses to afford rehef to such as had fallen behind, and were perishing for thirst, and to bring them into the camp Such as were still alive were supplied with water, and brought in. The dead they buried This station seems to have been near Wasilpur, in the Bikanir territory *

Rebl II 17 July 31 To the Bikanir and Judpur territory By the 31st of July, Humáyun had advanced within twelve kos of Bikanír Here he was joined by some of the stragglers of his army, who had contrived to reach Bikanír, where they found the inhabitants very ill disposed towards them. As it was of the utmost consequence to ascertain the sentiments of Maldeo, Mír Samander†, in whose judgment the Emperor reposed entire confidence, was despatched to Júdpúr, to Maldeo's court Meanwhile, the camp moved on to Filúdi‡, about thirty kos from Júdpúr, where it halted, and where the troops procured an abundant supply of grain, and of every thing that could recruit them after their toils and sufferings

Maldeo sends spies to the camp The report made by Mír Samander on his return, was by no means favourable—He said that, whatever show and professions of attachment Maldeo might have made, it was plain that they were totally insincere—About this time, a few trifling presents of fruit were sent to the camp by the Rájpút prince—But new causes of suspicion were discovered—The Emperor's little party approached the capital by short stages—A merchant had arrived in the camp, and, among other niticles, exhibited for sale a large and valuable diamond—This excited inquiry—The man was found to be Sangái Nagóri, one of the Maldeo's confidential officers—Humáyun, who had no doubts of the real character of the

Mir Samander the envoy Niz im-eddin Ahmed says it was Atla Khan, the Tarikhe Bedium, Arla Khan ‡ Or Pehludi

^{*} Akbernama f 50 Tab Akb f 151, Far Niz f 191, Jouher, c 10

[†] Abulfazl and Jouher both make

BOOK V A D 1542

the Rái, and now wrote, advising the Emperor to hasten without delay out of his territory Atkeh, the Emperor's envoy to Maldeo, had been carefully watched, so as to prevent his communicating any information to his master, and was, in reality, in a sort of free custody Suspecting something wrong, however, and displeased with what he saw, he secretly left the city without taking leave, reached the camp, and confirmed the Emperor in the belief of his danger There was now no time for hesitation * The Emperor, believing that Retreat of Maldeo was bent upon his destruction, commanded a retrograde movement, and resolved instantly to proceed to Amerkot, by the route of Jeselmír.

Humayun

"The real intentions of Maldeo," says Abulfazl, "remain a matter of uncertainty Some contend that he was, at first, really well inclined towards the Emperor, while others are as decided that his professions of service, and his humble letters were, from the first, wholly deceitful and false" But the observations of Nizam eddín Ahmed, perhaps the best historian of the period, seem to afford the real explanation of his conduct When Humáyun was expelled from Hindustán, and, Shir Shah extended his conquests on every side, the Afghán and Ráipút princes were brought into a state of collision Maldeo, anxious to gain support against his powerful rival, invited Humáyun to his aid, as the most formidable enemy whom he could oppose to Shir But when the Rájpút prince saw the Emperor arrive in his dominions with only a small number of followers, and they in the most destitute and miserable condition, and quite unfit to render him any succour, at the same time that Shir Shah, a body of whose troops were in the Nagór district, and threatened his frontier, had sent him ambassadors requiring him to seize and

Ferishta, vol 11 p 92, Kholáset-* Akbernáma, f 51 , Tabak Akberi, f 154, Tar Niz f 191, Jouher, c 10, Tar Bed f 180, ul Towarikh, f 261

deliver up Humáy un, urged by the promises and threats of the Afghán, and looking upon the affairs of the Emperor as totally ruined, he departed from his original intentions, and altering his conduct, resolved to give him up to his mortal foe *

When the camp was once more in motion to return back, the Emperor sent out Roushen Beg and Shemsed-din Muhammed Atkeh, to seize and bring in some of the inhabitants of the country, to act as guides accordingly brought in two ment with their camels; the camels his Majesty ordered to be picketed with his own cattle, and the men to be placed in custody, and their swords taken from them He made a Kázi, who was with him in camp, and knew their language, explain to them, that no harm was meant them, and that they would be well rewarded for acting as guides to the camp The men remonstrated, and said that they were poor villagers, and totally ignorant of the road to Amerkot They were, however, detained, and, as is usual enough in such cases, treated as being spies, or as men who stubbornly and perversely concealed what they knew, and they were threatened to be put to death Driven to despair, the men contrived to free themselves from custody, snatched a dagger and a knife from two of the bystanders, and before any one was aware of danger, attacked and killed Tersún Beg, who had charge of them, and then rushing to where their own cattle were tied up, stabbed them, as well as the other animals picketed along with them, among which were a riding horse and mule of the Emperor's, and so despenately did these wretched men use their weapons, that they killed or mortally wounded a number of men, women, and horses !.

^{*} Tar Nizami, f 191

[†] The Tabakut says that these men were spies seized in the camp, and that one of them was directed to be put to death to intimidate the other, f 155 The Tar Bed f 180, also calls them spies

[†] They are said to have killed seventeen hving beings, men, women, and cattle.

before the imperial attendants, who at length surounded them, could put them to death.

This incident spread so much confusion and alarm over the camp, that several of the Emperor's immediate servants spoke of retiring, several did secretly desert, and he had some trouble in keeping the great body of his followers from dispersing. The little camp was, however, at last put in motion. As most of the Emperor's cattle had been slain, and among the rest his riding horse, by these unfortunate men, his grooms went, and demanded several horses and camels of Terdi Beg, who gave a surly refusal. The Emperor, therefore, mounting on a camel, began his march. As soon as Nadím Koka, who was on foot, leading a horse on which his mother was riding, observed the Emperor's distress, he made his mother dismount, presented her horse to the Emperor, and seated her on the Emperor's camel

A covering party formed

As the road they now took was over a loose moving sand, where no water was to be found, they endured much distress, and, to add to their sufferings, reports were constantly brought in, that Maldeo was in pursuit, and his troops close at hand Humáyun, the better to cover his retreat, ordered Ishan Taimur Sultan, Terdi Beg, and Monaim Khan to take a party, and bring up the rear slowly and deliberately, but if the enemy came near, then to attack them without hesitation this manner the whole moved on, and having passed Feliidi, reached Setelmir, in the Jeselmir territory But during the darkness of the night, the covering party lost the road, and separated from the main body, and when morning broke, a suspicious body of men was descried at a distance, following in the track † of the retiring camp

* Jouher says, he had only two horses and a mule left. † Tab Akb f 155, .Tar Bed

------to Innher they consisted of three bodies of five hundred men each. He is the only writer who guesses at numbers

воок у

a n 1542

Hostile embassy from Jeselmer At this station two messengers, sent by the Raja of Jeselmír, met them. They complained, that the Emperor had come into his country, with an armed force uninvited, and that, though no cows were allowed to be killed within his dominions, the Emperor's people were seizing and slaughtering these sacred animals, an act most abhorient from the religion and feelings of Hindus. They added that this could not be permitted, and that his subjects would obstruct the passage of the imperial camp, wherever it moved. A consultation was held, when it was resolved to detain the envoys without returning an answer, and, having taken a supply of water, to march forward on their dreary journey.

Humbyan arrives at that town Jemádl I 1 Augt 13

They reached the neighbourhood of Jeselmír on the 13th of August The Raja, Rái Lankern, who was little pleased with their visit, had placed a body of men to keep them off from the tank, which lay without the walls of the town Many of Humáyun's followers had already dropped down, worn out and exhausted by thirst and fatigue, in passing over the sandy desert But, as the rest came up, they attacked the enemy, and after a contest of some hours, drove them away, but not without considerable loss on their own part. The natives retreated into the fort

Advancing about five kos, they came upon a village, where they found abundance of grain and water, but no inhabitants

Proceeds to the greater Desert After this, they entered a country where the oases were fewer, and the desert more dry and desolate than any they had yet passed. To add to their distress, the Rái had ordered his son, Maldeo*, to precede their march, and fill up the wells with sand, which he had done. They seem now to have gone on for three days before they met with water. At the end of their first stance that seems to have produced confusion in the narrative of some historians of these transactions.

^{*} The name of the Raja of Judpur, as well as of the son of the Rai of Jeselmir, was Maldeo, a circum-

воок у л в 1542 with thirst, threw themselves at the same time upon it, so that the 10pe broke, and the vessel fell down into the On seeing this, the perishing expectants raised a shout of despair, and some in their agony plunged in after it When the water at length began to be brought up, the crowds around strove and fought for it, and there was not found enough to supply them all well had been reserved for the imperial household, but the artisans of the court, who could not be supplied, went in a body and complained to Humayun, that Terdi Beg was supplying his horses and camels with water from his well, while they were dying of thirst* The Emperor, riding up to the Beg, addressed him in Turki, his native tongue, and requested that he would allow his servants to draw water for themselves for one hour, to which the Beg agreed The distress was, however, unspeakable, many fell down and died, before they could get a drop to quench their burning thirst

Second Embass) from Jeschnir

At this time a son of the Rái made his appearance, bearing a white flag When admitted to an audience, he complained that Humayun had entered his father's dominions in a hostile manner, but assured him that, had his coming been known, the Rái would have re-He comceived him with every mark of hospitality plained of the excesses of the Emperor's followers, and He added of the confinement of the two messengers that, if the Emperor would halt a short time where he was, a sufficient number of bullocks and buckets should be sent, to enable him to draw up the water advice of Terdi Beg, the two envoys were released Having ascertained that, at the next stage, there was only one well, the Emperor divided his little camp into three divisions, which he ordered to move forward on three successive days, so as to have the benefit of the water in turns The first division was led by the Emperm attended by Terdi Beg and Ishun Tannur Sultan, the next by Monam Beg, the third by Sheikh Ali-Let in spite of this preciation the seircity of water viss verely felt and numbers perished of thirst. We are told that, at this time, a part of the royal army, probably one of the three divisions, about mid day, re ched a pool of water when the horses and camels, which for some days had had little or no water could not be reserrined from rushing into it, to appeare their thirst and drink to such excess, that many of them died

Continued distress for water

The I'mperor had now arrived within ten los of Trojugah Amerkock, but the nature of his reception there was probably still uncertain. Me inwhile, protracted misery had le elled all distinctions of rank and, in some minds had destroyed even the feelings of common courtesy. The horse of Roushen Beg having broken down on the march, he went and asked the Begum for the horse y luch he had given her. When notice of this was carried to Humayan, he alighted, sent his own horse to his wife, and after marching for some distance on foot mounted a cancl belonging to the ewer department. After he had ridden in this way a couple of miles, Khalid Beg, the son of Khwaja Khalifa, hearing what had occurred, rode up and presented his horse to Humayun, who continued on his course, and the same Jemail I dry entered Amerkot, accompanied by only seven horse- 10 August men. Most of his followers dropped in, singly or by twos and threes, in the course of the day

The Rana †, from various encumstances, was well Friendly disposed towards Humáyun. As soon as the Emperor of the Rana irrived, he sent his brother to wait upon him, to apologise for his not himself appearing that day, it not being a lucky one, but promising to attend him on [.] The Inbakat calls Amerkot a called Rana, by the writers who hundred los from Latta speak of him

[†] The ruler of Ameri of is usually the day following Next day the Rána accordingly visited the Emperor, and explained to him his situation. He said that his principality was small and barren, but that he had two thousand horsemen of his own tribe of Sodhas, and that to them five thousand Samicha horse of his allies could be added, all ready to follow his Majesty, and devoted, heart and hand, to his service, and that, assisted by these, the Emperor might conquer both Tatta and Bheker. The Emperor thanked the Rána for his ready zeal, and gave him to understand that, though unfortunately he did not himself at that moment possess the means of fitting out and paying his allies, he did not despair of speedily falling upon a method of acquiring them

Anecdotes
of Humáyun

The minute details of the Emperor's conduct at this period have much in them that is curious and interesting, as exhibiting his sanguine and thoughtless temper. When the Rána retired, as Humáyun possessed no change of apparel, he was compelled to undress that he might give his clothes to be washed, and, in the meanwhile, sat down in his bathing-gown. A bird happened to fly into his tent. Struck with its appearance, he caused the door to be shut, and the bird was taken. He called for a pair of seissors, and having cut its wing, made a painter take its likenesss, after which he let it off into the desert.

The historians of his reign tell us, that at this time, he borrowed a sum of money from Terdi Beg and some others of his followers. The mode in which this loan was effected, is not mentioned by these historians, but is described in all its particulars by his ewer-bearer with graphic simplicity, and is highly characteristic of the shifts to which Humáyun, in his difficulties, thought himself entitled to resort. When he had told the

* Abulfazl launches into an exclamation against Terdi Beg and the Amírs, whose avance compelled him to resort to force Nizam-eddín Ahmed, with more moderation, merely says that Humáyun levied a

A D 1542

Stay at Amerkot.

Humáyun remained about seven weeks at Amerkot, to recruit and refresh himself and his exhausted fol-During this time, he received every assistance from the Rána that his limited means allowed, and got some information of the transactions that had taken place in Sind, after his departure from Rohri

Recent events in Sind

Beginning of Moharrem

Mobarrem 21 - 24

Proceedings of Shah Huseln

We have seen that Shah Husein Mirza, after forcing the Emperor to raise the siege of Sehwan, had failed in his attempt to intercept him in his retreat. As long as he had any apprehensions of Humáyun, he continued to court Yádgár Násır Mírza, and to buoy up his mind with the hopes of succeeding him in Sind, as his son inlaw, and even of placing him on the throne of Gujiát and of Delhi itself Yadgar, lured by these promises, had treacherously renounced his allegiance to Humáyun, and, about the middle or end of April, had crossed over to Saker on the right bank of the river, and sent some of the cannon and guns belonging to his division into the fort of Bheker Humáyun had been compelled to leave Rhori on the 7th of May, and, on the 10th, Shah Husein, having ascertained that he was really on his way to Uch, repaired to Bheker in person The keen and sagacious, but stern and cruel, Arghún examined every department, and the condition of every thing, with his own eyes He sharply reprehended the governor, Sultan Mahmud Bhekeri, for the waste committed on the corn in the granaries, and especially for having employed it, to feed his own enemy Determined to make an example, though unwilling to punish that nobleman personally, he impaled the probably innocent storekeeper before Mahmúd's gate Malek and Umcr, the two chiefs who had assisted Humáyun to cross the river, by discovering to him where some boats were sunk, and whom Yadgar had basely seized and de livered up, he commanded to be flayed alive before the gates of Saker After Humáyun's departure, the camp followers, and men of every class, who had been unable to accompany the Emperor in his flight, scattered in consternation and despair over the surrounding country Yádgár, whose importance was destroyed by the departure of the Emperor, shared the fate of traitors who cease to be necessary, he saw every promise made to him broken, and hardly two months had elapsed after Humáyun's departure, before he was glad to flee from Sind *, and to take the road to Kandahár He arrived near that city when Káinrán was besieging Hindal, and had reduced it to extremity Yádgár accompanied Kámián to Kábul, whence that prince despatched ambassadors to Shah Husein, to request that he would send back his sister Shehi-Bánu Begum, Yádgár's wife, with hei son Mírza Sanjer The Arghún instantly complied, and sent them forward by the barren wastes and wild passes between Sind and Kandahar, with every outward mark of honour, accompanied by a number of the stragglers and others who had separated from the Emperor in Sind, and still survived in that territory But, says Abulfazl, he committed an error, intentional or not, in sending them through that desert tract, which is destitute both of water and forage, unprovided with sufficient supplies, so that numbers perished, and those who reached the town of Shal, in addition to all their other sufferings, were seized with inalignant fever, by which, among others, the princess was carried off, so that, of two or three thousand persons who were in the caravan, very few survived to reach Kandahár Shah Beginning Husein, having remained near Rohri till the middle of July, and put every thing in order, went down to Sehwant, where he stard a week, to see that the

^{11 ,} Tarikh-c Sind, ff 161-3 , Perishta, vol 11 p 92-95 , I ar Bedaum, ff 180, 181, Khol iset-ul Founrikh, f

CHAP I SECT II

Flight of Yádgár Mirza to Kandahár

* Jouher says, he was not allowed to leave Sind till he had paid a sháhrukhi for every man, seven for every camel, and five for every horse that accompanied him, probably as if he had been a common traveller or merchant, Tar Sind, f 163, Jouher, c 13 † Akbernáma, f 56

breaches and damage done to the walls were properly repaired, and then went on to Sen.

While Humáyun remained at Amerkot, he held consultations as to the course which it was most expedient for him to follow It would appear that the Raja, Rána

Resolution of Humáyun to invade Jún Parsád, had not been long in possession of his principality, and looked to the Emperor for assistance in maintaining himself against Jáni Beg, the chief who had been dispossessed, as well as for taking revenge on Shah Husein, who had put his father to death. The Rána strongly recommended an invasion of Lower Sind, and, as the first step towards that attempt, an inroad into Jún, the inhabitants of which, being ill-affected to the Arghúns, would certainly join the invaders. The small and barren district of Amerkot was not a fit place.

Rejeb 1 Oct 11

Rejeb 5 Oct 15 Birth of Akber self set out on his expedition. Four days after, on Sunday the 15th of October, in this solitary castle, surrounded on every side by sandy deserts, Hamída Bánu Begum gave birth to a prince, who was afterwards to be the Emperor Akber, the ornament of his line and family * for the lengthened residence of a prince like Humayun It was accordingly resolved to march towards Jún with their united forces And the Raja, having been prevailed upon to withdraw his people from the castle of Amerkot, the Emperor, on the 11th of October, placed in it Hamída Bánu Begum and the rest of his family, with such attendants as he could spare, under the charge of Khwája Moazem, Hamída's brother, and him-

The Emperor learned the joyful tidings from Terdi Beg Khan, at the first stage, about twelve kos from Amerkot, where he was still encamped "As soon," says one who attended him, "as the Emperor had finished his thanksgivings to God, the Amírs were introduced, and offered their congratulations. He then called Jouher, and asked, what he had committed to his charge Jouher answered, two hundred Sháhrukies, a silver wristlet, and a musk-bag, adding that the two former had been restored to their owners His Majesty inquired the reason of this, as they had been given to him to keep Jouher said, that, in doing so, he had obeyed his Majesty's orders On this, the Emperor ordered the musk-bag to be brought, which was done Having broken it on a china plate, he called his nobles, and divided it among them, as the royal present in honour of his son's birth They offered their congratulations, with prayers and good wishes for his prosperity, and that of the imperial infant. At that station they continued the rest of the day, and had such rejoicings as circumstances allowed This event diffused its fragrance over the whole habitable world " * So unpromising were the circumstances that attended the birth of one who was to become the most imagnificent Sovereign of his age

SECT II

The same day after evening prayers, the Emperor decamped, attended by his own faithful Chaghatáis, and a number of the Amerkot Rána's men, and in five

marches arrived near Jún

The district of Jun lies to the north-west of the Ran, Description on the western limit of Cháchkán, near the eastern branch of the Indus, which, after traversing the desert, forms the western boundary of Kach The territory of Jún is intersected by numerous smaller branches of the river, that divide it into many islands and districts which, at that time, were highly cultivated. It abounded with all the necessaries of life, and for the beauty of its gridens, and the excellence of its fruits and reger table productions, excelled every other part of Sind. The nature of the ground, broken and defend by so many streams and artificial canals, joined to the brokers.

of the inhabitants, seems long to have secured to its population the same blessings of independence that were enjoyed by their neighbours, the inhabitants of the wilder and more barren portion of Cháchkán

Skirmish of cavalry

When Humáyun arrived in this quarter, he found Jáni Beg, the former possessor of Amerkot, and a noted marauder, lying in the neighbourhood of the chief town of Jun, with a formidable body of horse. He sent forward Sheikh Ali Beg with a hundred of his old adherents, and a party of five hundred of the Rána's Sodha horse, and himself followed with his remaining troops Sheikh Ali, naturally bold, and trusting to be supported, charged the enemy as soon as he came near them, and entirely broke and dispersed them, before the arrival of the Emperor, who ordered all the prisoners to be put to death From the field of battle Humáyun moved on to the town of Jún*, where he pitched his tent in a large garden, beside which the zemindárs or chiefs, who had joined him, encamped He dug a deep trench round the whole, so as to form a respectable fortified camp In this position he remained for nearly nine months, during which time he invited all the neighbouring Rajas, or chiefs, to join him, and, in consequence of this invitation, the Rais from the country of the Sodhas, the Samichas from Kach, and the tribesmen of the Jám, who formerly were rulers of Bheker, waited upon him, so that his army at one time consisted of no less than

Humbyun at Jun

Increa e of

*When Jun was taken, two rather noted persons fell into his hands "During the period that the Emperor besieged Schwan, there was a musqueteer in the fort, who never missed his aim. H. M. said, 'I hope I shall one day get hold of that fellow' He sometimes also used to say, 'I wish I could eatch the man who drew the sword from under me, half way out of the scabbard' It happened that both of these men were in Jun, when we took it, and having met in a búzehshop, were boasting of their feats of bravery. Their conversation being overheard, they were seized, and brought before the Emperor, who, after inquiry, ordered the musqueteer to be put to death, but forgave the thief, and made him a handsome present. Stewart's Jouher, p. 46, a little altered. Many will differ from the Emperor in his ideas of distributive justice.

fitteen or sixteen thousand horse. And here, about the beginning of December, he was joined by the infant Akber and the whole party from Amerkot *

CHAP I STCT II

Ind of Shullin, bealinning of Dec

Approach of Shah Hu cln

As soon is Shih Husem heard of this new approach of Humayun to his dominions in one quarter, hardly six months after he had left them in another, he histerical to meet the coming danger, and soon appeared with a formidible irmy on the brinch of the Indus that was nearest to Jun, and pitched his camp on the opposite bank, four kos from that place

While the two armics by in this situation, skirmishes duly occurred. But the contest was an unequal one Mirza Shah Husem had all the resources of his kingdom behind him, while, to Humiyun, the loss of any one of his old adherents, in whom his real strength consisted, was irreparable

The Mirza added artifice to force. He made an attempt to detach from the Emperor's interest such allies is had joined him. To the Ran i of Amerkot he privitely sent a complimentary and flattering message, with a dress of honour, a rich dagger, and other presents, inviting him to abandon the Emperor's interest These the Rana carried to Humayun, who directed his illy, in proof of his contempt of the donor, to employ them in dressing up a dog, by Musulmans held to be an unclean animal, which he did Shah Husein felt deeply hurt by the insult

But the cause of Shah Husein was soon more effectually served by the habitual and uncontrollable arrogance of Musulmans towards Hindus of every rank One of them, Khwaja Ghazi, insulted the Rana of Amerkot, who, meeting with no redress, left the camp in disgust with all his followers, declaring that to attempt to please Moghuls † was only labour lost

Disgust and defection of the Illindu allies of Humay un

^{*} Akbarnáma, f 51 , Tar Sind, f 161, Jouher, c 12 The Lin- ghul was already used to denote all press's party left Amerkot, Shában 11 (Nov 20)

[†] Here we see that the term Monorthern men

BOOK V A D 1542 defection was instantly followed by that of all the native chiefs, whom the Emperor in vain attempted to soothe, and Humáyun was once more reduced to his own few, though brave, adherents, some of whom, and among the rest Monaim Khan, (who at a future time was destined to be prime minister of the empire) in despair deserted from his camp, and joined the Mírza The news of the desertion of the Emperor's allies Shah Husein attacks him unsuccessfully The news of the desertion of the Emperor's allies encouraged the Mirza to make an attempt to surprise, or to force his position but Humáyun, having received intimation of the design, had taken such effectual precautions, and so completely defended the camp by new trenches, that the attempt was defeated, though not without serious loss on the Emperor's side.

Biram Khan joins Ituméyun Moharrem 7 A. H. 950, April 12 A D 1548 His history

It was at this season of growing distress, that the celebrated Biram Khan arrived, very unexpectedly, in the imperial camp After the disastrous battle of Kanáuj, which had finally ruined the fortunes of Humáyun in India, that nobleman, escaping from the field of carnage, found refuge in Sambhal with Raja Matter-Sín, one of the chieftains of the country Shír Shah, hearing of this, sent to demand that he should be given up, to which the Raja, unwilling to incur the weight of that prince's resentment, was obliged to assent Biram Khan was, accordingly, conducted to the royal camp, during Shir Shah's campaign in Malwa The King treated him with marked distinction, rose when he was brought in, embraced, and addressed him in the most flattering manner In the course of conversation, Shir Shah happening to observe that where attachment to a master is real, and proceeds from the heart, it never alters its course, Biram Khan rather emphatically replied, "Your Majesty's observation is just, real attachment can never change" With much difficulty he effected his escape, near Berhánpúr, in company with Abulkásım, who had been governor of Guáliár under Humáyun, and they took the road to Guirát. As they travelled along, an ambassador of Shír Shah's, who was on his way back from that country, having heard of Biram Khan's escape, and that some person of distinction was lurking in the neighbourhood, sent a party of his escort, who seized Abulkásim, a nobleman remarkable for his fine countenance and noble deportment Biram Khan, seeing their mistake, with his usual high spirit and honourable feeling exclaimed, "I am Biram Khan" But Abulkásım, eager to preserve his friend, with much presence of mind interposed, and coolly observed, "See how my faithful servant, to save me, is willing thus to run into danger! Do him no injury, poor fellow! Let him go" Biram Khan was accordingly turned away, and reached Gujrát, where he was well received by Sultan Mahmúd, who then filled Abulkásım was carried before Shír Shah, the throne who, insensible to the noble devotedness of his friendship, put him to death Shir Shah often remarked, that from the tone in which Biram Khan assented to his observation that genuine attachment never changes, he felt persuaded he never could gain him Sultan Mahmúd in vain endeavoured to retain Biram in Gujrát He obtained leave to make the pilgrimage of Mekka, repaired to Surat, as if for that purpose, passed over into Kattiawar, and thence, soon after, joined Humayun The Emperor was much delighted on hearing of the approach of so eminent a person, at a moment of such difficulty, and made all the leading men in his camp go out to receive and welcome him *

CHAP I SECT II

But Humáyun felt daily, more and more, that while Benewed the position of his camp made it nearly unassailable, it scarcity in the impeat the same time made it easier for the enemy to cut off rial camp This difficulty was not felt as long as he had the tribes of the desert for his friends But since they had abandoned him, he was compelled to send out his own retainers in greater numbers, and to greater distances than before, in order to secure the needful provision of grain and other necessaries. In a short time, all the nearer sources of supply had failed. In this exigency, hearing that there was a castle in the Thati, which contained an ample store of corn and other necessaries, and that it could be reduced with no great force, he detached Sheikh Ali Beg Jeláir on the service, and that officer succeeded so far as to send back considerable supplies to the camp But Shah Husein, having been informed of his motions, ordered Isa Terkhan, one of his generals, to march and attack the detachment, and cut off all supplies of grain from the imperial camp That officer showing some hesitation, the duty was committed to Sultan Mahmud Khan Bhekeri, who till now had remained in disgrace, and who, anxious for an opportunity of recovering the prince's favour, gladly accepted the command, and marched to the relief of the castle, while Shah Husein, to divert and occupy the Emperor's attention, pressed upon the imperial aimy more closely than ever, both by land and water, and engaged it in daily skirmishes Emperor, however, having heard of the march of the detachment that was sent against Sheikh Ali, despatched Ishan Taimur Sultan with a reinforcement to his assistance As Sheikh Ali was superseded in the command by Ishan Taimur's arrival, he was much offended, and the circumstance produced a very unseasonable quarrel between these two officers Sheikh Ah, it would appear, was desirous of avoiding a regular conflict

Humáyun, meanwhile, tired of being shut up more closely than ever within his intrenchments, and seeing no prospect of effecting any thing by the defensive plan of operations to which he was reduced, had determined to hazard a battle "At this time," says Jouher, "II M said, Shah Husein has advanced three or four times in battle-array, to fight If he comes back to morrow morning, I will march out and attack him" CHAP I With this intention he repeated the Fátehi*, and changed the unfit for better horses His resolution was to fight on the morrow It was the holy month of Ramzán, and after breaking his fast (at sunset), one watch of the night had passed, when a person came from the river-side, and said, "There is some one on the other bank who calls for a boat" H M said, "Ask his name, who calls for a boat at so untimely an hour" They asked, "Who are you, that want a boat?" He answered, "I am Ishán Taimur Sultan" This was reported to the Emperor, who said, "God grant that all may be well!" A boat was sent across, and Ishan Destruction came before the throne, where he told of the death of of the forag-Sheikh Ali Beg, and his own defeat "† ing detachment.

It would appear that Sultan Mahmúd Khan, having been joined by some of the neighbouring tribes, watching his opportunity, one moining about sunrise, made an unexpected attack upon the imperial detachment The combat was desperate, and bloody It is insinuated that Terdi Beg ‡, who probably commanded in the name of Ishán Taimur, acted but remissly Sheikh Ali, with his sons and retainers, stood firm, and fell fighting bravely The loss was great on both sides, but especially on that of Humáyun

* This is a solemn prayer from the Koran, and is generally repeated when danger is apprehended

† Jouher, c 12

‡ Tar Sind, f 164 Terdi Beg is repeatedly mentioned as behaving ill, especially by Abulfazl, who writes of him with great bitterness But, as he was put to death by Biram Khan, whose panegyrist that writer is, some doubts may be entertained of the historian's impartiality especially as Terdi Beg, on many occasions of danger and difficulty, is represented as comporting himself bravely, and bearing the brunt of the action He was one of the oldest of the Chaghatán nobles, and perhaps next in importance to the Emperor He stood in the way of the able and ambitious Biram Khan's power, the Fransoxian chiefs looking up to him, as those from Persia did to Biram Khan The consequences were seen in the next reign. It was a favourable circumstance for Biram's fame, great and undoubted as his merits were, that the historians of the age were, in general, Persians, or the immediate descendants of Persians

On learning these events, and especially the death of Sheikh Ali, the Emperor was affected, and agitated beyond measure Shah Husein Mírza, on his part, had, like the Emperor, been preparing for a battle on the following morning. His troops had buckled on their armour, and his men were ready to mount, when a deserter from the Emperor's camp arrived with information that Ishán Taimur had been defeated, Sheikh Ali slain, and that Humáyun had resolved to lead out his troops and attack the Mírza in the field, that very day. The Mírza, apprehensive of the efforts of men driven to despair, and hoping that the Emperor would now at length be disposed to make peace, did not, for the three following days, draw out his troops as usual. At the end of that time, Shah Husein sent Báber

Shah Husein pro poses terms

Humáyun agrees to quit Sind

Rebi II 7 July 10 At the end of that time, Shah Husein sent Baber Kuli, one of his chief officers, on a mission to the Emperor's camp Humáyun, as the Mírza had foreseen, was now determined to quit Sind An agreement was speedily concluded The Emperor, on the one hand, agreed to quit the territories of Shah Husein, while Shah Husein, on the other, consented to supply him with thirty boats to convey his effects from the present camp, and with 100,000 mithkals in money*, 2000 loads of grain, and 300 camels, to be delivered to him at the village of Runái, when he had crossed the Indus, to enable him to proceed on his route to Kandahár These terms being arranged, the Mírza gladly furnished him with a bridge of boats to cross the arm of the Indus at Jún And, accordingly, on the 10th of July, Humáyun marched with his whole army from the camp which they had so long occupied, and crossed the river in two days. The conditions agreed upon were faithfully and joyfully observed by Shah Husein. The provisions and cattle for transport were brought to Runái, and divided among the troops, and from thence the camp moved on to Sehwán, where Humáyun made every thing ready for leaving Sind, after having, on the whole, tarried two years and a half in it and the adjoining country *

^{*} Some historians omit the money, which is mentioned in the Tarikhic Sind

CHAP I. Sect II

* The transactions in Sind and the Rájput desert are recorded by Abulfazl, Akbernáma, ff 50—2 in the Taríkh-e Akbern, ff 154—6 Tar Niz f 192 Ferishta follows briefly, vol ii p 91—5, and the Tar Bedaum, ff 179—182, Jouher, who was with the Emperor, records them in his 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12th chapters. His account, however, being written from memory at the distance of many years, though lively, does not furnish dates, and perhaps sometimes transposes events Abulfazl, who wrote from excellent reports, though able, is laudatory, and too desirous to conceal the faults of his patron's father The Taríkh-e Sind, ff 161—165 is valuable, as occasionally giving the Sindian Story

CHAPTER I.

HUMÁYUN'S RESIDENCE IN SIND

SECTION III

HUMÁYUN'S ROUTE FROM SIND TO SÍSTÁN

RECENT STATE OF AFGHÁNISTÁN — KÁMRÁN IN KÁBUL — ASKERI INGHAZNI. — KÁMRÁN'S EXPEDITION TO BADAKHSHÁN — HINDAI IN KANDAHÁR. — EMBASSY OF KÁMRÁN TO SHAH HUSEIN — MET BY HUMÁYUN — DIFFICULTIES OF HIS ADVANCE TO KANDAHÁR. — HOSTILE PREPARATIONS OF ASKERI — HE ADVANCES TO TAKE HUMÁYUN — HASTY FLIGHT OF THE EMPEROR — ARRIVAL OF ASKERI — AKBER TAKEN, AND SENT TO KANDAHÁR.—HUMÁYUN FLIES TOWARDS SÍSTÁN — TEMPORARHY DETAINED BY A PARTY OF BELÚCHES — PROCEFDS THROUGH THE GERMSÍR. — ENTERS BÍSTÁN

BOOK V

A D 1543, A H 950 Recent state of Afghanistan kamran in When Humáyun gave up all thought of re-entering Hindustán at the head of an army, by effecting the conquest of Sind, he unwillingly turned his thoughts towards Kandahár, which was part of the dominions of his brother Kámrán. That prince, after separating from the Emperor at Khusháb, when compelled to abandon the Penjáb to Shír Shah, had retired to Kábul, where he assumed all the insignia of an absolute and independent king, and made the prayer for the prince be recited, and the coin struck, in his own name, thus renouncing even the nominal supremacy of Humáyun He bestowed the government of Ghazni on his brother Askeri, who accompanied him in his flight, the government of Kandahár was held by Kerácha Khan

Askeri in Ghazni

Mirzi Kunrin, not long ufter his return to Kábul, marched across the Hindu-kúsh mount uns, to chastise Mirza Sulcinian, the ruler of Badakhshan, who refused to acknowledge him, or to renounce his allegiance to the Emperor defeated him in battle, compelled him to submit, and deprived him of a portion of his territory On his return finding that Kerácha Khan had invited Hindal in Hindal Mirza from Sind, and had delivered up to him the country of Kandahár, he raised an army, and marched towards that capital, which he besieged for six months, when Hindil, finding that resistance was vain, igreed to surrender the place, and coming out to meet his brother, resigned himself into his hands Kamrın bestowed the government of Kandahar on Mırza Askeri, ind carried Hindal Mírza to Kábul as a prisoner but after sometime bestowed on him the district of Jui-Shalu, now Jelalubad, in jágir *

Mirz i K'imr in, eiger to draw still closer the bonds I mba y or of union between himself and the ruler of Sind, who saab lin had acknowledged him is his superior Lord, sent Mir Alla-dost a man eminent for his piety, and Abdal Wáhab, who belonged to the family of Sheikh Puran, the great Saint of Sind, as ambassadors, to ask the daughter of Shah Husein in marriage. After Humiyun had crossed the Indus, and begun his march towards Kandihár, he heard, when near Schwan, that these ambas- met by Hu sidors were not fai off, and they also, hearing of his approach, threw themselves into that town Humáyun sent a message to Alla-dost, asking to see him, but the envoy returned an excuse, pretending that the people among whom he was would not suffer him to quit it Leaving the banks of the Indus, Humáyun and his followers now proceeded towards Fatchpur-Gandava After leaving that place, their route lay through a pimeulties

CHAP I SPCT III kámrán s expedition to Badakh-

Kandahar

of his ad

^{*} Akbernama, ff 55, 56 The For Bedaum says, that he gave him Ghazni (probably a mistake), but afterwards took it from him, and made him reside in Mouza-Derwishan, f 181

A. p 15434

vance towards Kandahúr

tract of country, for some days' march desert and waste, and afterwards rugged and mountainous The guides given them by Shah Husein, who had no desire that he should become acquainted with the country, were careful not to conduct them to the best springs or wells *, and the troops suffered much from having only brackish water, or none To add to their distress, the road was infested by banditti, as it has been in all ages, they were chiefly Balúches, who, singly or in bands, hovered around, and plundered, without mercy, all that fell behind in the line of march Jouher tells us that, having fallen somewhat behind, he was attacked and wounded, and the water vessels under his charge carried off, almost in presence of the Emperor The plunder and distress were general, and, as much time had been spent on the march, and the year was on its decline, the country, which in summer is exposed to the Simúm, and the blasting winds of the desert, was now subject to such excessive cold, that the travellers' broth, we are told, was hardly poured out of the kettle, when it became a plate of ice Even the men of most note were ill provided with clothing, to resist the severity of the cold, to which they were here exposed. As an example of their unprovided condition, the Emperor, who happened to have a fur cloak, made it be divided, giving the outside, as a most acceptable gift, to Biram Khan, and the inside, or lining, to an officer of the household After a toilsome journey, most probably through the Bolán Pass, they reached the district of Shál-Mustung, near the northern limit of Baluchistán, and about a hundred and fifty miles from Kandahár, on which it was dependent Hostile preparations of Askeri, Here they encountered difficulties of a different de-

march through such a country might, of itself, account for many of the hardships endured by the Emperor

^{*} Such is the account of the contemporary writers, and from the Mírza's character it is not improbble But the difficulty of the scription Two of the Emperor's servants, who preceded the cump, were carried off from a spring at which they had alighted, by scouts sent out by Jilál-ed-dín Beg. an officer of Kamrán's, who was stationed in that quarter One of the two, however, contrived to make his escape, and, rejoining the Emperor, related both his own adventures, and such circumstances as he had learnt from the conversation of the party that had taken him By this accident, Humiyun discovered that his brothers were aware of his approach, that their hostility was unabated, and that Askeri was not far off Renouncing, therefore, his intention of proceeding to Kandihar, he turned off towards Mustung Some of his followers, however, asked permission to go on to Kındahár, which he granted, and, at the same time, wrote a letter of remonstrance and advice to his brother, which he entrusted to one of them to deliver

When Hum'yun was leaving Sind to march against Kandahár, Shah Husem, desirous of counteracting his plans for retrieving his affairs, had despatched expresses to Kumran and Askeri, to inform them of his movements Kamran instantly sent orders to Askeri at Kandahar, to put that city in a state of defence, and himself to waylay and seize Humayun, at whatever Askeri Mirza, having executed the one part of his instructions, had now advanced considerably on his way to execute the other The Amirs, who formed his court, were, however, far from being unanimous in their opimons Kasım Husein Sultan Üzbek, Mehdi Kásım Khan, and others, advised him not to move against the Emperor, lest that prince, driven to desperation, should take refuge in Persia, a step which might be followed by the most rumous consequences Abulkhair was of a different opinion, and enforced the necessity of seizing Humáyun, and to this opinion Askeri inclined In the morning after the consultation, therefore, the Mirza vances to take Humáyun forward on his route towards Shál-Mustung,

(in which direction he learned that the Emperor, who was not far off, had proceeded,) in hopes of surprising him. After advancing a kos or two, having by this time got into a waste and intricate country, he inquired if any of his followers was acquainted with the road. One Chupi Beháder, an Uzbek, who had been in Kásim Husein Sultan's service, but in this expedition had joined the troops immediately under the Mírza, said that he knew it thoroughly, having often travelled it back and forward. "True," said the Mírza, "you had a jágír in this quarter," and ordered him to ride forward, to reconnoitre along the road, and report what he saw. The man remarking to the Mírza that he rode but a sorry pony*, the Mírza directed Tersún Bulás, one of his attendants, to dismount and lend him his horse, which was stout and swift, and Tersún obeying very reluctantly, was sharply chidden by the prince very reluctantly, was sharply chidden by the prince Chupi, who had formerly served under Humayun in Hindustán, having mounted his fleet steed, rode for some time at a moderate pace, till he had reached the pass of Pekh, in a valley formed by the hills, when, being out of sight, he set off at full speed, and did not halt till he reached the imperial camp, when he alighted at the door of Biram Khan's tent, and at once informed him of the danger that was at hand. Biram Khan, without delay, hastened, by a private road, to the Emperor's pavilion, and speaking from behind the kanáts or screen, informed him of the imminent danger with which he was threatened Humáyun starting up, proposed, with his usual spriit, to meet the attack in arms but the Khan at once convinced him that, from Askeri's overpowering superiority in numbers, there was no hope but in retreat The Emperor upon this, indignantly exclaiming, "Are Kandahár and Kábul for ever to be the cause of contention between me and my un

A. D 1548

Arrival of

Just as Humáyun was setting out, Mír Abul Hasan, the Sadr, who had been sent forward by Asker to attempt to detain the Emperor, by engaging him in conversation, arrived, and proceeded to deliver some complimentary messages on the part of the Mírza Humáyun, however, set off, without paying them any attention Askeri came in sight some time after, and pushed forward a body of troops to surround the camp, intending to cut off all communication with it on every side, and to prevent any one from escaping But he soon learned, with regret, that Chupi Behåder had brought news of his approach, and that the Emperor had already escaped, and fled into the desert He placed a guard, to cut off all intercourse between the two camps Mír Ghaznevi (afterwards Atkeh Khan), under whose care the young prince had been left, presented himself, and was graciously received, the Mirza expressing his regret that Humáyun had gone away, loudly professing that his sole object in coming was to wait upon the Emperor, and to do him every service He, at the same time, sent a camel with fruit for Akber's use But he repaired the same evening to the imperial tents, and, throwing aside all shame, took possession of the baggage, all of which he narrowly examined, causing a list of the articles to be made in his own presence. He, at first, received with civility Terdi Beg and Humáyun's other Amírs, when they waited on him, but next day, they were delivered into custody, and soon after subjected to heavy exactions, many of them perishing in the tortures inflicted on them to extort a discovery of their real or supposed wealth. The young prince was received with every mark of affection and tenderness, and carried to Kandahár by Asker, who delivered him to the charge of his wife Sultanum Begum, but without taking him from the coming in great force," &c Abul- din Ahmed had It carries with it fazl had seen Jouher's narrative. It an air of probability does not appear whether Nizám-ed-

Akber sent to Kandahár

BOOK V д р 1543

Temporarily detain ed by a party of Bilúches of Malek Khatı, a Balúch chief, whom Abulfazl styles the Captain-General of the banditti of the desert This leader being at that moment absent, his people, on finding that it was the Emperor, insisted that the little troop should not pass onward without their master's leave

The Emperor was obliged to comply, and entering the fort, the freebooters salaamed to him respectfully, spread a carpet on which he and Hamída Begum sat down, and supplied the wants of the party with all the hospitality of the desert When day began to dawn, as the Emperor was engaged in his morning prayers, Malek Khati, who had been sent for, returned

The Emperor's peaceable entrance into the fort, which gave him the character of a guest, had roused the robber's sense of honour Saluting the Emperor, and making the usual polite inquiries after his health, the chief informed him, that three days before, an order from Kámrán Mírza had reached him, commanding him not, on any account, to suffer the Emperor Humáyun to pass that way, but to seize, and make him prisoner "But," added he, "now that your Majesty has visited me, on my head and eyes be it Yet it is better that you should ride on, and I will myself conduct you to the borders" Humáyun gladly assented The party was again put in motion, and proceeded about fifteen kos, guided and accompanied to the confine of his territory by the Malek, who there took his leave

Proceeds through the Germsir

On losing the escort of his robber host, Humáyun entered the Germsír*, which lies between Kandahár and Khorásán, and at that time depended on Mírza Kám-Though a very unwelcome guest to Abdal Hai, the governor of the country, who remained faithful to the Mirza, and even punished some of his servants who assisted the Emperor, he was, however, received with a certain degree of respect, and supplied, though scantily,

^{*} Germsir signifies warm country, and here denotes the low tract of land lying on the Helmend with such necessaries as the country afforded It hap char in pencd that Khwája Jilál-ed-dín Mahmúd had been sent into the district by Askeri to collect the revenue mayun opened a communication with him, and succeeded in bringing him over to his interest, so that the Khwaja waited upon him, and presented his Majesty with a large set of tents, besides horses, camels and mules, and such sum of money as he had collected, a most seasonable and acceptable supply, in his present distressed cucumstances, to the Emperor, who bestowed on him what was then little more than a title, the office of Mir Sámán, Sirkár Kháseh (keeper of the imperial stores)

Germsír of Kandahár, in which Humáyun lingered for some days, was subject to that country, but lay close upon Sistán, a province that belonged to the King of Persia, and into which, by merely passing the Helmend, he could easily fly His unhappy and destitute condition preyed upon his mind Worn out by his sufferings, feeling the vanity of past enjoyments, which had vanished from his grasp, and left behind nothing but regret, and willing to turn his eyes from the deary prospect before him, with a feeling common to Musulmans in adversity, he talked of devoting the remains of his life, in some sequestered solitude, to meditation and prayer But the remonstrances of his adherents, powerfully supported no doubt by his hankering after the enjoyments of that world, which he beheved that he was desirous of abandoning, soon recalled him to more active exertions Desirous of ascertaining the sentiments of the King of Persia, the heieditary friend of his family, he addressed to him a letter, in which he explained his situation and his wishes, and Dec. 28 despatched it by the hands of Chupi Behader. He would willingly have remained in the Germsir, till an answer arrived, but Abdal Hai sent to announce to him, that Mírza Kámián had despatched a large body of men VOL II

BOOK V A p 1543 from Kandahár, in quest of him, that, if he remained, nothing could prevent his falling into their hands, and that his only hope of safety lay in passing into the adjoining province of Sistán, where, under the protection of the King of Persia, he would be free from danger. Seeing, therefore, that he could nowhere be safe in the wide-spreading dominions of his father, Humáyun unwillingly crossed the Helmend, and encamped in the Persian territory, by the side of the lake into which that river empties itself—He was hospitably and honourably received and entertained by Ahmed Sultan Shamlu, the governor *

Enters Sistán

> Humáyun did not willingly abandon the territory which he considered as his own, to enter that of the Shah of Persia, a bigot, who was the chief of another sect of Musulmans from that to which he and his forefathers had adhered But he had not a spot on which he could safely place his foot Kamran seemed to have come in his place, and by the extent of his dominions to have become the representative of the Chaghatái dynasty He was master of Kábul and Ghazni, of Kandahár, Khutlán and Badakhshán ruled, with absolute power and acknowledged talent, the empire that had formerly been his, and, in addition to it, the Penjab, and the countries beyond the Indus, which he had wrested from Kámrán In Upper and Lower Sind, Shah Husein Arghún was absolute master Driven from every spot of which he had lately called himself master, and viewing, with the deepest dread, the possibility of falling into the hands of his brother, he resolved to abandon the kingdoms of his father, and threw himself on the dubious and untried generosity of a stranger

* Akbernama, f 53, Tabak Akberi, ff 156, 157, Tar Niz f 194, Jouher, c 13 On the few adherents who accompanied Humayun in his flight from Mustung to Germsir, Humáyun seems to have bestowed the name of Chuli, men of the desert, and to have always treated them with special regard

CHAPTER II

HUMÁYUN IN PIRSIA

HUM (YUN'S RELUCTINGS TO INTIR LERSIN - HIS RECEPTION AND OC-CUI ATIONS IN SIST IN - SI TS OUT FOR HER IT AND MESHIND - RE-GAL INTERTAINMENT BY THE SHALLS ORDERS -STAY AT HERAT AND MESHILD - I ROCLEDS TO JOIN THE SHAH -SENDS FORWARD BIRAM AHAN AS ENVOY -- TREATMENT OF THE AMBASSADOR AT BAZY IN --HUM (YEN AT KAZY IN - DEPUTATION FROM THE SHAH - INTERVIEW OF THE SOVERIGNS - HUM YUN AT THE PERSIAN COURT - IN-TOLERANCE OF TAINASI - GRAND HUNTING PARTY - INTRIGUES AGAINST HUMAYUN - JI ALOUSIES OF THE SOVEREICNS - ATTI METS TO CONVERT HUMINUN TO THE SHIA SECT - LEACUE BETWEEN HUM YUN AND TAHMASP - I APTING FESTIVITIES - HUM YUN PRE-I APPS TO SET OUT FOR KANDAH (R. - RLMARKS ON HIS TREATMENT BY THE SHAH - AND HIS ON A BEHAVIOUR

It was not without great reluctance that Humayun came to the determination of abandoning his own dominions, and trusting himself in the power of a foreign prince, who had pretensions to some part of his territory, and was a bigoted adherent to a sect of Moslemism, different from that to which he himself adhered But he had only a choice of evils left, and he submitted to what he deemed the least

Humáyun s to enter Persia

On entering Sistán, he was received with the greatest His receprespect and hospitality by Ahmed Sultan Shamlu, the tion and oc Humáyun, at first spent much of his time Sistán in the amusements of hunting and hawking, waiting till an answer should be returned to the letter which he had addressed to the Shah He afterwards advanced faither into the province, when the governor brought his mother and wives to entertain the empress Many of Humáyun's late followers, who had been carried to Kandahái, escaped, and, by degrees, joined him in

A D 1544

воок v Sistán Many visitors of note waited upon him out of respect, or from curiosity Among those most acceptable to him, was Husein Kuli Sultan, the governor's brother, who had come from Meshhid, to visit his mother and brother, before setting out on a pilgrimage to Mekka. As he was a man of piety, of learning, and of speculation, Humáyun questioned him minutely as to the tenets of the religious sects that then divided Persia, and especially as to the grand division into Shías and Sunnis, a subject which had become of the deepest importance to the fugitive prince Having one day asked him, what was his own opinion as to the difference between the sects, Husein Kuli answered, evasively but with address, that he had for a long time meditated on the conflicting tenets of these sects, and, during the last five years, had read all the books written by both parties, that the Shias maintain that to curse and ban the three first Khalifs, is an act of piety, and agreeable to God, while the Sunnis hold, that such conduct is the mark of an infidel but that, for his part, he conceived that, if a man conscientiously believed that by doing a certain act, he was meriting the favour of God, this never could mark him out as an Humáyun was pleased with the argument, and with the whole style of Husein Kuh's conversation, and pressed him to enter his service, but Husein Kuh excused himself, on the plea of having made all his arrangements for setting out on the great pilgimage, though he promised to join him on his return from the Holy cities *

Among those who joined Humáyun from Kandahár, were Háji Muhammed Bába Kushkeh and Hasin Koki, both foster brothers of Kamran, who strongly urgid him to march into Zemín-dáwer - at that time a prosince of Kandahar-assuring him that Amir Beg, the other chief officers of the provinces and cities through which the Emperor was likely to pass, commanding them to receive and entertain the imperial guest with every mark of honour, and to furnish him and his retinue with provisions, wines, fruits, and whatever else could contribute to their comfort from stage to stage in the whole progress of their journey. In the firman directed to the governor of Herat, he is enjoined to prepare, for the Emperor's use, five hundred trays of meat of different kinds, besides sweetmeats, and the total number of trays of every description for him and his suite was never to be less than fifteen hundred daily A thousand men on horseback were always to attend him, who were strictly enjoined to prevent all collisions between the natives of the country and the Emperor's servants.*

^{*} Akbern ima, ff 57, 58, Tar Niz f 191, Mem of Pavezid, ff 2, 3

From Farra, where he was rejoined by his own messengers, and by the Shah's ambassadors, who had attended them back from the court, his advance to Herát resembled a triumphal procession. For the space of twelve or fifteen miles before he reached the capital, the whole inhabitants of the nearest towns and villages had been commanded to attend, and line the road, and as he approached Herát, the whole population of the town poured out, and covered the hills and plains, the

* Akbernáma, ff 57—9, Bayezíd's Mem ff 3—5 The Shah's letter to the Governor of Herát is curious, but is illustrative of the state of Persia rather than of India
It describes the presents for the Emperor, consisting of horses, daggers, ornamented swords, housings of cloth of gold, brocades, &c, as well as directions for his entertainment Everything is specified loaves of white bread, baked with milk and butter, tents, table-linen, shects, changes of wearing apparel,
plate, and utensils of all kinds, sherbets cooled in ice and water, fruits, grapes, rose-water, amber, and perfumes, the number of trays of meat. The young prince was to make the Hazáras and Nukderis of the adjoining mountains come down, to the number of 30,000, and attend the Emperor on his route to Herát On every subject, the minutest directions are given Akbernáma, No 1 ff 57—59, No 2 f 119 and seqq Also Bayezid's Mem MS ff 3—10, from which Abulfazl probably copied it tices and house tops, as he passed along. The Amir CHAP II al omia, Muhammed Khan Sheif-ed-din Oghli Taklu, the young prince's Atálík or guardian, and the chief officers of the government, received him at the Púlmálán 11ver, and conducted him towards the city, where the young prince himself, Sultan Muhammed Mirza, the Shah's eldest son, and nominal governor of Heiát, received him in state, and accompanied him to the palace Zikadeh 1 in the Jehán-árá gardens, where he found a magnificent entertainment prepared for him *

Having visited the palaces, mosques, colleges, monas- stay at teries, tombs, and gardens of Herát, then one of the finest cities in the world, and lingered there about a month, he proceeded towards Meshhid, by the route of Jám, where he visited with reverence the mausoleum † of his Empress Hamida-Bánu's ancestor, Zhindah-fil zilhajeh 5 Ahmed Jám, a holy man, to whose tomb pilgrimages were made, as to a place of great sanctity From Jám he went on to Meshhid, where he was received with and Meshthe usual procession and demonstrations of respect, by hid An 951, Shah-kuli Sultan Istajlu Here he remained forty Moharrem 15 April 8 days, and visited the sacred tomb of the Imám Ali

* Akbernama, ff 59, 60, Tab Akb f 157

† "As he visited this tomb by night, the gate was shut door-keeper attempted to open it, but the chain was closed, and the Emperor was informed by him that it was impossible to remove the chain He retired a few steps, but returning, 'O Imám, said he, ' every person who has ever offered up his vows at your shrine has obtained the object of his wishes, your slave has also come with similar hopes to your tomb, in expectation of succeeding in his request?' Having said this, he laid his hand on the door, when, instantly, the chain was unlocked it might even be said it was cut in two on which his Majesty entered the holy tomb, walked round it, and offered up his prayers, after which, he sat down at an appointed place, and began to read the Koran The superintendant of the tomb then said to the Emperor, 'If you like, you may snuff the lamp' His Majesty replied, 'If not too great a liberty, I will do so' The officer said, 'You have leave' The Emperor, therefore, took up the scissors, and cut off the snuff of the lamp, after which, having said his prayers, he came out, but commanded that one of the royal bows should be suspended at the gate as an offcring" Stewart's Jouher, p 6

Reza, which, being a Sunni, he was obliged to do privately and here he appears to have received the first direct invitation from the Shah to repair to Kazvín Advancing therefore by Nishabúr, he visited the turquoise mines in the neighbourhood, and then went on to Sebzáwár Having halted there forty days he resumed his progress, proceeding by Damghán, Bostám, Semnán, and Sefiábád, receiving from time to time as he went along, expresses, which brought him presents of fruit from the court

Proceeds to join the Shah

> The real circumstances of Humáyun's intercourse with Shah Tahmasp cannot be satisfactorily ascertained Abulfazl, whom historians in general copy, jealous of the honour of the imperial family, merely hints at, or altogether conceals, or perverts, any circumstances which were painful or humiliating to the exiled prince Succeeding historians, following his authority, have accordingly been loud in their praises of the magnificent hospitality with which he was received It was not until the publication of the translation of the Memoirs of Jouher*, who attended the Emperor as a domestic servant during his exile, and who tells his plain unvarnished tale, with the unconscious frankness of an aged gossip, on the minutest circumstances of incidents, to which the elegant, but cautious, historian hardly ventures to allude, that it was discovered that Humayun had much to suffer, and many humiliations to endure Indeed, even the proud parade of his entry into the chief towns, was less fitted to please a man, however vain, by the borrowed pomp and show with which he was surrounded, than to humble one of a proud spirit, by a public exhibition of his own misery, and his patron's grandeur

Sends for-

When Humayun reached Kıla Ders near Rei, a by Major Charles Stewart, H E I C S Lond 1832 (Printed for the Oriental Translation Fund)

^{} The Tezkereh al Vákiát, or private Memoirs of the Mogul Emperor Humáyun, written in the Persian language by Jouher, translated BOOK V A D 1544 It is usual for the kings of Persia, during the warm season of the year, to leave their palaces in the cities on the plain, and to retire to cool summer quarters, high up among the lofty mountains which are so common in that country. Those of the Shah were, this year, between Sultanía and Surlik. When Tahmasp set out from Kazvín, he sent directions to Humáyun to remain where he was, till further notice. But he, soon after, sent Babek Beg, to act as the Emperor's Mehmándár, and instructions followed that he should advance to Kazvín, where he was to rest three days, and then proceed on to the camp of the Shah.

During the three days that Humáyun resided at Humáyun at Kazvín Jemádl I July or Augt. (It begins July 21) During the three days that Humáyun resided at Kazvín, he was lodged in one of the royal palaces, and entertained with much splendour. On the fourth day, he set out to join the royal camp, which lay between Abher and Sultanía, and travelled all night. In the latter part of the night, he desired his people to look out for water, that he might halt. While they were so employed, news was brought that Biram Beg was at hand. That nobleman soon after arrived, and observed to Humáyun, that he had advanced rather far, but the Emperor said, he could not go back. The Emperor, having said his morning prayers, then went to sleep, but was soon after wakened by the singing of the Persian pioneers, who had begun to work in repairing the road. Having bathed, and dressed himself, he took his seat in his diwán-khána, or presence chamber, as Biram Beg informed him that a large honorary procession was on its way to meet him. Here he received the vakíls of the Sultans, the Khans, the Mírzas, and the great Syeds in succession, who were all presented, and then setting out, the Emperor

Deputation from the Shah

> sented by all orthodox Musulmans They are occasionally severely persecuted They have been already mentioned, vol 1 p 287, note

^{*} Akbernáms, ff 57, 58, Tar Niz f 194, Tab Akb f 157, Jouher, c 14, 15, Bayezíd, ff 2 —12

met the Sultans, Khans, Mirzas and Syeds themselves curv is as he advanced along the road. When the King's brothers met the Emperor, Behrám Mírza presented. him with a complete diess of honour, and a fiery unbroken steed the latter, with the polite arrogance characteristic of Persians, for the purpose of putting to the test his skill in horsemanship, on which they pique themselves so much Humayun put on the whole of the proflered dress, except the tin, or cap, which, bearing the symbol of the twelve Imams, was considered as indicating an adoption of the Shia faith He then mounted the horse, which fortunately, to then disappointment, proved very manageable in his hands The Emperor now again moved on, and was met by the korchi-báshi (or commander of the guards), who adressed him with a "salam alcikum" (on you be peace) a silutation used among equals, and passed on After him, "a number of inferior people mounted on Kermanian horses came, and made their salute the object of their being introduced was to prove that all the Persius, whether of high or of low rank, were on a footing with our (Emperor) "*

The Shah received Humáyun with honour, and placed the Soverelym on a cushion on his right hand. But his religious religious and long of betraying itself. "After making Jemádl July, and July, and August. of the journey, he said, 'You will put on the táj' (or Persian cap). Humáyun (taking advantage of the ambiguity of the term) answered, 'The the (crown) is a mark of greatness. I will put it on' The Shah, with his own royal hands, then placed the cap on the Emperor's head, on which the Shah, and all the Khans and Sultans raised a shout, calling out, 'Alla! Alla!' and bending down their heads, as in prayer, according to their custom. The Emperor then asked that the BOOK V A D 1541 Mírzas might be allowed to be seated, but was told by the Shah that such was not the etiquette" An entertainment, served by the Emperor's butler, followed The two sovereigns ate together. When it was finished, there was another general shout, and prostration, in honour of the coming of so great a potentate to the foot of the royal throne * To the spectators in general, it must have appeared as if the Indian prince had conformed to the Persian usages and faith

Humáyun at the Persian Court. Humáyun, on leaving the presence, had quarters assigned to him between those of Behrám Mírza and Beder Khan, and was attended home by the Mírza After enjoying the warm bath, he made his hair be cut off, apparently to conform to the Persian costume, and having received three honorary dresses, he put on one of them, and, conforming himself to circumstances with the easy elasticity of his character, passed the rest of the night in jollity and pleasure

Next day, as the Shah marched for Sultanía, Humáyun, having gone out to salute him, was treated with cold neglect and insult. The Persian's arrogance is never displayed more conspicuously than in the advantages which he attempts to gain over an antagonist in the combat of forms, an important part in their diplomacy. Humáyun, much hurt at the slight thus put upon him, as soon as he arrived at Sultanía, went straight to the dome of the shrine of Sultan Muhammed Khodábendeh†, the grand prop of the Shía faith, and there gave vent to feelings of the deepest regret and self-reproach, for having put himself in the power of a

* Jouher, c 14

ing been converted to that religion, when he took the surname of Khodabendeh, or servant of God He founded Sultanía, A. H 704 (A D 1304), and was celebrated for his justice

[†] Sultan Muhammed Khodábendeh (originally called Aljaptu or Uljáitu), was the son of Arghún and brother of Eazan, whom he succeeded as Emperor of the Moghuls He was a zealous Musulman, hav-

He represented to him, that he was not a solitary being, for that the consequences of his fruitless obstinacy would affect, not himself only, but the lives of nearly seven hundred helpless Sunnis, his followers, who must share his fate that the circumstances in which he was placed imposed it upon him as a duty, should he find himself driven to extremity, to intimate his acquiescence, on the reasonable ground that, as he was no longer master of his own actions, he must submit "But what am I expected to do?" said the Emperor "Let the specific demands be brought in writing"*

The Diwán was not long of returning, when he brought three papers from Shah Tahmasp. Humáyun read two of them, which he put aside He was perusing the third, when the Shah himself, burning with impatience, came to one side of the pavilion, and called out something with a loud voice. The Diwán upon this, addressing the Emperor in a soothing tone, told him that there was no going back, and beseeched him to have regard to the circumstances in which he stood. The Shah himself presented him with the third paper, with his own hand, and read it in his presence. Humáyun would seem to have signed it, though the nature and extent of his forced acquiescence are not very clear †

Grand hunting party For his own royal amusement, and to exhibit to the Emperor his power and greatness, the Shah ordered a grand hunting match near the Takht-e Suleimán‡, one

* Tab Akb f 158, Jouher,

† Jouher, c 14, but the account is very confused in the only copy of the original which I have seen, and I am uncertain if I have always caught the sense

‡ An interesting account of Takht-e Suleimán may be found in Major Rawlinson's notes of his journey to the ruins of that place Journey of the Royal Geographical Society, vol x pp 46—57 "In the spring and summer," says that inquisitive and intelligent traveller (p 56), "the neighbourhood of Takhti Suleimán is represented as a perfect paradise The country all around is carpeted with the richest verdure the climate is delightful, of the most be utiful spots in Persia. The game, for several days' journey round about, was driven to a central point by the inhabitants of the country, assisted by the troops, and confined by fences or bodies of armed men. The collection of wild animals thus brought together is described is being immense. When ill was ready, the Shah and the Emperor first entered to a convenient spot within the ring, and when satiated with the eist slinghter of some of the innumerable animals thus presented to them, the royal Mirzas were next admitted, and after them the chief nobles, among whom were Biram Beg and Hap Muhammed Koka, and some others of the suite of the Imperor In the end, persons of every rank were admitted indiscriminately, and the soldiers were allowed to kill and carry off at pleasure A second ring was formed, some days after, near the Houz-e- Sulcanan (Sulcanán's Lake), and after the hunt or shughter there were games of choughan-bizi and kebk-endizi, a kind of horse-shinty, and shooting at a mark, generally a bison, or bird, placed on the top of a high pole, while riding at full speed After some days had been passed in these amusements*, Humayun, desirous of conciliating the Persian monarch, mide up a present, consisting of the largest diamond which he possessed, "worth kingdoms," † and of two hundred and fifty fine Badakhshi rubies, which he sent by Buam Beg, as an offering to the Shah, with a message, that the latter had been brought from and myriads of wild flowers impregnate the air with fragrance. Indeed, there is not considered a more agreeable vailal, or summer pasture, in all Persia.

CHAP II

* A circumstance which occurred at one of these hunts illustrates the lax morality of the Mirzas and the servility of the court Behram Mirza, the king's brother was on bad terms with Abul k isim Khalfa, a Persian nobleman of rank Seizing a favourable opportunity, the Mirza tool a deliberate aim, and shot him with an arrow, during the chase, he died upon the spot. No one dared to mention this murder to the Iving

† This diamond is said to have weighed 4 miskals and 4 dangs Akbernama, f 60, Alemarái Abasi, f. 13

A D. 1544

Book v Badakhshán expressly for the purpose The royal jewellers having declared these precious stones to be above all price, Shah Tahmasp signified his satisfaction, and bestowed on Biram Beg the title of Khan, with the alem-standard and kettle-drum, while Háji Muhammed Koka, who had been successful at the play of keb-k-endázi, was honoured with the title of Sultan These titles, bestowed by one sovereign on the servants of another, were, at least, of an ambiguous nature, and marked an assumption of superiority on the part of the Persian monarch *

Intrigues against Humáyun

For nearly two months after these events, all intercourse, whether personal or in writing, between the two monarchs, was suspended For this, various reasons are assigned It seems that Roushen Beg Koka, and some other Amírs who had been in Humáyun's service, but had afterwards joined Kámrán, returning about this time from the pilgrimage of Mekka, were introduced to the king of Persia Most of them had quarrelled with Humáyun, who had charged Roushen Beg in particular with embezzling some jewels committed to his charge In the course of their intercourse with the Shah, they represented Humáyun as quite devoid of the talents required in a king, and affirmed that, had he behaved properly to his brothers, he never need have left his own kingdom. They farther offered, if Humáyun were imprisoned, to lead a Persian army to Kandahar, which they undertook to deliver over to the Shah A second cause is said to have been the unwillingness of the Persian Turkomán and Túrki officers to serve under Humáyun, whose father Báber, they alleged, had, by his treachery, caused the death of Mir Najm, their countryman and his army, when sent to assist him, and they apprehended that the same fate

the title of Arjemend Khan, Khan-Khánán The Alem-arái mentions that of Khan-Khánán

^{*} Akbernama, f 60, Jouher, c 14, Tar Nız f 195, Khafi Khan, f 184, says that Biram got might probably await themselves if they attended the cove in A third reason, more personal to the Shah, is also mentioned. When Humáyun, sixteen years Jealousies of before, after hiving defeated Behader Shah of Gujrát, elgas returned to Agra, he had, on some occasion, amused himself with the trial of divining arrows, on twelve of the first class of which he inscribed his own name. while on eleven of an inferior soit he put that of Shah Tihmasp, a circumstance which had been repeated to the Persian prince, who, some time before this, had charged him with the offence. Hum yun acknowledged the fact, but accounted for it by saying that, in what he had done, he had looked only to the relative extent of the dominions of the two princes, his being, at that moment, twice as extensive as those of Persia said Tahmasp, much piqued, "and one consequence of this foolish concert has been, that you could not govern these your extensive dominions, but have suffered yourself to be driven from them by a set of clowns, leaving your children and family prisoners behind you"-"We are all in the hand of God," said the Emperoi, "and must submit to the decrees of the Almighty"

This was not the only occasion on which Humáyun's expulsion from his dominions had formed the subject of conversation between the two princes. At an early period of their intercourse, Shah Tahmasp, when consoling his guest, who sat at dinner with him, had encouraged him to hope, in his oriental phraseology, that the sword of the Shah would be the key to open for him once more the doors of the kingdoms subdued by his father Baber, but added, that the real source of all his misfortunes lay in the injudicious way in which he had treated his brothers, whom he had rendered independent that, for his part, he made it a fundamental point of his policy to keep his brothers weak and in subjection to him, and that, unless Humáyun adopted a similar principle, his kingdoms never would enjoy repose After dinner, Behrám Mírza, the Shali's brother, having advanced, according to custom, to present the basin and ewer, Tahmasp observed, "This is the way in which you ought to have treated your brothers," a remark in which Humáyun, warm from the recent conversation, heartily and pointedly concurred The Mírza, offended with the tone of Humáyun's assent, never forgave him, became his bitter enemy, and did all in his power to injure him with the Shah, which was rendered the easier by that prince's religious bigotry, and by the virulent feelings, generated by his unsuccessful attempt to convert the Emperor, clearly and decidedly, to his opinions

Attempts to convert Humiyun to the Shia sect.

Humáyun certainly seems for a time to have been in danger of spending the remainder of his life as a prisoner in Persia, even if his life was safe Tahmasp is reported at one time to have given instructions to Behrám Mírza to remove out of the way the obstinate Emperor, who was relieved from the dangers that surrounded him, chiefly by the generous intercession of Shah Tahmasp's sister, Sultánum Khánum, who strongly represented to her brother the impolicy, as well as injustice, of using any severity towards an exiled prince who had sought his protection and hospitality, and flattered him with the hopes of removing in due time the stranger's religious errors, and of gaining a royal convert Humáyun is said to have encouraged these efforts of the friendly princess, by assuring her that he had always been privately well disposed to the Shía faith, a circumstance from which much of the animosity of his brothers towards him had proceeded tánum was effectively aided in all her endeavours by Kázı Jehán, the minister, whose piety was purer and more enlightened than that of his master, and who did all in his power to awaken generous feelings in his They found an useful auxiliary in the Shah's physician, Hakim Núr-ed-dín Muhammed*, who was much with the Shah, and had great influence on his CHAP II mind, and whose benevolent efforts to assist the unfortunate monaich were never relaxed Humáyun is said. to have completed the favourable impressions made by the princess and her friends on the mind of the Shah, by some complimentary verses addressed to him, the concluding couplet of which, playing upon Humáyun's nune, bore that other princes placed their glory in having been under the shadow of the Huma, but that the Shah, greater than all, had the Huma under his The Huma is an imaginary bird, and the Orientals believe that, on whomsoever its shadow falls, that person is destined to sovereignty *

Certain it is that, whatever was the cruse, Shah League Tahmasp, in the end, changed his conduct. He sent Humáyun Humáyun, to meet him at his summer camp Humayun went, and had a private conference of several hours, in which it seems to have been agreed, that the Shah was to assist him in recovering Kandahar, Kabul and Badakhshin, that Kandahar, when taken, was to be restored to Persia, and that the Emperor and his suite were to listen to the instructions of Kázi Jehán on the subject of their religious differences The Emperor, on returning to his quarters, took a favourable opportunity of assembling his Hindustáni followers, informed them of Shah Tahmasp's promises, which held out to them an early prospect of revisiting their native country He added that Kázi Jehán would speak to them "on a certain subject" They were all delighted at this change, and lifted up their hands in thanksgiving As, by the result of the negociations, which had been probably conducted, on the Emperor's side, by Biram Khan, the temporal interests of the two monarchs were become the same, a compromise seems to have taken place Humáyun professed to favour * Tar Bed f 182 , Khol ul Tow f 265 , Tab Akb f 158 , Ferishta, vol 11 p 154-6

the Shía partialities of the Shah, and the Shah affected to believe that Humáyun and his followers were sincere in their professions. In the whole of this difficult negociation, Humáyun was much assisted by Kázi Jehán, and the royal physician, Núr-ed-dín Hakím The Shía divines wrote out the articles of their faith, all of which Humáyun read and assented to, and agreed that the khutba, or prayer for the Sovereign, should be recited in the Shía form *

This reconciliation was followed by a grand ring-hunt, and a magnincent entertainment given to Humáyun near the Takht e-Suleiman To prove the sincerity of the new alliance, Roushen Beg and the other officers who had tendered their services to put the Shah in possession of Kandahár, were seized and brought before Tahmasp Being no longer useful, they were sacrificed as traitors to this union of kings. The Shah gave orders that, their tent-ropes being cut and tied round their waists, they should be lowered down into the deep subterraneous prison in the Diwán of Mehter Suleimán †, there to perish miserably Roushen Koka, who was the Emperor's foster-brother, found means to write him a letter, imploring him, by the memory of his mother, whose milk they had both sucked, to pardon and intercede for him Humayun, with his usual humanity, instantly wrote, beseeching the Shah, in the strongest terms, by the tomb of his father Shah Ismáel, to remit the punishment "Doubtless," said the Shah, on reading the letter, "Muhammed Humáyun is a man of singular good nature and benevolence thus to intercede for wretches who have attempted to do him the greatest injury," and ordered the prisoners to be delivered over to him †

Parting festivities. The whole conditions of this treaty being finally

[#] Tar Bed f 183

[†] Zindan-Mehter-Suleimán See

Major Rawlinson's Journal a

[‡] Stewart's Jouher, p 72

arranged, Shih Tahmasp gave the Emperor a parting char in chert imment. It was celebrated with great splendour, and lasted three days. Nearly six hundred awnings, and twelve bands of music, were prepared and the whole ground was covered with carpets. The first div there was a magnificent brinquet, and dresses of honour, and sabres enriched with jewels were largely distributed. On the second day, the Shah placed the Emperor by his side, and pointing to the extensive field covered with a spreading camp, told him, that all that he saw, tents, horses, camels, carpets and every thing else, was his, with whatever besides he required adding that he would send his son, with twelve thousand horse, to recover his dominions. When the whole train and cavileade had passed in review, in splended array, the Sheh standing up and laying his hand on his breast, said, "O King Humayun, if there Is any defect, let your generosity excuse it "

The third day was devoted to a contest of shooting at the kebek. The night was devoted to a jovial party Various liquois were put down, and bottles and goblets placed before each guest. No cupbearer was present. Every one filled his cup at his own ple sure It was morning when the party broke up

A little incident that occurred on the fourth day, when the camp was about to be broken up, and the two monarchs to separate, is extremely illustrative of the anxiety with which the Persians embrace every opportunity, in their mutual intercourse, to gain an advantage in point of form or etiquette As Humáyun was completely in Shah Tahmasp's power, any show of respect to him would naturally rather have been ascribed to the Shah's generosity, than interpreted into a concession to the pretensions of the Indian prince Yet when Humayun, on this occasion, before setting out, went to take leave of Tahmasp, he found him seated on a small carpet folded up threefold under him,

BOOK V A D 1544 so as to prevent the possibility of any one sharing a portion of it Humáyun, when he alighted, seeing that there was no place for him, was about to seat himself on the ground. Hán Muhammed Kushkeh, a Moghul, observing this, took off the ornamented cover of his quiver, tore it open, and spread it out for his Majesty to sit on Humáyun, pleased with this attention, asked him who he was He answered, "A Moghul" "You will come into my service," said the Emperor "I am unworthy of that honour," replied the Moghul "My master is now in your Majesty's service Who am I? When he is promoted, I may hope to come in his place. Till then, I am dust "He afterwards became a distinguished officer."

The twelve thousand cavalry that were to be placed under the nominal command of Sultan Murád Mirza, the Shah's third son, then an infant, were Kizelbáshes of the Túrki tribes—Bidágh Khan Kajar was named his Atálík† or Protector—Shah kuli Sultan Afshár, the governor of Kermán, Ahmed Sultan Shamlu, the governor of Sístán, his brother Huscin-kuli, and a number of other officers and Amírs, were ordered to co-operate—The Shah told Humáyun that he would add three hundred Korchi Kháseh‡ (of his own bodyguard currassiers), ready to obey any order of his Majesty, as if he had been their religious guide—Meanwhile, the whole auxiliary force were allowed to go to their homes, in order to prepare themselves for meeting

ders went by this national title. I he Osmanli troops are still divided into lettles or companies, because originally when they were fractions of tribes, each company had one kettle for cooking their food in common, a custom which they still observe and they attach the same point of honour to preserving their kettle, that regular troops do to preserving their colours.

[•] Jouher, p 72

⁴ Salch va Atalik

[†] Tar Ahm-arm Abasi, f 43 These Korchi were "beh rish-sefudi Kachel Shah, va Birdi Istaylo, 'i e had Kachel Shah and Birdi Istaylo for their grey-beards (or commanders) The chiefs of the Lurki and Afghán tribes are called Rish-sefúd, or Grey-beards These troops being from Turki tribes, their commanthe Emperor, in due time, on the banks of the Helmend The Emperor, having intimated a wish to visit Tabriz, and Ardebil, and their Holy Places, before setting out, sent back the Empress and family, and his camp, under the command of Háji Muhammed Khan Koka, towards Sebzáwár, on their way to Sistán, while he himself, with a few attendants, made a march of about four kos from Takht e-Suleimán, on the route to Tabriz

The Shah, who had now regained his good humour, asked the Emperor to give him an entertainment in his quarters in the Indian fushion, and to use the Indian cookery A royal banquet was accordingly prepared, which seems to have begun with music, and strong drinks were early sent round This was followed by a presentation of presents * The Shah, having asked who should divide them, the Emperor told him, whoever he might name. The Shah imposed that task on Khwani Morzem, the Empress Hamida's brother, who placed one tray of rare and valuable emissities before the Shah, and another before the Emperor, the rest he divided to each according to his rank dinner followed, at which we are told that the Indian dish, kicherit, unknown in Peisia, was honoured with particular approbation After dinner, the camp moved on to Miána I, while the Emperoi accompanied the Shah, whose camp also moved forward, and after reaching his pavilion, remained there about an hour, to avoid a heavy fall of rain. When the rain ceased, Shah Tahmasp rose, and bidding God bless him, presented him with two apples and a knife, desired his brother Behram Mirza to attend him to his camp, and, taking a ring off his finger, and putting it on Hu-

^{*} Sachek

^{† &}quot;Among these foods," says Jouher, "the Hindustam rice-pilau mixed with dál, was approved of, for in that country they make their

pilau with hens' eggs bruised" Joulier

[‡] At Ardebil, a nephew (sister s son) of Fahmasp was betrothed to a daughter of Maasum Beg Was this Khwaja Monzem?

máyun's, they parted Humáyun and the Mírza, followed by a large suite, rode on The Emperor, cutting one of the apples in two with the knife, presented one half to Bchrám, in token of unceasing regard, and himself ate the other. When they came in sight of the Emperor's tent, the Mírza diew in his reins, and took leave. Humáyun presented him with a diamond ring, telling him it was a keepsake which he had got from his mother, and added many expressions of regard and esteem.*

Humáyun prepares to set out for Kandahár The Emperor, now left to himself, travelled onwards, and visited Tabriz, Ardebil, the cradle of the Sefvi family, and its tombs and holy places, especially the tombs of Sheikh Sefi, the ancestor of the race, and of Sheikh Ismáel the Shah's father, after which he returned back nearly to Kazvín. Here the Shah, who was on his way to that city from his summer quarters, observing his tents, inquired whose they were. Being told, he expressed his surprise that the Emperor was not yet gone, and sent to desire that he would make a march of twelve farsangs, about forty-five iniles, without delay.

Humayun rejoined his main camp at Sebzáwár, where he found that his wife Hamída Begum had given birth to a daughter. Having given directions for taking the Begum, with the camp and heavy baggage, by the direct road through the desert, by Tabas, he himself proceeded to revisit Meshhíd, where he again

* The state of moral feeling in Persia is strongly marked by an incident that occurred at Kila Ders. Four horsemen who were seen to come from the desert, openly attacked and murdered Yakub Seferalchi, the Emperor's butler Beinglerursued and overtaken, they turned round and asked, "Why do you follow us? What we did was by orders of the Shah" It appears that the Shah having made the Emperor a present of some swords, Hasan Ah, an Ishek-Agha, chamberlain, abstracted one of them Yakub, having discovered this, informed the Emperor Hasan Ah, in revenge, told the Shah, that Yakub had spoken contemptuously of the Persyn taj or cap Hence the order the surder him circumambulited the hillowed tomb of Imám Ali Reza, cuar u and received back the bow and bowstring that he had left suspended on the gates of the shrine, a encumstance which afforded him much delight, as a proof that the holy Ingin was favourable to him. At Meshhid he was detained about a week by a continued fall of snow when he went on to Tabas, whence he prococded to Sistan, where he found the young prince, Sult in Murad Mirzi and the royal troops assembled, and ready for action ?

Here Humayun must have seen, with no small plea- Remarks on sure his dependence on the court of Persia about to ment by the cease. The real circumstances of his reception in that country were very different from the representations of them that have been given by the official and general historius of Persia and India "The reign of Tahmasp owes much of its celebrity," says the late historian of Persia, "to the truly royal and hospitable reception he give to the Imperor Humayan, when that monarch was forced to fly from India, and take shelter in his dominions The Persians have, in all ages, boasted of their hospitality, and the vanity of every individual is concerned in supporting the pretensions of the country to a superiority over others, in the exercise of this national virtue The arrival of the fugitive Humáyun presented in opportunity of a very singular nature for the display of this noble quality, and we know no example of a distressed monarch being so royally welcomed, so generously treated, and so effectually relieved. All the means of the kingdom were called forth to do honour to the royal guest, and they were liberally furnished to replace him upon his throne

^{*} Akbernáma, ff 56 - 61 , Tab Alb f157 , Thr Niz f 195 , Jouher, c 15-16 , Bayezid, fl 10-12 Lerishta, vol ii pp 154-6, Khafi Ishan The parrative of the author of the Tar Alim-Arm Abasi, adds few circumstances to the narrative of the Indian historians, and chiefly adopts the views of Abulfazl, ff 42,

Tahmasp merited the praise which his conduct upon this occasion obtained him from distant nations, but his own feelings must have been gratified by the applause of his subjects, every one of whom felt elevated by the munificent hospitality with which his sovereign treated the fugitive Emperor of India" **

This eulogium of the eloquent and generous historian is founded on the representations of Abulfazl, Ferishta, and the writers who follow them, all of whom, in spite of some hints and unexplained allusions of Abulfazl and Nizám ed-dín Ahmed, agree in lauding the munificence and generosity of the Persian prince. But the simple narrative of honest Jouher at once destroys all these delusions. While it confirms the accounts of the external honour and parade with which Humáyun was received in his progress through the country, it presents a most unfavourable idea of his reception at court, and of the conduct and character of Shah Tahmasp himself. He seems to have been a haughty, narrow-minded, intolerant bigot†, intent, in every instance, on displaying, in the most ungenerous manner, his superiority over the

* Malcolm's History of Persia,

vol. 11 pp 508, 509

† "The bigoted attachment of this prince to his religion, was shown by his conduct to an English merchant, accredited by a letter from Queen Elizabeth That great and active Sovereign, desirous of extending the commerce of her kingdom, encouraged Mr Anthony Jenkinson to visit the distant Court of Persia An English writer states, that a pair of the king's slippers were sent to the envoy, lest his Christian feet should pollute the sacred carpet of the holy monarch, and that after he came to the presence, the first inquiry Tamasp made was, not regarding the object of the mission, but the belief of the ambassador, whether he was a Gaur, or unbeliever, or a Mahoinedan? The Englishman replied, he was neither an unbeliever, nor a Mahomedan, but a Christian, and added that he held Christ to be the greatest of prophets The monarch, to whom he was deputed, said, that he was in no need of the aid of infidels, and bade him depart. He did so, and a man followed him from the hall of audience, till he was beyond the precincts of the court, sprinkling sand on the path he walked over an action which could only be meant to mark the sense which the Mahomedan prince had of the uncleanness of the person that he had suffered to approach him ' -- Malcolm's Persia, vol 1 pp 511-513

A D 1544

BOOK v bility is, that the circumstances in which he was placed in Persia led him, at that time, to affect an approba-

in Persia led him, at that time, to affect an approbation of the Shía tenets, that he did not feel, and, in aftertimes, his pride may have prevented him from making such an explicit avowal of his religious sentiments, as was expected by the bigoted Sunnis, among whom the latter part of his life was chiefly spent.

The proceedings of Humáyun in Sind and Persia may perhaps appear to have been detailed at too great length. But as some of them have been misunderstood, and others misrepresented by former writers, I have ventured to dwell upon them, for the purpose of giving what seemed to me a fairer and more correct idea of their real nature.

their real nature

CHAPILR III

HUMANUN IN AICHENISTAN

SECTION I

DITION TO BADAKHSHAN

III VOIN IN ADES KANDARIO - A PARS OF HIS BLOTHERS - THE CHASH SULLINDILLD TO HUMQUN - CAPTULE OF BIST - IRI-I MATIONS OF KIMEIN - ARBIT TEMOVED TO KARLL - SKIRMISH NEAL KANDARA — WHICH IS BUSH OLD BY HEM (VUN — MISSION OF BILAM KILAS TO KABILL - ILRESOLLTION OF KAMES - ILOCRESS OF THE SECT OF KANDARAS - DEFECTION OF KAMEIN'S CHIEF NOTE IS -- DISTRESS AND DESCRIBONS IN THE GALRISON -- SURRENDED OF THE TOWN, WHICH IS CIVEN OVER TO THE SHARES OFFICEES - IIII II SITI OL KAME(N - ALLAH SOL BADAKUSH (N - 18CALI OF A (DOAL AND HINDAL - INDICATION OF K (MR (N - DISSENSIONS TITWILD THE LITSIANS AND INCLUDED - HUM (VEN SULLIES HIMSELL WITH HOLSES BY LLUNDER -- UNCLUTAINTY OF HIS COLN-SHIS - HE SHITES KANDAHAR - DIVIDES THE DISTRICT AMONG HIS NORTH - STTS OUT FOR KARLE - IS JOINED IN HINDAL, LADGE, AND OTHERS - ADVANCE OF KAMEAN - DESERTIONS TO HUMITUN - 1 (MLAN SINDS AN IMBASS) - ISCALLS TO CHARNT - HUM (YUN OCCULIES KIBEL - AND LICOVERS ARBUR - K (MILLY PLIES TO SIND -CONCLATIVATORY LARASSIES TO HUM (YUN -1 ADC (R MIRZA IMPM-SOME - HUMANIA SETS OUT FOR BADAKHSHIA - 1 (DO IR MIRZA ILT TO DEATH - THE ARM OF BADAKHSHIN DEFLATED BY HE-MAYON - THE COUNTRY SUBMITS - DANCIROUS HENESS OF HU-MATER - KAMBAN BI COVIES KABUL - HUMATEN MAI CHI S ONCL MOLL AGUNST IT

Whis Humáyun arrived in the province of Sistán, he char in found the Persian troops that had been sent to his assistance, cantoned over the country. They were Ap 1545 Humáyun

BOOK V

A D 1545 Invades Kandahúr nominally under the command of Murád Mírza, the third son of the king of Persia, and an infant of two of three years of age, but were in reality commanded by Bidágh Khan, of the Túrki tribe of Kajar, from which the present royal family of Persia is descended Humáyun, in compliance with the wish of Shah Tahmasp, as soon as he arrived, collected and reviewed the troops. He found them in high order, and instead of 12,000 cavalry, and 300 korchis, or royal horse-guards, that had been promised, the muster proved that they amounted to at least 14,000 horse. After remaining about a fortnight in Sístán, he put his troops in motion, and entered the dominions of his brother.

Affairs of his brothers.

It will be recollected that, at this time, Mírza Kámrám held the undisputed possession of Kábul, Ghazni and Kandahár, on one side of the mountains, as well as of Badakhshán, Kunduz, Kishem and other provinces, beyond them His brother Askeii was governoi of Kandahár Hindal, another of his brothers, who, after abandoning Humáyun in Sind, had been besieged and made prisoner in Kandahái, though nominally, perhaps, governor of Júi-Sháhi, was now under suivcillance or free custody, and lived privately at the palace of his mother, Dildár Begum, at Kábul Yádgár Násir Mírza, his cousin, who, as we have seen, had been compelled to leave Sind, was now also at Kábul, but suspected, and carefully watched

It has been mentioned that Kámrán, after his return from Hindustán, had marched to Badakhshán against Mírza Suleimán, who refused to acknowledge his authority, had defeated him, and deprived him of part of his dominions. No sooner, however, did Suleimán learn that Kámrán had marched to besiege Hindal in Kábul, than he collected a force, and recovered the districts which had been separated from his princi-

^{*} Albernáma, f 61, Joulier, c 16

pality This compelled Kámrán, on his return from Chap III Kandahar, to cross the Hindu-kush mountains a second The hostile armies met at Anderáb Suleimán was again defeated, and took refuge in Kila-Zefer, in which he was blockaded by Kámrán, to whom a great part of the territories of Badakhshán submitted After a brave defence. Suleimán was compelled by famine to suirender He was thrown into pilson, along with his son Mirza Ibráhím Kámrán appointed Kásim Birlás to be governor of Badakhshán, and, leaving with him a force supposed to be sufficient to maintain it in tranquillity, returned to Kábul, carrying with him the A 11 940, captive Mirzas For a whole month after his arrival, Temmili II the city was in a state of continual festivity, and, from 17 Sept this period, he is said to have given himself up to indolence and voluptuous indulgence, paying little attention to the conceins of government, or to the complaints of his subjects *

Not were these the only royal personages whom he eld in custody We have seen that when he parted om Humáyun near Khusháb, on the Jelem, he was ned at Dinkot, on his way to the Indus, by Mumed Sultan Mirza, the grandson of the great Sultan ein of Herat, and by his sons, Ulugh Mirza and As these princes had also become objects spicion, they had been kept out of employment, low dragged on an idle life at Kábul othing, therefore, could, to appearance, be more perous than the situation of Kámrán But his er was unsocial, guarded by suspicion and jealousy, by the affection even of those nearest to him He s a sovereign in whose success none of them felt a casure and a pride, as if it were their own, and it sted, therefore, on a narrow and a sandy foundation As Humávun, advancing from Sístán, entered the The Germ

sir surrendered BOOK V

dominions of Kámrán, he was met near Laki, a fort on the right bank of the Helmend, by Abdal Hai, the governor of the Germsír, who approached him as a suppliant, wrapped in his winding sheet, with his quiver hanging from his neck, asked forgiveness for his former undutiful conduct, and surrendered the province into his hands. He was graciously received, and honoured with a command

Capture of Bist.

A detachment was now sent, under Alı Sultan Taklu, one of the auxiliary chiefs, to reduce the important city and fort of Bist, which lies near the confluence of the Arghandáb with the Helmend, and is the chief city and the key of the Zemín-dáwer The Persian general having been killed by a matchlock shot soon after the siege began, his followers, who were Túrks of the Taklu tribe, placed his son, a boy of twelve years of age, in the command, and carried on the siege with renewed vigour. The place was soon compelled to surrender, when the principal officers, and most of the soldiers of the garrison, joined Humáyun

Preparations of Kámrán

He removes Akber to Kabul

Kámrán, who had long dreaded an invasion from the territories of Persia, had placed all his frontier fortresses in a state of defence. On hearing of the Emperor's return towards Sístán, his first concern was to remove the infant Akber, Humáyun's only son, from Kandahár, where he still remained under the care of Askeri's wife, and of the nurses and household appointed by his father, and to bring him to Kábul For that purpose he despatched one of his confidential officers, accompanied by a brother of Khizer Khan, the great Hazára chief, to bring the young prince from the castle of Kandahár. When they reached that place, and had explained the object of their mission, they found Mírza Askeri's ministers divided in opinion as to the policy of giving him up. Some advised that the child, attended by an honourable retinue, should be sent back to his father, who had now airved on the frontier, as being the best means of conciliating the CHAP III.

Injured and offended Emperor, while others maintained that things had gone too far for Askeri to think of obtaining any sincere forgiveness, and that, therefore, the great object now was not to throw away the favour of Kámrán This advice prevailed, and though it was already the depth of winter, which in that country is particularly severe, the infant prince, and his sister, Bakhshi-bánu Begum, were sent off for Kábul, in the midst of rain and snow *

Kámrán was apprehensive of a rescue, on which account he had selected a chief of the Hazáras to conduct the party, as the road between Kandahar and Ghazni was partly inhabited, and had always been infested, by robbers of that tribe That the princes might not be known on the road, Akber was addressed as Mírak, the princess as Bacheh † On reaching Kilát, the party passed the night at the house of a Hazára But the prince's rank was not easily concealed by attendants, who adored him, and, next morning, the master of the house expressed his persuasion that the child under his roof must be the young Akber Khizei Khan's brother, on hearing these suspicions of his host, lost no time in resuming his journey, and hurried on to Ghazni, whence, without delay, the infant prince was conveyed to Kábul, where he was lodged with his grand-aunt Khanzáda Begum, the favourite sister of

* The nurses and other personal attendants who were with the young prince at this time, continued in his service for some years, and, in the next reign, both they and their children rose to high distinction. The two nurses were Mahum Anka, the mother of Adam Khan, and Jiji Anla, the mother of Mír Aziz Ko-kiltash. The whole household was under the superintendence of Shemsed-din Muhammed Ghaznevi, the husband of Jiji Anka, and a man of talent, who afterwards made a figure in history, by the title of Atka Khan It was he who helped to save Humayun from the Ganges, after his defeat near Kanauj "Anka" signifies a nurse, "Atka" a nurse s husband Their children are "kokiltashes"

† These terms signify "the young Mir,' and "the child'

воок у

dabár.

A n 1545 Skirmish near KanBáber, by whom he was watched with the tenderest care *

Meanwhile a report having reached Humáyun on the Helmend, that Mirza Askeri was about to leave Kandahár, and to flee with all his treasure to Kábul, he pushed forward a strong party, composed partly of his Persian auxiliaries, partly of his own adherents, that he might either prevent his leaving the place, or overtake him, should he have escaped The news proved to be false, but the party, having vauntingly approached too near the town, were received with a discharge of artillery by which many of them were killed and wounded Mir Jemil, one of the chief officers of the garrison, and brother of Bápus, a chief of great distinction, sallied out to improve this advantage, and was so successful, that he sent back to assure Askeri, that if he would lead out to his assistance the remaining force that was in the castle, the enemy must be completely routed Askeri, however, supposing that the confusion was only a feint on the part of the invaders to lead him into an ambuscade, declined to move, so that the allied troops were enabled to draw off and effect their retreat, though with very considerable loss

Moharrem 2 March 16

which is besieged by Humay un Moharrem 7 March 21 Five days after this affair, the Emperor reached the vicinity of Kandahár. He immediately proceeded to mark out the ground for the trenches and batteries, the charge of which he assigned to different officers. As the garrison was very strong, there were daily skirmishes and single combats, in sight of the two armies, and severe losses were sustained on both sides. The siege drew out into length, and the imperial camp began to suffer from scarcity of provisions. Just at that time they received intelligence that Rafía, a foster-brother of Kámrán, was encamped behind a hill that lay on the banks of the Argandáb, towards Zemín- CHAP III. dawer, with a large body of Hazaras and Nukderis, whom he had collected Biram Khan, having marched with a detachment of Persian auxiliaries and of the Emperor's adherents, came upon them by surprise, and, after a short action, in which Rafia was taken and his force dispersed, gained possession of the camp, and icturned back in triumph, with a large provision of stores, arms, grain and cattle found in it. This, for a time, restored abundance within their own lines

^{*} Albernáma, f 62 zámı, ff 195, 196, Tar Bed f 183, † Akbernáma, f 63, Tar Ni- Jouher, c. 17

As, however, the garrison still held out obstinately, Mission of Biram Khan Humayun, apprehensive of the result, and anxious to to Kabul bring Kámrán to any reasonable terms, resolved to despatch Biram Khan as his ambassador to Kábul When that brave and able man reached the pass of Roghui and Abistáda, on his way to Ghazni, he was assailed towards nightfall by a band of Hazáras who blocked up the road He attacked them without hesitation, and, after a sharp combat, forced a passage, and slew several of their number As he approached Kábul, he was met with much ceremony by a procession of men of note, and Kamram gave him an entertainment at the Charbágh palace, where he delivered his credentials He was allowed to see the young Akber, at the palace of Khanzáda Begum This was natural, but he was also permitted to visit Hindal Mirza, who was in a kind of free custody at his mother Dildár Begum's house, and Suleimán Mírza, the prince of Badakhshán, and his son Ibrahím Mírza, though detained as prisoners outside of the fort, were brought to the Shehr-árá gardens to meet him He also waited upon Yádgár Násir Mírza and Ulugh Mirza, attended indeed, as in the former instances, by confidential persons appointed by Kámrán to watch him contrived not only to deliver letters, presents and messages from the Emperor to most of them, but was able to remove their apprehensions, and to prepare

book v

A D 1545

Irresolution of Kamran

them for attempting to escape, and to return to their allegiance to Humáyun. He, in like manner, employed his insinuating eloquence with many of the chief nobles about the court, and led them not only to expect pardon, but to indulge in hopes very favourable to their future fortunes, if they joined the Emperor. During all this time, Kámián was agitated by contending passions, and quite unable to make up his mind to any decided line of action. He saw that he was unable to bring into the field an army that gould was unable to bring into the field an army that could cope with that of Humáyun, supported as he was by his Persian auxiliaries, but he continued to procrastinate, not resolute to resist his brother, but, at the tinate, not resolute to resist his brother, but, at the same time, not willing to resign his own power. At last, after having detained Biram Khan six weeks in Kandahár, he consented to his taking leave, and sent under his escort Khanzáda Begum, professedly to prevail upon Askeri to give up Kandahár, as it was pretended that that prince would not obey Kámrán's order, but really to encourage him in his defence by the hope of relief, or, should he fall into the hands of his offended sovereign, at least to secure his pardon by her influence with the Emperor

Progress of the slege of Kandabár The siege of Kandahár, meanwhile, went on but slowly The place was strong, and Mírza Askeri was indefatigable in his exertions. The danger reasonably to be apprehended from treachery in such a civil war he obviated by constantly shifting the posts of the garrison, and keeping all on the alert. At the beginning of the siege, the confederate army had attacked the place with much ardour. But the siege had been long, and their losses considerable. The Kizelbáshes had entertained hopes that, as soon as Humáyun, the son and heir of the great Báber, entered the territory of his father, the whole of the Cahghatái nobles and tribesmen would flock to his standard. They now found themselves disappointed, as not a man of note

^{*} Akbernáma, f 64 , lar Niz f 196

had yet repaired to his camp, and there was no ap- CHAP HI pearance of revolt in his favour in any part of the country They saw no prospect of final success, so that the Persian leaders, disgusted with the service, and serving unwillingly under a foreign general, began to talk of returning home, as from a fruitless enterprise Alaimed at a state of feeling so fatal to all his hopes, Humáyun made some desperate efforts, and one night, by a resolute advance from head-quarters, effected a lodgment, and elected a battery within a stone cast of the old town The Kizelbáshes, roused by this able and gallant operation, pushed forward on their side, and neater approaches were made everywhere Askeri, filled with apprehension, asked for a cessation of hostilities, till the arrival of Khanzáda Begum, who was known to be then on her way to Kandahár, and in whose mediation he professed to place great reliance

In consequence of these negociations, Humáyun, nather imprudently, nelved his operations for some days, which Asken employed, with unabating industry, in repairing the works that had been injured, and in adding new ones On Birain Khan's ariival, Khanzáda Begum was allowed to enter the fort, that she might prevail upon her nephew to suitender. But this he refused to do, and she was not, or pretended that she was not, permitted to leave the castle The siege was resumed with redoubled vigour

At this crisis, however, the affairs of Humáyun Defection began to assume a more favourable aspect Intelligence arrived that Kámián, who had advanced to nobles relieve the place, had retreated, and the effects of Biram Khan's residence at Kábul also became manifest Ulugh Mírza, the son of Muhammed Sultan Mırza, has been mentioned as one of the princes whom Kámrán kept in a kind of state custody at Kábul, for more security changing his keeper weekly. In the course of these changes the Mírza came into the custody of Shír-efken Beg, who himself had some reason to be displeased with Kámrán A plan foi escape was formed between the prisonei and his keeper, in which Fazil Beg, Monaim Beg's brother, Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek, and other chiefs of distinction, were led to take a part They set out together privately from Kábul, and after many fatigues they all joined Humáyun, except Kásim Husein, who, having separated from them in a dark night, had lost his way among the hills, and fell into the hands of some Hazára banditti. But he also came in, a few days afterwards, on foot, weary, plundered and half naked All the fugitives were heartily welcomed, and placed in commands Not long after, Dawa Beg, a Hazára chief, declared for Humáyun, and joined him with a part of his tribe, and, ere long, letters were received from many of the leading men of Kábul, full of protestations of attachment These events spread joy over the camp, and re-animated the wavering Kizelbáshes, who now redoubled their exertions against the beleaguered town

BOOK V AD 1545

Distress and desertions in the garrison

In proportion as the spirits of the besiegers rose, the hopes of the besieged declined Regular information of what passed in the town was obtained by means of letters fixed to arrows, which were daily shot into the camp By them the besiegers were encouraged to go on, the garrison being represented as reduced to extremity Such, indeed, was at length the general distress, that many of the garrison, not only soldiers and artillerymen, but even officers and men of rank, began to desert, letting themselves down from the walls by ropes Khizer Khan, the great Hazára chief, among others, despairing of a successful resistance, leaped from one of the battlements, and was received below by some of his faithful tribesmen, and carried off on their shoulders to a hill in the neighbourhood * The escape of a man of so much importance was known in the char in complexity next morning, and he was pursued had himself in the hole of a rock, close to which his pursuers passed. One of them laid hold of the skirt of his clear which was probably made of the skin of some mind. He downt in, returning his breath, and his pursuers, thinking it had been the tail of some wild beist, passed on. On the approach of night, he crept from under his rock, and succeeded in gaining a place of sitety *

Descried by his garrison his officers, and even surrender his nobles Askeri could no longer hope to preserve dire lymblibar and therefore, began to take measures for his per on disafety. He sent his unit Khanzada to Humwun and through her, after the siege had listed upwards of the T months a surrender was negotiated. On the 3rd of September vio 1545, he left the fort in Thursday the tran of the Begum, on toot, attired as a supplient general I and according to the custom of the time, having a sword suspinded from his neck, and was conducted by Birim Khin into the presence of the Imperor, who received him sitting in state in his Derbar, surrounded by his Chighitais and kizelbashes. The Emperor, from respect to the intercession of the Beguin, and the near relationship of the offender, desired the sword to be taken from his neck, and, after Askeri had made his submission, commanded him to be seited. He was followed by Namran's chief Amirs and otheers, to the number of thirty, who were brought in with their swords and quivers hanging from their necks, and their winding sheets in their hands. Some were consigned to prison, others were released. A grand feast succecded, in which the occurrences of the siege were tilked over, and, with the usual appliances of music

Akbernama, ff 61, 65 Tab † The Tar Bedium has three months ALL [158 , Int Bed [188

A D 1545

and wine, the party was prolonged till the morning light. When the general enjoyment was at its height, and even the Mirza had forgotten his care, one of Humáyun's attendants placed some papers before him. In a moment the Mirza's countenance changed, his gaiety was gone. They were the letters which he had addressed to the chiefs of the Balúches, and of the other tribes, when the Emperor was crossing the desert, and their contents left no doubt of the full extent of his evil disposition. The wretched prince was ordered to be detained in custody, but to be brought to court from time to time, that he might visit the Emperor.*

Jemádí II 26 Sept 4 Next day Humáyun, accompanied by the chief Persian officers, entered the fort Bidágh Khan claimed that the fort and all that it contained, especially Askeri Mirza and the treasure, should be made over to his master, in terms of the treaty The Emperor expressed his readiness to give up the fort and its stores, but refused to surrender Askeri, and denied the Shah's right to the treasure, but, at the same time, expressed his readiness to present it to the Persian monarch, as a gift He waited to see the treasure-chests brought out and examined, and after they had been closed and sealed with his seal, and that of the chief Persian commanders, he returned to the camp Even already, mutual jealousies and fears had begun to prevail Under the influence of these, the Kizelbáshes lost no time in sending off the treasure to prevent any attempt to sieze it They persisted in demanding that Askeri Mírza should be given up to them, as a hostage for their safe return, and even threatened to seize him by force The Emperor, alarmed at a pretension which might have been fatal to his repose, at once to secure his prisoner, and to make a demonstration of his own force, collected the whole of his old followers, and the adherents by CHAP III whom he had been recently joined, divided them into troops, and reviewed them under arms. This alarmed the Persians, who saw his rising power with suspicion and dread, but they no longer persisted in their demand The Chaghatáis, and such of the townspeople as chose to leave the place, had three days allowed them in terms of the capitulation, during which they could leave it uninjured, with their wives and families On the fourth, it was given up by Hu- It is given máy un to the prince Muhammed Murád Mirza in con- shah s formity to his treaty with the Shah, while the Em- officers peror himself moved to some distance, and took up his head-quarters at the Charbagh of Baber *, on the banks of the Arghandáb, where he enjoyed himself for some time after his fitigues, receiving daily accessions of number from the adjoining provinces †

^{*} Akbernama, f 65, Briggs's Ferishta, pp 157, 158, Tab Akb f 158, Tar Bed f 183

The news of the full of Kandahár, and the pro- Perplexity bability of the speedy approach of the imperial aimy to attack Kábul, distressed and confounded Kámrán He ordered the young prince Akbei to be removed from the prlace of Khanzáda Begum to his own, and committed hun to the care of Kuch Kılán, throwing into prison the former faithful guardian of his infancy, Shems-ed-din Muhammed Ghaznevi, better known as Atka Khan He held a council to concert the measures of precaution required by the crisis, especially as to Badakhshan, in which quarter he was apprehensive of troubles Affairs of Abdal Khalik, who had been his tutor, and Bápus, Badakha nobleman who seems, at this time, to have been his chief minister, advised him to conciliate Suleiman Mirza, the late ruler of that country, now his prisoner, and to restore him to his government, by which means he might secure both his friendship and co-operation Fortunately for Suleimán, Mír Nazer Ali, and some other nobles of Badakhshán, who were discontented with the existing government, had, a short time before, formed a conspiracy, and succeeded in surprising Kila-Zefer They had also taken prisoners Kásim Birlás, Kámrán's governor, and the other officers left by him in charge of the country, of whose conduct they loudly complained. At the same time, however, they wrote to inform Kámrán, that they had no wish to renounce his authority, that, if he would send back Mírza. his authority, that, if he would send back Míiza Suleimán, they would place the country in his hands, but, should he refuse, that they would put their prisoners to death, and surrender the kingdom to the Uzbeks Kámrán, alarmed at this danger, thought it prudent to comply with their request, and accordingly released the Mírza, who, soon after, set out to return home, accompanied by his son Ibráhím Mírza, and his mother, Khurram Begum But they had only reached Pái-Minár, a populous village not far from Kábul, at the bottom of the hills, when Kámrán, repenting the step he had taken, despatched a messenger to recall the Mírza, pretending that he had some important information to communicate at a personal interview, after which he might resume his journey Suleimán, justly suspicious of the object of this sudden recall, returned for answer, that as he had taken leave in what the stars had indicated as a propitious moment, he was unwilling, by any retrograde movement, to he was unwilling, by any retrograde movement, to destroy the efficacy of this fortunate conjunction, but that, whatever commands the king might be pleased to honour him with, should receive the most implicit obedience Without loss of time, he then hurried forward to Badakhshán, where he seized the reins of government, and speedily forgot his treaty and his promises *

^{*} The Khulja Bagh Jouher † Akbernama, f 65, Jouher,

BOOK V A D 1545

Escape of Yedgar and Hindal During the distraction caused by these proceedings, Yádgár Násir Mírza found means to escape from the custody in which he was detained, so that of all the CHAP III Mirzas, his relations, who had lately been in Kámrán's court, none was left, but his brother Hindal Mirza Him he now found it convenient to flatter and soothe, and he was not sparing of promises to bring him over heartily to his interest Hindal, dissembling, appeared to be the dupe of all his protestations was settled that he was to be admitted into a partnership in the kingdom, and that one-third of all that Kámrán then possessed, or that the princes might thereafter, by their joint efforts, acquire, was to be assigned to him This agreement being concluded, Hindal was sent after Yádgár, with whom he had always been intimately connected, that he might compel, or prevail upon him, to return back But no sooner had he reached Pái-Minár, than, finding himself safe among the mountains and defiles of the Hindu-kúsh range, he turned away to the west-ward, and like those who had preceded him, set out to join Humáyun

The desertion of the last prince of the imperial isolation of blood who had been left with him, and of so many Amirs as accompanied them, threw Kámrán, for a time, into a state of deep dejection. The apparent ficility with which so many princes, who had been guarded as prisoners with so much jealousy, effected their escape, is inexplicable, except on the supposition that Kámrán had become unpopular with his Amírs He now complained that he felt himself forsaken, and had not one being in the world, in whose counsel he could trust, or on whose fidelity he could rely His temper was not such as to invite frank or unpleasant communications In his prosperity, he had been surrounded by flatterers, who had cherished his self-concert by their base and selfish adulation In his adversity, in spite of the change of circumstances, he listened with such impatience to a different language, that it was dangerous to use it and those who were disposed to offer him sound counsel, were deterred, no less by the immediate danger of the task, than by their want of confidence in his ultimate firmness and prudence in acting on their advice. He was thus left without any safe or i a se nsions between the Persians and Imperialists honest friend, and, committing error after error, the numbers of his adherents daily diminished, and the moral influence of his government was totally gone *

BOOK V

A D. 1545

Humáyun, after the surrender of Kandahár, was desirous to have pursued his success, and at once to have marched against Kábul, but found his army too weak to venture on such an enterprise The Persians considered the whole object of the expedition to have been attained, with the occupation of Kandahár that event a new kingdom was conquered for the Shah The Turkomán and Kizelbásh Amírs, fatigued with the long campaign so far from their own country, had returned home, some with, others without leave, so that hardly any but Bidágh Khan, Abul Fateh Sultan Afshár, and Súfi Wáli Sultan, were left to support the young prince Murád, and they showed no disposition to march farther, in support of a foreign prince With a total want of good faith, and an entire blindness to the future, they displayed, however, sufficient activity in harassing their new subjects, who hated them as foreigners and oppressors, and detested them as heretics

Complaints from persons of every rank were daily brought to the Emperor, who was unable to afford any redress He had left the immediate vicinity of Kandahár, and advanced first to Hasan-Abdál, and next to the Gumbez-Sufeid The Kizelbáshes, now as jealous of their allies as of Kámrán, and desirous that they should move away to a still greater distance, took measures to cut off their supply of provisions In spite of the season, for winter was at hand, and the Chaghatáis complained loudly of the severity of the cold, it became necessary again to move, and the Persians refused to allow them either to winter in the town, or to hut themselves in the vicinity of Kandahár But no movement could be made without horses or draught cattle, which they did not possess *

CHAP III SECT I

About this time, a certain proportion of the Persian Humáyun troops having been placed in garrison in the fort, their himself horses were sold to some merchants, who intended to with horses convey them to India, and were then picketed on the outside of the town These Humayun, urged by his necessities, resolved to seize Leaving his camp at Sufeid Gumbez, he himself moved to Bába Hasan Abdál, whence, after mid-day prayers, he pushed forward a strong detachment, who, before afternoon prayers, reached Kandahár, came upon the merchants by surpuse, and carried off to his camp seventeen hundred horses, which, after supplying the wants of himself and of his household, he divided among his The merchants to whom they belonged, waiting upon the Emperor with their complaints, could get no redress or compensation, but his bond for the full price, to be paid when the state of his affans allowed, a security not likely to be negotiable in the bazar, either at Kandahai or Delhi

Still, however, it was difficult to put the army in motion, as the season was severe, and Humáyun possessed no place of strength, in which the wives and families of himself and his followers could be left in safety To obviate this difficulty, he besought Bidágh Khan to appropriate a few houses in Kandahár for their reception, a request, however, with which the Khan declined to comply

This delay was attended with disagreeable conse- uncertainty quences The confidence in Humáyun's fortune, which of his counhis troops had entertained, began to fail Several of Kámrán's officers, who had been in Kandahár, but had subsequently entered the Emperor's service, escaped from the camp, and fled to Kábul* The scarcity went on increasing. It was now seriously proposed by some of Humáyun's Amírs, to hazard every thing, to make an attempt to surprise Kandahár, and, if successful, to justify their conduct to the Shah in the best way they could, and engage to restore it to him as soon as the Emperor had gained possession of Kábul and Badakhshán. From following this plan he was diverted by some of his council, who argued that, should the attempt be made and fail, he lost both Kandahár and the Shah, whom he thus converted into Kandahar and the Shah, whom he thus converted into an open enemy, in which case he would be left without one ally, or place of refuge, in the world Another proposal made at this trying moment was, to pass over into Badakhshan and there join Suleiman Mirza But the difficulty of a winter march among the mountains and defiles of the Hazáras and Aimáks, in crossing the Paropamisan range, joined to the total want of a place of security, in which to lodge their families and baggage which they must leave behind, made them abandon that idea as quite hopeless

BOOK V

He seizes Kandahár Just at this crisis, Muhammed Murád Mírza, the young Persian prince, died Those who had charge of him being desirous to conceal this event, no notice of it was sent to Humáyun, to whom, however, the news was secretly conveyed As, by this change of circumstances, the co-operation of the Persian auxiliaries seemed to become more doubtful than ever, while one obstacle of delicacy was removed, Humáyun, in despair, returned to the idea of gaining Kandahár in any way, trusting to be able to justify the act to the Shah after it was done

This plan was waimly supported by Haji Muhammed Khan Koka† The Emperor, while he objected to any

[•] Among these were Abdalla Kushkeh, a man who made a figure Khan and Jamil Beg in Báber's time † He was the son of Bába open attack, was willing to get possession of the town, char in could it be carried by stratagem. This Haji Muhammed undertook to effect. Accordingly, in furtherance of the plan, notice was sent to Bidugh Khan, that the army was on the point of marching for Kábul, but that, as the Emperor wished to be free from the trouble and risk of carrying Askeri Mirza along with him, he was desirous of leaving him in safe custody in Kandahár Bidagh Khan, who had all along earnestly desired to have the Mirza in his power, agreed without hesitation This preliminary step being arranged, various parties were sent from the camp by night to different sides of the town, especially to three of the principal gates About dawn, Han Muhammed, who led the first division, leaving his ambuscade, attended by a few servants only, contrived to enter one of the gates, along with a string of camels that were carrying hay and provender, at that early hour, into the town. The officer at the gate challenged them, and insisted on turning them back, no Chaghatái having for some days been allowed to enter Hán Muhammed maintained that he came by Bidagh Khan's permission, to bring into the fort Askeri Mirza, who was to be left there This story produced no effect on the officer, who proceeded to shut the gate and turn him out upon which Haji Muhammed, drawing his sword, attacked him, and cut off his arm The Han's followers, who were close at hand, now rushed in, but were bravely opposed by such of the Persians as ran to the spot on hearing the upron, and a sharp conflict ensued, which continued till Ulugh Mirza and Biram Khan, having effected an entrance at another gate, came to the assistance of their The Kizelbáshes, overpowered, retreated into Such as remained behind in the town were pursued, and put to death by the enraged citizens About noon, Humáyun himself made his entry into the city, and was received with shouts of joy. He sent

BOOK V A. D 1545 to inform Bidágh Khan, that the measures, which he had unwillingly taken, had been rendered necessary by that nobleman's unjustifiable conduct in concealing the death of the young prince Murád Mírza, who, Humayun alleged, had been entrusted to his care, and by other unfriendly acts Bidágh Khan, who was not prepared to sustain a siege, having, in the course of the night, thrown down a part of the back wall of the citadel, marched off uninolested towards his own country, loudly expressing his indignation at the treachery and ingratitude of his allies. Biram Khan was appointed governor of Kandahai, and ambassadors were sent to Shah Tahmasp, to assure him that, though Bidágh Khan, having acted contrary to his Majesty's intention, had been dismissed from the command, his faithful subject Biram Khan, who had succeeded him, was ready to obey all the orders of his master, the Tahmasp seems to have found it prudent to acquiesce in this arrangement, and a number of the regular Persian troops, especially the Korchis, continued in the Emperor's service *

Divides the district among his nobles.

Humáyun, thus master of the kingdom of Kandahái, proceeded to divide its different provinces among his adherents. The Zemín-dáwer he bestowed on Isináel Beg, Kilát, on Shír-cíken Beg, Shál, on Haider Sultan, who died soon after, the district of Tírí, which lies among the Hazára hills on the Helmend, on Ulugli Mírza, except some districts of it, the revenues of which he bestowed, by way of pension, on Háji Muhammed † To some of his followers he gave jágírs, to others, according to a custom of the times, he gave up some of the lichest and most obnoxious of his prisoners,

<sup>Akbernama, f 66 Tar Niz
ff 196, 197 Tar Bed ff 183, 184, Jouher, c 17, 18, Bayezid, ff 16
—18, Ferishta, vol ii pp 157—159</sup>

[†] Some of these assignments would appear to have been made at rather a later period from whom he allowed them to extort such sums as Chap in they could, which was often done by cruel severities

SECT I

While the minds of the Emperor and his chief officers were engrossed by these proceedings, Askeri Mirza contrived to escape A few days afterwards an Afghan arrived in the city, and give secret notice that the Mirzi was concealed in his house, but, with that regard to external appearances which, with some of the Afghán tribes, seems to constitute their point of honour, far more than substantial fidelity besought the Emperor to seize the fugitive prince in such a way that the informer might not be compromised, as privy to his being retaken. The Emperor accordingly sent Shah Muzz, and Khwaii Ambei, his steward, who took the unhappy Mirza from under a mattress, beneath which he was hidden, and brought him to the presence Humay un spared his life, we are told, from his desire to conform to the dying advice of his father Báber, to be merciful to all, but especially to his brothers, and gave him into the custody of Nidim Kokiltash, one of the confidential servants of his household *

Sets out for

The Emperor, now possessed of a place of strength had become master of his movements, and was eager Leaving his own family, that no time should be lost and the fumilies of his followers, in the citadel of Kandahár, though winter had arrived, he set out for Kábul, but, instead of taking the more open road of Kilát and Ghazni, these towns not having yet come into his power, he followed the course of the Helmend, which, penetrating through the hill-country, leads to the high mountains of the Koh-Bába, close upon Kábul When

 Akbernama, &c as above Abulfazl places the acquisition of the Turkom in horses at this time, and makes the heads of the caravan, afraid of being plundered, voluntarily offer them, on condition of getting bonds to be paid, when the Emperor conquered Hindustan, to which he consented This, no doubt, is a sort of official representation I he ewer-bearer's account, however, is the more probable one, and he was, at the time, with the Emperor

BOOK V A D 1545 the army airived near Tírí, Dawa Beg, the Ilazára chief who had lately acknowledged him, and whose clan inhabited the neighbouring districts, met him with his tribe, all the headmen bringing horses and cattle, which they presented to the Emperor, and, as the country around had many fine straths and valleys, a halt of some days was made, to restore the health of the army, which had suffered in the unhealty climate of Kandahár Here Khanzáda Begum, his aunt, and Báber's favourite sister paid the debt of nature. Here also Yádgár Násir Mírza, with Monaim Beg, and soon after Hindal Mírza and Terdi Beg, who had escaped from Kábul, as has been mentioned, joined the Emperor. Their arrival excited much joy, and was followed by that of many others, both Amírs and soldiers, who now hastened to return to their allegiance.

Is joined by Hindal, I ádgár and others.

> The army once more moved forward, but, in the course of its march, was again attacked with sickness, and numbers died This induced Hindal to propose in council, that the army should return to Kandahár for the winter, and that early in the spring, when all the necessary stores and munitions of war were in readiness, it should commence its march in full strength upon Kábul The Emperor made no remark while the council was sitting, but having, probably, become sensible that, in the former part of his reign, he had given too much license to his brothers, after it was over, he too much heense to his brothers, after it was over, he sent him a verbal message, through Míi Syed Birkeh, to intimate that he had begun his march for Kábul before he had heard of the escape of Yádgár Násii Mírza, or of Hindal's intention to join him, that he had since seen nothing to make him change his plan, for, as to hardships, they were inseparable from war, that if the Mírza needed repose, the Zemín-dáwer was at his service for the winter, and that, in the spring, he might join the imperial array, after the war was over The Mírza apologized for his indiscretion, and promised

BOOK V

A D 1545 Descrtions to Humá yun As there was now the near prospect of a battle, Mirza Ilindal asked, and got permission, to lead the van

The imperial army, having cleared the defile of Khwaja Pushteh, halted in the territory of Arkendi Here Bapus, one of the chief Amírs of Kabul, was brought by his brother Jamíl, and Shah-berdi Khan, who held the districts of Gurdíz, Bangash, and Naghz, also arrived and joined the imperial camp. They were joyfully received. Every night parties deserted from the Mírza's army, and joined the Emperor. Bapus strongly urged Humayun to push on without delay, while the general sentiment was so strong in his favour, and the enemy, from the daily desertions, knew not whom to trust.

Kámrán sends an Embassy

Kámrán Mírza, now equally alarmed at the hostile demonstrations of the enemy, and the defection of his own followers, found himself compelled to devise means to gain time He sent forward two men, respectable for their sacred character, who were instructed to make humble offers of submission on his part, and to entreat the Emperor to cease from active operations met Humáyun, when he was scarcely a mile from the enemy's camp, and prevailed upon him to halt But soon after, suspecting that Kámrán's sole object in opening this negociation, was to gain time for effecting his escape, he advanced towards the Mirza's camp with seven hundred lancers As he rode along, he was met by Mosáhib Beg, the son of Khwája Kilán Beg, Kámrán's Amír-al-omra, at the head of a procession of all the other Amírs of Kámrán Mírza, who came to make his own submission, and to offer then's Their submission was accepted, but, as it was so tardy, they were not admitted to the presence, and were subjected to fines

Escapes to Ghazni On reaching the camp, Humáyun found that Kámrán had escaped into the citadel of Kábul, that his troops were in confusion, and beginning to break up; CHAP III and that numbers had already fled Kámrán did not venture to remain long in the citadel, but some hours after sun-set, when it was dark, taking along with him his son Mirza Ibiáhim, his wives and family, made his escape, and took the Pani-Hissár road towards Ghazni Humáyun sent Bápus, with a body of his most trusty Humáyun men, to occupy Kabul, and to preserve it from pillage, accupies Kabul and, when afterwards informed of Kámrán's flight, he despatched Mirza Hindal to pursue him He himself Ramzán 10 entered Kábul on the evening on the 10th of Ramzán* (Nov 15th), in the midst of a general illumination, and was delighted once more to embrace his son Akber, now about three years of age, whom he found covers Akin perfect health The Bala-Hissar, or Citadel, made

^{*} Nim-kos, half a kos

* There is some difference as to this date. Abulfazl has, the eve of Wednesday, Ramzan 12 vii 952, but the In Bed and Perishta make it Ramzan 10 A ii 952 Bavezid has Ramzan 10 A ii 953 The Tabakat-e Akberi has "Ramzan 10 A H 952 or 953, God knows which " Jouher gives a lively account of Humayun's proceedings on entering the Bala IIIs ar, and arriving at the palace of Ixamran "As one watch of the night was past, and his Majesty had not yet broken his fast, he desired Wasil, the keeper of the wardrobe *, to make a plate of warm soup (ash) be brought, but soon recollecting himself, he bid him go to the palace of the Bibi, as Baike Begum was called, and bring him some broth, if there was any Mchter Wasil, and the humble Jouher, went, and, after paying their respects delivered the message, that, as his Majesty had yet eaten nothing he requested that some food might be sent him, if there was any That lady gave a curry of beef, and a strawal of cow's tripe that happened to be ready dressed No sooner did his Majesty put his spoon into the dishes, and see that they were beef-curry and cow's tripe, than, laying down the spoon, and sighing, he burst into a complaint, exclaiming 'O Mirza Kamran and had you indeed come to such a length, as to make the fare of Bibi Jiu, that asylum of chastity, to be only cow s flesh, and cow's stomach? Could you not have reserved one single sheep for her in your kitchen? And yet this asylum of chastity is the very person who brought here the bones of our venerated father, and placed them in his tomb Could not we, four sons of him whose abode is in heaven, have done something better among us?' In a word, he drank a single cup of sherbet, and put off breaking his fast till the morrow" Jouher c 19 informs us that, in Turkistan, none but the lower classes eat beef Burness Travels, vol m p 159

BOOK V A D 1545 no resistance, and Kábul, and all its provinces south of the Hindu-kúsh range, submitted to him. He published a general amnesty, and spent the winter in the citadel, busily engaged in settling the civil and financial affairs of the country, and in administering justice. The mother of Akber having arrived in the spring from Kandahár, under the escort of Yádgár Násir Mírza, the circumcision of Akber was celebrated by a magnificent festival, at the conclusion of which the Emperor bestowed khiláts and rewards on the most distinguished of his adherents. The government of Ghazni was conferred on Hindal, and Ulugh Mírza, who had returned from the pursuit of Kámrán, was confirmed in that of Zemín dáwer, which had been given him in addition to Tírí and the adjoining districts

Kámrán flies to Sind Meanwhile Kámrán, having escaped from the pursuit of Hindal who was not anxious to seize him, approached Ghazni, but was refused admittance into the town. He now threw himself on the protection of Khizer Khan Hazára, who carried him, first to Tírí, and then to Zemín-dáwer, whence, after some vain efforts to fix himself in that country, he was finally compelled so take refuge in Sind †

Congratulatory embassles to Ilumayun During this period of tranquillity, the Emperor received the congratulations of several of the neighbouring princes, on his having recovered his father's throne An embassy from Shah Tahmasp, at the head of which was Valad Beg, was magnificently entertained, though it made little progress in the grand object for which it was sent—the restoration of Kandahár to the Shah A similar embassy from Mírza Suleimán, the prince of Badakhshán, was less favourably received, as the Mírza declined the Emperor's invitation to wait upon him, or, in other words, declined acknowledging his immediate authority. Mír Syed Ali, a chief whose influence was great and extensive among the Afghins and Balúches, chap in seer I ulso waited upon the Emperor at this period, and received the government of Duki*, depend int on Hindust in on which it borders, and not fu from his own residence. I many Baluch, another of the principal Baluch chiefs having ilso acknowledged the Emperor, was rewarded with the country of Shal and Mustung These charfs, we are told, no sooner received these honours than they took their leave, feiring that the air of the city, and the habits of city life might affect the health of their followers, accustomed only to their own wister and wilds Yadgir Nasır Mırzı, Humiyun's consin, had not Mirzi Imbern long returned from escenting the imperial house-piloned hold from h and thar, when he was charged with entering into new intrigues and cabals, with Askeri Mirza and others, ignust the Emperor Humayun had probably brought with him from Persia a resolution to beat down ill who could be his rivals, and in particular, to reduce the power of the princes of the blood, which, in the former part of his reign, had been productive of so many mischiefs. But he seems to have proceeded with unusual caution, probably to carry along with him the approbation of the old and powerful nobles connected with his family, and of his followers in general. Thirty distinct articles of accusation were brought against Yidgar, some of them for instances of disrespect to his Mucsty, but the leading one was that, when in Sind, Shah Husein Mirza had offered him Bheker on condition of his deserting the Emperor, to which he had agreed, whereby the Emperor had been obliged to retne into Irak On the present occasion, witnesses were examined, and evidences taken, in a manner, of which we find few examples in Asiatic history, and he is said to have been convicted by the testimony of

^{*}Akbernáma, f 66-70, Tab her, c 18, 19, Ferishta, vol 11
Akb ff 158-160, Tar Niz ff 197, pp 158-160, Tar Bed ff 184, 198, Bayezíd, ff 17-22, Jou-

Duki was probably dependant on Multan

BOOK V

impartial men of veracity, as well as of his own accomplices. Some parts of the accusation he denied, as to others he was silent. He was found guilty, and Humáyun informed him, through Kerácha Khan, that since, after being so often pardoned, he had engaged anew in rebellious intrigues, he must expect no farther favour. He was accordingly thrown into prison in the Bála-Hissár, in a house near that in which Askeri was confined

Humáyun, being now the undisputed sovereign of the

Humáyun sets out for Badakhshán

countries to the south of the Hindu-kúsh range, turned his attention to such provinces, on the north of these mountains, as still acknowledged the supremacy of Kábul These, besides Badakhshán, consisted of Kunduz, Khost, Anderáb, and some other districts lying between the mountains and the Amu Not content with Badakhshán, Mírza Suleimán had wrested from Kámrán these provinces, which formed no part of that principality, and seemed little disposed to part with them on the requisition of the Emperor In the spring of 1546, therefore, Humáyun, resolving to chastise him, marched out of Kábul, and encamped in the Yúret Chálák prevent intrigues in his absence, he resolved to carry Asken along with him But after he had proceeded as far as the valley of Kárábágh, aware of the danger of leaving behind him so restless and turbulent a spirit as Yádgár Násır Mírza, he resolved, ın the words of his historian, 'to release the body of that prince from the pains of existence, and to put himself at ease' He sent an order to that effect to Muhammed Alı Taghái, whom he had left governor of Kábul "How should I put to death the Mirza," said that good man, "I, who never killed a sparrow?" The Emperor, upon this, devolved the duty upon Muhammed Kásim Mochi, who strangled the Mirza with a bowstring He was buried on a 11sing ground opposite to the gate of the citadel, near a piece of water and, after a time, his remains

Beginning of a 11 953

Yádgár Mírza put to death were taken up and carried to Kazvín, where they were CHAP III deposited in his father, Násir Mírza's, tomb *

Humávun

Humáyun†, having crossed the mountains, reached The army Anderáb, where, at the village of Tirkerán, he found of Badakh-shan de-Mírza Suleimán with a considerable army, strongly feated by entienched, and prepared to check his advance Emperor, determined to force his position, sent on Mírza Hindal, with Háji Muhammed Khan, Kerácha Khan, and a strong body of troops, himself following to support them The advance made a gallant attack on the fortified camp, as soon as they reached it, but the Badakhshán archers, who were posted behind the trenches, did great execution, and killed or dismounted numbers of the assailants Among those who most distinguished themselves on this occasion, were a party of the Persian Korchi, or currassier body-guard, who accompanied the ambassador, and took a part in the action The contest was long doubtful, till a party of hardy veterans, by a desperate effort, forced their way across the ditch, surmounted the trench, and sabred the archers behind it, who had done such execution In a short time after this success, the whole army of Badakhshán was broken and put to flight Suleimán, abandoning his new territory, fled along the Bángi river and by Náim, Ishkemish and Talikán, towards the broken glens of Khost Mirza Beg Birlás, who had commanded his archers, and some others of his principal chiefs, surrendered to Humáyun The Aimáks who were made pusoners were dismissed, uninjured Hindal to such accidents Struck with the observation, he renounced the use of intoxicating mixtures (liashia), and sent to tell the Sadr, and other ch " men of the law, who had been the party, that the advice &= = have come from them He > ==== to have adhered to this me = 1.5 to the end of his lite Revenue ff 22, 23

^{*} Albernáma, f 69, Bayezíd, f 22, Fab Albert, f 160

[#] Sometime before setting out on this expedition, on leaving a drinking party after midnight, Humayun happened to stumble His butler (Mir Saman) Khwaja Jilaled-din Mahmud, expressed his regret that his Majesty should have taken any thing that exposed him

BOOK V A P 1546 Mirza was sent in puisuit of the fugitives; while Humáyun himself advanced by the pass of Sháshán into the valley of Khost where he spent some days in the amusements of fishing and fowling, for which the place is celebrated, as well as for its fruits. The country around submitted, and Suleimán was compelled to seek shelter beyond the Amu, in Kuláb, and the upper districts of Khutlán **

The country sulmits.

Pangerous filness of Humáy un

Affairs being in this prosperous state, Humáyun moved to Kishein, where he spent three or four months, and divided among the Amirs his late conquests Badakhshán and Kunduz he gave to Mírza Hindal, the collectorate of Khost was given to Monaim Beg, and that of Talikán to Bápus The more effectually to settle the country of Badakhshán, to secure the quiet of the peasantry, and to rest the army, Humáyun resolved to pass the winter in Kila Zefei, towards which he directed his march But on airving at the village of Sháhdán, between Kishem and that town, he was seized with a violent illness, which, for two months, prevented him from leaving the place. At the beginning of the disease he was for four days insensible. Reports of his death, or of its near approach, were, in consequence, spread and believed Officers of every rank left their posts, and consulted together as to the line of their future conduct Among the rest, Mirza Hindal himself left his government of Kunduz, and advanced from Rostak, where he had been, up the Kokeha river, one of the chief branches of the Amu, on which Kıla-Zefer stands, prepared to assert his right to the vacant throne Signs of disorder and insuboidination appeared on every side The Amírs of Suleimán, who had fled into the higher districts of the mountains, gaining confidence, began to descend, and overiun the country At this trying crisis Keiácha Khan, the prime minister, conducted himself with great decision Mirza Askeri, from Chap in whom most immediate danger was apprehended, he removed into his own tent, and placed him there in He himself, and the Amiis most devoted to Humayun, pitched then tents close to the imperial pavilion, from which all persons were excluded except the wife of the Emperor, the royal physicians, and one or two confidential servants of the household Kerácha was indefatigable in his attentions. The disease reached its crisis on the fifth day. While the Begum*, who watched by his sickbed, was engaged in pouring into his mouth the juice of pomegranates, which she squeezed from the fruit, to her surprise and delight he opened his eyes, and asked her, how affairs were going on Being informed that all was in a state of perturbation and ilaim, he sent for Keiácha Khan, and desired him to make histe and let it be known, that he was now convalescent. At the same time letters were despatched to Kábul by Fazil Beg, to announce the amendment of Jus health, so as to prevent any commotions there, and fortunately that officer reached the capital early in the morning, a few hours after the news of the Emperor's illness had airived In the camp, as soon as the Emperor's recovery was known, Mirza Hindal hurried back to Kunduz, and all the other officers returned to the stations which they had left The partizans of Mírza Suleimán dispersed, and returned home When Humáyun was well enough to bear the motion, he was carried in a covered litter to Kila Zefer, where his health and strength were rapidly recruited. Here he bestowed on Shir efken, the son of Kuch Beg, the districts of Kahmerd, Zohák, and Bámián, and sent him to take possession of them, promising that, when he returned most useful Abulfazl makes Mír Birkeh the person who was with him, and who received his orders, f 69

^{*} Akbernama, f 69, Bayezid, ff 25, 26, Tar Niz f 197

[•] Jouher, c 19 says that it was Chuchak Begum, who watched by his bedside Bibi Fatima, the Urdui-Begi of the Harem is represented by Bayezíd, f 27 as having been

BOOK V A, p 1546 to Kábul, Ghurbend should be added to his jágír In a short time, the Emperor was so far recovered as to resume his favourite amusement of hunting. His protracted residence beyond the mountains, however, alarmed the Uzbeks, who possessed Bálkh and the countries on the west, and they employed themselves in preparation to repel the attack, which they believed was meditated *

Kámran recovers Kábul But while every thing seemed to proceed so piosperously, the equally unexpected and unwelcome news arrived, that Kámrán, assisted with troops and money by his father-in-law, Shah Husein Arghún, had once more returned into the territory of Kábul, had gained possession of the capital and of the young pince, and that, among other noblemen who had joined him, was Shír-efken, who had so lately profited by the Emperoi's liberality

This news was a severe blow to Humáyun It put an end to the hopes he had fondly cherished, of at once marching into Hindustán, and promised another long and doubtful war with his brother, whose power and means of offence were much increased, by his having in his possession, not only the Emperor's son Akber and the rest of his family, but the wives and families of all his principal Amírs, who had been left at Kábul as a place of security. To add to Humáyun's other difficulties, it was then the depth of winter, and the lofty Hindu-kúsh mountains, difficult to be crossed even in summer, but then covered with snow, were interposed between him and Kábul. He instantly concluded a treaty with Mírza Suleimán, by which the kingdom of Badakhshán was restored to him, as he had enjoyed it under Báber, and leaving Mírza Hindal governor of all the other provinces beyond the mountains, Kunduz, Anderáb, Khost, Kahinerd, Ghuri, and their dependencies,

^{*} Akbernáma, ff 69, 70, Tab Akb f 160, Jouher, c 19, Bayezid, f 27

he set out from Kila-Zefer to march for Kábul. At CHAP HL Talikán, on the Ferkhar river, he was detained several divs by the violence of the rain and snow As soon as Humáyun they abrited, he went on to Kunduz, where he was against it hospitibly entertained by Hindal, in the garden of once more Khosiou Shah Severil of his Amírs, however, anxious for the fate of their families in Kábul, deserted from the camp, so that Humayun himself and his remaining officers, seeing that the troops desponded, and were wavering, were compelled to go about among them to confirm them in their allegiance, by re-animating their hopes, and by promises of reward . After the Muhammedan festival of the Korbán, he again set out, and proceeding by Cheharder, a town on the road to Khulm, 711kaleh 10 began to ascend the hills, though the quantity of snow An 1547 that had fillen was such, that the roads were blocked up, and they were compelled to make a path by ramming in down, so that the horses and camels could move over it In spite of every difficulty they surmounted the defiles of Shibertu and the pass of Rakík, and halted at Khwari Syaran, ready soon to attack Kábul itself

^{*} Akbernama, f 71, Tab Akb f 161, Jouher, c 20

CHAPTER III

HUMÁYUN IN AFGILÁNISTÁN

SECTION II

CAPTURE AND LOSS OF KÁBUL BY KÁMRÁN HIS SUBMISSION

KÁNRÁN IN SIND — LEAVES SIND ON HUM TUN'S ILLYSS — SURPRISES GHAZNI AND KÁBUL — HIS CRUŁLTIES — HUM TUN ADVANCES AGAINST HIM — HIS DESERTED BY MANY NOBIFS — RESOLVES TO ATTACK KÉBUL DEFEAT OF KÁMRÁN'S GENERAL — HUMÁYUN TAKES THE OUTER FORTIFICATIONS — PROGRESS OF THE SIEGE — BRUTAL CONDUCT OF KÁMRÁN — HIS DISTRESS AND SUBMISSIVE APPLICATIONS — HE LISCAPES FLIES TO BADAKSHÁN, AND THENCE TO THE UZBEKS — HUMÁYUN ENTERS KÁBUL, WHICH IS PLUNDERED — SENDS IN PURSUIT OF KÁMRÁN WHO RETURNS WITH AN ARMY FROM BÁLKH — AND ATTACKS BADAKHSHÁN — HUMÁYUN MOVES TO MELT HIM — REVOLT IN HIS CAMP — THE REBELS ESCAPE TO KÁMRÁN — THE GOVERNOR OF BADAKHSHÁN DECLARES FOR HUMÁYUN — HIS ADVANCE — RLPULSE NEAR TALIKÁN — THE FORT INVESTFD — SUBMISSIVE OFFERS OF KÁMRÁN — HIE SURRENDERS.— HIS RECLEPTION BY HUMÁYUN — HUMÁYUN SETTLI S HIS NORTHERN DOMINIONS, AND RETURNS TO KÁBUL

BOOK V

A D 1547
A H 953

Kámrán in Sind

But it is now necessary to explain by what means Mirza Kámrán had been able to effect so great a change in his circumstances. We have seen that, when formerly compelled to abandon his capital by night, he attempted to seize Ghazni. Being disappointed by the vigilance of the garrison, he had taken refuge with Khizer Khan Hazára*, who received him with every mark of distinction, and conducted him first to Tírí, among the Hazára

^{*} Kamran had given his daughter to Khizer Khan's son

BOOK V

A n 1547
Surprises Ghazni,

possessed of a led horse This enabled him to advance rapidly on Ghazni, which he entered by surprise, having had a previous understanding with some of the inhabitants. The governor, Záhid Beg, he put to death, and carefully cut off all communication with Kábul Emboldened by success, he pressed on for that city, accompanied by his Sindi troops, and, preceding the news of his own return, reached it early in the morning. On taking possession of the gates, he found that the governor Muhammed Ali Taghái was gone out to take the warm bath. The Mírza made him be brought forth, undressed as he was, and sabred him on the spot. The city and citadel, with all the Emperor's family, fell into his hands without resistance. He went to reside in the Bála-Aik or Bála-Hissár. The young prince, Akber, who had already been exposed to so many changes of fortune, he treated with tenderness, but again removed him from the care of Mír Atka, and placed him and already him and already and Kábul

His cruel

placed him under the charge of his own servants

Whether from initation of temper or from policy, he now indulged in acts of extreme severity and cruelty. He blinded Fazail Beg and Mehter Vakíla, whom Humáyun had sent to forward the preparations for his intended expedition against Hindustán. He put to death, or imprisoned, many others of Humáyun's most faithful adherents. Hisám-ed dín Ali, the son of Mín Khalífa, chancing about this time to return from Zemíndáwer, the government of which he had resigned to Ulugh Beg, was seized by the Mírza, who, in revenge for the repulse he had received from him in that province, ordered him to be torn himb from limb. By great exertions he succeeded in detaching many of the chief men of the country, and among others Shír efken, from their allegiance to Humáyun. He spared no efforts to collect an army and every munition of war, and in a short time he was once more acknowledged in had families in Kábul, would take that opportunity of deserting, and that, therefore, it was better at once to attack the town. If the Mírza hazarded a battle to preserve it, 'twas well, if not, that, at least, desertion would be prevented, and the troops placed under cover Háji Muhammed was, therefore, sent on, with the advance, by the Minár pass, while the Emperor took the Páván pass, on the direct road to the city

Resolves to attack Kábul

Defeat of Kámrán s general

When Mirza Hindal came near Deh-Afghánán, one of the suburbs of Kábul, he was met by Shír efken at the head of a body of Kámrán's best troops, and an action ensued, bravely supported on both sides Some of the Emperor's men, however, broken by the impetuosity of the attack, at last turned and fled Humáyun, who was at a little distance, observing this, and seeing Minza Hindal still gallantly maintaining his ground with the handful of men left with him, was on the point of galloping to his succour, when Kei ácha Khan begged to be allowed to lead the reinforcement The Khan charged with much vigour, and himself engaged Shirefken hand to hand Shir-efken, who was a distinguished swoidsman, discharged upon him three fuiious blows in quick succession, all of which he warded off with his sabie Shir-efken then let fall a fourth, but missing his aim, was thrown forward on his horse, upon which Kerácha, pushing on his charger, unhoised him, and took him prisoner * Han Muhammed, mean-

* This is related differently by different writers Bayezid says, that when Shír-efken heard of Humayun's approach, he was in the bath, and drunk, that, without informing Kamrán, he set out to engage the enemy that near Baba Shesh-per he met the enemy's pickets that Syed Ah, a Korchi, there attacked him, seized him by the waist, made him prisoner, and carried him to the Emperor that Keråcha Khan insisted he should be put to death, that a quarrel arose between Shah Mirza, Ulugh Mirza's brother, and Jemíl Beg, the brother of Bapus, as to which of them had made him prisoner, and that, upon the testimony of the soldiers, the prize was given to Jemíl Beg Probably these commanders claimed a right to whatever was gained by their retainers Bayezíd, f 30 while, arriving with his division by a different road, char in and attacking the enemy in flank they fled in every direction. Humayun showed a disposition to have spared Shir etken but Kerácha and other officers remonstrating upon the bid example of pirdoning a deserter and rebel of such rank, his head was struck off on the spot in the Imperor's presence. Without loss of time llumium followed the retreating troops towards Kabul, and advancing by the Khiábán, an wenne and pleasure ground leading to the Iron Gates, a part of his troops pressed on the fugitives with so numayun much adour, that they entered the outer melosure takes the outer fortialong with them Mirza Khizei Khin, the Hazára, and fictions the Arghún auxiliaries, believing all to be over, rode off, and took refuge among the neighbouring Hazáras, so that the outer enclosure of the city was taken without firther resistance Shir Ali retiring into the for-Most of the prisoners taken in this action were put to death T

to

The Emperor having established his head quarters progress of at the Koh-Aikibem (Lagles' Hill), which commanded the town plinted his artillery, and commenced a cinnonade upon it Ramrán, who, for some time, had expected to be besieged, had placed both the town and citadel in the best posture of defence, and had a strong garrison within the wills This enabled him to make duly sillies, for the purpose of intercupting the operations of the besiegers, which led to many desperate rencounters In one of these, Han Muhammed Khan, while engaged in marking out ground for trenches, was atticked by Shir Ali, and severely wounded in the right arm. He was rescued by his own men, and, being unable to walk, was carried to his quarters, where for some time he remained dangerously ill A

^{198,} Jouher, c. 20, Bayezíd, sf Derw iza-Alienein † Albern una, ff 70, 71, Tab 18-20 Alb 160, 161, Tar Niz ff 197,

BOOL V A 11 1547. report of his death reaching the Emperoi, an officer was sent to take charge of his portion of the trenches. This so much huit the old veteran that, ill as he was, he ordered his horse, and rode out to visit them, in consequence of which over exertion he had a severe relapse. Mirza Sanjer, who had so lately deserted from Humáyun, was run off with, during a sally, by his horse, which carried its rider to the Bágh-e-Benefsheh*, where its former owner had lived. He was taken, and carried before the Emperor, who sent him to prison. The town and citadel were too extensive to admit of their being fully blockaded by the besiegers Even at an early period of the siege, a few men of rank descrited from Kámrán, but as it continued, and scarcity began to prevail, numbers, seeing no prospect of relief, made their escape, and for the most part joined the Emperor When the siege had lasted for some time, a large caravan from the north reached Charikanán, bringing about five hundred horses and much valuable property Kanıran, informed of its arrival, directed Shir Ali to take a detachment and plunder it Some of his officers objected to this, as Humáyun, they said, would not fail to send a party to pursue them, so that, either the detachment would be unable to reach the caravan, or, if it did, would be unable to get back to the town, in which case no benefit could be derived from the sally Kámrán, however, persisting, the detachment set out, surprised the caravan, and bore off the booty Humáyun got notice of their march and its object But as several hours had already elapsed since they left the fort, instead of making a vain attempt to over-take them, he put his whole troops in motion to block up the roads and guard the fords, so as to prevent their regaining the town. This was done so vigorously and successfully, that Shír Ali, when he returned, found it impossible to effect an entry in any quarter, so that he was compelled to retire to a distance, and wait for CHAP III in opportunity of throwing himself into the place by surprise A grand sally from the fort was at length concerted, under cover of which a way might be opened for his troops to regain the fort. But, after desperate chorts the besieged were repulsed, chiefly by the steadmess of a small body of matchlock-men, and forced to fill back with a great loss in killed and wounded Shir Alt after this repulse, losing all hope of being able to enter the town made for Glazm but was pursued, overtiken, and detected it the Serwend piss, his followers dispersed, a considerable part of the merch indise and horses plundered from the cirivan, recovered, and a number of prisoners taken. When the pursuing party returned to the cump, Humáyun sent for the merchants who had been plundered, and delivered up to them whatever they could identify as having belonged to them an act of justice which, in those times of ripine mide i most fivourible impression, and wis afterwards very beneficial to his affairs This act of generosity was accompanied by one of a very different description. The prisoners that had been taken, about thirty in number, were led out in front of the trenches, opposite to the city gite, and there put to death, in presence of the besieging army and of the garrison This act of cruelty marks the decided turn that had taken place in the spirit of the war, which, from various cuises, as is but too common in civil wars, had, for some time pist, been gradually assuming a character of great ferocity

The relations of such as had suffered in this execu- Brutal contion histened to Kamián, and loudly demanded ictali ation for the blood that had been spilt. Though he had himself been the aggressor, and shown the example, the demind was in accordance with his initated feel-The relations of such as had been employed in the transaction were served, and subjected to a cruel

Lamrán.

revenge Bápus had been ordered by the Emperor to superintend the late execution Kámrán, under pretence of retaliation, gave over that nobleman's wife to the rabble in the bazar, to be dishonoured, and muidered his three sons, who were between the age of three and eight years, throwing their dead bodies over the walls, towards that part of the trenches where Kerácha Khan and Mosáhib Beg commanded The sons of these two last mentioned Amírs he caused to be tied to stakes, and exposed suspended by ropes from the castle wall, at the same time intimating to their unhappy parents that they must either join him, or make the Emperor raise the siege, or at least open for him through their lines a passage, by which he might leave the fort, otherwise that their children should be treated as those of Bápus had been Kerácha, who was then Humáyun's prine minister, made answer aloud in hearing of the troops, to Kámrán's men who were on the battlements - that his children must all meet death in the course of nature, and in the allotted time that they could not fall better than in the path of duty to their benefactor that his own life belonged to his sovereign, from his allegiance to whom nothing should make him swerve, "but," added the minister, "if Kámrán will return to his allegiance, my life, which at any time I would gladly give for that of my children, shall be gratefully devoted to his service" Humáyun gave his brother to know that, should he carry his threat into execution, he and his son must expect the same fate, as soon as the city fell Kamrán, however, made the wife of Muhammed Kásım Khan Mochi, with some other females, be suspended by the breasts from the battlements, and continued to rage, with odious brutality, against the helpless and unoffending children and wives of his enemies

As the cannonade still continued, Kámrán, to check the fire of the besiegers, is said to have ordered the young prince, Akber, to be exposed on that part of the CHAP III. wall where the fire of cannon and musquetry was hot-If we do not, with Abulfazl, allow that Sambal Khan, the Emperor's master of artillery, wondered from what unknown cause the hands of his artillery and matchlock-men trembled, why the bullets took a crooked course, and why then matches did not communicate their usual fire, yet we must detest the being who closed a scene of dastardly cruelty towards his innocent prisoners, by exposing his infant nephew to such a 11sk The fitting, however, ceased *

The siege had now continued so long, that the chiefs, who were in the Emperor's interest, began to join his camp from a distance, from Zemin-dáwei, Kandahái, Kılát, and Badakhshán They all had stations assigned to them, so that the blockade was completed all around, and every day became closer Kámrán, now much straitened, began to feel apprehensions for his own safety He sent the humblest and most submissive His distress confession of his past errors to Kerácha Khan, beseech-sive appliing him to intercede with his offended brother, whom cations. it was now his supreme wish faithfully to serve, and

* It is difficult anywhere to find instances of flattery so gross as the greater part of Abulfazl's account of the infant years of Akber Akbernáma passim The Emperor, who wished to be thought invested with a supernatural character, did not discourage such representations, but rather favoured any artifice that could add weight to the belief The story of Akber's being actually exposed on the walls is related by Abulfazl, as well as by Nizám eddin Ahmed, Tar Niz f 199, who mentions that Mahum Anka interposed her body to preserve him from danger, in which he is followed by the Tar Bedáum, Ferishta, and in general all subsequent writers Yet the fact seems doubtful Bayezid, a contemporary, and on the spot, though he minutely describes the other atrocities, takes no notice of this, ff 31, 32, and Jouher, who was also in the camp, only says, in mentioning the cannonade which which was opened from the Koh-Aákabein and returned from the fort, "Mırza Kámran upon this threatened to expose his Majesty s son, Muhammed Akber, to the fire of the battery When information of this reached the Emperor, he ordered the cannonade to cease, but his troops to remain in the trenches on every side, and to guard them well - End of cap 20

BOOK V A D 1547 offering, in proof of his sincerity, to put his life and fortune in the Emperor's hands Humáyun, with his usual easy good nature, was disposed to forgive him But Kerácha Khan and Mosáhib Beg,—whether they only foresaw new trouble and fresh intrigues from the Mirza's residence in his brother's court, or whether, according to others, they were alarmed lest their own importance should be gone, were Humáyun to reign supreme, without a rival,—are accused of having piivately filled the mind of Kámrán with dread of the danger that awaited him should he surrender to his brother, and, at the same tune, terrified him by the information that the Emperor's army was every day growing in strength As friends, therefore, they are said to have advised Kámrán to make his escape, offering secretly to assist him in passing through the lines At all events, the Mirza, on the 27th day of April, the night being very dark, left the citadel by a breach opened in the wall, was conducted through the trenches, and made the best of his way for the mountains on foot Humáyun, on hearing of his escape, sent Mírza Hindal to pursue him The Mirza overtook him after he had reached the hills, which he found him ascending, mounted on the back of a man. Hindal was about to seize him, but desisted on the earnest prayers of his brother, not to force him back to certain death, and being affected at his deplorable and destitute situation, presented him with a horse, and turned back *

Thursday, Rebi, I 7 A. H 954 April 27 Ha escapes

* Akbernáma, ff 71—73, Tar Akb ff 160, 161, Tar Nız ff 198, 199, Jouher, c 20 and 21, Bayezıd, ff 30—32, Tar Bed f 185, Ferishta, vol 11 pp 161—163, Bayezıd affirms that Hindal allowed Kámrán to pass through his lines, that he was recognised and seized, but a sign taken from him, after which he was allowed to go on Other authorities affirm that Háji Muhammed was sent in pur suit and overtook him, when Kámrán exclaiming in Turki, "Go and say to your father, Bába Kushkeh, it was I that slew him "Háji Muhammed, who was an old soldier and a Moghul, did not push on, but turned back and let him go, Tar Bed f 185 and Tab Akh He probably also knew him as a child, being Kokildash to one of the imperial family

K mrin had concerted with his adherents, that they came in should meet him at the hill of Istalif, in the Kohdimin, north of Kubul, where he was to collect an Files to Barrm, and make a new attempt, but, on his arrival, and thence seeing nothing in readiness, he set out again by night to the Uzittended only by Mi-kuli, a Koreli, and proceeded onward by the valley of Senied He was met on the way by a party of Hazaras, who robbed han of the little he had left. One of them, however, recognizing the Maza, he was carried to their chief, who took him to Zohik and Bannan, where he was joined by Mirza Beg, Shir Ali, and i few more, who still adhered to his interest In the course of a week, they collected about a hundred and fifty horse, with which they went down to Ghuir, which they summoned to surrender But Mirza Beg Bulis, the governor, declaing his determination to hold the place for Humayun, the party had begun to pass on, when one of their number, a man of no note, in a rude and blustering manner, abusing the privilege allowed to companions in misfortune, began to fail at Kamian, exclaiming that, if he was really the son of Baber, and hid any sense of honour, he would not illow the governor to escape so easily Kamian explanted to his restive adherent, that he had neither stores not implements for conducting a siege, not were his people in a humour for it. But, at length, stung by the renewed reprotehes of the man, he turned back, and by a piece of fortunate temerity, defeated Mirza Beg, who had with him a thousand foot and three hundred horse, and took the place, in which was found a luge supply of stores, besides the horses, aims and account ements of the troops Lewing Shir Ali to defend this importint acquisition, he pushed on towards Badakhshán, in the hope of prevailing upon Mirza Suleiman, and his son Mirza Ibráhím, to join him But these princes, who had no attachment to any of the brothers, and were wholly bent on making themselves independent,

BOOK V A D 1547 and on securing their country from foreign invasion, declared their determination to adhere to the treaty lately concluded with Humáyun—so that Kámrán, finding no prospect of success in that quarter, was compelled to turn for succour to the Uzbeks, the grand enemies of his race, and marched down to Bálkh, in hopes that Pír Muhammed Khan, the Uzbek chief of that province, might espouse his cause."

Humáyun enters kabul which is plundered

Meanwhile, Humáyun, having entered Kábul, had the satisfaction of embracing his son Abker, whom, as well as all the ladies of his family, he found safe. He, however, gave up the town to be plundered for one whole night by his troops, as a punishment on the inhabitants for allowing their town to be surprised This, had it been the real cause, was punishing them for the fault of a governor chosen by himself, and for all the subsequent miscry which, through his negligence, they had endured But the real motive was, probably, his inability to remunerate his troops in any other way for their long-suffering and privations, before and during the siege He put to death some Mullas, who had encouraged Kamran in his rebellion and misdeeds. Being apprehensive that the Mirza might establish himself in Badakhshán, he despatched Keráchi Khan across the mountains, to chase him out of his dominions That general, accordingly, descending on the northern face of the range, laid siege to Ghuri, which he took, after it had been long defended with gallantry by Shir Ali, who, when it was no longer defensible, effected his escape, carrying the garrison along with him

Sends In pursuit of Kániran

Kámrán had not been long at Bálkh, before he succeeded in engaging the governor, Pír Muhammed Khan, in his interest. That chief, and indeed the whole Uzbek confederacy, had seen with jealousy and alarm,

Kamrán returns with an army from Balkh

^{*} Akbernama, f 73, Tab Alb f 32, Khol-ul Towarikh, f 267 ff 161, 162, Tar Niz ff 199, This last calls Pir Muhammed Khan, 200, Jouher, c 21, Bayezid, Wali of Iuran

the late visit of Humáy un to the provinces on the Amu When he heard, therefore, of Kamrán's approach, to ask succour against his brother, he considered the occa sion as a most favourable one for fomenting that discord among the sons of Báber, which hitherto had been so advantageous to the Uzbeks He received the Muza with every mark of distinction, lodged him in his own palace, and soon accompanied him back into the country which acknowledged the sovereign of Kabul, at the head of a powerful force With his aid, Kamrin recovered Ghuri, and took Baklan, and adventurers flocked to his standard from every quarter Hindil Mirza, who with the troops of Kunduz, had formed a junction with Kerácha Khan and Suleimán Muzi, was unable to resist such an invasion nmy, therefore, soon broke up, he threw himself into Kunduz, Kerácha Khan recrossed the mountains, to bring an adequate reinforcement from Kábul, while the Badakhshán Muzas hastened back to defend the nairow passes of their own mountains Pir Muhammed Khan, seeing his ally, Kamran Mirza, undisputed master of the open country, returned home to Bálkh, leaving with him a strong body of Uzbek auxiliaries *

The Mirza, availing himself of his good fortune, 1e- Attacks Basolved to make his first attack on the dominions of For that purpose, he advanced to Kishem and Talikán, whence he detached a body of his Chaghatái and Uzbek troops, under Rafik Koka, to occupy Rostak, a town and district situated on the Kokcha inver, within the territory of Badakhshán Suleimán, collecting the militia of the adjoining highland district of Kuláb or Khutlán, marched suddenly into Rostak, and made a sharp attack upon Rasik, with whom he came up near Kila Zefer He was, however, repulsed, and compelled once more to take refuge among his BOOK V A D 1547 mountains Such an effect had the news of Kámrán's success on his old followers and soldiers at Kábul, that nearly 3,000 of them left that place, and joined him in his new adventure *

Humáyun moves to meet blm

No sooner did the Emperor hear of the dangers that threatened him on the side of Bálkh, than he left his capital, and marched to place himself at the head of his troops in the north He had only reached Ghuibend, in the Koh-daman of Kábul, when he met Kerácha Khan on his way back from his unfortunate expedition. Kerácha, as he crossed the hills, had been plundered of all his baggage by the Aimáks, who, with the Hazáras and other hill-tribes, were the only gainers by these intestine wars The destitute condition, to which he was thus reduced, made it indispensable for Kerácha to go on to Kábul, there to refit, so as to enable him to take the field, and Humáyun moved from Ghurbend to Gulbehar, where he halted to enjoy the pleasures of the chase, and to await his minister's re-As soon as Kerácha rejoined the camp, the Emperor, intent on his original purpose, again moved on But, through this ill-timed delay, the season for passing the hills was lost, and in attempting to surmount the passes of the Hindu-kúsh mountains, when they were covered with deep snow, the difficulties and dangers were found to be such, that, after much disorder and loss among the troops and cattle, which plunged, and stumbled, and sank in the snow, the attempt was abandoned, and the army returned to Kábul, to await the return of spring *

Revolt in his camp When the season arrived, in which it was practicable to cross the mountains, Humáyun, as he was about to set out, was prevented by an unexpected revolt. The real nature of the intrigues which produced so many revolutions, for a long series of years, in the family of

^{*} Khol ul Towarilh, f 267

Tumur, it is impossible, at this distance of time, to char iii discover, even were it of much importance Some observitions are obvious enough. Though much respect was paid to the members of the imperial family, as descendints of Taimur, or of Baber, no one individual of them was viewed with exclusive veneration as the eldest, or legal representative of the dynasty. Any one of them who could command success, could command obe-The throne of the individual was always, therefore, unsteady Possession, within the range of the funily, brought right along with it. There were no great bodies, of the nobles, of the law, or of the church, no corporations, living beyond the life of man, and maintaining, while they existed, the same uniform spirit and character, that could be opposed to a spirit of change The towns, though they had wishes and interests of their own, hiving no municipal government, no correspondence with each other, no central point or council, by which their common interest could be known or pursued, were without power, or influence in affairs of state, and could only show their unersy feelings by not A few Annis, with their followers, decided the question, who was to rule Even among them, there were nobles, but no body of nobility There was no Senate, or States General, or Parliament, in which they had a right to take their seat, and where they could consult in common The king's court was the centre of union, and from the crown all honour flowed to the individual, for dignity was not hereditary possession of the ear, or even of the person, of the sovereign was the great object of the ambitious great Amirs strengthened themselves, for influence at court, by adding to the number of their retainers, and all in the lower stations who aspired to rise, connected themselves with some powerful noble. The consequence was, that a few of these grand Amiis, by a combination among themselves, or by a sudden coup d'état, could make and unmake the sovereign Princes of talent could overrule, and give an useful direction to the power thus accumulated in a few hands, while such as were deficient in political skill, became the instruments, and too often the victims, of this unregulated power As there were few steady checks to the exercise of power, every governor, as well as every sovereign, was nearly despotic in his own government. In such a state of things, discontent and collision were inevitable.

Some discontent and consists were nevitable Some discontent would appear to have prevailed at the court of Kábul among the leading nobles, though we are ignorant of its exact nature and extent Kerácha Khan was Prime Minister, an office which he had earned by important services. It is probable that in this high station, encouraged by the easy humour and indolence of Humáyun, he may have arrogated too much to himself, and cairied matters with too high a hand, and the Emperor could hardly ful occasionally to feel the engrossing spirit of his minister, while, on the other hand, Kerácha was easily inflained at any obstacle to his authority The possession of the purse is always the most important part of a minister's power, and any interruption in that power is most sensibly felt. It happened that Kerácha, who had got the Emperor's consent to bestow a trifling sum of ten tumáns * on a particular officer, had himself written the order on the treasury to carry it into effect. When it was presented, Khwaja Gházi of Tabríz, the Diwán oi Minister of Finance, who had returned from Persia during the late siege, and been appointed to that important office, refused to pay it, and at the same time represented to the Emperor that as he, by the nature of his office, was answerable for the expenses of the army, he could not allow any other person to interfere in his department. The order, when refused, was carried back to Kerácha, who took

^{*} In that age this sum might be equal to 801 or 1001

A D 1548

The rebels escape to Kúmrán were successively despatched in this manner in the course of the day, and at noon, when the hour was at length declared to be fortunate, the Emperor himself set out, and at length overtook and attacked the rearguard of the fugitives near Kárá-bágh Having pushed them before him, he had got close upon Kerácha Khan, towards the close of the day, on the banks of the Múii, when night interposed The fugitives, continuing their flight, passed the bridge of Ghurbend, which they broke down behind them, whereupon a detachment, that had followed them up to that time, returned back to Humáyun at Kárábágh That prince, finding that they had escaped his immediate pursuit, hastened back to Kábul, to prepare for a campaign on the Badakhshán side of the hills, which he now saw would be more necessary, and the event more doubtful than he had expected Kerácha, on his part, leaving Temir Shagháli in the district of Penjshír, to collect and forward all the intelligence he could procure from Kábul, proceeded by the Upper Hindu-kúsh pass, and joined Kámrán in Kishem *

Humáyun collects his forces.

лн 955, Jemádi I 5 June 12 Humáyun, on his return to Kábul, despatched orders to his Amírs in every quarter, to furnish their quotas to the army he was preparing to lead against Káinrán Among others he invited Háji Muhammed Khan to join him from Ghazni. In the course of about a month, on the 12th of June and 1548, he left Kábul and proceeded to Kárábágh, where he halted ten or twelve days, waiting for his stores and field equipage. Heic, to the general surprise, he was joined by Háji Muhammed, whose fidelity seems to have been suspected Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek also arrived from Bangash, and was gladly welcomed

It was while they were still at this station that Mirza Ibráhim, Suleimán's son, arrived from Badakhshán

The Governor of Badakhshan declares for him

* Akbernáma, f 74, Tab Akb rishta, vol 11 p 163, Jouher, c.21, f 162, Tar Niz 900, 201, Fe-Bayczíd, f 33, 34

reached the Khost territory, Mosáhib succeeded in conveying them safe to Talikán

On reaching the low country, Humáyun was joined from Kunduz by his brother Hindal, who brought with him a prisoner of considerable importance, Shir Ali This chief had long possessed much influence in the court of Kámrán, whom he had often urged to attack Kunduz, representing it as an easy conquest He was, at length, entrusted with a force to make the attempt, and had reached the town But a party from the fort having one night surrounded the house in which he was, and come upon him by surprise, Shir Ali, in trying to escape, threw himself into the river, but broke one of his arms, and was taken Humáyun received him with distinction, gave him a dress of honour, and restored him to the government of Ghuri man of great vigour, foresight and activity, but it is not very easy to discover the principle on which officers, at this distracted period, the moment they passed, by desertion or the fortune of war, from one army to another, were entrusted with commands of importance There seems to have been little steady fidelity, or honour, among the adherents on either side *

The important conflict between the Emperor and Kámrán, who had received so large an accession of strength by the revolt of the Amírs, was now about to take place. When rather more than the half of July 1548 was passed, Humáyun, encamped in the Aleng Kazan of Anderáb, was joined by the Kázi of Anderáb, with a number of the neighbouring tribesment, and others, who had been followers of Mosáhib Beg. He lost no time, but resolved to attack the enemy while still divided. Putting his troops in motion, and giving Hindal the advance, he marched to lay siege to Talikán, at that time garrisoned by Kerácha Khan and

^{*} Akbernáma, f 75, Tab Akb f 162

[†] The Tukba, Simchi, and Baluch are specified Akbernáma

the rebel Amírs, with a party of Kámrán's troops under char iii Mirza Abdalla, who were making every preparation to place it in a condition to sustain a long siege Kámrán himself, with the main body of his army, was lying at a distance near Kishem and Kila Zefer

Humáyun, trusting to this division of the enemy's Repulsenear force, had ordered Mirza Hindal and the advance to cross the Bángı above Talıkán*, and to take up ground on the other side of the liver But the rebel Amiis, aware of the Emperor's movements, had, by express, informed Kámrán of their danger, and added that Hindal and his division could with ease be cut off by a sudden attack Kámrán had, in consequence, made a forced march of nearly fifty milest, had arrived near Talıkán, and already occupied a rising ground not far from the fort No sooner, therefore, had Hindal's division passed the river, than Kámrán attacked and broke it, while unsupported by the main body, plundering then baggage, and driving them back in confusion to the side from which they had come

The Emperor, who reached the liver just when this discomfiture occurred, was eager to cross at once, in face of the enemy But finding that to be dangerous, the bed of the liver being full of loose rolling stones, which rendered footing insecure, he was compelled to march about a mile farther up, where the bottom was of firm rock, and there he crossed Without delay he again moved downwards, to drive Kámrán from the rising ground which he had occupied As he approached it, he found that a strong party which he had pushed forward had been vigorously assailed and driven back, but, as soon as the imperial standard was seen advancing, Kámrán, convinced that the main body was

Talikan the river generally gets the name of the Talikan river † 25 kos

^{*} Talikan stands upon the Ferkhar river, which joins the Bángi Both branches, however, seem to be occasionally called Bángi Below

BOOK V

A D 1548
The fort

now at hand, hurriedly deserted his position, and retired into the town with the loss of his own baggage as well as of that which he had taken. Humáyun now plundered and laid waste the surrounding country, and sat down before the fort. Such prisoners as he had taken were put to death. Being anxious, however, to put an end to hostilities, he wrote to his brother*, making an overture for an accommodation, but it was rejected. Batteries were, therefore, erected, and operations begun

The siege went on for about a month, during which time the Emperor was joined by Mírza Suleimán and his son, with large reinforcements, as well as by Chaker Khan, the son of the late Sultan Weis Kipchak, with a force from Kuláb Kámrán, meanwhile, finding that he had no prospect of relief from any quarter, as the Uzbeks, rejoiced to see the princes of Kábul destroying each other, refused him any farther assistance, became most eager to open the negociation which he had so lately rejected For this purpose he shot into the camp of the besiegers, arrows having attached to them letters addressed to the Emperor, in which, by the humblest confession of his offences, and by promises of a change of conduct, he attempted to propitiate his resentment, and proposed Mír Arab Mekki as his mediator Emperor having agreed to receive his submission, the Mir was sent into the fort, and, after some conferences, finally concluded a capitulation by which the Mirza,

Submissive offers of Kamran

* Hardly any letters passed in that age between princes in which quotations from favourite poets are not to be found. Humáyun wrote to Kámrán, "O my unkind brother, what are you doing? For every murder that is committed on either side, you will have to answer at the day of judgment. Come and make peace, that mankind may no longer be oppressed by our quarrels." The letter was sent by Nesíb, a diviner, (rammál) Kámrán, having read the letter, was silent, and when the diviner requested an answer, the Mirza only repeated the well-known verse, "He that would obtain sovereignty for his bride, must woo her across the edge of the sharp sword" Nesíb, considering this as his answer, bowed and returned to Humáyun renouncing his claim to independence, agreed that the cuar in Khutha should be read in the Imperors name, that the revolted Amirs should be delivered up in chains, while he himself was to be permitted to retire to Mckka Accordingly the Imperor Saidrentered Talikan, and on Roes 12, I rid a, the 17th day of August, recited the priver for the prince in his name, in the Grand Mosque. Kamran, Hesir with his family, having come out of the town, was conducted by H in Muhammed to the limits of the imperial territory. He requested that Bapus might be one of the Amers who were to accompany him in his exile, because he said, he was his prot p, and he wished to have in opportunity of atoming for the sore injury he had done him. The revolted Amírs were brought as prisoners into the Imperor's presence, and paidoned, probably on a prayate understanding under the treaty?

Aurust 17

The irmy was still encomped in a valley on the Rock 17 bunks of the Tulkin river, when, on the 22nd of August 22 August the Imperor was surprised to learn that Is mir in was not far off, and on his way back to throw lumself on his mercy When Kunr in left Tahkin, he was under the deepest apprehension for his personal sifety. But when he had gone a few stages, and heard of the generous reception, which Humayun and given to the revolted nobles,—as he had no real wish to go to . The first who was brought in was bericha liban, with his sermetar hanging from his neck. The I inperor made it be taken off permitted him to make his ober and, addressed some conciliatory words to him, and then desired him to be reated on his left, below Lerdi Ikg Ishan The same ceremony was gone through with the others who had all places assigned them. When Korhin Keriwal, who had been a personal servant of Hum iyun's came in and bowed down with shame, performed the kornish, "And you too, said the Imperor, What cause of offence could you have?" Norban answered "What can those do, who c face God has blackened?" On which Hasan kuli quoted the couplet "He who puffs at the lamp which God has lighted, singes his beard. All the rebel lords says Abulfarl, but especially Iverselia Ishan, who had a very long beard, felt much ashamed Akbernama, ff 75, 76 , Lab. Akb. ff 162, 163, Jouher, c 22, Bavezid ff 33-37

BOOK V A b 1548 the Holy Cities,—he began to imagine that he might still have something to expect from his brother's clemency, an idea that was encouraged by Mírza Abdalla, and others who accompanied him, to whom the pilgrimage was as little pleasing as to himself. After he had travelled about forty miles*, therefore, he turned back, and sent on Bápus to wait upon Humáyun, and communicate to him his most humble petition to be received under his protection. Humáyun at once acceded to his wishes, made every preparation for his honourable reception, and sent out Hindal and Askeri, his brothers, the latter of whom he released from bonds on the occasion, with Mírza Suleimán, and many great Amírs, as an honorary procession, or Istakbál, to meet and conduct him to the presence, with the sound of kettle-drums and trumpets

Ilis recep tion by Hummy un When Kámrán approached the Emperor, who was sitting in state in the pavilion of public audience, he took a whip from the girdle of Monaim Khan, who stood by, and passing it round his neck, presented himself as a criminal "Alas! alas! exclaimed the Emperor, there is no need of this, throw it away" The Mirza made three obeisances, according to the usual etiquette of the court, after which the Emperor gave him the formal embrace, and commanded him to be seated Kámrán began to make excuses for his past conduct, and to express his regret "What is past is past," said the Emperor "Thus far we have conformed to ceremony. Let us now meet as brothers" They then rose, and clasped each other to their breasts, in the most affectionate manner, and both burst into tears, sobbing aloud, so as to affect all who were present Humáyun, on resuming his seat, desired his brother to sit next to him on the left, the place of honour, adding kindly in Túrki, the language of their family, "Sit close frontier of Muk and Karatigin, he allotted to Kámrán Mírza, giving him Chaker Ali Beg Kulábi, the son of Sultan Weis Beg, as Amii-ul-omra to accompany him to his province He permitted Mírza Askeri to go with Kámián, bestowing on him the district of Karatigín These assignments were little more than nominal Kuláb was considered as dependant on Badakhshán, Karatigín probably was not Chaker Ali was governor of Kuláb, but, at the same time, was a sort of independent chief, who did not owe much submission either to Humáyun or Suleimán The Emperor's seal-bearer presented Kámrán, when near Nárin, with the perwana, or grant of his new territory, and congratulated him on his appointment. It gave Kamran but little satisfaction. What "said he," have I not been sovereign of Kabul and of Badakhshan? And is not Kuláb a mere pergana, or district, of the latter? "How can I serve in it?" "I have heard that you are wise," said the keeper of the seals, "and I know you to be so. May I be permitted respectfully to observe, that, after all that has passed, the wonder rather may be, that you have got even this, or any thing" The justice of the observation was felt by Kámrán He, next day, waited upon the Emperor, was honoured with a khilát, and the investiture of Kuláb, and, accompanied by Askeri and Chaker Khan, set out for his government Many of Chaker Khan's followers left him, and attached themselves to Kámrán They army broke up Suleimán Mírza and his son Ibráhím continued to hold the government of Badaklıshán, to which Talıkán was added, with Kishem and some other districts Mírza Hindal retained Kunduz with Ghuri, Kahmerd, Baklán, Ishkemish and Narin Shir Ali remained with him as Minister They all repaired to their governments, while Humáyun proceeded to Khost, and thence to Perián, on his route to the Penjshír pass ^{*} Bayezid, f 39-41, Akbernama, &c., as above.

BOOK V A D 1518

Peri'n was a fort, which the great Taimur had built, char in when he chastised the infidels of Kittur Humáyun, who found it in runs, resolved to restore it For that Returns to purpose, when the army came up, he divided the work among ill his Amirs eich having a particular portion illotted to him to build or repuir, and so effectively did the work proceed, that in the course of the ten divs that the army turned there, the fort, with its wills, gitewive and defences was completely restored The name of the place he changed to Islamábád, the "City of the True I aith" He also mide enquiries as to the silver mines in the vicinity, but found that they would not reply the expense of working crossed the mountains, and descending by the banks of the Penjshir incr. he halted some time at the Ashterkerim pass, so that it was the beginning of winter before he reached Kabul, and the ground was already covered with snow. After waiting some time for a lucky day, he made his entry into the town on the 5th day of Ramzán 2 October 5 October A p 1548 *

[·] Albernama, f 77, Iar Nirami, ff 200, 201, Joulier, c 23

BOOK V

A D 1548

Embassies from Káshghar and to Persia.

Embassy from Kashmir Recent his tory of that country A 11 947, A D 1540

At this time he received an embassy from Abdal-Reshid Khan, the son of Sultan Said Khan, the chief of Kashgar, and he despatched one to Shah Tahmasp, most probably to deprecate his resentment for still continuing to keep possession of Kandahar, and to keep alive his hopes of its being restored at no distant period

But the embassy which most interested him was one that arrived from Kashmír from his cousin Haider Mírza It will be recollected that when Humáyun was defeated, and compelled to abandon first Delhi, and afterwards Láhúr, he had resolved to accompany Haider Mírza and Khwája Kilán, in an attempt to conquer When every thing was arranged for that purpose, and the Mirza was waiting for him at the entrance into the mountains of that country, the sudden approach of Shir Shah had spread a general alaim, in consequence of which Khwaja Kilán had fled towards Kamran on the Jelem, and, either faithless to his engagements with Humáyun, or seized and carried off against his will by Kámrán, as was pretended, had accompanied him to Kábul Humáyun, thus cut off from communication with Haider Mirza, and fearing a design on the part of Kámrán to deprive him of his personal liberty, had proceeded through the desert, and joining Hindal and Yádgár Násir Mírza, marched on in hopes of gaining possession of Bheker and Tatta der, thus deprived of the reinforcements he had reckoned upon, as well as of the advantage of the Emperor's name, determined to proceed in his enterprise, with such imperfect means as he possessed

The beautiful region of Kashmir had long been a prey to intestine commotions, chiefly occasioned by the two rival families of Chak and Makri, which contended for the office of Prime Minister under princes, who, whether from nonage or other incapacity, were quite unfit to direct the affairs of such a kingdom. In the course of these contentions, the party of Abdal Makri baving been expelled, had, through the medium of Huder Mirza, CHAP III applied for assistance, first from Kámrán, and afterwards from Humayun, while he yet filled the throne of Delhi The Mirza who was Biber's consin-german, was not n stranger to Kishmin. About eight years before, An one, Sud Khim the sovereign of Kashghar, encouraged by AD 1533 the districted state of the country, had sent his son Schinder Sultan, accompanied by Haider Mirza, at the head of an army of 12,000 men, which advanced from the north by the valley of Lir, and took possession of the capital. This Tartar force committed shahen o the devistation usual to barbarous troops, and was soon loaded with booty. Mulimmed Shah, the king of hishmir, and his chiefs, with numbers of the inhibitants, fled to recesses in the surrounding mountuns whence they descended to harres and attack the invader. Haider, after being nearly three months rad of in possession of the country, made a treaty with the about Kashmirin lords, and their nominal king, by which May 20, it was agreed, that Schander Sultan should marry that monarch's daughter, and that the Tartar army should return back to Kashghar Huder Mirza, after his return to Kishghai, had an and of eventful life. He was finally obliged to quit the country, Missa, and, passing through Badakhshan, repaired, as we have seen in an earlier part of this history, first to the court of human, and ifterwards to that of Humayun, whom he attended in his disistrous campaign of Kanaui, and ifterwards in his flight to Lihur, where he prevailed upon him to attempt the conquest of Kashmir When he found, however, that Humayun had taken the route of Blicker, and so abandoned his enterprize of Kashmir, he resolved to prosecute it himself with such means as were in his power, trusting for success to the distracted state of the kingdom, and the assistance of the refugee chiefs and their partizans, by whom he had been invited He, accordingly, put in motion his troops, which amounted to about 4,000 men Malek Achi Chak, who then governed the kingdom in the name of Názúk, the nominal king, collected an aimy of 3,000 horse, and a large body of infantry to oppose him, and took possession of the Karmal pass, to obstruct his entrance into the country But Haider Mirza, proceeding unobserved by unfrequented routes, after overcoming great difficulties, surmounted, on the twenty-second day of November, the steep pass of Panii, which Malek Achi had neglected, thinking it impracticable to cavalry, descended on Si inagar, the capital of Kashmir, and without bloodshed or opposition, took possession of it, and of the country Malek Achi's army, filled with consternation, disbanded, and he himself, seeing no hopes of regaining his ascendency by the strength of his own party, ie paired to the court of Shir Shah, carrying with him a daughter of the late king, whom he gave in marriage to the Afghan prince Aided by Shir Shah, he was enabled to re-enter Kashmir at the head of 2,000 horse He was soon joined by his adherents, and his force rose to 5,000 cavalry But Haider Mirza and the Kashminan chiefs in his interest, attacked, and completely routed the invaders, and the Miiza, in spite of numerous intigues and factions, beame the ruler of the whole of Kashmir.

BOOK A

A и 917, Rejeb 22 A в 1540 Nov 22

A II 948, Rebl II 20 A b 1541 August I3

Mírza Haidei had now ruled Kashmír seven or eight years with all the authority of an absolute prince, though he administered the government at first under the name of Názúk Shah, the native king, and, after the return of Humáyun to Kábul, in the name of that prince, when, anxious to form a still closer connection with the Emperor in his future plans, he deputed Mír Samander on a mission to Kábul The envoy met Humáyun soon after his return from Talikán. The Mírza in his letters, with every profession of loyalty and attachment, invited his majesty to Kashmír, and gave a glowing description of the charms of its climate, of its spring and autumn, with their flowers and fruits, and curr in of all the delights of that favoured region. But the grand recommendation which he pointed out, was that it would serve is an impregnable position from which His Mijesty could pour down his troops for the conquest of Hindust in an enterprize which he urged him to attempt without delay

A II 955, A D 1548 He invites Humáyun to Kashmír, and the invasion of India.

Nothing could have been more in accordance with the wishes of Humiyum. The invasion of that country, and the expulsion of the Afghan dynasty had long been the fivourite dream of his ambition murch neross the Indust it that moment was to endanger his kingdom of Nabul and his own existence I very thing had been arranged for an attack on Balkh, and as it was of the first importance to settle his territorics beyond the mountains, and to secure his other dominions from the intestine dangers to which they were so subject, before he ventured to engage in distant expeditions he resolved to proceed with the expedition he had undertaken. He, however, returned a favourable answer to Huder Mirzi's invitation, of which he issured him he was determined to avail himself as soon is his expedition against Bálkh was over, and his troops ready to take the field for a new enterprise. Such, undoubtedly, was Humayun's intention. But it was long before he could carry it into effect. He had still many His cha reverses to undergo, not was Huder Mirra doomed to reter and That emment man continued tion aid him in its execution for some time longer to rule in Kashinir He added Great and Little Tibet, Rajuri and Pakheli to his do-He was a prince of distinguished talent I mding the country which he had conquered to be in a very wretched condition, he devoted himself assiduously to its improvement, and ittempted to restore the industry of his subjects. He encouraged agriculture, invited incchanics and artizans from a distance, and employed them in the construction of public and private works Under his care, says Abulfazl, the country became a garden, and the ornament of the world That historian blames him for the excessive attention he paid to the fine arts, and especially to music, as having occupied so much of his time as to interfere with his attention to public affairs. He was finally slain, about two or three years after the period of which we treat, in a night attack of some native chiefs who had conspired against him, and surrounded the house in which he slept. He was a man of worth, of talent and of learning, and the Taríkh-e Reshídi, a History of his own Times, which he left behind him, is one of the most valuable works of that age.*

Position of Kámrán

ан 958, ар 1551

The state of affairs at Kábul was not certainly such as would have justified Humáyun in undertaking new and distant adventures. The allegiance of his brother Kámrán was far from being assured, and that prince, who had so long governed Kábul, might be supposed still to have partizans in that country, who could create trouble, should the Emperor march towards Hindustán Kámrán had already quarrelled with Chaker Khan, and they had come to open hostilities. When invited to repair to Kábul, on the promise of Humáyun to provide him with another principality, the Mirza had declined the invitation. The Emperor had resolved to make a campaign against Bálkh, which he seems to have promised to Kámrán, as his government. As soon, therefore, in the following year as the wea-

Humáyun's expedition against Balkh A n 956, A n 1549 As soon, therefore, in the following year as the weather permitted, Humáyun summoned his troops to attend him, and left Kábul The object of the expedition, though probably carefully concealed, was Bálkh That country had been wrested from the Persians by the Uzbeks, and was held by Pír Muhammed Khan, a young Uzbek prince, who had received and assisted Kámrán when driven from Kábul Humáyun probably considered the assistance so rendered to his brother, as a sufficient excuse for the attack which he CHAP IIL meditated, while the possession of a rich and extensive territory, that would have given him the command of the whole of the left bank of the Amu down to the desert, was probably his most powerful motive sent to warn Kamran and the other Mirzas in the North, to be ready to co-operate with him, as had been arranged at the end of the preceding campaign He was detrined about a month at Yuiet Chálák, not far from Kábul, waiting for Háu Muhammed Khan from Ghazni, and by other business of importance, and while yet at that station, he was joined by Mirza Ibráhim from Badakhshan The army at length moved to Istalif, were Abás Sultan an Uzbek prince who had just married Humáyun's youngest sistei*, probably suspecting that the expedition was directed against his countrymen, disappeared without taking leave máyun advanced dehberately by the Penjshír route, waiting to hear that the Mirzas were in motion immediately on learning that they were in the field, he marched down to Anderáb, and thence by Talıkán to Naut, and crossing the high grounds between the Bángi and Ghuri riveis by the piss of Nári, halted in the Nilber valley, celebrated, beyond all the valleys of that region, for its beauty in the spring Here he was joined by Mirza Hindal from Kunduz, and by Mirza Suleimán from Badakhshán, but Kámrán did not make his appearance Kámrán, though he had quarelled Kámrán with Chakei Ali Beg Kulabi, the son of Sultan Weis fails to join him Beg, the chief of the country, and the minister assigned him by Humáyun, and though he had even driven him out of Kuláb, had, however, kept up a correspondence with the Emperor, assuring him of his fidelity, and of his being prepared to co-operate with him Trusting to these assurances, Humayun had marched on, expecting to be joined by his brother When he at length found that Kámrán failed to appear, both he and the Mírzas began to feel considerable anxiety Mírza Ibráhím was sent back, at Mírza Suleimán's request, to provide for the safety of Badakhshán, and to embody a force in that country

Gulchehreh-Begum

Siege and surrender of Eibek. Having arrived at Baghlán*, the Emperor pushed forward the Mírzas Hindal and Suleimán with a strong force to Eibek, a fertile and populous district in the territory of Bálkh, defended by a strong fort. As the detachment approached the chief town, it met Pír Muhammed Khan's Atálík or Minister, who, hearing of the Emperor's approach to the Uzbek territory, had hastened, attended by the chief officers of his government and a large body of troops, to place Eibek and the frontier in a state of defence, and to check the invaders. On his arrival near that town, however, he unexpectedly encountered the Emperor's troops, and, contrary to his intention, was compelled to throw himself into the castle of Eibek, unprovided as it was Humáyun instantly sat down before the place, and pushed on his approaches with such vigour, that in a few days the besieged, who had neither water nor provisions, asked quarter, which was granted, and the city surrendered †

Delays of Humáyun At an entertaiment given by Humáyun on this occasion, when the cup had gone round, he is said to have asked Khwája Bagh, the Atálík, what were the best steps to be taken to ensure the conquest of Bálkh The Uzbek, surprised at the question, after reflecting a little, answered, that being an enemy, he was not perhaps the safest person to consult The Emperor replied, that Uzbeks were downright honest men, and he knew him to be the frankest of the Uzbeks. The Atálík rising up said, "If you would conquer Bálkh, cut off our heads, hasten on to the capital, and it will be yours" "You CHAP III are Musulmans," said the Emperor, "how can I put so many believers to death?" "If you will not do this," said the Atálík, "I have another proposal to suggest Pir Muh mmed Khan is much directed by me I will undertake that all the country on your side of Khulm shall be ceded to you, that the Khutba shall be used in your name, and that he will send a thousand chosen men to attend you when you march against Hindustán "This proposal, too, the Emperor rejected. It was generally believed that, had he pushed on at once to Balkh, after taking Libek, Pir Muliammed, who was filled with consternation by the blow he had received from the loss of all his best troops and officers, who was himself unprepared, and had received no assistance from the Uzbeks beyond the liver, must have submitted at discretion to any terms proposed Humayun sent the Uzbek Sultans. Amirs and Bis, or chiefs of tribes, whom he had taken, to Kábul, keeping with him only the Atálík *

SECT III

The Emperor halted several days at Eibek, chiefly in Sudden at consequence of his anxiety at the non-ninval of Kám- Uzbeks At length, however, he again put his army in motion, and advanced towards Balkh, by the way of Khulm When they reached Astaneh, the shine of Shah Aulia, the ground for the camp was taken near a stream that flowed hard by, the Audience Hall had not set been put in order, the people of the bazar were just come up, and were busy arranging their loads, and the Emperor, who had been on a visit to the holy shrine, was in his private tent, quite unconscious of the vicinity of an enemy, when a loud shouting and uproar was heard in the direction of the camp bazar An attack had been unexpectedly made in that quarter an officer of lank, who had hastened to the rescue, had fallen, and his head was cut off and carried to Bálkh

^{*} Bayezul, ff 42, 43, Akbernama f "S в в 2

BOOK 3

An Uzbek, Khan Behåder, who had been disabled by a sabre cut and made prisoner, was brought before the Emperor Humáyun asked him who it was that had made this attack on the camp. The prisoner answered that it was Shah Muhammed Sultan, of Hissár, the son of Berendúk Sultan. The Emperor asked if he was mad "Sne," said the Uzbek, "he is a young man of high spirit and full of confidence. Since leaving Hissár he has not yet seen Pír Muhammed Khan, and is anxious to signalize himself before entering Bálkh." Humáyun thus learned that the Uzbeks from beyond the Amu were beginning to arrive

Continued absence of Kamran

The army, however, continued its march, and next morning advanced towards the numerous canals* and streams that intersect the country near Bálkh. Though the progress of the army had been slow, expecting the arrival of Kámián, it had now reached Bálkh, and he had not yet arrived. It seemed evident that he had no intention of coming, and a general apprehension was diffused among the troops that he intended, while they were engaged in the siege of Bálkh, to give them the slip, and march once more to Kábul. So that, says Bayezíd, who was then in the camp, they were more afraid of the Mírza than of the Uzbeks †

Repulse of the Uzbek advance In the course of the day, about afternoon prayers, Mirza Sulemán, Mirza Hindal, and Háji Muhammed Sultan Koka, who had the advance, attacked the advance of the Uzbeks, commanded by Abdalla Sultan and Khosrou Sultan, sons of Sekander Sultan, near the Takhteh-pul, and drove them across the bridge, which they also passed to the Bálkh side of the stream. For his exertions on this occasion Háji Muhammed was honoured with the patent of Khan. The whole army advanced by the canals of Bálkh to within about half a kos from the town, and encamped for the night. A

BOOK V

Panic in his army

Rout

ground on the banks of the river that flows through the Dera-Gez In the course of the night the Uzbeks had been apprised of the retreat of their enemy, and issued out in force to pursue them To retreat in order and with coolness in the face of an enemy, is one of the most difficult achievements even of veteran regular troops, but with an irregular army is hardly possible. The imperial soldiers no sooner found that they were on their march for the Dera-Gez, with their faces turned towards Kábul, than, believing that Kámrán was already master of that place and of their families, they were seized with consternation, and numbers of them, separating from the army, made the best of their way home across the hills, in bands or singly All attempts to arrest or bring them back were fruitless. The panic had become complete. The Uzbeks, who went in pursuit of the retreating army, were not long of overtaking the rear-guard in the morning, when it had reached the Dera Gez. The Uzbeks charged, and met with a short and slight resistance It soon gave way and dispersed, the Uzbeks killing or unhorsing all whom they over-Humáyun was at the tune not far off, standing on the other side of the river with a body of his servants News was brought to him that the Uzbeks were close upon Mírza Hindal, and that Malek Mírza had been taken He was much distressed Hindal," said the keeper of the seal, "is no child, but a soldier, and will come on the best way he can" Humáyun ordered an officer who was standing by, to go and get word of Hindal He was himself preparing to cross, when a party of Uzbeks who reached the opposite bank, discharged an arrow at the Emperor, from an eminence Bayezíd, who was present, tells us that he held up his shield to protect his Ma-jesty's person, but the arrow struck the Emperoi's horse in the breast It was a favourite horse, which he had got, when at Herát, from the minister of the young prince The Uzbeks were, however, driven off, char in. and the Emperor pursued his retreat Having advanced a little way, he ordered Husein Kuli Sultan to Flight torally the men and form them, so as to resist the Uz- wards Kábeks. He answered that it would be better to allow those who were now with his Majesty to go on, as they would be unwilling to turn and leave him "Not a man of them," continued he, "will at this moment mind my orders" "You yourself," said the Emperor, "do not now heed my orders" "Emperor of the world," answered Husein Kuli, "pardon me," and turned back, saying to the author, "Come you along with me, and let the other servants attend his Majesty" As the fugitives came up, such as Khizer Khw in Khan, Mosahib Beg, Muhammed Kasım Mochi, Shahem Beg Jelar and others, Husein Kuli called upon them to turn and fight But nothing he could say, could induce any of them to stand and help him "All were striving," continues Bayezíd*, each to get the other's horse, pulling it to themselves At last the Muludar (keeper of the seal) was compelled also to draw off" He overtook Humáyun about noon, who received him most kindly, and praised him in the most cordial manner The Emperor's adventures for some succeeding days, when he sought to repass the mountains by unknown or little-frequented roads, a prey to thirst, hunger and fatigue, and guided by the barbarous inhabitants, are related in the liveliest and most picturesque manner by Bayezid†, who was a sharer in his flight At length, by the route of Kahmerd and Ghurbend, he reached the vicinity of Kábul, which he entered on the first day of the fast of Ramzán In the Ramzán 1 midst of the general rout and panic that took place in the Dera-Gez, some chiefs are mentioned as having distinguished themselves, Hindal Mírza, Terdi Beg.

^{*} Bayezid, f 45

BOOK V

Monaim Khan, Shah Bidágh and Tulik Khan Kochín are particularly named. When the rout was seen to be irreparable, the leaders dispersed, taking different roads. Mírza Suleimán returned to Badakhshán Hindal, attended by Monaim Khan, found his way to Kunduz. Many of the Emperor's Amírs and officers, among whom was Shah Bidágh, fell into the hands of the enemy. The Atálík and other Uzbeks, who had been made pisoners at Eibek, having been allowed to return to Bálkh, made so favourable a report of the handsome treatment which they had met with, that Pír Muhammed, to show his sense of this conduct, sent back all his prisoners to Kábul, in the most humane manner, a striking instance, when contrasted with the consequences of the recent cruelties exercised at Kábul, how in war generosity produces generosity, while retaliation of injury generates the darkest passions that disgrace human nature

Humáyun winters in Kábul.

Proceeding of Kamran. Humáyun, on reaching Kábul, found everything safe, and that Kámrán had never in reality attempted to cross the mountains. He passed the winter in the Bála Hissár of Kábul. Kámrán, meanwhile, whose failure to join his brother had been the real cause of the late discomfiture, resolved to take advantage of the Emperor's misfortunes, to increase his own power. We have seen that he was but little satisfied with the allotment of Kuláb, which had been made to him when he was reconciled to his brother, that he had very soon become embroiled with Chaker Ali Beg, the Minister assigned him by Humáyun, and had expelled him from his province. He, nevertheless, made every profession of allegiance to the Emperor, who, confiding in his promises, had marched to Bálkh, when Kámrán's breach of promise led to the most disastrous consequences. No sooner had Humáyun recrossed the mountains, than Kámrán, who is said, for some time before, to have been carrying on a secret coi respondence with several of his brother's chief Ministers, hastened to improve CHAP III. the opportunity for his own advantage Leaving SECT III. Askeri Mírza, therefore, m Kuláb, he marched to seize the dominions of Suleimán Mírza *

Suleimán, unable to oppose him, retired from Talikán on Badakhwithout fighting, and fell back upon Kila-Zefer Kám-shán, rán entered Tahkán, which he gave to Bápus Beg, and advanced to Kıla-Zefer Suleimán, placing Ishak Sultan in that fortress, the principal one of Badakhshán, withdrew to the highlands and narrow valleys of the upper country, and waited at the village of Jurm, in an inaccessible position, to see what turn affairs would take in the country below

Kámrán, finding that nothing could be effected by and on Kunduz any operations against Suleimán in Badakhshán, marched He there attempted to work upon down to Kunduz Hindal Mírza by professions of friendship, and by representing their interests as being the same, to enter into an alliance with him, and to desert Humáyun Hindal, however, did not listen to his proposals, but remained faithful to his allegiance Upon this, Kámrán laid siege to the place, and pushed on his operations with vigour, while Hindal omitted no exertion in its defence Kámrán, seeing himself baffled in all his attempts, at last asked assistance from the Usbeks, with whom he entered into a treaty, and a large auxiliary force was soon sent to assist him in the siege Hindal, being hard pushed by this new and active enemy, had recourse to a stratagem, which seems to be a standing one in Eastern wars He caused a letter to be written in Kámrán's name, addressed to himself. proceeding on the supposition that the two Mirzas had made up their differences, and entering into details as to the best plan for overreaching the Uzbeks The letter was entrusted to a kásid, or messenger, who, it

^{*} Akbernama, ff 78, 79, Tab vol. 11 pp 165, 166, Khol ul To-Alb ff 163, 164, Tar Niz ff warikh, f 267, above all Bayezid, 200, 201, Jouher, c 24, Ferishta, f 425 50 He is very minute was contrived, fell into the hands of the Uzbeks He was searched, and the letter discovered. The Uzbeks, concluding that the brothers had made a reconciliation to which they were to be sacrificed, alarmed and disgusted, abandoned the siege, and returned home. In consequence of this defection, the operations made little progress

BOOK V

Returns to

It was about this time that news reached Kámrán, that Chaker Alı Beg had descended from the mountamous country into which he had been driven, and was plundering and laying waste the territory of Kuláb Askeri, who had marched out to chastise him, was defeated, and compelled to take shelter in the town By Kámián's orders, Askeri marched out against him a second time, and was a second time routed. This compelled Kámrán to raise the siege of Kunduz, the rather as he learned that Suleiman Mirza had descended from his mountain retreat, and had formed a junction with Ishak Sultan at Kıla-Zefer, of which he had taken pos-Kámrán, detaching a body of troops to check the advance of Suleimán, himself hastened to Kuláb On his approach, Chaker Beg huilledly raised the siege, and Askeri marched out and joined his brother.

Is defeated by the Uzbeks Kámrán, taking Askeri along with him, now marched back to meet Mírza Suleimán. He had reached Rostak*, near which he was encamped, when a large body of Uzbeks under Saíd, who had gone out on a foray, observing a camp at a distance, fell upon it, without inquiring whose it was, and completely plundered it Kámián, Askeri and Mírza Abdalla Moghul, with a few of their men, escaped to Talikán. Saíd, on learning the real state of matters, sent back the prisoners and plunder that had fallen into his hands, excusing himself to the Mírza for having, by mistake, carried off his baggage. But the mischief done was irrepaiable. Kámrán's army was broken and dispersed. Suleimán

^{*} Rostak hes on the Kokcha branch of the Amu

the most favourable light for that prince, who, with many high and agreeable qualities, was evidently very thoughtless and very impolitic. We may sometimes, from the course of events, infer that suspicions of treachery are alleged to save the credit of the prince. At the same time, that treachery was common, and left little imputation on the character of the traitor, is no less evident from the whole history of the times

When Kámrán, after his disaster on the Amu, was crossing the mountains, he received communications from the discontented Amírs, urging him to march at once upon Kábul, where they would join him. To lull the suspicions of Humáyun, the Mírza sent him envoys to announce his coming, the object of which he pretended was to ask forgiveness for his late offences, and to submit himself in every respect to the Empeior's orders, relying solely on his never-failing elemency. Humáyun is said to have listened with favour to these pretences, till reminded by his counsellors how little faith could be placed in his brother's representations, and that any new indulgence which the Emperor might grant him, might be ascribed rather to weakness than generosity. Humáyun, therefore, made preparations for intercepting the Mírza, and leaving Kábul to the nominal charge of Akber, under the direction of Muhammed Kásim Khan Birlás, he marched for the hills by Kárábágh and Charikárán, and halted for a time at Ab-Bárán.*

а. н. 957,

Humayun prepares to seize him

Here Kerácha and the Emperor's other advisers,—for Kerácha seems still to have had influence,—recommended that the different passes in the mountainous country should be occupied, so as to prevent the Mirza's escape Abulfazl asserts that this advice was given for the purpose of weakening the Emperor's force But, if Kámrán was suspected of attempting, with his broken

Divides his forces.

bands, to reach the Hazáras, it was only by some such chap in operation that he could have been intercepted. Accordingly Han Muhammed Khan was sent towards Zohak and Bamian with one strong division, and Monaim Khan towards Sal-Auleng with another. It is affirmed that at this time, Kerácha Khan and the conspirators sent daily reports to Kámián of all that pissed in the imperial camp, and that, when every thing was prepared for the Mirza's success, by the dispersion of the army, he was instructed to turn away from Zohák and Bámián which he had reached, and histening by forced marches towards the Dera Kipchak, a dependency of Ghurbend, where Humayun lay with his diminished force, to fall upon him by surprise. It is said that the Emperor's suspicions were fulled asleep by the constant asseverations of those about him, that Kamrán's only anxiety was to throw himself at the Emperors feet But the division of the troops for the purpose of intercepting him, shows that this was not altogether relied upon, and it seems clear that Humayun was not only ill-informed of his brother's movements, but supposed his force to be much less than it really was

The Emperor had passed up the defile of Kipchák, is surprised by Kampan and was encamped at the upper end of it, when, about nine in the morning, a servant of Mir Asghar Munshi, one of the officers appointed to guard the pass, airrived full speed and out of breath, calling out, "The Mirza is coming," which spread an alaim among the men Humáyun, being angry, ordered the man's head to be struck off The troops were instantly aimed, and marched for the Dera, or valley They soon came within sight of the Mirza's advance When Humáyun had got a bowshot within the valley, a hill was seen another bowshot faither off, behind a projection of which the Mirza's advance, under his son-in law Ak Sultan, had taken their station The ground in front of this projection was broken and rocky Hussein

BOOK V A D 1550 Kuli Sultan, the Keeper of the Seal, Kunduk Sultan brother of Biram Ughlan, Mírza Kuli Choli, Pír Muhammed Akhteh and others bravely pushed on to drive them from their position, but, the ground being steep and difficult, they did not succeed Pír Muhammed was slain by an arrow Mírza Kuli's horse fell and broke his rider's leg His son, who was with the guards, while charging to remount and carry off his father, was also slain. The Muhrdár's horse was wounded, and threw him Bayezíd, who attended him, brought another horse, and succeeded in remounting him, and in carrying him off to the Emperor's lines.

Want of zerl among Hum syun s chiefs

The Emperor himself now advanced When he reached the spot where the slain were lying, Kámrán made his appearance on the projecting hill with his wives and daughters, followed by the rest of his troops The Emperor's matchlock-men, says Bayezid, did not load their pieces with ball, most of them having been in the service of the Mirza at Kábul The Mirza's people keeping up an uninterrupted discharge of arrows, most of the horses and men of His Majesty's party were soon wounded At this period, continues Bayezid, Kúsim Husein Khan was on the other side of the river, and had before him a good way by which he might have reached the Mirza's advance, but he made no onset, and stood still None other of the Sirdars ventured to charge the Mírza Kámrán, perceiving that they were shaken, marched down the declivity, and pushed on straight for the standards The standard-bearers, not thinking themselves able to keep their ground, turned and fled and Kasım Husein Khan with his force fled also

Flight, and woun I of Hum you The rout was now general, and Humáyun joined in the flight, returning back the road by which he had come One Babái of Kuláb, overtaking him,—whether he knew who he was is uncertain,—struck him a heavy blow on his cap ² which wounded him behind the car, and had raised his sword to repeat the blow, when Humayun, char in turning round, and looking his assailant steinly in the face, exclumed, "Wretched rebel!" Babai, from surprise, suspended his blow for a moment, when Mehter Sagái, the wardi obe keepei, aftei wai ds known as Feikhat Khan, interposed, and Babái diew off Humáyun was supported, and born away on horse-back Muhammed Amír and Abdal Waháb protected his retreat Humáy un, however, was so severely wounded, and so faint from loss of blood, that, in the course of his flight, he threw oft his jubba, a quilted or padded corselet, which he gave to one of his servants to carry The man, being pursued, soon afterwards threw it away, to lighten himself in his flight, an incident that was afterwards followed by very important consequences

Humáyun now resolved to push for Zohák and Bámán, where he expected to find Hán Muhammed and his division, who had gone up by the Sirtin pass. As he had become faint, and was unable to bear the motion of his own spirited horse, he exchanged it for a small ambling pye-bald one, offered him by Mir Syed Birkeh, on which he was lifted, and the Mir and Khwaja Khizei, riding on each side of him, supported him as he went Towards the end of the might, he reached the entiance of the Sután pass, having been joined by a few of the fugitives The cold air and fatigue had by this time much affected him, and he again felt faint from his wound Mir Bukeh took off his cloak, and threw it over It was morning when he gained the top of the pass, where he soon began to feel the heat of the morning sun, and halted by the side of a stream, where he had his wound washed and dressed, and said his orisons and, not long after, Hajr Muhammed Khan ar- ne is joined rived with three hundred well equipped veteran horse forcement This placed Humayun in comparative security *

^{*} The spirit of defection was still Shah Bidagh Khan, Tulik Kochín, in operation He one day sent out Majnun and others to the number

B00K. V

AD 1550

Proceeds to the north.

As he still suffered much from his wound, he remained for some days in the hills about Zohák and Bámián Meanwhile, however, he consulted with his Amírs, what steps were most advisable to be taken Háji Muhainmed advised going to Kandahár, others were for pushing on for Kábul, while some were for retiring upon the provinces on the Amu Shah Muhammed, Háji's brother, was sent down with Háji's men to pass through Kábul, and to proceed to secure Ghazni Humayun wrote by him to Akber, to announce at once his defeat, and his safety. Having himself finally resolved to proceed to the northern provinces, he went on to Kahmerd* On his route, he was entertained by the wandering Aimáks, according to their notions of hospitality While with them, he learned the approach, first, of one caravan with 300 horses, and afterwards of another with 1700, on their way from the west of Hindustán Of these Humáyun seized as many as suited his purpose, giving his bond for the amount From Kahmerd he proceeded by Alenjek, where he halted a week, and then went on, and encamped on the banks of the Bángi Here, as they were mistaken for a caravan, a voice was heard from the other side of the river, inquiring, what news they had of the Emperor Humáyun ordered that no answer should be given, but that in return they should ask, Who the enquirer was, -by whom sent, -and what he had heard of the Em-of ten, on a reconnaissance towards Kabul Of the whole number Tuhk Kochin only returned

• The ewer-bearer relates several amusing anecdotes chiefly regarding the difficulties to which Humáyun was reduced, and to his want of clothing. It was long before they could get for him, wounded as he was, a samiana, or awning fit to cover one person, his coat being clotted with blood, he was glad to get back a cast off coat, which he had given a domestic, by whom it had been worn, his trowsers being spotted with blood, an old woman brought and presented to him a pair of her own silk drawers "These," said he, "were never intended for man to wear, but necessity has no law," and he drew them on He gave the woman a present, with a certificate relieving her from all taxes Jouher, c 24

peror? The man informed them that he was of the CHAP III Meshi tribe, and had been sent by Nazeri Sal-Alengi to get news of the Emperor, as a report had reached them that His Majesty had been defeated, had left the field of battle wounded, and had never since been heard of, but that the quilted cuirass, which he wore in the fight, had been found, covered with blood, and carried to Kainran, who was overjoyed, believing that the Emperor had perished The man was desired to come over, brought into the Emperor's presence, and asked if he knew who it was "Can the Grace of God be obscured?" said he, * on which he was dismissed, and ordered to spread the news as widely as he could, and to desue his master to meet the Emperor when he returned that way

At Khinjan the Emperor met Mirza Hindal who ac- And pre companied him to Anderáb, where he was joined by pares to returns to Mírza Suleiman and his son Ibiahim Mirza, as well as by all the detachments which had been sent out before the action to intercept Mirza Kámrán, and every preparation was now made for recrossing the mountains to Kábul †

But it is time to return to Kainran, whom we left on conduct of the field of battle at the Dera Kıpchak When told that Humáyun was entirely defeated and had fled, he could hardly believe his own good fortune The defeated troops fled by three different roads, by that of Ghurbend, by the direct road to Kabul, and by the road to Istálíf Parties were sent in pursuit of them all Numbers were overtaken and slain, or stript of whatever they possessed The Hazáras too, ever ready for indiscriminate plunder, infested the ways, stopped Lamran.

† Albernáma, ff 60, 81, Tar Nizami, ff 201, 202, Tab Akberi, 164, 165, Jouher, c. 24, Bayezid, ff 50-53, Kholaset-ul-Towarikh, f 267 Both Jouher and Bayezíd were in the action

^{*} This answer is that recorded by Abulfazi The ewer-bearer merely says that the man did recognize him

BOOK V A D 1550

all whom they met, and robbed them of their horses, arms, and clothing Kámrán's flatterers soon restored him to his accustomed presumption Before he left the ground, Bába Saíd brought in Kerácha, who was wounded The Mírza addressed him courteously, inquiring if his wound was severe, and soon restored him to his wonted favour and authority. Soon after, Huseinkulı Sultan, the keeper of the seal, a man much esteemed both by Humáyun and his father, was brought in as a prisoner when Kámrán himself struck him with his sabre, and commanded him to be hewn to pieces in his own presence Takhji Beg, another old and respected Amír, shared the same fate Bába Kulábi arrived with information that the Emperor was wounded, immediately upon which, Yasan Doulat was despatched with a party to attempt to overtake him in his flight Kásim Husein Sultan, who had taken little part in the action, retired when it was over to a neighbouring hill, from which he was soon after induced to descend, and enter the Mirza's service

The Mírza proceeded, without loss of time, to Charikár, where a man arrived bringing the Emperor's bloody currass, which completed the Mirza's satisfaction He hastened on to Kábul, and at once sat down before Kásım Khan Birlás who commanded in the place, though formerly a servant of Kámrán, determined to hold out faithfully for the Emperor, unmoved by the reports which universally prevailed, till they were confirmed by the bold assertions of the Mírza, and by a sight of the bloody cuirass, which was sent in for him to examine Convinced by the statements that were made, and by this melancholy confirmation of them, ue occupies and believing resistance to be now fruitless, he surrendered the town, and Akber became a third time a prisoner in the hands of his uncle *

Akbernama, &c as above

Kamran now lost no time in increasing his army, curr in and in dividing the different governments of Kabul among his partizans - His prime adviser was Kerácha He gave Júr-Sháhi (now Jelálábád) to Askeri, Ghazni to Keracha, and Ghurbend to Yasan Doulat He served all Humáyun's treasures, and, having imprisoned his Diwan, extorted large sums from him He drew to himself whatever he could, by all kinds of tyranny and extortion, so that, if he enriched his treasury, he impoverished his kingdom

Humáyun

But he was not left long to carry on these operations Advance of Three months had not passed when news was brought to Kábul that Humáyun still hved, and was marching from Anderáb, at the head of a formidable Kámrán immediately concentrated his army, and being joined by a number of Hazaras and other mountaineers, moved forward to meet him, before he could descend to the low country.

By the time Humáyun had lain about six weeks at Anderáb, he had been joined by many detached bodies of his army, and had collected such a force, that, his wound being now cured, he resolved once more to march over the hills to Kábul, and, it being still summer, to take the direct soute of Hindu-koh There Hiscompact had recently been so many instances of defection and with his desertion, even among Amírs of the highest rank, that, apprehensive of being again abandoned in trying circumstances, as he alleged that he had already been, he resolved to administer to them a test-oath, to secure their fidelity by superstition, as Abulfazl insinuates. since true religion and a sense of duty had been insufficient to ietain them in their allegiance This oath was to be administered to each body of men in the way supposed by them to be most binding upon their consciences, and, by the terms of it, they engaged to follow and obey him, as their prince and leader, faithfully, sincerely and honestly By this solemn act, he proposed not only to influence such as took the oath, but to inspire all his friends and followers with confidence To carry this design into effect, he assembled the Mirzas, Amirs and chief men, who were with the army, and explained to them his purpose. Háji Muhammed Khan Koka, who, says Abulfazl, was deficient both in respect and fidelity, observed that when all had taken the oath as required, it might be proper for his Majesty to take an oath on his pait, engaging "that whatever we, his well-wishers, recommend with a view to his interest and deem indispensable for that purpose, he will consent to, and perform." Mirza Hindal, firing at this suggestion, exclaimed, "Háji Muhammed! what means all this? What are you saying? Never surely did servants address a master, or slaves their lord, in language like this!" Humáyun, however, interposed, "Let it be," said the Emperor, "as Háji Muhammed and the other chiefs desire. Whatever they shall advise for my interest and with good intent, that will I execute."*

When this mutual agreement, unparalleled perhaps in Asiatic history, had been ratified and confirmed, the army marched on. On the part of Humáyun it was an attempt to secure the fidelity of the army and its leaders, under all circumstances. The singular demand of Háji Muhammed, imperfectly explained by contemporary writers, seems to indicate a general want of confidence in the judgment and steadiness of the Emperor, which indeed, if we consider the whole previous course of his history, is not wonderful. Háji Muhammed was a foster brother in the family, and may, therefore, be supposed to have been sincerely attached to it. But his freedom on this occasion was not grateful to royal ears, and was probably never forgiven Abulfazl, the Minister of Humáyun's son, always speaks

^{*} Akbernáma, f 82 Jouher also, c 25 mentions the incident with some slight variation

BOOK V A b 1550 tection, or a check, to them all The popular, or municipal, power had no existence There were no large towns, governed by then own magistrates, and asserting particular privileges,—no corporations, that united large bodies of the lower classes in a common interest, and gave them the means of a common defence was, in reality, no common-weal at all,—no foundation for free institutions. The people had nothing to do with law or authority, but to obey them Nothing was fixed or stable, but despotisin All power was in the Sovereign, and in the nregular and, as short-lived, so, generally rapacious power of the Amírs, derived from him, founded on his grant, and personal to the individual from whom it could at any time be withdrawn There were, therefore, no materials, out of which the fabric of liberty could be built. Any power taken from the Sovereign went to particular nobles, and continued equally despotic in their hands. A regular body of laws, free institutions, or permanent protection against misrule, was never dreamt of The prince was the shadow and representative of God upon earth If, for any cause, he was deposed, another was substituted in his place, everything else remaining unchanged The great peculiarity, in the present instance, was, that the great Amírs did not displace the monarch, but placed restraints upon his power This led, necessarily, to a standing council, which, had not everything else been adverse, might have proved the first step, one element of a better government, for any permanent institution, whatever it may be, that acts as a check upon absolute power, must in its tendency be favourable to liberty, by setting limits to oppression

The armies of Humáyun and Kúmrán mcet. Humáyun, having surmounted the northern slope of Hindu-kúsh, descended on the south into the valleys of Penjshír and Ashteikerám On airiving near Shuter-

BOOK V ______

Orders an

the surprize of Kipchák, and had taken service with Kámrán, deserted and went back to him, carrying information that there was considerable perturbation and alaim in the enciny's camp In the course of the day, Humáyun put his troops in motion He himself took the centre, Suleimán Mírza had the right wing, Hindal the left, Mírza Ibráhím the advance, and Háji Muhammed with some veteran officers, the reserve Kámrán drew out his troops to meet him, himself taking the centre, and assigning the right to Askeii Miiza, the left to Ak Sultan, his son-in-law, and the advance to Kei ácha Khan "When they came near the enemy," says Jouhei, "and there was but a slight space between the two armies, Háji Muhammed Khan advised that the troops should be brought to a halt, and that no fight should take place that day As there was a compact between the Emperor and his Amírs, he saw no remedy, but ordered Beg Mirek to make the troops halt At this moment the Mirzas came up and said, that "they were not for encamping, that the battle must be fought that day, that it was not prudent to wait to be attacked, but better for them to attack Kámrán, and to conquer or die" The orders had been issued, but difficulties occurred, the troops were not prepared to encamp Abdal Wáháb came, and represented to His Majesty, "The army is now face to face to the enemy We have no tents to enable us to encamp" His Majesty said, "Let us advance in order. If we are opposed, it is well. If not, we shall take up a position on the banks of the river." The army, therefore, again moved forward "€

Kúnrán was posted on a lofty eminence, having the rest of his army hard by Mírza Ibráhím, who commanded the Emperor's advance, by a desperate attack, seized the heights He was followed by the Emperor, who ordered the matchlock-men by whom he was at- CHAP III tended, to open a fire on the lower ground Kerácha, Sert III. moving forward with a body of cavalry, attacked and broke the Emperor's left, and wheeling round, proceeded to charge the right wing, when he was wounded by a matchlock bullet, and soon after dismounted and made prisoner, by a man of inferior rank As they were leading him from the field, one Kamber Ali, whose brother Kerácha had put to death at Kandahár, coming behind him and taking off his steel-cap, eleft his skull with a blow of his sabre, and cutting off his head, piesented it to the Emperor, who afterwards directed it to be placed over the Iron Gate of Kabul, to verify the Khan's words, "My head and Kabul" In Keracha the Emperor lost a formidable enemy After a well con-tested battle, Kámrán, seeing the imperialists victorious kamran on every side, abandoned the field, and fled, by the pass of Bádbái, towards the Afghán country A party under Hindal and Haji Muhammed, which was sent to pursue him, soon returned, having used but little diligence in the attempt to overtake him Mirza Askeri was taken prisoner The victors plundered the enemy's camp, and slew numbers of them Many, who surrendered, were received into the Emperor's service victory was complete, and most opportune for his affairs But what above all delighted him was the arrival of the young Akber, who was brought by Hasan Akhteh, to whose care he had been entrusted, after his father had had reason to fear that Kámrán had carried him off. He affectionately embraced his son engaged himself by vow to make certain pious and charitable donations, and resolved on no future expedition to separate from him more

We are told that the Emperor soon after observed two camels loaded with trunks, wandering without drivers on the field of battle "Let every man take what booty he can find," said the Emperor, "these two camels are my share" When the boxes were opened, he was alike surprised and gratified to find that they contained the very books which he had lost at the rout of Kipchák Some of the most flagrant offenders were put to death. In the evening, the Emperor had a grand entertainment in the Garden-palace of Charikárán, to celebrate his victory, after which he lost no time in proceeding to Kábul, which he entered next day without resistance.

Humáyun re-occupies Kábul

The first days after his arrival in that city were spent in rewarding his friends, and punishing his enemies, some of them capitally Mírza Suleimán, who with his son, had rendered distinguished service, was sent back to Badakhshán, loaded with rewards Mírza Ibráhím remained some time longer, and, before his departure, was betrothed to Bakhshi Bánu Begum, the Emperor's daughter Akber got the district of Chirkh in Lohger, as a jágír and Háji Muhammed Khan was appointed his Minister, with the care of his education Humáyun spent about a year in Kábul, at this time

A D 1551

^{*} Albernáma, ff 82, 83 Tab ff 53, 54, Ferishta, vol 11 pp 166, Alb ff 164, 165, Tar Nizami, 167, Khol ul-Tow f 269 f 202, Jouher, c 26, Bayezíd,

BOOK V A D 1551. any submission to Kábul, it was only nominal They lay chiefly in the tract to the east of Kábul and Ghazni The wild Afgháns, through whose country Kámrán passed, met him as he fled, and plundered him and his followers of the little they had left He found himself compelled to cut off his hair and heard, and wandering in the disguise of a Kalender, or religious mendicant, found his way through the hills to Melek Muhammed of Mandráwer, the most distinguished chief of the Lamghánát, to whom he discovered himself, who, out of consideration for the Mirza's former rank and great-The reverses ness, took a warm interest in his affairs of fortune which he had endured, did not deter the Mirza from still indulging in schemes of ambition. He was soon joined by a party of soldiers of fortune, who had escaped from the late defeat, and collected a number of adventurers from the neighbouring country, and from the wandering tribes, so that his force amounted to fifteen hundred men He was supposed to have extended his intrigues into the court of Humáyun, a suspicion which gave that prince, still but insecurely settled on his throne, no small degree of uneasiness so happened that, at this very moment, Háji Muhammed Khan suddenly left the court of Humáyun without leave, and withdrew to his government of Ghazni, a step which the Emperor suspected to be connected with designs in favour of Kámrán, though he affected to talk of this insult as merely a piece of humour He, however, despatched a considerable force to defeat the new efforts of Kámrán, who, unable to resist, fled from Mandráwer to the upper part of the valleys of Alankár and Alisheng Being pursued thither also, he next fled eastward into the county of the Khalil, Mehmend and Daúd-zái Afgháns, among whom he arrived in a most destitute situation The few followers, who had attended him thus far, there dispersed, and scattered over the country His pursuers, having followed him CHAP III as far as Ghaz and Shahidan, returned home

Humáyun had now a short period of repose, during Repose of which, still farther to confirm Suleimán Mírza in his Humávun interest, he asked Shahzada Khanum the Mirza's daughter in mairiage, and she was betrothed to him Mirza Asken, still his prisoner, he sent to be guarded ın Badakhshán, whence he had permission, which was equivalent to a command, to proceed to Mekka That prince survived nearly seven years, and died at last A 1 965, between Damascus and the holy city * No reverses could damp the ardour with which New at-Kámrán strove to regain his throne He again began Kámrán to collect a new body of adventurers around him They consisted chiefly of the Khalil and Mehmend Afghans, joined by numbers of soldiers of fortune of every description, who flocked to his standard in hopes of plunder or of place, should be regain the crown these he soon infested the whole eastern borders of Kábul, and, occasionally, pushed his plundering excursions into the heart of the more level country, retiring with his maiauders, when pursued, into the narrow glens and mountain recesses which encompass the greater part of Kábul Humayun saw the necessity of putting a speedy and final stop to these incursions, and was sensible that the only effectual mode of doing so was to follow his enemy into the country that afforded him refuge, wherever that might be He sent, therefore, to invite Han Muhammed to join him in this expedition with the troops of Ghazni But, hearing in the meanwhile that Kamian had laid siege to a fort near the Chárbagh, not far from Júi-Sháhi (now Jelálábad), he set out in that direction with the few troops he had with him, without waiting for the reinforcement from Ghazni Kamian, hearing of his rapid approach,

^{*} Albernáma, ff 83 81, Khol ul Towarskh f 270

BOOK V A D 1551 raised the siege, and retreated downwards to Peshawer, whence, making a circuit by Bangash and Gardíz, he proceeded towards Kábul, giving out that it was for the purpose of forming a junction with Háji Muhammed Abulfazl affirms that that Amír was now entirely in Kámrán's interest, and had invited him to unite their forces for an attack upon the capital However that may be, at that very time Biram Khan arrived at Ghazni, on his way from Kandahár to Kábul He was an old friend of the governor's, who received him with much honour, and invited him to a grand entertainment within the fort, intending, says Abulfazl, to have seized him Biram Khan, who got some intimation of evil designs, feigning an excuse, waived the invitation, and encamped by a stream near the town, where he was visited by Haji Muliammed, whom by his superior art and address, he prevailed upon to accompany him to Kábul Humáyun, meanwhile, no sooner heard of Kámrán's movements, than he hurned back to defend his capital The Mirza, after he had arrived within one march of Kábul, hearing that Biram Khan and Háji Muhammed were not fai off on their march to join the Emperor, seeing all chance of success gone, turned back, to wander some time longer in the straths and hills of Lamghán *

* Akbernáma, f 84, Nizám-eddín Ahmed) Tab Akb f 165 and Tar Niz f 203) makes Humáyun write to Kandahár to request Biram Khan to visit Háji Muhammed and seize him He also affirms that Háji wrote to Kamrán inviting him to come to Ghazni, when he was ready to acknowledge him as king From whatever cause, it is clear that the ruin of Háji Muhammed was resolved upon Perhaps his conduct in the matter of the test-oath was not forgotten Abulfazl is so much a partizan of the Emperor and of Biram Khan, that we can hardly expect from him an impartial account of transactions in which that great man was concerned. Háji Muhammed probably stood a little in Biram's way. He had been Prime Minister, and seems to have been laid aside, first for Kerácha, and now for Biram Khan. Whether the disaffection laid to his charge was real, or only a pretext for superseding him, it is hard to determine. If real, it seems strange that he should twice have been induced to go to Kábul. He evidently at this time did not consider his life to be safe.

After Bıram Khan and Hájı Muhammed had reached снар ш Kábul, the latter, when one day entering the city, was stopped at the gate and turned back, with rather a pointed message from the governor This, added to the manifest jealousy which the Emperor had shown, naturally roused his suspicion that something was in agitation against him He, therefore, resolved to escape before the Emperor arrived, and, to prevent being detained, instead of proceeding straight to Ghazni, he set out for Kárábágh on the north, under pretence of a hunting party, passed the defile of Minár, and made his way through the hills to Bába Kochkár, whence he hastened, by the Damankoh of Behzadı and Alınder, towards Ghaznı

When Humayun soon after reached Stah-sang near Measures to Kábul, on his way back to oppose Kámrán, he was met selze Kámrán, by Biram Khan Finding that Kámián had retreated, and resolved to follow him wherever he was to be found, that an end might be put to those eternal alarms of which he was the cause, -he issued orders that not a man should leave the camp, or enter Kábul As he was not at his ease in regard to Haji Muhammed, he despatched Biram Khan to prevail upon him once more to return to the camp, if possible amicably, but at all events to bring him The Khan, by his prudent and conciliating management, and by engaging for certain conditions which he confirmed by oath, succeeded in mollifying and reassuring the Haji, and finally conducted him to the presence when all the forms of a reconciliation took place

A few days after this event, the Emperor marched back to the Lamghánát in pursuit of Kámrán time he reached Júi-Sháhi, the Mírza fled through the passes of Kuner Nurgil higher up the Kama River, while his followers dispersed Biram Khan, now honoured with the title of Khan-Khánán, was sent with a body of troops to pursue him, which he did with so much vigour

BOOK V

A D 1551

Who flies towards the Indus.

that the Mírza, not finding himself safe in the territory of Kuner Nurgil, went off towards the Indus Biram Khan rejoined the Emperoi at Daka, between Júi-Sháhi and the Khaiber Pass

It was at this time that the Emperor caused Háji Muhammed Khan and his brother Shah Muhammed to be seized. They were charged with turbulent and rebellious designs, and after the forms of a regular investigation, were found guilty, stript of all their honours and possessions, and when they had been kept a short time in prison, were put to death. Indeed, in the condition in which the countries under Humáyun then were, it was not safe for the prince, after quarrelling with any subject, to leave him powerful. It would have been only affording him the means of aiding a rival with greater effect. Humáyun, influenced probably by the stern, but successful, policy of Briam Khan, seems, at length, to have resolved to quell rebellion, and to punish disaffection with unsparing severity, in every one, from the prince to the peasant. Ghazni and the other jágírs of the two brothers, were divided among the Emperor's adherents.*

Change in the policy of Humáyun

Tranquillization of Afghánis-

The winter Humáyun spent in hunting and festivity, and in settling the neighbouring country Early in the spring he had the satisfaction of receiving deputations from different tribes of Afgháns, with acknowledgements of submission and tributary offerings. The flight of Kámrán allowed things to assume a better form than they had done for a long period. Biram Khan returned to Kandahár. The countries of Ghazni, Guidíz, Bangash and Lohger were entrusted to Hindal, Kunduz, which the Mírza had held, was given to Mír Birkeh, Júi-Sháhi to Khizer Khwája Khan. When these arrangements were made, Hindal, leaving Kunduz, repaired to Ghazni. But before Mír Birkeh arrived at

^{*} Akbernáma, f84, Tab Akb f165, Tar Nız f $202,\,203$, Jouher, c26

Kunduz to supply his place, Mirza Ibráhim contrived char in to get possession of it, and it was allowed, if not by secret trenty, at least by communice, to remain in his hands

It was about this time that Shah Abul-Maali entered Humáyun's service - He wis i Pirzáda or son of a Pír or saintly personage, and claimed to be descended of the Syeds of Turmez who were connected with the imperial family. He was a man of decision and talent, by which, and by the unbounded influence he gained over the Emperor's mind, in spite of his presumptuous and overbearing temper, he rose to high rank and estimation

But Kamran, meanwhile, had not been idle. In the numbian course of his wanderings, he had contrived to collect against about him a new and considerable body of adventurers, hamran with whom he advanced, and once more entered Jui-Shahi the middle point between the upper and lower country The Imperor immediately summoned Hindal and the Jagirdus nearest to the capital, to join his array They obeyed, and he muched against Kamrán, who, without inceting him, retreated into his usual mountain recesses. When the camp reached Surkháb, however, Kámián, descending from the hills, made a fierce attack by night on the advance, which lay at the Siah-ab between that town and Gandemak The troops, though surpused, defended themselves bravely, and maintained their ground, but lost many men, and a great part of their baggage

Humayun proceeded on his maich, through a broken mountainous country, so close on the hills, and so beset with steep lowering cliffs, ravines, valleys and hill passes, that he was in constant danger of being surprised, or of having the different divisions of his army separated from each other, and cut off by the sudden attacks of an unseen foe Passing Júi-Sháhi, he advanced as far as Jubár, a township in the territory of BOOK V

n 1551

Might attick on the Imperial cump Zekada 21 eve of Nov 20

Teath of Hindal Nanginhár, beyond Behsúd, guarding his camp and march with watchful care. On his airival, he ordered the camp to be surrounded with trenches to prevent surprise, and erected a temporary fort on a rising ground. Two Afgháns brought a report that the Mirza intended, that same night, to attack the camp with a body of Khalil and Mehmend Afgháns. It was the eve of the 20th of November. The guards were ordered to watch in the trenches, and to be on the alert. About the end of the first watch of the night, are attack was made. of the first watch of the night, an attack was made accordingly The Emperor was on the rising ground, Hindal in the camp below The onset was furious, and the contest continued hot for some time, each officer defending his own portion of the works, some part of which, however, the enemy succeeded in scaling, and entered the enclosure Some men of note were slain, entered the enclosure Some men of note were slain, all was confusion and uncertainty, friend and foe being mixed together and covered by the darkness of the night, when the rising of the moon showed the real state of things, and the imperialists recovered their superiority. The assailants took to flight, but Mirza Hindal had fallen in the fray. "When the affair was over," says Jouher, "and his Majesty inquired for his brother Hindal, no one had the courage to tell him. He then called out aloud from the height, but, although the national days at least three hundred passage. surrounded by at least three hundred persons, none answered He ordered Abdal Wáháb to go and bring news of the prince He went, but, in returning, was shot by one of our own matchlock-men, who mistook hun for an Afghán, and thus was he added to the number of martyrs Mír Abdal-Hai was next sent, and brought back the melancholy intelligence, which he communicated by repeating two verses of a poet. The Emperor instantly retreated to his pavilion, where he was overwhelmed with grief, till his Amírs came and consoled him, saying that his brother was blest, in

BOOK V A D 1551 in black armour lying on the ground He did not at first stop, but pushed on towards the Afghans, till he recollected that Hindal had that evening put on a black currass Turning back, he examined the body, and found that it was the Mirza's His right hand had been cut off, and some fingers of his left, apparently in an attempt to defend his head, and a cross blow, that had fallen on his mouth, had nearly separated the head from the one ear to the other With great presence of mind, he lifted up the body, and cairied it into the Mírza's pavilion, where he laid it down and covered it with a cloak, ordering the porters to admit no one, as the Mirza was fatigued with his exertions, and had received a tiifling wound, and desired that no noise or bustle should be allowed, that could disturb him When the enemy was finally repulsed, the Khwája mounted a using ground, and in the Mirza's name returned thanks to the troops for their exertions which had secured the victory His conduct was warmly applauded by the Emperor Hindal's remains were conveyed first to Júi-Sháhi, and, after a time, to Kábul, where they were interred at the feet of his father Baber He was thirtytwo years of age at the time of his death Ghazni, the jágír of Hindal, was given to Akber, to whom were also transferred the Mirza's adherents, and the daughter of the deceased prince was betrothed to him *

* Akbernáma, f 85, Jouher, c 26, Bayezid, ff 59, 60, Tab Akb f 165, Khol-ul-Tow f 270, Jouher mentions an incident connected with the death of Hindal, which is highly illustrative of that tenderness to animal life, that is rommon with pious Musulmans Two days before the night attack, when the Emperor and his brother were returning from chusing a strong position for a fortified camp, they met three dear, "one, Hindal pursued, another Shah Abu-Maali, the third escaped When Hindal was over against the deer, he shot it with an arrow in such a way that it never moved, but raising its face thrice towards heaven, yielded up its life to God All who were present were filled with wonder, (it seeming) as if the deer had lifted up its complaint to the Almighty Creator" Jouher, c 26 Two days after, the Mirza was slain by the Afgháns, "having no other arms to oppose to the enemy but his bow and arrow" He was born in A if 925, and slain 958, being about 33 lunar years of age

BOOK V A D 1552, was directed to the encampment of the tribe with which the Mirza was to be found, and, hastening on, reached it as the sun rose. They rushed in ere the Afgháns, who amounted to 14,000 fighting men, could recover from their surprise, and put to death all the men whom they met, making prisoners of the women and children, whom they afterwards sold as slaves. Kámrán made a narrow escape, the assailants entering his tent at one side, while he escaped by the other, but Maksúd, his favourite, who slept in it was taken prisoner. The surprise was complete, the resistance feeble, the booty, surprise was complete, the resistance feeble, the booty, especially in sheep and cattle, very large. This disaster was decisive of the Mirza's fate among the Afgháns, who were seized with general dismay, and did not afterwards dare to protect him. He, therefore, fled, but meeting with no succour from the Afghán tribes, crossed the Indus, and, compelled by the extremity to which he was reduced, sought refuge with Selím Shah, the Afghán King of Delhi. Humáyun, no longer apprehensive of any attack from the Afgháns, left his fortified some of Belevid and returned in triviant to fortified camp of Behsúd, and returned in triumph to Kábul †

I¹e files to Selim Shah

End of

A II 959, and of

A D 1552
Humáyun lays waste
Bangash

Towards the end of the year, the Emperor moved down into Bangash to chastise the Afgháns in that quarter, who had sheltered and assisted Kámrán. As Bangash hies on a far lower level than Kábul, and the winter is consequently much less severe, he was able to carry on hostile operations in that country, while the grounds above were covered with snow. While he himself moved down from the capital, he ordered a second division from Ghazni, under Akber, to co operate with him by marching on Bangash by the route of Gurdíz. The invaders spread, plundering and laying waste the country on every side, seizing the effects, and driving off the sheep and cattle of the different tribes,

^{*} Jouher makes the prisoners, † Albernáma, ff 84—87, Joumale and female, amount to 12,000 her, c 27

into whose territory they came, and especially of the curr in Abdal-Rahmáni and Bermzídi Afgháns Monaim Khan, Sect IV with a third division of the l'inperor's troops, advancing from his jagir of Nanginhar by way of Tria, itticked the habitations of Fatch Shah, an Afghan chief, who was accused of belonging to the hated sect of Chrisphkush, and destroyed or plundered his whole property, he himself narrowly escaping, but severely wounded " To complete the satisfiction which Humiyun empoyed The Caters from these successful operations, which wasted the ter-render ritory of his enemy in every direction, he was met by ambasadors from Sult in Adam Gaker, the head of the Giker race, who brought the important intelligence that Kunrin had windered into his territories, and thit, if the Emperor would visit him, he was ready to acknowledge his Migesty, and to deliver his brother into his hands. Along with the unbisendors came Jogi Khan, a servint of Kamran's, beining a letter from that prince, in which he mide every protestation of attachment, with expressions of regret for the past, and promises of submission for the future. This was an opportunity not to be neglected. Humayun wis convinced, from long and prinful experience, that he never could be personally sife, or scene of executing my of his plans, while Kamian was at luge Without delay, therefore, he bent his much towards the Indus, which he crossed neu Dinkót, on his way to the country of the Gakers

We have seen that Kamian, after his camp had been komin surprised in the night-attack, and his illies routed and vite the dispersed, finding that no more assistance could be selfin shah gained from the Afghans, who were confounded by the

he sent a party to punish him, who made his wives and children prisoners. He may probably be the person mentioned in the text, Mazhabi mercly signifying "scetary"

^{*} Jouher tells us (c. 27) that Humayun, while in Bangash, heard one Pekh Mazhahi had made a place for himself in the Bangash territory, and was misleading men on which

BOOK V A D 1553 blow inflicted on some of their tribes, hastened towards the Penjáb, resolved, as a last resource, to court succour from Selím Shah, the Afghán sovereign of Delhi, and the hereditary enemy of his family and race That prince was then at Bin, a township of the Penjab, and engaged in operations against the chief of Jamu when Kamran's envoy arrived Instantly perceiving the advantage to be derived from this incident, he joyfully invited him to his court, and, as he approached, sent an honorary procession to receive him Kainran saw with disappointment, however, that it was composed of persons of inferior rank, and, that on entering the camp, he was not met by the King The unhappy prince soon discovered that he was no longer a sovereign, and endured all the painful feelings of degraded majesty, heightened by a sense of his own imprudence, in having thrown himself into the hands of a bitter enemy When introduced to the presence, he found Selim seated in state, with much pomp, on his throne Having, either intentionally or by accident, made some delay in approaching the king, he was thrice loudly reminded by the master of ceremonies*, before the whole Court, that he was in the presence of the Lord of the World As he approached the throne without making his obeisance, the officer who introduced him, seized him rudely by the neck, and made him bend to perform the kornish, proclaiming at the same time that the son of the Makadam, or head-man, of Kábul, had come to make a petition to his Majesty To add to his vexation, Selím for some time affected not to notice him, and when he did, looking haughtily his way, only half rose from his seat, gave him a passing welcome, directed that his tent should be placed among those of the Mír-zádas, and gave orders to present him with a caparisoned horse, a dress of honour, a female slave and an eunuch

His humiliating reception

late powerful sovereign of Kúbul, Kandahár, Badakh-char in shan and the Penjab, felt indignant and humbled, at receiving such treatment from an upstart Afghán He was permitted to go at large, but was watched as a prisoner Selim, who had some tincture of learning, and piqued himself on his skill in composing extempore verses, often sent for the Minzi, who was an elegant poet and an accomplished scholar, and contended with hum chiefly in metrical composition, an intercourse which myarribly terminated in disgust Kamrán was not long of discovering that the promises made to him were never meant to be kept, and that he had humbled lumselt to become the mere dependant of an Afghan, whom he hated, and who was his mortal foe Worn out with petty annoyances also, he became tired of life, and resolved to attempt, at whitsoever risk, to effect his escape

When Selim had concluded his business in the Penjab, His escape he set out to return to Hindustán, carrying along with him the Mirza, whom he continued to flatter with hopes of assistance, which he never meant to render intention was to have sent him as a prisoner to some hill fort, to be reserved as a check upon Humáyun As the camp approached the Satley, Kamrán saw that no time was to be lost, and privately despatched Jogi Khan, a trusty servant, to Raja Kambhu, a hill chieftain, whose country was only twelve kos from Máchiwárá, the grand pass over the river, to ascertain if that chief would afford him protection. The Raja promised to receive him and as soon as the camp had crossed the liver at Máchiwára, the Muza effected his escape Having dressed one of his servants in his own sleeping tobe, and, in order the more effectually to full the vigilance of the guards and spies by whom he was surrounded, made Bába Sud a nobleman of his household sit up reading aloud by his bedside, as if he had lain down to go to rest, he proceeded to disguise himBOOK V A B 1553 self in female attire, and throwing over him the robe or veil used by Musulman women, which covers the whole body and conceals the shape, having only a small aperture left for the eyes, he walked out of the female tents unsuspected, and having at a convenient place mounted a fleet horse, found his way to the concerted place of refuge among the hills *

His subsequent wan derings,

The Raja received him as he had promised, and entertained him hospitably for some time, till, learning that a force was on its march to demand that the Mirza should be given up, unable to resist the power of Delhi, he sent off the prince to another hill-chief, the Raja of Kalúr†, who possessed the strongest place in that quarter, but who soon after, from a similar apprehension of incurring the resentment of Selim, sent him on The Raja of that territory, however, afraid of once more drawing on himself the hostility of the Afghán, from which he had before suffered, would not grant permission to the Mírza to enter his dominions Kámrán, finding himself thus situated, set out for Mánkót t, where he very narrowly escaped being made a prisoner He was compelled once more, therefore, to disguise himself as a female, and set out on horseback with an Afghán horse-dealer, who was returning to Kábul In passing through the Gaker country, he discovered himself to the Sultan, and claimed his assistance to regain his throne That chief, who had been an ally of Baber's, detained the Mirza as a prisoner at large, at the same time giving information to Humáyun, as has been mentioned, that the Mírza was in his power Kámrán, finding himself in this desperate situation,

and deten tion by the Gakers

^{*} The Kholáset-ul- Fowarikh says, at Rajeghát 20 kos from Sirlend, f 283

[†] The present capital of Kalur is Belláspur on the Saile; Forster's Travels, vol. i. p 240 8vo ed The Kholáset calls it Kehlut, and makes him go thence to Nagerkót and thence to Jamu Ferishta, vol 11 p 109 says that he took refuge with the Raja of Nagerkót

[‡] Mánkót lies in the hills between the Rayi and Chenáb

Discussions as to his

fatc

standard, and kettle-dium and some rich presents, the reward of his important, but dishonourable, service, took his leave Consultations were now held as to the disposal of the Mírza The Emperor's councillors were unanimously of opinion, that there could be no liope of tranquillity for his dominions while the Mirza was in life, and that his death was due no less to the Emperor himself, than to the quiet and peace of his subjects Humáyun, both from his own natural disposition and the impressive paiting advice of his father, was very averse to proceed to extremities Upon this his Amirs, the Muftis, Doctors of the Law and other men of note who accompanied the army, presented a petition, advice and remonstrance under their seals, praying that capital punishment might be inflicted on Kamran, as an act required by justice, and indispensable to the public peace This paper Humáyun sent to Kámián, who was much agitated on reading it He sent a message in return to say, that those whose seals were affixed to this paper asking for his death, were the very persons, who had urged him on to the extremities, that had brought him to his present misery

Is deprived of his eyesight. Though strongly urged on every side, Humáyun obstinately persisted in refusing to imbrue his hands in his brother's blood, but he resolved, by depriving him of his eyesight, to render him unfit for public life. For this purpose, he ordered the Mírza's servants to be removed from about his person, and supplied their place by some of his own. He instructed his ewer bearer, Jouher, from whom we have the detailed particulars of this event, to watch the interior of the tent, and on no

perial family For when Baber invaded Hindustán, Tátár entered his service and served him faithfully He fell in the war with Rána Sánga, leaving two sons, Sultan Sarang and Sultan Adam On the death of Sarang, the chieftainship of the tribe came to Sultan Adam, who at this time continued to hold it, though the two sons of Sarang, Kemul Khan and Said Khan Gaker, laid claim to the dignity, and were their pincles enemies

BOOK V A D 1553 Majesty's personal orders? Should he to-morrow ask me, 'What made you do this deed, and disable my brother?' Am I to answer, 'I did it because Sultan Ali Dost bid me?' No, I cannot do it "Thus they disputed together At length, the humble Jouher said, "I will go and inform his Majesty" Ali Dost, Sultan Baríki, Gholám Ali Sheshangusht , the Darogha of the Feráshkhána, and I, the humble Jouher, galloped after his Majesty, and addressed him Ali Dost, among the rest, spoke to him in the Túrki language, saying, "Nobody will do this deed" The Emperor, in the saine language, called him names, and said, "Thou, what has come over thee? Do thou go and do it" What followed, as perhaps the most faithful account of such a scene that is on record, may best be described in the words of an eye-witness and agent †

"Having received this order, we returned to Kamran, and Gholam Alı said to the Mirza, 'O Mirza! would that Almighty God tore my tongue from the roots, rather than that the words I speak should come from my mouth But for the commands of princes there is no remedy Our orders are to lance your eyes' 'Kill me at once,' said the Mirza Gholam Ali replied, 'None dare so far overpass his orders as to kill you' He then proceeded to execute the work Having folded a handkerchief which he had in his hand into a ball, to serve for a gag, the Ferásh I thrust it into the Mírza's mouth as he struggled They then held his hands, diagged him out of the pavilion, laid him on the ground, and struck the lancet into his eyes, such was the will of God! fifty times more or less Like a brave man he did not utter a single groan But when a man sat down on his knees, he said to him, 'Why do you sit on my knees?

up and lays down the carpets, assists in pitching the tents, &c.

^{*} The sixfingered

[†] Jouher, c. 27 .

[#] An inferior servant who takes

BOOK V in the fulness of his heart, seizing his hands, pressed them to his eyes with many tears, and exclaimed,

"Though a veil is drawn over the eye of my body,

I see thee still with that inward eye, that so oft has pictured thy countenance"

He continued to accompany the camp, until it arrived on the banks of the Indus, on its return to Kábul Here he sent for Monaim Beg "You know," said the Mírza, "in what splendor I have lived in Kábul How then can I endure to be carried to it, such a spectacle as I now am" He asked leave to go to Mekka, without passing through his old dominions, adding that, if refused, he would kill himself by the way, when his blood would rest on his brother's head The Emperor, for a whole day, refused to grant this request How could he set him at large, he said, after having reduced him to blindness At length, however, Monaim and some others of his Amirs prevailed on the Emperor to let him set out, and also to have a meeting with him, to which he agreed on one condition, -that the Mirza should place a check upon his feelings, and not allow himself to break out into complaint or lamentation. At midnight, the Emperor, lighted by a lantein, and attended by five or six men of distinction, repaired to his tent Monaim sent in a person to apprise the Mirza that his Majesty was come Yusef, the Mirza's Koichi (armour-bearer), taking his blind master by the arm, led him out as far as the tent-ropes When Humáyun's eyes fell on the handkerchief that the Mírza had tied over his eyes, he burst into an involuntary flood of tears, while Kámrán, observant of his promise, maintained a silent composure The Emperor entered the tent, and having thrown off his shoes, sat down close by the entrance, and made a sign to Yúsef, who led in the Mírza, and, in consequence, took him to the higher place, opposite to the Emperor When those who attended his

His interview with Humáyun Majesty had followed and entered the tent, he made them CHAP III a sign to sit down where they stood The Emperor continuing to sob aloud, the Mirza repeated a couplet from a popular poem,

"The cowl of the solitary hermit is exalted to the skies, When the shadow of a monarch like thee falls upon it"

adding soon after this other,

"Whatever falls on my soul from thee is subject of thanksgiving, Be it the shaft of ruin, or the dagger of tyranny"

Humáyun, taking no notice of the reproach which the latter part of the quotation implied, loaded him with kind expressions, calling God to witness how little things had turned out according to his wishes, and how deeply and tenderly he sympathized with his brother's sufferings The Mirza inquired of Yusef, "Who were in the tent?" He was told, Mir Terdi Beg, Monaim Beg, Bápus Beg and some others, on which he addressed them and said, "Be all of you witnesses, that whatever has happened to me, has proceeded from my own misconduct and fault. If it be known that his Majesty has shown favour to me, let it also be known how little I have deserved it " Humáyun, much affected, and wishing to put an end to the scene, his voice interrupted by convulsive sorrow, faltered out, "Let us now repeat the Fateheh" (a prayer) The Mirza upon this earnestly recommended his children and dependants to the Emperor's care, who said, "Set yourself at ease on that subject they are my own children" The prayer being over, Humáyun rose to depart, on which Yúsef, taking the Mirza's hand, led him out to the same spot where he had gone to receive the Emperor, when he came and there took leave of him As soon as the Emperor was gone and at a little distance, Kámrán, no longer under restraint, groaning aloud, gave vent to his smothered emotions, and burst out into heart-rending BOOK V

A D 1553

He is deserted by his attendante

lamentations, so that the sound of his cries and of his wailing was heard in the tents all around

Next day it was publicly intimated, that all such of the Mirza's former servants as were inclined might accompany him, but none were found disposed to share his present miserable condition. "Those who lately had boasted of his friendship," says Abulfazl, "now denied his acquaintance" In this situation, Humáyun asked Chilmeh Koka, one of his household, who happened to be standing by, "Whether he would remain in his service or go to Mekka with the Mírza" The generous man replied, that highly as he was honoured by being in his Majesty's service, a sense of duty called upon him to attend the Mírza, that, to the best of his power, he might cheer his dreary nights, and his daik and solitary days "Blessings be upon you," said Humáyun To his faithful management the care of the funds destined for the Mírza's support in his pilgrimage was entrusted, and this worthy man rose to high rank in the succeeding reign Beg Múlúk, the favourite of his prosperity, deserted the Mírza after accompanying him a few stages, and returned to the camp The Emperor was much incensed on hearing of his conduct, and this heartless desertion, says Bayezíd, made him abhorred of small and great *

He proceeds to Sind and Mekka.

Kámrán travelled down the Indus to Tatta, where Shah Husein, his father-in-law, allotted him a palace for his residence, and an estate for his support. He persisted, however, in proceeding on his pilgrimage. His Arghún wife, Chuchak Begum, in spite of every remonstrance, resolved to accompany him, and having embarked without her father's knowledge, was discovered before the ship set sail, but refused to return with the persons whom he sent to bring her on shore. He ^{*} Akbernáma, ff 88—90 , Jou- Niz ff 203, 204 , Ferishta, vol. 11 her, c. 27 , Bayezíd, 63—65 , pp 169, 170 Tab Akberi, ff 165, 166 , Tar himself in consequence went on board to fetch her CHAP III. But the lady nobly remonstrated with him "You Sect IV gave me to my husband," she said, "when he was a Devotion of king and happy, and would take me from him now that he is fallen, and blind, and miserable No, I will attend and watch him faithfully, wherever he goes" Shah Husein, compelled to admire her generous spirit and to yield to her determination, sent on board of the vessel whatever could contribute to the comfort of the voyage * She attended her husband with un- Their weared affection till his death, which happened about four years after (on the 5th of October, A D 1557) She survived him only seven months

A II 964 Zilhajeh 11

But to leturn to Humáyun's proceedings in the Gaker Humáyun country After the Mírza was thus given up and dethe country prived of sight, the Emperor marched against Piraneb, a chief of the Januha tribe, who possessed a strong fort in the Bhira country He gave himself up after a stout resistance, but Sultan Adam having asked that he and his country should be delivered into his hands, his request was complied with The Emperor now ravaged the neighbouring districts, destroying many villages, while the army gained much booty †

Thus far successful, Humáyun resolved to improve his advantage and to march on to Kashmir, to the conquest of which he had been so long and so urgently invited by Sultan Haider Doghlat But his Amirs and then followers, who had left their families behind in Kábul, were extremely averse to the expedition persisted obstinately, however, and orders were given for advancing by way of Bimber In the moining, Defection when the march was to begin, a great part of the troops, among his troops instead of taking the route pointed out, turned away

Tarikh-e-Sind, 168

[†] There is some diversity in the accounts of different authors as to the series of events in this campaign

I follow what, from a comparison of authorities, seems the most prohable

BOOK V D 1553

towards Kábul Abul Maali, the Emperor's favourite, and a violent man, rode up and shot with his arrow one of the refractory leaders The Emperor wished to pursuc and chastise them, but the chief Amírs represented to hun, that the defection was too general to be stopped, and they renewed their representations, in which they were joined by Sultan Adam, that the present was not a favourable time for such an expedition, that the Afgháns of Delhi, who had not long before crossed the Jelem from Rhotas and returned into the Penjáb, were now assembling in great force, and should he march to Kashmír, would occupy the hill pass by which he had gone, and shut up the only route by which he could return, that he had not force enough to meet them in the field, so that Kashmír would become his prison Besides this, intelligence had airived that Shah Selím himself was on his way back from Delhi with an over-powering force. Humáyun, though deeply wounded by the conduct of his troops, was compelled to yield, and soon after marched for the Indus To prevent his being followed into the Gaker and Bhíra country, a report was circulated, and believed in the Afghán camp, that he was on his march to besiege Rhotas This prevented their moving, so that he was enabled to pursue his course, and cross the liver without being followed by the Afghans crosses the Indus

He re-

Rebuilds and provisions Peshawer On reaching Bekrám, now Pesháwer, he found that the fort had been destroyed by the neighbouring Afgháns, and sensible of its great importance for his meditated invasion of Hindustán, as well as for keeping the Afgháns in order, he resolved to rebuild it on a more extensive plan. The delay which this occasioned was far from being agreeable to the Amírs, who were all eager to return to Kábul. Having, however, issued his orders, he made the different portions of the works be distributed to the different Amírs, and leaving Terdi. Beg and Monaim Beg to see it finished under the immediate superintendence of the master of the works, the CHAP III fortifications were completed in a very short time, and a strong garrison placed in it under the command of Sekander Khan Uzbek The harvests of the Dılázák Afgháns being still on the ground, the grain was cut down, and served to provision the fort It was soon after attacked by the neighbouring Afghans, but Sekander made a successful defence, and repelled them.

Humáyun returned to Kábul in the end of the year One of his first employments was to justify himself in regard to his treatment of Kámrán We are told that End of A P Is he deplored to the ladies of the harem the cruel ne- Returns to cessity in which he had been placed, and that he wrote Kábul at great length to Abdal Reshid of Káshghar, a friend and relation of the family, explaining in detail the facts of his intercourse with his brother Indeed it must be allowed that, in this whole unhappy affair, Humáyun seems to have offered violence to his own feelings, and to have departed from his usual character *

Beginning of л 11 960

But, however that may be, Humáyun now found Favourable himself in a situation very different from what he had affairs, been at any previous portion of his reign He had earned much dear-bought experience. His brothers, who had so often interfered with his views and thwarted his designs, were all removed, Kamrán was deprived of sight, and in banishment, Hindal had fallen in fight, and Askeri was in a far distant land, whence he was not likely to return, and where he could not be dangerous The other Mirzas, his relations, had either been removed by the arm of justice, or by various accidents, or lived, dependant on his will The more factious and powerful of the great Amírs, such as Kerácha Khan and Hán Muhammed Khan, had fallen by the sword of his authority There was now no rival to the throne, no noble behind and above the throne The most

^{*} Albernáma, f 90 and other authorities as above

BOOK V -------A D 1554 powerful of them, Biram Khan the Amír-al-omra, being a Persian Túrk without local connection, and a Shía, was, in spite of his great talents, less formidable to the sovereign than much inferior men. since, as it was through the sovereign that he must govern, it was his interest to increase the power of the crown, his only support

He resolves to reconquer India Encouraged by this state of affairs, and by the peace that prevailed in every part of his dominions, Humáyun now determined to attempt the conquest of Hindustán, which had so long been the object of his ambition And the circumstances in which that country was placed at this crisis were in every respect most favourable to his design. But it is necessary to return to that country, from which we have been so long absent, and to take a view of the events that followed the expulsion of Humáyun from Delhi and the Penjáb, about thirteen years before this period, when the superior energy and conduct of Shír Shah established for a time the ascendency of the Afghán over the Chaghatái dynasty.

BOOK SIXTH.

THE SUR DYNASTY IN INDIA

CHAPTER I

SULTAN SHÍR SHAH SÚR.

SHIR SHAH OCCUPIES THE PENJÁB ON THE FLIGHT OF HUMÁYUN AND KÁMRÁN — THE GAKERS REFUSE TO SUBJIT TO HIM — THEY DEFEAT HIS DETACHMENTS - HE ERECTS THE STRONG FORTRESS OF RHOTAS --- AND RETURNS TO DELHI AND AGRA.-QUELLS A REVOLT IN BENGAL RESOLVES TO REDUCE MALWA - GUÁLIÁR SURRENDERS - RECENT STATE OF MALWA - KADER SHAH ASSUMES THE SOVEREIGNTY -OUARRELS WITH SHIR SHAH -- WHO MARCHES AGAINST HIM --- AP-PARENT RECONCILIATION BETWEEN THEM -ARTIFICE OF SHIR SHAH -FLIGHT OF KADER SHAH TO GUJRAT -ATTEMPT TO SEIZE THE NOBLES IN MALWA. - KADER SHAH RETURNS, AND IS DEFEATED -RANTAMBÓR SURRENDERED TO SHÍR SHAH, WHO RETURNS TO AGRA -MILITÁN OCCUPIED IN HIS NAME - HIS ADMINISTRATION - HE RE-TURNS TO MALWA -CAPITULATION OF RAISEN -TREACHERY OF SHIR SHAH AND MASSACRE OF THE GARRISON -HIS SCHEMES ON MARWAR. -HE INVADES IT WITH A LARGE ARMY - IS MET BY THE ARMY OF MÁRWÁR. — EXCITES DISSENSION AMONG THE RÁJPUTS — DESPERATE ATTACK ON HIS CAMP - RETREAT OF MALDEO - SHIR SHAH TURNS OFF TOWARDS CHEITUR - AND THENCE TO KALINJER - CAPTURE OF THAT FORF, AND DEATH OF SHIR SHAH - HIS CHARACTER, ABILITIES AND GREAT DESIGNS - SCANTY RECORDS OF HIS CIVIL ADMINISTRA-TION

When Shir Shah entered the Penjab on the invitation of Kámrán's envoy, his successes had so far exceeded his expectations, that he could hardly believe his own A H 947 Shir Shah good fortune, and was apprehensive that the total want occupies the of opposition which he experienced might be a stra- the flight of tagem to draw him on into danger After crossing the Humdyun Satley and the Biah as he came near the capital of the ran Kam-

Penjah, and still found himself unopposed by any effective force, his suspicions were further confirmed that this system of retreat was a mere feint, and that Kamian and his brothers had withdrawn all their troops, and retired for a moment, only to return with their united force, and enclose him on every side with greater certainty, when he should have incautiously advanced into a country, where it would be easy to cut off his communication with that through which he had passed He, therefore, proceeded slowly, sending a strong column in advance, and followed, cautiously, with the rest of his army and his artillery, which he brought forward ready for action But, in a few days, hearing from all quarters of the discord among the brothers, he became persuaded that the baseness of Kámián in negociating a secret treaty with him was not affected, and saw that he might prudently venture on bolder measures. He, therefore, pushed on for Láhúr. His sudden approach, as we have seen, dispersed the brothers and not content with occupying the capital of Kámrán, he pursued them in their flight On reaching the Chenáb, he detached one party to pursue Humáyun and such of the Mírzas as had taken the Multan road, and another to follow Kamran to the Nıláb or Indus, whilst he himself proceeded to Khusháb on the Jelem Thence he proceeded to Bhíra, where he halted for some time, to cover the troops which he sent out to take possession of every part of the Penjáb. The Balúches, a barbarous and daring tribe, had long been settled in great numbers in the lower part of that country. Ismael Khan, Gházı Khan and Fatch Khan Balúch Dudai, who were chiefs of various clans or districts, acknowledged Shir Shah, and the whole of the rich and extensive country between the Jelem and the Satler submitted to him without a blow *

^{*} Akbernama, f 54, Tar Nizami, f 215

While encomped at Bhirn, Shir Shah sent to invite curri Sult in Siring and Sult in Adim to visit his camp, or, The Gakers in other words, to submit to his authority. They were which the chieft uns of the Gakers, and ruled the greater part of the rough hilly country lying between the Jelem and the Indus. But these chiefs, who had long been on friendly terms with Biber and his family, declined the martition. The Gakers are a numerous tribe. Their country has to the north of the Penrib, though they seem in earlier times, to have extended as fur down as Multan. Then present territory, the same that they occupied in Shir Shah's time, extends over the greater part of the tract of country that hes to the north of the Jud hills, or Silt Range, between the Indus and the mountains. It is a table land buttiessed by the Salt Runge rising eight hundred feet above the plains of the Pemab. The Gakers are famed for their beauty, and claim a Raput origin. Their country is rugged, mount unous, and intersected by jugged ravines and precipitous dells, which make it easily defensible, and, in all iges, they have brively defended it * obedience, penetrated into their country as far as histories-Hitiit, one of their chief places, whence he sent out strong detachments to scour the neighbourhood. But the Gikers, with undiunted courage, attacked and defeated his troops, took a number of them prisoners and sold them for slaves. The lying proposed to revenge

this issent by attacking them in person, and mentioned his design in council, but his nobles unanimously

* See I lplunstone's Caubul, and Burness Irivels "Irom Rotas," rays the last-named traveller, " we entered a mountainous and rugged country of great strength, and our road lay in ravines. The chaos of rocks, their vertical strata, terminating in needles from decomposition, the round publics that lay unbedded in the sand stone, and the wild scenery, made this an interesting neighbourhood Burnes & Fravels, volup 55

† In Balar's Memoirs mention 14 made of a Hati Gaker, from whom probably the place was named sulimit.

Shir Shirh, who was eiger to reduce the Gakers to and defeat joined in advising him to lay aside all thoughts of such an undertaking, which, from the bravery of the enemy, and the broken and difficult nature of their country, would require, not only a strong force, but much time and great circumspection They justly remarked that, to subjugate such a race effectually, it was necessary to possess, in their vicinity, some strong hold, which could serve as a place of arms, in which a strong force could be permanently stationed that this would not only bridle their incursions into his territory, but that detachments could be sent out from it to waste the country and harass the inhabitants, so as to compel them to abandon their most troublesome fastnesses that this could only be the work of time, which he could little spare, as the rich and extensive empire of Hindustán called for all his vigilance. These considerations decided Shír Shah to suspend the proposed attack, but he determined to erect on the borders of their country a strong fortress, on the grand line of road between Kábul and India, that might at once be a formidable barrier against invasions from the north, and enable him to penetrate at will into the Gaker country Having surveyed the hills of Nander*, and in the vicinity of Balnáth, he selected a spot, and to the north of the Jelem, on the border of the Gaker territory, he began to build, on one of them, a fortress of singular strength which he called Rhotas, after his favourite castle of that name in Behar It was completed in the course of some years, in a style of massy grandeur, that excited the wonder of his own times, as well as the admiration of succeeding ages Eager to return to his dominions in the south, he appointed his favourite general Khowás Khan, Sipáhsalái, or commander-in-chief of all the Penjáb, with an allowance of a tenth part of the revenue of the province, and committing to Haibat Khan

He erects the strong fortress of Rhotas,

^{*} The Tar Akberi, f, 166 has Nizimi, f 215 has Nandina the Tileh Nandina or fanda the Tar Nisabnama, Nandana

Night the charge of the building of Rhotas with the case i command of a special force in the north-west, he returned to Delhi, whence he soon after proceeded on to Delhi towards Agra * and lgra.

 Akbernama, f. 54., Tab. Alben, f. 166., Tar. Nitimi. f. 215. Len hts II to 115. The runs of Rhotas were visited by Burnes in 18 2 "On the 1st of Murch, rays Le ' ne reached the extebra ed fo t of Rious considered to be one of the great bulbarls be need for ary As we wound through and India the distral defiles and might be ruminating on the various expolitions which had traversed this very r ad the foll burst upon our view. like the arene of a magic lan ern It had been hidden from us by tonicing precipied. We approached its polidero s malls lis a straggling path, which time had chis lled in the reel and soon nucled its lefts The black heary aspect of the fir, and the and stinlity of the surrounding to be in pited us with no favourable view of the neighbourhood, which has been the re ort of many a desperate band Shere Shah was its founder. I welve years and some millions of rupees are said to have been wasted in its con 'ruction'' When Humayun returned from his exile, "he comiranded that the fort of Rhotas should be levelled, but so massy are its walls, and so strong is the who'c edifice, that his Ameers and Comrahs ventured to asl his Majests, whether he came to recover his throne or destroy a single fort, since the one undertaling would require as much energy as the other Humayun contented himself with reselling a palace and a gateway as the monument of his conquest, and prudently marched to Delhi examined its walls and outworks, its extes and bastions, and the people pointed out to us the orifices for pouring oil on the benegers viewed with admiration the claborate loopho'es for the matchlock the deep wells cut in the live rock and the bomb proof macazines of the futification Travels, vol n pp

According to the Afghan accounts the difficulties at ending the erection of Rhotas were not small say that Shir Shah, before beginning to baild, invited the Galler Chiefs to come and acknowledge him. They een him in answer a peshkesh of rome currers full of arrows, and two maces with a mesage, that being roldiers they had no hing ele to give. Shir Shah enriged at the insalt, replied that they might rest assured, that God willing, he would drive such a nail into their breasts as should no be removed till the day of judgment. He then relected one Toder Nehtri to build the easile. supplying him plentifully with money, and returned to Agra.

The Gaker chiefs in alarm, engaged by oaths to each other, not to as 1st in the work, and I sued an injunction prohibiting all their dependants from serving at it as labources, under pain of banishment For sometime Toder was unable to procure a single stonemason, and the work was at a stand. This state of things he reported to Shir Shah, who answered, "I selected you from among many, to execute this work. thinking you a man of sense and ex-You have been supplied with money Go on, at any expense, to fulfil my object, and draw

BOOK \ J

It was his intention to have made airangements for the good government of that city, now his capital, and of the various districts dependant upon it, and he seems now to have struck com, and made the prayer for the sovereign be read there in his name, as King of Hindustán But news having arrived, that Khizer Khan Suwani, to whom he had entrusted the government of Bengal, had married the daughter of Mahmud Shah Pinabi, the late king of that country, and had assumed the state of a sovereign prince, Shir Shah deemed it prudent, before engaging in any other enterprise, to check this incipient defection in the bud. Without loss of time, therefore, he marched into Bengal * Kluzer Khan, unable to offer any resistance, came out in istakbál to meet him, and was seized and thrown into prison Shir Shah then proceeded to divide the provinces of that rich kingdom among a number of officers wholly independent of each other, and leaving Kázi Fazilat, better known by the name of Kázi Fazihat, a man emment for his learning as well as his talents, to superintend the whole with the title of Amín, hurried back to Agia, where he now found leisure to settle everything according to his wishes †

Quells a re volt in Bengal

Resolves to reduce Malya, A 11 949 As soon as the affairs of the capital were arranged, Shir Shah turned his eyes to the neighbouring provinces, some of which had not yet yielded to his arms on my treasury for the amount, whatever it may be" Toder, it is added, on receiving this order, on the first day offered such workmen as would engage, an ashrefi for every stone, and every one who brought a stone received a yellow ashrefi The Gakers, hearing this, disregarding the prohibition, came down in such numbers that, in a very short time, the rate was reduced by competition to one rupee each stone, and by and by to ten takkas, till at last it came to one behilth. In this manner, it is added, by dint of expense, was the fort completed. When a report of what was doing was made to Shir Shah, he entirely approved of what had been done, and praised the conduct of Toder most highly. Nisabnama-e Afghanan, ft. 94, 95

* Khol ul Towarkh, f 276 Some authors defer this till his subsequent return to Agra

† Tar Niz f 215, Tab Akberi, f 166, Tar Bed 189

His first object seems to have been to reduce the exten- CHAP I sive and populous country of Malwa, for which purpose he led his army towards the fort of Guáhár, which was still held for Humáyun by Abul Kásun Beg Guáliár, which was reckoned impregnable to open force, had for some time been blockaded by Shujaa Khan, one of Shir Shah's Amiis, and the gariison was already reduced to the greatest distress for want of provisions In consequence of this, the King, as he approached Guállar surthe place, had the satisfaction of being met by the renders. besieging general, and by the governor of the castle, who surrendered that important fortiess into his hands *

The victorious Afghán now continued his march into Recent state Malwa It was by no means in a settled condition When Humáyun, six years before, after his return from Gujrát, had hastily quitted the kingdom, that he might counteract the ambitious designs of his brother Askeri and reduce the growing power of Shir Khan, Malu Khan, one of the principal officers of the late Khilu government, assisted by the good wishes of the Zemíndárs and natives, attacked the imperial generals, who A II 944 had been left behind with very inadequate means of resistance, and being attended with an almost invariable course of success, in about a year reduced the whole of Malwa from Gujrát to Bhilsa under his power Malu Khan was thus encouraged to assume the ensigns of sovereignty, and he accordingly mounted the throne Kuder Shah at Mándu, under the title of Káder Shah of Malwa About the same time Bhopat and Puran-Mal, the sons of the late Raja Siláh-ed-dín or Silhádi, who had possessed such extensive dominions in that kingdom, returned from Cheitur, to which they had fled on their father's death, and recovered their family possessions of Ráisen, and Chandéri, acknowledging the new king as their superior lord †

Khan is described in the Tabakát, † Ferishta, vol n p 271, Malu f 166 and in the Tar Niz f 115,

BOOK VI
A n 1542
Quarrels with Shir
Shah,

Scarcely was Káder Shah seated on his throne, when he received a letter from Shír Shah, then only King of Bengal, inviting him to make a diversion on the side of Agia, so as to distract the attention of Humáyun, their common enemy, who was then once more on his march to attack the Afghán prince. This letter, or firmán, was sealed at the top, a form used in addressing an inferior. The new king, offended at what he held to be an insult, returned his answer by a similar letter or firmán, sealed in like manner at the top. On receiving it Shír Shah, filled with indignation, tore off the seal, which he placed on the point of his sword, at the same time exclaiming, that if he was ever fortunate enough to meet with Káder Shah, he should know in what way to remind him of this indignity.

who marches against him, A 11 949

Apparent reconciliation between them When Shin Shah now at length entered Malwa, Kader Shah, unable to cope with him in the field, retired before him. The Afghan advanced into the very heart of the new king's dominions. When he had reached Sarangpur on the Kali-Sind, Kader Shah, probably seeing little prospect of being able to make a successful resistance, to the great surprise of Shin Shah's officers, though probably by a private understanding with that prince himself, made his appearance one morning at the King of Delhi's Derban. The two princes retiring, conferred together, after which Kader Shah was introduced with the greatest ceremony and honours, received a present of an hundred and one horses, was presented with the dress worn by Shir Shah when they met, and invited to sleep in the royal tents. Next day, the army marched on to Ujein, where the Afghan caused his minister and relative, Shujaa and by Ferishta, p 274 as one of the officers of the late Khilji government. Bedáuni, f 149 says that he was one of the slaves of the Khilji Sultans, and was entrusted with absolute power in the kingdom By Behader Shah he was treated with great distinction, probably as the Prime Minister of Malwa

* Ibid

Khan, to perform obersance to Kader Shah, as King of CHAAP I Malwa But this deference was of short duration, and Artifice of only assumed to serve a purpose, for, the day after, Shir Shah, Shin Shah informed the King of Malwa, that he had been graciously pleased to confei on him the government of Laknou, to which he must remove with his family without loss of time. This was language not to be misunderstood, and we may well wonder that, after this resolution had been communicated to him, and sight Kåder Shah should still have found means to effect his of Kåder Shah to escape, which he did, disguised as a slave, and with Guzzát his family retired into Gujrát * Shír Shah, being thus left in the undisturbed possession of the country, appointed Shujaa Khan to the command of Sivás, and in general of the eastern portion of Malwa, giving Háji Khan Sultan charge of Dhár and the western districts of his new conquest, after which, he himself marched to the northward to secure the possession of Rántambói †

But Malwa, although conquered, was far from being Attempt to settled For many years past it had been almost en- hobies at tirely divided among a number of great local chiefs Malva. who were nearly independent The direct power of the kings had, therefore, been extremely limited The first step towards establishing absolute power in the person of Shir Shah, which was called securing the peace of the country, seemed to be to get possession of the persons of the most distinguished of these chieftains, and this Shujaa Khan resolved to effect pursuance of this policy, Moyin Khan of Sivás, one of the most powerful of them, who was at the time in Shujaa's camp, was taken into custody by his orders

† Tabak Akb f 166, Tar Niz f 215, Ferishta IV 270273 and II p 119, Bedáum, f 149 There are some discrepancies of little moment, concerning the powers of these Amírs

^{*} The Nisabnama-e Afghanan, f 96 gives a somewhat different account of these transactions

BOOK VI ______ A. D 1542. On hearing of this outrage, Moyin's son Nasir Khan immediately collected all the force of his principality, and marched as far as Sarangpur to his father's rescue But Shujaa Khan, being joined by the Raja of Guáliár, who had lost his capital, defeated Nasir Khan in battle, and forced him to take refuge in the wild mountains of Gondwána.

Kuder Shah returns, and is defeated. Meanwhile, Káder Shah, having had time to breathe after his expulsion, collected a body of adherents on the boiders of Gujrát, and advanced from Bhanswára to attack Háji Khan Shujaa Khan, informed of his motions and that a battle was likely to take place in two days, threw himself into his palankeen, and proceeding with all possible speed for forty-eight hours, joined Háji Khan in the evening, where he lay in sight of the enemy He was still in time to make arrangements for anticipating the enemy by a night attack, which fully succeeded, Káder's army being dispersed, and his camp taken Shír Shah, admiring the talents and activity of his general, soon after recalled Háji Khan, and nominated Shujaa Khan sole Governor of Malwa From this period we hear no more of Káder Shah †

Rántambór surrendered to Shír Shah

He returns to Agra. A H 950 A n. 1543 Multan occupied in his name Shir Shah, on leaving Malwa, marched for Rantambor, which was still held by the adherents of Sultan Mahmud Khilji. But that strong place being soon yielded up by capitulation, he once more returned to Agra, where he was allowed to spend nearly a year in arranging the civil and military administration of his dominions, now so extensive in Hindustan, in Malwa, in Bengal and the Penjab. In this last province, Haibat Khan had

* Ut supra.

† Ferishta as above Ferishta II
119 says that Rántambór was still held for Prince Muhammed Lodi, probably meaning Vahmúd Shah
Lodi, the son of Sultan Sekander Lodi But that prince seems to have died some time before. The Tabakát and Taríkh-e Nizámi, as well as the Nisabnáma, f 96, affirm that it was held by the servants of Sultan Mahmud Khilji, which is most probable. The governor, according to Bedauni, f 149, was Khan Khanan Sirwáni

BOOK VI
A D 1543
He returns to Malwa

As soon as affairs admitted of his absence from the capital, he resolved to turn his arms once more against Though the greater part of that kingdom had submitted to him, Puran-Mal, the son of Silhadi Purebi the late powerful Rájpút chieftain, still maintained himself in Ráisen, Chandáir and the surrounding districts, in great force To give his operations the appearance of a Holy War, and to excite the enthusiasm of his Muhammedan soldiers, Shir Shah gave out, that his chief reason for the war was to punish Puran-Mal, a Ilindu infidel, who, among the two thousand women shut up in his harem, had daied to detain many Moslem females as concubines The fort of Raisen was blockaded, and attacked for a long time without success, the Rapputs making a vigorous resistance length, when both parties were worn out, terms were proposed by the mediation of Prince Adel Khan and of Kuth Khan Náib, and a capitulation was entered into, by which Puran-Mal agreed to surrender the fort; while Shir Shah, on his part, undertook to allow the Rájpút prince to retreat uninjured, with his whole family, women and followers, and all their effects and property On the faith of this treaty, solemnly ratified, Puran-Mal marched out, and encamped, attended by about four thousand Rapput horse This escape of their heathen enemy filled with indignation Shir Shah's divines and spiritual advisers, particularly Mír Syed Rafía-ed-dín, all of whom, not ignorant of their master's wishes, signed and presented to him a regular fetwa, or opinion, declaring that such an agreement made with infidels was contrary to religion, and was not binding, and that the king's duty was to visit his unbelieving foe with indiscriminate slaughter Shir Shah, basely acting on their base decree, after taking possession of the fort, surrounded the Raja's camp with all his army, and poured in showers of arrows upon them Thus treacherously assailed, the Rájpút and his followers de-

Capitulation of Raisen

Treachery of Shir Shah,

termined to sell their lives dearly. They, therefore, CHAP I according to the custom of their race, first put to death all then women and children After this, to disappoint the avance of then relentless enemies, they heaped up then rich stuffs, jewels and all the valuable property which they possessed, and setting fire to their tents and pavilions, consumed the whole in the fluies They then proceeded in a body to meet death, and, each tying himself to his neighbour by his skirt or gudle, they charged the army of the King with desperate valour, cut to pieces a number of their enemies, till, surrounded and issailed by overwhelming numbers, they fell, fight- and masing to the list man In this mussacre, about ten garrison. thousand of every age and sex are said to have fullen *

After this unworthy success, Shi Shah returned An 951 once more to Agra, where he remained several months, on Marwar being detained, put of the time, by a dangerous illness Here his ambition led him to meditate new conquests on the side of the Ráppút country The death of Rána Sanga and the minorities that followed had introduced much discord and disorder into the government of Chartúr or Mewár, and the reperted attacks made on then territory by the King of Gunat and the Emperor of Delhi, with the defeats sustained by the Rána in the wars with these princes, had reduced the extent of the dominions, no less than the political influence of that prince, the ancient head of the Rapputs Maldeo, who was at this time the chief of the rival principality of Nagór and Júdpúr (or Márwái), in this decline of the acknowledged head of their race, strained every nerve to raise himself to the high eminence, from which the

dren, one of them the daughter of Maldeo, whom Shir Shah consigned to be brought up as a dancing girl the other he gave up to a party of jugglers, or bázigars This, if true, would be an additional stain on his character

^{*} Tar Niz ff 215, 210, Tabakat-e Akberi , Akbernáma, ff 51, 55 , Nisabnama-e Afhh ff 96, 97 , Kholaset ul Towarikh, f 277, 1 ar Bedaum, f 149 The Nisabnama says that two only were found alive after this massacre, both female chil-

Rána seemed to be falling a station which he deemed to be due to him, at least from his power. Maldeo appears to have possessed great talents, as well as the bravery common to all his family. According to the historian of the Rájpúts, the prince of Márwái, in the course of ten years, by reducing many local hereditary chieftains under his sway, had extended his territories on every side, so that they comprehended all the present country of Márwái, including Merta, Nagór and Filúdi, much of Bikanír and Bikampúr, Ajmír with several other smaller districts, and a large portion of Ambér or Jeipúr, which brought him close on the limits of Agra and Delhi. Several of the petty princes in that quarter, who had formerly acknowledged the Lodi Kings of Delhi, had now submitted to him. The immediate cause or pretext of the quarrel between Maldeo and cause or pretext of the quariel between Maldeo and Shir Shah is not explained but in the state of confusion to which the country to the west of the Jamna was reduced, by the destruction of the House of Lodi, the expulsion of the House of Taimur, and the breaking up of the overruling influence of that of Rána Sánga, there could hardly fail to be disputes between two princes of equal ambition, for the possession of the numerous towns and districts, which had been recently conquered by these powerful dynastics, but which now conquered by these powerful dynasties, but which, now deprived of their support, were looking round for some powerful protector Whatever the cause, Shir Shah resolved to invade Maldeo's territories of Ajmír and Nagói, of which the Raja had but recently gained possession

Invades it with a large army

Well aware of the difficulty of the enterprise, he took the field with an army of no less than eighty thousand men *, and advanced towards Márwár, with a caution unusual in Indian wars Wherever the army was to pass the night, he caused a trench and rampart to be

The Kholáset gives him 50,000 horse

the sentiments of many of his chiefs, believed the correspondence to be genuine, and put off the battle, which was to have been fought that very day. The more that his gallant Rájpúts, who confidently anticipated a victory, urged him to an instant attack, the more was he convinced of their treachery, and he soon after ordered a retreat. The cause of this movement came to the knowledge of his chieftains, who felt their high sense of national honour wounded by the imputation with which they were unjustly charged, at the same time that their pride and high-raised expectations were disappointed by a retreat in the face of an enemy, whom they regarded as already in their power. In vain did they with oaths assert their innocence. One of them, Kumbha, the head of a Rájpút principality, declared to Maldeo, that he was resolved to wipe off the aspersion thrown on the Rájpút name by attacking the enemy, though he should be followed only by his own tribesmen

Desperate attack on Shir Shah s camp

his own tribesmen

Accordingly, as Maldeo with the army commenced his retreat, during the night, Kumbha, with eight or ten thousand men chiefly of his immediate followers, turned back, and marched to surprise the Afgháns. As their route lay over rough and broken ground, they were divided, and the greater number lost their way, so that only about four thousand at daybreak reached the hostile camp. Still, however, with the reckless intrepidity of their tribe, they rushed in with a furious onset, pushing for Shír Shah's tents. Dismounting, and using only their daggers and short swords, they bore down all opposition, and scattered dismay and death over the camp. Numbers of the Afgháns soon lay dead on the ground, and the bold daring and desperate valour of a handful of Rájpúts seemed about to be rewarded by the rout and total discomfiture of their foes, when Jilál Khan Jilwáni, an Afghán general, came up with a fresh body of troops in compact order.

Under cover of this timely succour, Shir Shah rallied CHAP I his men, and the wearied Rapputs were surrounded, and assailed on every side by showers of arrows, which rapidly took effect. The Rapput ranks were soon thinned Kumbha, with his most devoted followers, who had entered the fight determined not to retreat, fell, bravely fighting, to the number of two thousand Shin Shah, after the battle was over, seeing the havock that had been made in his aimy, and how nearly the fate of the day had been balanced, is said to have exclaimed, "How nearly had I thrown away the empire of Dellu in seeking for a handful of bajii" Bajii, a Retrest of poor and coarse grain, is the chief produce of the sandy and sterile plains of Márwár Maldeo, meanwhile, continued his retreat into the hill-country of Júdpúr, but soon discovered, with grief and self-reproach, the artifice to which he had sacrificed the success of his campaign, and the glory of his arms, as well as the injustice he had done to his gallant countrymen * expedition to venture to follow up his success against turns off towards Maldeo and his Rájpúts of Márwái, but, turning south, Chiltur marched into Mewar, for the professed purpose of 1educing Cheitúr The Rána, whose power had been much reduced since the leigh of Rána Sánga, desilous to avert his arms, sent ambassadors, offering to acknowledge him as his superior lord Shir Shah accepted this submission, and continued his march through the heart of the country of Dhandina, now Jeipur, towards

Rántambór, the jágír of his eldest son Adel Khan, who asked leave of absence from the Derbar, for a short time, to enable him to put the castle in order, and to

Shir Shah had already suffered too much in this shir Shah

the brave Rájput chief is variously given, Kumbha, Kanba, Gobna, Goya, and Gooind I have followed Colonel Cod and Ferishta. Bedaum calls him the Vakil and Vazir of Maldeo

^{*} See Tab Akb ff 186, 187, Tar Nizami, f 216, Tar Bedauni, ff 149,150, Kholaset ul Towáríkh, ff 277, 278, Ferishta II pp 121, 122, Kháfi Khan, Tod's Rajasthan, vol. 11 pp 24-27 The name of

A n 1545 and thence to Kalinjer provision it, having done which, he promised to rejoin his father "

The King now turned his arms against the Rija of Kálinjer, a fort which was considered as the key of Bandélkand, and a most important position as regarded both Behár and Malwa. It "resembles in its situation," we are told, "and exceeds, in its size and natural strength, the fortess of Guáliai, being built on a high rock of great extent, which forms one of the hills in the range of mountains extending from Rhotas, or Sahsarám, to the confines of Ajmír "† The Raja, admonished by the fate of Puran-Mal, refused to listen to any terms of accommodation

Capture of that fort, and death of Shir Shah Batteries were raised against the fort, mines run and approaches made, but the siege was long. The works, however, were, at length, brought close to the place, a breach was effected, and an assault ready to be made, under a heavy cannonade, when, as Shir Shah was actively directing the operations, a rocket ‡, discharged probably for the purpose of assisting to clear the breach, rebounded from the wall, and bursting, fell among, and blew up, the whole magazine or tumbril of these fireworks, so that the King, and several noblemen and divines who were along with him ||, were dreadfully burnt by the explosion. In spite of the excuenting

* The Tar Nizami does not mention the approach to Cheitur, but leads him at once to Rantambor, f 216 The Nisábnáma leads him straight to Kalinjer, Adel Khan taking leave for Rantambor by the way The Akbernáma makes the chiefs of Cheitur "and Rántambor send him the keys of their forts Ferishta II p 123 makes Cheitur surrender by capitulation

† Hamilton's Gazetteer, in the Article "Callinger"

‡ Briggs's Ferishta, vol 11, p 123 has, "a shell thrown against the fort burst in the battery, and communicating to a powder magazine," &c produced this catastrophe. It may be doubted if bomb shells were then in use. The Tabakat, which has been followed by other authorities, has hugga-hai pur dârue tefeng, pipes full of gunpowder, a description which would apply, either to rockets or grenades.

Among these were the celebrated Sheikh Khalil, Shir Shah's spiritual guide, Mulla Nizam Danishmend, and Deria Khan Sirwani

the discipline and concerns of his army, one to his religious observances, and the remainder to rest and recreation. In his military character there was a rare union of caution and enterprise He was remarkable for the care with which he never failed to defend his camp by trenches, and he paid more attention to his commissariat and his artillery, than any prince of his time. He received into his service the numerous adventurers who swarmed over India, marked or branded their horses to prevent frauds, and allowed them pay. He often attended in person, when the troops were to be paid, to receive any complaints, and to secure them against any undue deductions. His temper appears to have been generous he was a lover of justice, and intimately acquainted with the revenue and agricultural system of India, a knowledge without which no ruler in that country, whatever his abilities may be, can hope to do justice to his subjects. He was anxious to restore, and to open the communication between the different parts of his dominions, which had been grievously interrupted by the wars and revolutions of twenty preceding years. For this purpose, and in order to facilitate the safe and early transmission of intelligence, he built a line of seráis. or hostelries, at short, regular distances, on the whole road from the farther extremity of Bengal to the Indus, through the entire length of his empire, and a similar line from Agra to Mándu, the high road by which the foreign trade from Gujrát to the interior of Hindustán passed in those days. These seráis were open to strangers of every rank and religion, and were entrusted to servants, who, at the public expense, furnished travellers with water and victuals, as they arrived, at one door of the serái supplying victuals dressed or undeced. venturers who swarmed over India, marked or branded victuals, as they arrived, at one door of the serái supplying victuals, dressed or undressed, to Musulmans, at another undressed victuals to Hindus Every Serái

^{*} Abulfazl says that he erected the Hákims of Bengal." Akbernáma, these Serais, "after the fashion of f 55

had a doasp-bam, or post-house, called by the Hindus CHAP L Dákchóki, so that news even from the Niláb was conveyed in a few days to the court, wherever it might be, and this system of post houses he extended in different directions over the principal roads in his dominions, enlaiging the number of horses, so as to answer not only the purpose of conveying intelligence to the government, but also the demands of private trade and correspondence The system was not a new one, but had fallen into disuse, and was by him much improved and extended One other object which he had in forming the great line of posts was to prevent the influx of Chaghatáis into his kingdom, and to afford the earliest notice of any invasion or movement from Kábul, whence he dreaded the return of the exiled family On each side of the grand roads were planted rows of mango and other fruit trees, affording both shelter and refreshment to the tired and thusty passenger and wells, supported by solid masoniy, were dug at short distances At all the chief halting-places, he built mosques, and provided for them an adequate establishment of Imams, Moazzins and servants He appears also to have made provision for the care of the indigent sick The police, which he established, was strict and vigi-So safe were the highways, we are told, that the most helpless person might carry a bason of gold, and sleep in the open country, without need of a watchman

He seems to have had more of the spirit of a legislator and of a guardian of his people, than any prince

* A great part of this establishment still remained in Bedaunis time, after the lapse of fifty-two years, f 148 and Kháfi Khan, f 59 at a still later period, remarks, "It is said that the class of persons, who are now to be found in the various serais of Hindustán, generally known by the name of Bhatiarahs, and whose employment it is to kindle fires and perform other menial offices for travellers, are the descendants of the people originally placed there by Shir Shah " Perhaps, however, this establishment may be found to date from a still earlier period

A D 1545

BOOK VI before Akber By his enemies, he is accused of perfidy, and facts seem to justify the charge. But it is to be remembered that his history has been transmitted to us by his enemies chiefly and the charge, unfortunately, is not confined to him individually, but extends to nearly all the princes who were his contemporaries When we consider the confusion, approaching to anarchy, which prevailed all over Hindustán at the moment of his accession to the throne, and the incessant wars that he carried on during his short reign, we must feel surprise that, with all his habitual activity, he was able to effect so much as he did, and that, in so limited a time, he so entirely acquired and so long retained, the affection of his subjects He himself, when contemplating the disorder that prevailed at his accession, the plans of reform which he meditated, and his own advanced period of life, was heard to exclaim, "Alas, that I should have attained power, only at the close of the day" Ilis memory was long charished by his subjects with fond admiration and regret *

Some incidents related of him may serve to illustrate his character He was eminently distinguished for the impaitiality with which he administered justice, without respect of persons One day, his eldest son Adel Khan, riding on an elephant through a street of Agra, in passing a house the walls round which were in disrepair, observed the wife of the inhabitant, a shop-

* Tab Akb f 178, Tar Niz f 217, Tar Bed f 148, Briggs's Ferishta, vol n p 125, Dows Ferishta, vol n p 265, Akbernama, f 54, 55, Kholáset ul Towaríkh, ff 278, 279, Kháfi Khan, ff 57

Shir Shah seems, in several instances, to have destroyed older towns, and rebuilt them elsewhere In the first year of his reign, he destroyed old Kanauj, and built, says Bedauni, f 147, "what is now called Shir-ghar on the banks of the Ganges" In like manner, he destroyed Shemsabad, and restored it in another place At Delhi, he destroyed the old fort, and began a new one on a larger scale, which he left unfinished Tabak Akberi He 18 also said to have meditated the destruction of Lahur, that it might not serve as a place d'armes to the Chaghatái princes, in any future attack on India

CHAP 1.

keeper, undressed and bathing herself Struck with her beauty, he fixed his eyes upon her, threw her a bir a-pan, and passed on The woman, who considered that, by this freedom, he treated her as a wanton, feeling her honour wounded, resolved not to survive the affiont Her husband, when informed of the incident, had great difficulty in preventing her intention He went straight to the levée of Shir Shah, and, among other surtors, preferred his complaint. The King, having investigated the circumstances, pronounced judgment ordering the liw of retaliation to be enforced, and that the shopkeeper, mounted on an elephant, should in his turn throw a bira pán to the prince's wife, when undiessed and preparing for the both Great influence was exerted to mollify the King, but in vain Such, he said, was the law of their religion, and, in administering justice, he knew no difference between prince and peasant that it should not be said that a man, because his son, could injure a subject whom he was bound to protect The complanant, in delight, withdrew his complaint, saying that now that he had gained his right, his character was restored and he was satisfied, and, at his entreaty, the matter was ended *

At the battle on the Chonsa, Háji Begum, Humáyun's wife, was taken prisoner—Shíi Shah treated her with every mark of countesy and respect, and on Humáyun's retuin from Peisia to Kábul, she was sent back to hei husband in the most honourable manner

The day that he made his entrance into Delhi, a woman, who sold vegetables, called out to her neighbour, as he passed "Delhi, truly, has got a master, but he is an old one" She was overheard by the King, who, on this, made his horse caper and show off and

A D 1545

BOOK VI before Akber By his encinies, he is accused of perfidy, and facts seem to justify the charge But it is to be remembered that his history has been transmitted to us by his enemies chiefly and the charge, unfortunately, is not confined to him individually, but extends to nearly all the princes who were his contemporaries When we consider the confusion, approaching to anarchy, which prevailed all over Hindustán at the moment of his accession to the throne, and the incessant wars that he carried on during his short reign, we must feel surprise that, with all his habitual activity, he was able to effect so much as he did, and that, in so limited a time, he so entirely acquired and so long retained, the affection of his subjects He himself, when contemplating the disorder that prevailed at his accession, the plans of reform which he meditated, and his own advanced period of life, was heard to exclaim, "Alas, that I should have attained power, only at the close of the day" His memory was long charished by his subjects with fond admiration and regret *

Some incidents related of him may serve to illustrate his character He was eminently distinguished for the impartiality with which he administered justice, without respect of persons One day, his eldest son Adel Khan, riding on an elephant through a street of Agra, in passing a house the walls round which were in disrepair, observed the wife of the inhabitant, a shop-

* Tab Akb f 178, Tar Nız f 217, Far Bed f 148, Briggs's Ferishta, vol ii. p 125, Dow's Ferishta, vol ii p 265, Akbernama, f 54, 55, Kholaset ul Towaríkh, ff 278, 279, Kháfi Khan, ff 57 --59

Shir Shah seems, in several instances, to have destroyed older towns, and rebuilt them elsewhere In the first year of his reign, he destroyed old Kanauj, and built, says Bedauni, f 147, "what is now called Shir-ghar on the banks of the Ganges" In like manner, he destroyed Shemsábád, and restored it in another place At Delhi, he destroyed the old fort, and began a new one on a larger scale, which he left unfinished Tabak Akberi He 18 also said to have meditated the destruction of Láhur, that it might not serve as a place durmes to the Chaghatái princes, in any future attack on India keeper, undressed and bathing herself Struck with CHAP L her beauty, he fixed his eyes upon her, threw her a bír a-pán, and passed on The woman, who considered that, by this freedom, he treated her as a wanton, feeling her honour wounded, resolved not to survive the affiont Her husband, when informed of the incident, had great difficulty in preventing her intention He went straight to the levée of Shír Shah, and, among other surtors, preferred his complaint. The King, having investigated the circumstances, pronounced judgment ordering the law of retaliation to be enforced, and that the shopkeeper, mounted on an elephant, should in his tuin throw a bir a pán to the prince's wife, when undiessed and preparing for the bath Great influence was exerted to mollify the King, but in vain Such, he said, was the law of their religion, and, in administering justice, he knew no difference between prince and peasant that it should not be said that a man, because his son, could injure a subject whom he was bound to protect The complanant, in delight, withdrew his complaint, saying that now that he had gained his right, his character was restored and he was satisfied, and, at his entreaty, the matter was ended *

At the battle on the Chonsa, Hán Begum, Humáyun's wife, was taken prisoner Shin Shah treated her with every mark of courtesy and respect, and on Humáyun's return from Persia to Kábul, she was sent back to her husband in the most honourable manner

The day that he made his entrance into Delhi, a woman, who sold vegetables, called out to her neighbour, as he passed "Delhi, truly, has got a master, but he is an old one" She was overheard by the King, who, on this, made his horse caper and show off and

POOK VI.

Shir Shah was diverted when he heard the old woman add, "Well, old though he be, he is an active one"

Shir Shah was buried in his family estate at Sahsarám, in a very magnificent mausoleum, erected in his lifetime, and which still exists. It stands in the centre of a small lake about a mile in circumference, bounded by masonry, with a descent by a flight of steps to the water.

Scanty records of his civil administration It is impossible to conclude the history of such a prince, without regretting that so few materials remain for affording a view of the internal administration of his dominions. Many of his revenue regulations were retained or renewed by Akber, and seem to have made a part of Toder-Mal's improved system of finance. But Shír Shah was soon succeeded in the throne by a hostile family, whose partizans were not disposed to see any merit in the virtues of an enemy †

* Ibid f 279

† The chief authorities for this reign are the Tabakát-e Akberi, the Tar Bedáuni, the Khol ul Towáríkh, Ferishta, the Akbernáma and

Kháfi Khan Ferishta does justice to the Afgháns Abulfazl views all their proceedings with a prejudiced eve

CHAPTER II

SULTAN ISLÁM, OR SELIM SHAH SUR

SHIR SHAH'S SECOND SON PLACED ON THE THRONE - WEAKNESS AND PROFLICACY OF HIS ELDER BROTHER - WEITING OF THE BROTHERS, WHO PPOCEED TOCKTHER TO THE CAPITAL - ISLAM'S SCHENE FOR SEIZING HIS BROTHER FAILS - FORMAL SUBMISSION OF ADEL KHAN, WHO RETIRES TO BIANA - FUPTHER ATTEMPT TO SEIZE HIM - HE FLIFS TO KHOWAS KHAN IN MEW IT -THEN ARE JOINED BY SOVE OF THE CHIEF AMIRS, AND MARCH ON AGRA -ALARM OF ISLAM AT THEIR APPROACH - HE MOVES OUT TO MEET THEM - DEFEAT, FLIGHT AND DISAPPEARANCE OF ADEL KHAN -ISLAM SECURES HIS FATHER'S TREASURES IN CHUNAR -- PROCURES THE DEATHS OF THE HOSTILE CHIEFS - EXTENT OF HIS DOMINIONS - HIS JEALOUSY OF THE GO-VERNORS OF MALWA AND GUJR (T - THREATENED REVOLT IN THE PENJ (B. - NEW WORKS AT AGRA AND DELHI. - THE ARMIES OF HIM-DUSTÁN AND THE PENJÁB MEET AT AMBÁLA - DEFEAT OF THE RE-BELS - ISLÁM OCCUPICS THE PENJÁB - AND REPAIRS TO GUÁLIÁR. FATE OF KHOWAS KHAN -- POWER OF THE AFGHAN NOBLES UNDER THE SUR DYNASTY -- SHUJAA KHAN OF MALWA -- ATTEMPT ON HIS LIFE BY AN AFGHAN —HIS QUARREL WITH ISLAM—WHO INVADES MALWA -FLIGHT AND PESTORATION OF SHUJAA KHAY -TEMPORARY SUCCESS, AND FINAL DEFEAT OF AZUN HUMAYUN IN THE PENJÁB. -DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT OF ISLAM AFTER THE VICTORY -HE AD-VANCES TO RHOTAS --- CONTESTS WITH THE GAKERS --- DISCONTENTS IN HIS CAMP - HE MAKES PEACE WITH THE GAKERS, ON THEIR EX-PELLING THE REBELS - WHO RETREAT TOWARDS KASHMIR - AND ARE EXTERMINATED IN THE DEFILES - ISLAM BUILDS MANKOT -HIS NARROW ESCAPE FROM ASSASSINATION - KAMRAN VISITS HIS CAMP - ADVANCE AND RETREAT OF HUMÁYUN - MEDITATED DE-STRUCTION OF LAHUR, AND REMOVAL OF THE CAPITAL TO MANKOT -MUTUAL SUSPICIONS OF ISLAM AND HIS NOBLES - DEATH OF ISLAM SHAH —HIS CHARACTER AND POLICY — ADVENISTRATION OF JUSTICE ACCOUNT OF SHEIKH ALAI, AND THE MEHDEVIS

On the occurrence of the melancholy event which arrested Shir Shah in the midst of his successful A.B 1545 career, the Afghan chiefs, who were in the camp, as-Shir Shah's second son sembled and consulted together None of the late placed on

BOOK VI

A D 1545

King's sons was on the spot Adel Khan, the eldest, was still at Rántambór Jilál Khan, his next brother, who was then not far off, at Rewah*, a town in the Pergana of Kalinjer, got immediate notice of his father's death; and being favoured by a strong party of the principal Amírs, arrived in the camp in three days. There, chiefly through the influence of Isa Khan Hijáb, he was proclaimed King, and ascended the throne, in the fort of Kalinjer, under the name of Sultan Islám Shah, though by the natives of India he was generally called Selím Shah, and, by the northern or Chaghatái soldiers, Selím Khan

A и 952 Rebl I 15 May 27

Weakness and profligacy of his elder brother The ostensible reason assigned by the Afghán Amírs for thus passing over the heir-apparent was the distance from the aimy at which he happened to be at that crisis, and the necessity, in order to pievent rebellion of any ambitious pretensions to the succession, that the vacant throne should be filled without delay It would appear, however, that Adel Khan, who was of a depraved character, was very unpopular among at least one portion of the Afgháns, and that he was in reality set aside, even more on account of the weakness of his character than for his hopeless depravity and profligacy †

Immediately on his accession, Islám wrote to his brother, Adel Khan, telling him that he had been constrained, against his will, in order to prevent any commotions and from other public considerations, to assume for a time the title of sovereign, but that he was about to repair to the capital, where he hoped to meet him, and to have an opportunity of manifesting all the authors make the enthronement three, five, and eight days after the late King's death Bedáuni says he was called from Tahia

† Tar Niz f 217, Tab Akb f 178, Akbernáma, f 91, Nisábnáma, f 165, Ferishta, vol n p 126

^{*} The village of Rewah, near Panna Panna is south of Kalinjer, Rewa south-east in Bogilkand The Tar Niz f 217 has Ayun, the Tab Alb Riun a dependancy of Bhal, the Nisabnama, f 165 Diún a dependancy of Panna Different

CHAP II

attachment and obedience due to him as his elder brother He then set out for Agra On reaching Kora in the Doub, he was met by Khowás Khan, the commanderm-chief, a nobleman of great influence, who arrived from his jagu of Sirhend, and the ceremony of enthronement was once more gone through, submissions made, and offerings presented, with much pomp and festivity, after which, Islam again wrote to his brother, calling upon him, in conciliating and humble terms, to hasten to meet him

Adel Khan, justly jealous of Islám or Selím's intentions, wrote to Kuth Khin Naib, Khowis Khan, Isa Khan Niázi and Jilal Khan Jilwani, who were regarded as the principal Afghán nobles, to ascertain whether, if he complied with his brother's invitation, he could depend on their protection. He, at the same time, wrote to inform his brother that, if these four noblemen came to conduct him and guaranteed his safety, he was ready to accompany them to Agia

To this proposal Sclim agreed, and the four great Amírs accordingly proceeded to wait upon Adel Khan reassured him as to his personal security, promised that he should be put in possession of whitever jágír in Hindustán he might choose, and, after the first interview with the King, should be at liberty to repair to it, freely and without impediment. On the faith of these assurances Adel Khan set out, and Sclim, who had Meeting of proceeded as far as Sikir on a hunting party, hearing who proof his approach, went and received him in a field near cred together to the Shikarpur, where iich cloths were spread on the ground, capital on which the two princes took then seat with much state The two brothers, at this meeting, showed every sign of mutual affection, Selim repeating his excuses for the part which necessity had compelled him to act After sitting and conversing together for some time in а в 1545 Islám's scheme for seizing his brother fails

BOOK VI. the most friendly manner, they rose and set out for Agra On reaching the citadel, although Selím had given strict orders to the guard that only two or three attendants should be allowed to enter along with his brother, yet the Amírs by whom Adel Khan was accompanied, being by no means satisfied what the King's intentions were, in spite of all opposition, pushed forward after him with their followers and adherents in considerable numbers, into the hall of public audience, and thus defeated the plan that Selím had formed of seizing his brother's person

The King, not disconcerted by this failure, heaped every mark of honour and distinction upon his brother, overwhelmed him with flattery, and renewed his assurances of respect and obedience He repeated his former assertions that he had assumed power only to keep his turbulent countrymen in order, and to retain the sovereignty in their father's family, but added, that the happy moment was at length arrived when he could follow the dictates of his heart and duty, and resign both the command of the army and the possession of the throne to the legitimate heir So saying, he approached Adel Khan and, taking hold of his hands, placed him on the throne Adel Khan was not deceived by the apparent warmth of his brother's professions, but, being more of a boon companion and a lover of case than a man of action, had not the courage nor the presence of mind to take advantage of them He saw their insincerity, and he believed himself in danger Formal sub-mission of Adel Khan, turn, seated Selim Shah upon it, at the same time saluting him as his sovereign lord, and offering the customary congratulations His example was instantly followed by all the nobles of the court, who presented their offerings, and tendered their homage, as is usual at the commencement of a new reign Selim Shah, if defeated in his original purpose, thus at least effected a great object, by seducing his brother to make a solemn and public CHAP IL renunciation of his rights Adel Khan fixed upon Biána as his jágír, and when the first interview was over, was allowed, according to agreement and by the intervention of the four great Amírs, to retire to that who retires place, attended by Isa Khan Niúzi and Khowás Khan * to Blana.

But, hardly had two months elapsed, during which Further attime Selim Shah was everywhere acknowledged as tempt to King, when he despatched Gházi Mahalit, one of the chief officers of his household, to Biana with a pair of golden fetters, and with orders to seize Adel Khan and bring him as a prisoner to court Adel Khan, informed He fles to khowas of his approach and intention, hastened from Biana to khan in Mewat, where Khowas Khan then was, and complained to him bitterly of his brother's breach of faith hardy veteran, attached to the family of Shin Shah, in which he had risen to dignity from the rank of a slave, and huit by the insult offered to himself by this open infraction of a solemn agreement to which he was a party, gave orders for seizing Gházi Mahali, and placed on his feet the fetters which he had brought for Adel Khan † This was an insult that could have been offered to royalty, only by one who was prepared to go all lengths Khowás Khan followed it up by writing they are to the principal Amírs who were with Selím Shah, some of the several of whom were already much offended with that Chief prince's conduct, and privately brought them over to his plans Being joined by Isa Khan Niazi, he set out along with him and the prince for Agra, at the head of and murch a considerable army. On the road he received letters from Kuth Khan and Jılál Khan Jılwánı, who, like them, had guaranteed the safety of Adel Khan, de-

^{*} Ut suprû, Add Tar Bedáuni, f 153, and Kháfi Khan

[†] The Tar Niz, the Nisabnama and other authorities call him Ghazi Khan, the Tar Niz adds, az Moharramun va mokarrabán, e o (Sul-tán) Ferishta calls him "an cunuch "

[‡] Ferishta says that Khowas sent back Ghuzi to the court with his feet in the golden fetters

BOOK VI A p 1545 claring their willingness to support the faith which they had pledged to Adel, and to join him, but they required, in compliance with a point of Afghán honour, an instance of which we have already met with, that the aimy should reach Agra before sunrise, when their troops, unseen by the eye of day, would abandon the King, and move over into the ranks of his rival

The rebels, proceeding on their march, reached Sikri, twelve kos from Agra, where Khowás Khan, who was calchierted for his rivery waited upon Sheigh Salim

The rebels, proceeding on their march, reached Síkri, twelve kos from Agra, where Khowás Khan, who was celebrated for his piety, waited upon Sheikh Selím Chishti, a holy man, who then resided at that place, and as it happened to be the eve of a great Muhammedan religious festival*, unwisely suffered himself to be so long delayed by attending the prayers and service employed on that occasion, that he did not reach the capital till breakfast time† next day, when the sun was high in the firmament

Alarm of Islam at their approach Selim, when informed of his brother's approach, was in the utinost consternation, and addressing Kutb Khan and some other nobles, whom he knew or suspected to be engaged in this revolt, told them, that, even allowing that he had acted rashly in regard to Adel Khan, he thought he had a right to expect that Khowás Khan and Isa Khan would have written to him to remonstrate, before proceeding to such extremities. The Amírs, seeing his alarm, told him that even now it was not too late to avert the evil, and Kutb Khan offered his services to effect a reconciliation. Upon this, Selím Shah empowered Kutb Khan and the other Amírs who were in Adel Khan's interest, instantly to proceed to the camp to meet and negociate with that prince. His motive for this measure, apparently so pregnant with danger, was to remove from his person men with whom he did not think himself safe, intending, as soon as they were gone, to set out for Chunár, where his father's treasures were char if kept,—to take possession of them,—to raise an aimy, and then return to combat his brother whom, at the present moment, he was unable to meet in the field From following this plan he was diverted by the remonstrances of another Isa Khan, the Mír-Hápb, or Chief Chamberlain, who represented to him, that it was a most dangerous policy in a prince to resign his capital, and abandon his friends and the force of which he was in possession, that he might set out, with the purpose of throwing himself on the loyalty of others who were at a distance that much depended on first impressions, that he had with him a firm and haidy band of two or three thousand chosen and attached followers, who had been in his service before he mounted the throne, besides many other troops*, that he should boldly march out with this force, and might rest secure that none who bore the name of Afghan, whatever might be his inward wishes, would date to desert him in the plain and in the light of day

^{*} The festival was the Sheb-e † Chásht Berut

Selim, abandoning his first intentions, was prevailed upon to follow this advice, iccalled the Khans who had just left him, told them, that he was resolved not to trust such faithful friends in the hands of the enemy, and ordered the troops to march out, and form in the He moves plain of Agra The Afghan chiefs who had engaged to out to meet them revolt to Adel Khan, when they saw Selim Shah lead them openly into the field, gave up their intention of deserting, and took their station in the line, so that Adel Khan's army, as it advanced, was opposed by the whole force in the capital A battle ensued in sight of Agra, in which, in spite of the excitions of Khowás Khan, who was disappointed and disconcerted at finding the two great Khans, on whom he had reckoned as auxiliaries, ranged against him as enemies, the victory declared for Selim Adel Khan fled from the field,

A n 1545
Defeat, flight, and disappearance of Adel Khan

BOOK A1

and escaped down the country to Tahía *, where he disappeared, and seems never to have been heard of more Khowás Khan and Isa Khan Niázi retreated to Mewát, where they for some time maintained themselves, and even defeated, at Firúzpúr in that province, an army sent against them by the King But, the royal aimy having been reinforced, the Khans were compelled to quit Mewát, and sought refuge with the native Rajas in the mountains of Kemáun. Selím sent Kutb Khan with a detachment in pursuit of them He took post for some time on the skirt of the Kemáun hills, and plundered the hill-country, but did nothing effectual †

Islám secures his father s treasures in Chunar,

Selim Shah, thus relieved from his danger, marched down to Chunár that he might secure the treasures of his father Having by degrees clearly ascertained the truth and extent of the secret correspondence which had been carried on between the nobles in his own service and Khowás Khan before the battle, he determined on revenge Jilál Khan Jilwáni i was a chief of great power, and one of the four who had become security for Adel Khan's safety He had entered into the conspiracy, but Selim, though aware of the fact, feared to attack him by open force What he dared not attempt openly, he accomplished by strategem The camp having reached the town of Kóras, the King invited Jilál to play a match at chougán, lured him from his quarters, and then seized both him and his brother Khodáidád To avoid the odum of himself putting to death two Amírs of such distinction he gave them over into the custody of an Afghán, with whom and procures the death of the hostile chiefs

* Ferishta has Patna, the Tar Abk f 180, and Tar Bed f 154 have Tahia, probably rightly The Nisabnama has Panna, which ac cords as to situation with Tahia The difference is chiefly from the discritical points

[†] Tar Nizami, f 219 and other authorities as above

[‡] Or Jiláw

[§] Some say, on his return from Chunar, the Nisabnama, on going thither

they had a blood-feud, by whom, under pretence of legal CHAP IL retaliation, they were slain The treasures which the King 1emoved from Chunár were conveyed to Guáliár, which, probably as being nearer the capital, he resolved to make his stronghold He himself returned to Agia

Selim Shah now sought out, and pursued with unrelenting severity, all who had taken part with his brother, or who were suspected of being in his interest, "sweeping them oft," says Bedauni, "like men from a chessboard" Kuth Khan, who had been a principal in all the intrigues, alarined at these proceedings and especially at the death of Julal Khan Julwani, fled from the low country of Kemáun, where he was in command of the army, and retired to the Penjáb Haibat Khan Niázi, the governor of that great province, on whom the late King had bestowed the title of Azím Humáyun, received him courteously, but having been called upon by Selim to deliver him up, and the ascendency of the royal arms being at this period too decided to admit of opposition, Kuth Khan was surrendered to the King, and along with Sháhbáz Khan Niázi, who had married the King's sister, and twelve other Amírs of note, was sent to Guáliár, where most of them perished in prison

All the dominions that had been conquered by Shir Extent of Islam's dominions that possession of his son, and were minions for some time ruled by him in peace. His kingdom was of great extent, reaching from Peshawer to the sea of Bengal, and from the Himaláya mountains to the confines of Gujiát He was however jealous of some of his father's great Amirs, who administered the government in several of the more important provinces, with nearly despotic power Shujaa Khan*, the go-Hisjealousy vernor of Malwa, was one of these Since he had had vernor of vernor of the sole command in that kingdom, he had employed Malwa, hunself with much activity in reducing the numerous jágírdárs who possessed the chief part of the country.

BOOK VI

and had succeeded in establishing his ascendency over the whole of it. His very success, however, had excited the suspicions of his jealous master, who summoned him to court. He obeyed the call, and having satisfied Islam of his fidelity, was allowed to resume his station and of the governor of Multin

Azím Humáyun, the governor of the rich and extensive provinces of the Penjab, fell under similar suspicions, and was in like manner called to the presence Unwilling to place himself in the power of a sovereign, in whose eyes his power and prosperity were crimes, he feigned various excuses, but sent in his place his brother Said Khan, a nobleman of great talent and bravery, who was well received by the King, and treated with every external distinction, and much apparent regard Islam easily saw through the pretences alleged by the ambassador for his brother's conduct, and, by those who knew him best, was supposed to be only waiting for a convenient time to cut him off. One day the King took Said into the interior of the harem, where he pointed to a number of heads that were ranged on the wall, and asked him, as if casually, if he knew any of them Some time before, Islám had given orders for blowing up by gunpowder a chamber in which were lodged many of the most distinguished prisoners in the fort of Guáliai * Then ghastly heads were now ranged around, elevated on the points of spears. Said examined them without betraying any emotion, and mentioned the names of several whom he had known, the first men of the state In then fate, however, he seemed to read his own

Threatened revolt in the Penjub Having airanged his affairs at Agra, Islam now resolved to march by Chuna to Rhotas in Behai, to bring from these strong fortresses a faither portion of the

* We are told that among the persons blown up on this occasion was Kemál Gaker, the son of a Galer chief, who escaped in a way so extraordinary that it was deemed miraculous, and the incident was reported to the King for his instructions. He commanded his life to be spared, and at a future time sent him into the Penjah to accompany the army employed against his countrymen the Gakers. hoarded wealth of his father Said Khan, who foresaw Chap ii that he could not long remain in the royal camp with safety, made his escape while the army was on this 1 oute, and having caused horses to be posted all along the road, reached Lahur This circumstance, joined to the delays of the viceroy of the Penjáb, and the news which at the same time reached Court that Khowás Khan was marching to meet Azim Humáyun, made the King suspect that a rebellion, supported by a confederacy of the leading nobles of the empire, was in agitation He, therefore, halted, measured back his way to Agra, and called upon Shujaa Khan to join him from Malwa with the forces of that province

As Agra and Delhi were now once more become the New Works capital cities of the Afgháns in India, Islám, before and Delhi. leaving Agra, employed his troops in surrounding it with a wall Here having been joined by Shujaa Khan with troops from Malwa, he sent back that nobleman, after conferring with him, and soon after proceeded towards Delhi with all the forces that he could collect There he remained for some time, awaiting the arrival of the more distant forces The interval of leisure thus afforded he employed in surrounding with a strong wall of stone and lime the new town of Humáyun, which that Emperor had enclosed with one of stone and clay Islám caused many new edifices to be built hard by, on the banks of the Jamna, and on them and the space which he had enclosed, bestowed the name of Selimgarh, which now forms, says Kháfi Khan, the southern suburb of Delhi * The name given to it, of Selimgarh, would seem to show, that Islam did not disdain to use the appellation by which he was vulgarly called

Islam now advanced towards the Penjab, while, on The armies the other side, Azim Humayun, Khowas Khan and Isa of Hindurtin and the Khan with their united forces, amounting, it is said, to Penjah meet

^{*} Tar Niz f 219, Tab Akb f 180, Tar Bed f 155, Ferishta, vol. u p 132, Kháfi Khan

BOOK VI.

A P 1546

A 11 953.

more than double the royal army, marched to encounter him. The two armies came in sight of each other near the town of Ambála, south-east of Sirhend. Selím, on coming near the hostile army, ascended a rising ground with some of his Amírs, to reconnoitre the array of the enemy. Having for a while surveyed them, he suddenly turned round, exclaimed that it would ill become his dignity to encamp in sight of rebels, and ordered his troops to be instantly formed in battle order, and to advance to the attack.

Defeat of the rebels It so happened that, the very night before, a mis-understanding had arisen between the two principal leaders of the malcontents, on a subject of fundamental consequence Khowás Khan, who had been brought up and elevated to high rank in the very household of Shir Shah, retained his attachment to his patron's family, and insisted that the royal dignity should be kept in that line, and conferred upon Adel Khan, his eldest son, under whose banner they should fight, and whom they should spare no exertion to find out, and to place on his throne Azím Humáyun on the other hand, with the independent spirit of an Afghán and the ambition of an adventurer, quoting some well-known lines of a Persian poet, insisted that there was no hereditary descent in sovereignty, which followed the longest sword. This ill timed dispute was still unadjusted, when the army of the King appeared in sight. Khowás Khan, in disgust, refused to lend his aid to minister to the pretension of Azím Humáyun, and, with his friend Isa Khan, withdrew his forces from the field Such a movement, at such a time, was decisive of the fate of the battle and of the campaign The victory, however, was not bloodless In spite of the defection of so great a part of the confederate force, the onset of Islám's troops was valuantly opposed by the army of the viceroy of Láhúr, the strength of which consisted in the Niázis of his own tribe Numbers of them were, however,

BOOK VI

A D 1546
Fate of Khowás
Khan.

repaired to Guáliár, where he was fond of residing, and which he in some measure made his capital *

When, at the battle of Ambála, Khowás Khan and Isa Khan separated from Azim Humáyun and the army of the Niázis, the latter retired to the mountains, while the former, attended by five or six thousand men, hastened to attack the city of Láhúr, hoping to make himself master of it during the general confusion But, hearing that he was closely pursued, he crossed the Rávi, and at the village of Miáni was overtaken by Yahía Salwái who had been sent after him Khowás Khan, though at the time suffering from the effects of a recent wound, left his litter, and mounting on horseback, engaged and repelled the enemy, after which he continued his route Escaping by the foot of the Sewalik mountains, he remained among them for some time At length Islám Shah wrote to Tái Khan Keráni, the governor of Sambhal, enjoining him to draw Khowas Khan by any means from his retreat On the invitation of Taj Khan, who owed him his preferment, he left his mountain retreat, and came down to Sambhal But Táj Khan, forgetful of what he owed the illustrious refugee and anxious to secure the royal favour, treacherously put his benefactor to death, and having cut off his head, sent it as an offering to Islám Shah, who was then at Bín in the Penjáb Khowás Khan was one of the most distinguished men of his time His liberality, especially to religious men, was unbounded Abulfazl represents his character, as he does that of all connected with the Súr dynasty, in an unfavourable light "He was," says that writer, "originally one of the slaves of Shir Khan, and by downright fraud and cunning, by seizing the property of the learned and good and bestowing it on the ignorant and low-minded, gained a certain degree of credit among the lower classes of his own countrymen" "His corpse was conveyed to Dellin," says curr in Ferishta*, "where it was interred and such is the veneration in which the name of Khowas Khan is held, even at the present day, that his tomb is frequented by devotecs and the common people, considering him as a sunt. go there to offer prayers for the success of their undertikings 't "And to this day," says a still later author, "his name is celebrated in Hindustan in poetry and song 1

^{*} Tar Nizami, f 220, Tab Ferishta, vol 11 pp 133, 134, Khol Akb 181, Tar Bed ff 155, 156, ul Towárikh, f 281.

While Selim resided at Guahar, an incident occurred Pinerel It must have non which had nearly shaken his throne been visible in the progress of the narrative that the Sur dynasty of Shar Shah was entirely military was supported solely by the Afghans, a rough and uncivilized people, who cherished strong notions of independence and equality, and who, if they could not be cilled republicin in their principles were at least led by a number of their own hereditary chiefs, a sort of native oligarchy, all of whom regarded the grand officers of the empire with some jedousy as placed above them only by accident. The greater chiefs regarded the sovercign limiself with much the same eye. They had been the equals of Shir Ishan his father, and it was by their exertions that he sat on the throne. The governors of provinces, though nominally servants of the crown, and removable at will, were often in reality so powerful, each in his own government, that they considered themselves as individually holding their power by much the same right as the lying held his throne They were in fact, in general, removable only by assissmittion or by war. Shupa khan, as we have seen had shupa reduced nearly the whole of the former kingdom of Malwa Malwa under his authority. He muntained the pomp * 11914 and parade of a prince, like the other governors of the

Akbernama f 91

[†] Lerishta, vol ir , p 137

¹ Khol ul Towarsh f 276

BOOK VI A D 1547 more extensive provinces, and, like some of them, was suspected by Selim of aiming at independent power. The viceroy of the Penjáb being now humbled, Shujaa was now become the greatest subject of the empire. It happened one day that an Afghán, of the name of Othman*, came intoxicated into Shujaa's hall of audience, and as his countrymen are noted in India for their ude and unpolished manners, began to spit about him on the cushions and carpets. The servants remonstrated with him, but in vain, and on their insisting that he should leave the presence-chamber, he struck one of them a blow on the face Shunaa Khan, informed of this outrage, ordered the offender's hands to be cut off Othman, thus mutilated, repaired to Selin Shah at Guiliar, and, having gained access to him, demanded justice upon his Majesty's lieutenant, who had treated him thus cruelly Selim, whether merely to get rid of the man's importunity, or with any more remote object, answered, "What, are not you too an Afghán? Go, and take your revenge" This expression was repeated to Shujaa, who only remarked, that it was a very idle way of talking. And though one of his servants told him that he had seen Othman sitting in a cutler's shop, whetting his knife, and using threatening expressions, still he took no precautions

Attempt on his life by an Afghán

Some time afterwards Shujaa Khan, having gone to Guáliái to wait upon the King, in passing through the streets of the town on his way to the royal derbár, saw Othman, who had long been watching his opportunity, sitting in a shop, wrapped up in an old mantle. Shujaa made his palankeen stop, and desired some assistance to be given to the wretched man, whose face he recollected Othman, seizing the favourable moment, approached him, and with the blade of a short sword which he had

^{*} Ferishta calls him Othman designate him as Othman merdi, one Khan, probably erroneously others Othman

fastened to the stump of his mutilated arm, and concealed under his cloak, attacked Shujaa, and inflicted a wound on his side The viceroy's followers, rushing on the assassin, put him to death * This occurrence, con- His quarrel nected with the known jealousy of Selím Shah and the expression he had let fall, naturally alarmed Shujaa Khan, who, though he afterwards appeared at court and received rich presents, took the earliest opportunity that offered to withdraw from Guáliai with all his followers, without taking leave, and retreated hurriedly to Malwa Selim, offended at this act of insubordination, as well as by his slighting expressions, sent a strong who indetachment to pursue, and bring him back, and soon after himself marched into Malwa with the rest of his army, that he might seize Shujaa, "although," says Nızam-ed-din, "that nobleman was one of thirty-five; persons who were personally engaged in placing his father, Shir Shah, on the throne" When Selim had advanced as far as Mándu, Shujaa Khan fled to Bhán-Flight and swára, on the borders of Gujrát, declaring that he would of Shujaa never draw his sword against the son of his old master All opposition being thus at an end, Islám Shah placed Isa Khan Súr in the government of Malwa, leaving him at Ujein with twenty thousand horse I, and returned to Guáliár Soon afterwards, however, when Islám was compelled once more to return to the Penjáb, Shujaa Khan, from what motives we are not informed, but probably from his tried talents and the difficulty of governing Malwa without his aid, was restored to the government of that kingdom, which he, and his son after him, enjoyed for many years § While Islám Shah was thus successful in Malwa, his A H 954, with Islam,

^{*} Some accounts say that the assassin made his escape

[†] Ferishta says, thirty-six

¹ Bedaum, 30,000

[§] Tab Akb f 463, Tar Nız f 220,, Ferishta, vol. iv pp 273, 274 and ii p 134, Tar Bed f 156

BOOK VI

Temporary success and final defeat of Azim Humáyun in the Penjáb

Disgraceful conduct of Islám after the victory arms suffered a reverse in the Penjáb * Azím Humáyun, who had so long governed that country, though expelled, had still a strong influence within it, and was attended beyond the Jelem by a considerable body of brave and determined adherents Having collected his force, Azím Humáyun attacked near Dínkót, and defeated, Khwaja Veis Sirwani, the general whom Islam had left to keep him in check, and, pursuing his advantage, extended his inroads as far as Sirhend His predatory troops spread themselves all over the Penjáb, carrying off not only the cattle, but the inhabitants, and throwing the whole country into confusion To redress this evil, Islám lost no time in sending a large army to the assistance of his general, who compelled the rebels to retreat once more towards Dinkot A general action was soon after fought at Sambala near that place, in which Azim Humáyun, who had now an army of twenty thousand horse, was totally defeated, and numbers of Niázi women, falling into the hands of the conquerors, were sent to Islám Shah That monarch's treatment of them is disgraceful to his character. The helpless females were sent to Guáliár, and there given up to be dishonoured He also exhibited a scurrilous pageantry in his camp Selecting from the rabble some wretches whom he called by the names of Azím Humáyun, Saíd Khan, Sháhbáz Khan and others, he dressed them up in tawdry finery, and bestowed on them lofty titles, made the vilest creatures in the camp carry pompously before them the standards, regal umbrella and other symbols of royalty and state, that had fallen into his hands in the late battle, and paraded them with insulting mockery The bands of music performed before their doors at the usual stated times, the most noted blackguards in the bazar being selected for the duty These marks of contempt shown to men of rank and family, with the dishonour of the Niázi ladies, were much felt ^{* &}quot;In 954 or 955," says Bedauni, f 157, "God knows which"

and resented by the Afghans in general, most of whom are in some way connected together, and who, at all events, have a profound respect for the honour of then tithes & ground it Dinkôt, fled for protection among the Gakers beyond the Salt Range and also special among the hills on the outskirts of Kushini. Islam, sensible that, to ensure the tranquillity of his other dominions, it was necessary to extinguish the embers of rebellion in the Pemals, and especially to crush the power of the Nazi chiefs, marched into that country at the head of a ennestness, and used every effort to reduce the Gakers, who were at once proud of their independence and attached to the family of Baber - The building of Rhotas was a work of immense toil and difficulty. The Gakers did everything in their power to impede the progress of a fort which was placed chiefly as a check upon them Islâm Shah employed one portion of his troops in building the fortifications on a magnificent scale, and the other portion of them not so employed were sent

CII \P II

After this defeat the Ninzis, unable to keep their Headrances to Rhotas powerful army He idvanced as fir is Rhotas the August completion of which he urged forward with much against the Gakers, who kept them busy with daily comests combats. By day the Gakers met them hand to hand in Gakers fight, and at night crept like bunditti round the cump, and by sudden attacks where least expected, carried off men and women, bond and free, all of whom they kept in shameful captivity, and sold as slives indiscriminately For two years, while the works were going on, Islam kept his Afghans employed with stone and mortal, or in constant skirmishing, and all the time kept back then pay Then hatred to him become extreme, and piscontents vented itself in reproaches and abuse, for such was camp then terror of him, and the ascendency that he had · Ut supra Some make this ill judged pageantry occur after the first defeat acquired over their minds, that none dared to remonstrate At length Shah Muhammed Firmuli, a nobleman whose wit and humour sometimes enabled him to tell bold truths, informed the King that, the night before, he had had a singular dream "My King," said he, "methought I saw three bags fall from the sky, one was filled with earth, one with gold, and one with paper. The earth fell on the soldiers, the gold on the Hindu clerks of office, the paper on the royal treasury." Islám Shah, who saw at once the tendency of the fable, was diverted, and promised that as soon as he returned to Guáliár he would make the accountants write out the bills for the two years' arrears, and pay the amount. "It so happened," says the historian, "that this never was performed, as he was carried off before it was effected."

BOOK VI

He makes peace with the Gakers on their expelling the Niázis, who retreat towrads hashmir, But, brave as was the defence of the Gakers in their wild country, and successful as they were, sheltered by their glens, ravines and jungles, in repelling the attacks of the royal army, they at length clearly saw that they could expect no quiet while they continued to shelter Azim Humáyun or his followers—Sultan Adam having sued for peace, it was granted on condition that Azim Humáyun and his followers should leave the country. This being agreed to, the Niázis, now more distressed than ever, determined to attempt Kashmír—They seem to have been invited by a party, who offered them the government, it is said, with treacherous views At all events, Islám Shah put the mountain tribes of Kashmír on their guard, and urged them to avert the approaching danger—Misled, it is said, by their guides, though no such treachery is necessary to account for what followed, the Niázis entered the passes of that mountainous region, and soon found themselves cut off from all retreat or advance—The precipices above were occupied by armed men—In vain did the Niázis do all that courage could effect, the very women, charm among whom were the mother and wife of Azim Humáyun, arming themselves to defend their honour A shower of stones from hands unseen poured down in the deupon them, and not an individual escaped. In this defile Azım Humayun and his brothers Said Khan and Shahbaz Khan, the King's brother-in-law, were slain, and their heids cut off and sent to Islam Shah *

While Islam's forces were engaged against the Gakers Mambuilds and the tribe of Jeniula, who occupied the strong country on the banks of the Jelem, not content with the works still carried on at Rhotas, he began to construct another fort at Manghar or Munkót, on the farthest outskirts of the Schalik mountains. It was on a most extensive scale, and was composed of four or five forts, on as many connences, but all connected together Abulfazl says that Islam Shah founded it in consequence of some bid omen that had affected his imagination, and as a place of refuge against the impending evil. It was while encumped at Bin, superintending the building of this fort, that he made a narrow escape from being assassinated. As he was mis narrow ascending a confined pass on his way to the fort, a man, assas inwho had conceiled himself, rushed upon him with a naked sword, and aimed a blow which Islam skilfully warded off with the end of his whip, which, however, being cut through, his face was somewhat wounded When the assassin was raising his arm for a second stroke, the King, who was a powerful man and versed in athletic exercises, leaping from his horse and clasping the assassin's arms, called upon some Amirs who had galloped up to his aid, to put the man to death "Let us inquire," they said, "who instigated him to such a deed" "No," said Islam Shah, "the wretch may be

[•] Tar Niz f 221, Akbernama, were unjustly accused of treachery f 91 , Iar Bed f 158 , Khol ul The catastrophe was a natural one, Tow f 282, I crishta II p 135 where the natives were prepared One may suspect that the guides the ruin of many houses Put him instantly to death" This act of generosity does not appear to be much in unison with Islám's habitual conduct. He observed, however, that the villain's sword was one which he had himself presented to Ekbál Khan, a man whom he had raised from the lowest rank, had elevated to situations of dignity in his court, and honoured with his particular favour. Islám now deprived him of his rank, and restored him to his original meanness. But though the Afghán Amírs, by whom he was detested, urged the King to put him to death, Islám Shah refused, saying that, however much he was ashamed of the patronage which he had afforded to one so unworthy, he would not utterly destroy what he had once cherished *

BOOK VI

Kámran Visits his camp A H 959, A n 1552

Having settled the Penjab and strengthened his frontier, Islám, who had now been two years beyond the Satley, set out on his march back to Delhi It was at this time that Kámrán Mírza, who, driven from Kábul, and afterwards from the Afghán country, had come to his camp some time before, disappointed in his expectations of succour, made his escape, and fled first to the Scwalik † mountains and afterwards to the Gakers Islám continued his march, and had arrived at Delhi, when news were brought that the Emperor Humáyun had reached the Indus with an army, on his way to invade Hindustán The King was then ill, and, at the moment, had a number of leeches on his neck He instantly shook them off, and without even washing away the blood, tied a handkerchief round his neck, ordered his horse, mounted, and the same day was encamped three kos from the town The troops, who

Advance of Humáyun

him This supposes Himu to have already attained considerable rank, and he is accordingly said to have been in high favour Tar Bed f 158

^{*} Tar Niz f 220, Tar Bed f 168

[†] Kamran, as he approached Islum's camp, was received by Himu Balal, who was sent out to meet had already suffered so much from wint, were driven char if districted by this new movement so that some of his Ministers ventured to represent to him that, as a powerful enemy was marching to meet him, and the troops were in distress and murmuring, it would be a gracious act and befitting his royal dignity, to discharge their arrears of pay Islam told them in reply that if he paid the troops at that time, they would ascribe the concession to his necessities and to compulsion, and would act upon that supposition on future occasions, but he assured them that, after he had returned victorious from this cumpugn, he would order the whole arreas of the last two years to be paid all in one sum. The soldiers, stifling their feelings and sceing no remedy, repaired to the camp. The draughtbullocks, employed for moving the cannon had all been sent to pisture at great distances. Determined that no time should be lost the king commanded the footsoldiers to drig them along, which they did for severil divs, some of the larger guns requiring each one or two thousand men to move them. Without loss of time he thus reached the Penjab Humayun, having meretreat secured his brother Kimran and fuled in an attempt to Kabul to reach Kashmír, aware of Islam's approach, returned to kibul Upon which Islam, worn out with sickness and disease, retraced his steps from Lahur, and soon after repuied to Guahar 6

It was during this and his former residence at Lahúr Meditated that Islam Shah, following up in some measure his destruction of I shur, fither's ideas, is said to have scriously meditated the and removal destruction of that capital It was a large and flourish- expital to ing city, the centre of a rich trade, and amply furnished Mankot, with every useful and costly production of the times It had a numerous and warlike population, and large manufactories of arms, offensive and defensive, of military accourrements, and of every warlike store. If recovered and occupied by the exiled family, or by any invaders from the North, it would become, he imagined, a most convenient station, both for arming their troops, and for invading India. His plan was to have razed this noble town from the foundation, and to have removed the capital of the Penjáb to Mankót, which was more remote from the country of the Afgháns, and from the desert along the left bank of the Indus, while, from its position in the Siálkot range, it was less liable to invasion, and more capable of defence. But this truly oriental plan, so pregnant with misery and ruin to thousands of his subjects, was never carried into effect.

BOOK VI

Mutual sus picions of Islam and his nobles, Shin Shah, during his short reign, had placed his kingdom in so formidable a position, that the reign of his successor was disturbed by no foreign invasion, but it was troubled, first by civil wars, and afterwards by repeated conspiracies. Whether these were owing to the jealous temper of Islam, or were a consequence of the insubordinate and independent habits of his Afghan nobles, is not very clear, in the scanty and unsatisfactory accounts that have been transmitted to us of the history of his reign. But it would rather appear that Islam, fretted by finding them constantly in his way, when he wished to rule as an absolute prince, attempted systematically to weed out the more powerful Afghan chiefs, without being sufficiently aware that, while he got free of a temporary annoyance, he was destroying the real strength of his dynasty and race. We have seen that attempts upon his life, probably produced by this severity, were made at different times, though they failed. Even in his favourite retreat of Guáhár, to mixed opium in his drink, ext serpents and drank poison, probably as autidotes while he thirsted for the blood of his Afghan subjects, f 169

^{*} Beduum tells us that his suspicions of the designs of the Afghan chiefs had produced in his mind the most inveterate hatred, that he

which he retired as a place of security from these CHAP II. attempts, he was not safe from the assassin's arm One day while he was out hunting at Anteri in that neighbourhood, a band of men, instigated by persons of note, lay in wait, for the purpose of putting him to death as he returned It so happened that he came back by a different road from that which he was accustomed to take, and thus the plot failed But the king was soon informed of what had passed, and put to death those who were convicted as the leaders of the conspiracy, or supposed to be so But he did not stop there, and it is alleged that there was hardly any Amír distinguished for power or influence, on whom his suspicions did not fall, and whom he did not put to death, or imprison *

The latter part of the life of Islam Shah was rendered Death of wretched by bad health and bodily suffering His disease, whether a fistula or piles, was attended with tumours all over his loins, occasioned much pain, and baffled the efforts of his physicians These and other bodily infirmities brought him to the grave, after a * 1 960 reign of between eight and nine years †

His character, as given by historians, is not exactly His chawhat one would expect from the public transactions of racter his reign All allow that, in person, he was handsome, and that his bodily strength, which was naturally great, had been cultivated by constant activity and exercise He is said to have had a competent degree of learning, and to have treasured up in his memory the chief works of some of the best Persian poets He was intelligent, acute, fond of the society of learned men and of pious

Islam Shah

* Tar Niz f 222

Taríkh-e Nizámi gives him nine years, and is followed by Ferishta, Tab Alb f 182 , Tar Nizumi, f 221, Albernáma, f 91, Khol ul Towarikh, pp 279-284, Ferishta, vol ii pp 134-138, Nisabnáma, f 114

[†] Abulfazl makes him die 22 Ziládah, a n 960 (Oct 30, a d 1553), after a reign of eight years two months and eight days, the Nisábnáma, 26 , Zihajeh (Dec 3rd), after a reign of eight years nine months and seven days, the divines, and remarkable for his skill in extempore poetical composition, as well as for his wit and ready repartee He always maintained a powerful army, abundantly supplied with horses, elephants, artillery and stores, and subjected it to strict discipline "Though he vexed his soldiers extremely," says Abulfazl, "yet he conducted himself with justice to his other subjects" "He adopted," says another writer, "the same principles of justice and policy as his able father the strong were not permitted to oppress the weak. His internal administration was excellent. The Kanúngoes, who keep the revenue accounts of perganas, he employed to watch over and report on the condition of the ryots, and the state of cultivation of the soil, on the crops, and the extent of offences and crime Few princes on record," he adds, "in military skill, in policy, justice and good government, have ever equalled these two "† He is represented as magnificent in his state, and as liberal in his donations to public works and to holy men He preserved all lands granted for religious or charitable pui poses inviolate He kept up his father's seráis in their whole extent, and the distribution of food to travellers, and for that purpose carefully protected all the lands that had been given them In addition, he ordered a serár to be built between each two of his father's Tadding a mosque, a reader, a well, and a water-carrier to each He also gave the post-houses so many additional horses as to enable them to convey intelligence with increased speed from place to place over every portion of his extensive empire ‡

A.D 1553

The great objects of his reign seem to have been to establish himself on the throne to the prejudice of his elder brother, and, after that was accomplished, to reduce the power of the great nobles, who almost over-

^{*} Akbernama, f 91

⁺ Khol ul Fow f 284

Tar Niz f 221, Akbernama,

f 91, Ferishta, vol 11 p 130, Kháfi Khan, ff 59—61, Nisábnama e Afghánán, f 111 shadowed the throne. His fither, adopting a different cour is policy from his, turned the power and tilents of his nobles to account, and preserved their affection and his own superiority, by the ascendency of his talents.

Islam, before he mounted the throne, had conducted many military expeditions, and, if we may judge from the success of all his measures after he became king, though unfeeling and cruel he must have been a prince of no ordinary suggests and talent

Indeed even Abulfizh though, in writing the life of the two first monarchs of the Sur dynasty, he loads them with reprotectes and speaks of them with aversion and contempt is compelled, in a later part of his work, when writing the history of Mobarez or Muhammed Shih Adel to do them more justice "From the time that Mobarez Khan came to the throne," says he, "the iffurs of Hindust in went backwards, for, in truth the fither and son, his predecessors, were men of talent, and skilful in the administration of afform. Mas! that they should have spent their lives in ingratitude and rebel-Had these two persons been servants of the imperul family, the one might have shone at the court, the other in charge of the frontier, to the benefit of their lawful sovereign as well as to their own happiness. The direction of the council might have been entrusted to the fither, the protection of the frontier to the son all events, loaded with the favour of their lord, in return for faithful service, they would have enjoyed that life which the truly wise regard as life indeed servants would have deserved such a master even the enjoyment of supreme power founded on ingratitude, men of superior intellect hold as worse than The Great Being that regulates the world soon scatters it abroad " The doctrine of legitimicy is here applied with some boldness. The Tutais had been only five years misters of Delhi when Humayun mounted

^{*} Akbernama, f 92 No 3 f 206

BOOK VI A D 1553

the throne, which, for a long course of years preceding, had been in the possession of the Afgháns. But such is the spirit of adulation. The family which happens to fill the throne when the author writes holds it by divine appointment, and all opposition to them, at whatever previous time, is treated as revolt, contumacy, or rebel-

Islám Shah made an attempt to settle all the affairs of his kingdom on a regular systematic plan. He endeavoured to concentrate all power in his own person. He deprived the Amírs of all their war elephants, says Abdal Káder, "leaving them perhaps only a bad female one for carriage." His tents and the screens enclosing them were of a red colour. He appropriated to himself the whole revenues of his kingdom instead of scottering them by assignations, and need his soldiers. to himself the whole revenues of his kingdom instead of scattering them by assignations, and paid his soldiers wholly in money, instead of keeping up the practice of the dagh, or giving them horses furnished by government and branded with a stamp to distinguish them, a mode which Shir Shah had employed Reports came in to him regularly from every part of his territories, and in return, he wrote mandates concerning every matter and thing, whether relating to religion, civil government or revenue, descending to the minutest details in all that concerned the army or cultivators, tribesinen or merchants. To these mandates, whether agreeable to the law or not, it was necessary to conform in their minutest particulars. No reference to Kázi or Musti was allowed was allowed

Early in his reign, he stationed large bodies of troops, consisting generally of five thousand horse each, in different parts of his dominions. He seems to have kept up something like a standing army, which his plan of bringing all revenue directly into the public treasury must have assisted him in doing. He was anxious to keep the dread of his power unceasingly before his great

BOOK VI. tained great distinction, himself undertook the office of training aspirants in the road of spiritual knowledge in the city of Biana On his death, he was succeeded in his saintly influence by his son Sheikh Alái, a man of great attainments in learning and in the knowledge of spiritual things, who continued to draw many followers around him, and sustained the reputation of the school.

It so happened that Sheikh Abdalla Niázi, an Afghán, and also favourite scholar of Sheikh Selim Chishti, having returned from the pilgrimage of Mekka, came and settled in Biana In the course of his travels, which had extended into Arabia, Persia, Khorásán and Transoxiana, he had imbibed the opinions of the sect of Mehdevis*, which at that period appear to have been extensively diffused Sheikh Alái, who met him, was delighted with his manners and conversation, and gradually adopted, in their full extent, the new doctrines, which in many respects agree with those of the Sufis, renouncing those of his father and former religious teachers

The founder of this sect, which added another to the many that have divided the Musulmans, was Syed Muhammed, a native of Juánpúr, born about A H 847, ▲ p 1482, but whose religious mission extended from 887 to 910, to 1505 when he died at Farra in Khorásán † He professed to be the Mehdi, the Comforter or Paraclete, promised alike by the Christian and Muhammedan religions, and his followers pretended that the truth of his mission was proved by numerous miracles The leading articles of their faith were, that he was indeed the promised Mehdi, whom it was necessary to love and follow, all who did not being infidels, that his inspiration, like that

> * This sect extended into the Dekhan Ismael Nizám Shah of Ahmednagar was led by his Minister Jemál Khan to join it. Ferishta, vol m p 277 This was in Ferishta's own time The progress of the sect even gave rise to a kind of religious war Ibid pp 277, 278

† л п 910 , Zikádeh, 19 (л р 1505, April 23)

of Moses, was derived directly from God, without the char if intermediate agency of angels, that the Mehdi and Muhammed were equal in authority, and that none of the Hadis, or traditional sayings of Muhammed, were true, unless confirmed by the Koran or by the Mehdi, to whom alone was committed the task of admitting souls into bliss, or consigning them to misery The mission of Muhammed and of the Mehdi were for purposes quite distinct from each other, that of the former being to preach the laws of faith, that of the latter, the commands and rules for the practice of good works The Koran revealed to Muhammed was to be explained by the Mehdi He taught that it was possible to see God even in this world — by a total oblivion of self in holy meditation, followed, in the progress of pious abstraction, by a moral or spiritual death. In this piogress towards the Divine or Beatific vision they marked out several stages, in the last of which the successful devotee, losing his identity, became united with the Deity In the course of this progress, he ceased reading the Koran, which, with every other study, became superfluous as the mystic vision advanced, he passed or raised the seventy thousand veils that obscure the view of things as they really exist, was blest with the sight of heaven and of hell-of the souls of the just and of the prophets, before being absorbed into the being of God Such were their chief articles of faith Those relating to works flow naturally from them they held that worldly wealth or possessions were the root of all evil, and that attachment to wives, children, relations, or any thing earthly, by diverting the mind from things divine, produced infidelity and led to hell, the chief of their practical doctrines were the renunciation of all the world and its gifts, houses, land, women, children, silver and gold, when persecuted, the only alternative offered, was to desert their country or to have recourse to aims their conversation was to be only with the virtuous they were as they advanced to quit all society, the better to enjoy uninterrupted meditation on God, thereby in the end to attain the longed-for vision. they were to fight for the Word of God, either with the sword of poverty or of prayer, or with that of war. To kill an infidel they deemed no crime, and they might lawfully take ample license in retaliation, or revenge, of such as molested their sect. Such as had only begun their heavenly course were enjoined to read the Koran, and to observe the five stated times of prayer. The more advanced seem to have been exempted from all external observances.*

BOOK A1

Sheikh Abdalla, on his return from the Hejáz, following out the precepts of his new faith, had taken up his residence in a garden near Biána at the Mhár Tank, a neighbourhood frequented by persons of the lowest class, and was accustomed himself to repair to it, to draw water, and carry it away on his head with unaffected humility. When prayer time came, he collected a number of individuals of the lowest class, water-drawers, carriers of wood and grass-cutters, who lived around. Them he instructed with the honest zeal of a missionary, and with the eloquence and knowledge of a man of letters. His preaching was successful, and his patience and unremitting fervour brought in many to his fold

Sheikh Alái, who was struck with the fervour and unction of his teaching soon became persuaded of the truth of his doctrines, confessed that this was indeed true religion, recommended it to his followers, renounced his own tenets, and having humbly joined the new sect, deserted his monastery, the rents attached to it and his dwelling, and invited his family to follow him to share his poverty and humble living, but offering, if they were unwilling to do this, to divide his property with them according to the law, and then let them go, in God's name. Having removed to the neighbourhood, and placed himself under the spiritual guidance of Sheikh Abdalla he continued his study of the new creed conformed to the rules of the sect, and divided all he possessed among the poor. Many of his former disciples followed him and embraced the new doctrines. He daily, at the hours of morning and afternoon prayer, expounded the Holy Ivoran in presence of assembled multitudes with such persursive eloquence, that his hearers, eatching his enthusiasm mevitably became converts and hundreds abandoning their wives and firmlies their goods and possessions and all that tied them to the world renounced their sins ind ill evil courses, and ranged themselves among the disciples of the Melidevis. All that they possessed they emoyed in common, or if inv, such as igniculturists or merchants, continued in their occupations, they made a you to devote a tenth of their income to charity and the service of God. In every thing they trusted to God They used no cooking vessels, but when they recoved a handful of flour mixed it up, just as it was, with silt and water, and used it while it lasted. In some instances, where they happened to get nothing, they were known to fast for two or three days with perfect resignation, without venting a complaint or manifesting any indication of suffering. But in spite of their destitute condition, they always went aimed, carrying a sword and shield or other arms, that they might repel their enemies. And, wherever they saw any person do what was contrary to their notions of right, they, in the first instance, mildly warned him to desist, but if he persisted, they proceeded to compel him by force and violence to alter his conduct. Such of the magistrates as had adopted the Mehdevi opinions gave their sanction to these proceedings, so that those

^{*} See Colonel Miles's interesting Transactions of Literary Society of Account of Muhammed Mehdi, Bombay, vol 11 pp 281-294

BOOK VI. of them who disapproved of this outrageous conduct, were unable to afford a remedy

Sheikh Abdalla, seeing to what lengths the unregulated zeal of Sheikh Alái was hurrying him, admonished and chid him gently, and suggested to him the propriety of making a pilgrimage to Mekka Sheikh Alái, in deference to this advice of his spiritual guide, but without abating any thing of his usual proceedings, set out attended by a retinue of six or seven hundred followers.* In passing Khow (spór which her in the followers * In passing Khowáspúr, which lies in the Júdpúr territory, Khowás Khan, the celebrated Afghán chief, who was then stationed on that frontier, came chief, who was then stationed on that frontier, came out with an honorary procession to meet him, listened to his teaching, and became a convert to his opinions. But that nobleman, displeased with the violence of some of his acts and doctrines, and dreading the consequence of his principles on the troops, soon gave him up, and Alái, disconcerted by this defection, and influenced by various other circumstances, returned to Biána, just about the time when Islám Shah mounted the throne in Agra. The Sheikh was summoned to Court among other religious men of the time. But there, in defiance of the usage and effecte of Courts, and following the levelling principles of his sect, instead of the usual salutation to the sovereign, he pronounced only the ordinary and familiar greeting to an equal † This departure from rule was eagerly seized by the King's Ministers, who charged the obnoxious innovator at once with want of reverence to his Majesty, and vator at once with want of reverence to his Majesty, and with heresy and Múlla Abdalla Sultánpúri, who at that time enjoyed the title of Makhdúm-al-mulk, after having various conferences with him, went so far as to issue a fetwa or opinion, declaring him guilty of a capital offence Islám Shah ordered a trial to take place in а и 959

^{*} Ferishta gives him 370, the Taríkh-e Nizámi, 600 or 700, the Tabakát, 700 or 800, the Nisabnáma, 900

[†] Alık-ıs-salám

BOOK VI

whose fetwa he professed that he would be guided, and himself set out for the Penjab.

Sheikh Badeh, to whom Alái was thus committed, had been much followed as a religious guide by Shír Shah, the king's father, who held him in such reverence that he was accustomed, when the holy man was going out, to place the shoes before his feet Sheikh Badeh long and deeply versed in the theology of his age and religion, entirely coincided in opinion with Makhdiímal-mulk, and to that effect wrote his fetwa or decree, which was forthwith forwarded by express to Islám Shah, who commanded the personal attendance of the prisoner At this period Sheikh Alái was seized with a pestilential disease then raging. This malady was farther irritated by the fatigue of his long journey to the Penjáb, so that, when he reached the presence of the King, he was unable to speak Islám Shah, still desirous to save him, standing by his side, gently addiessed him "Only whisper in my ear," said the prince, "the promised Mehdi is not come, and be free" Sheikh Alái, absorbed in a meditative trance, did not heed his words, and Islám, driven to extremity by his unrelenting divines, commanded him to be scourged At the third stroke of the lash, says the historian, he resigned his soul to his Creator Islam Shah directed that his body should be interred in the tomb of his forefathers *

• The account of this transaction is taken from the Tabak Akberi, f 182, Tar Nizami, ff 221—223, Ferishta, vol 11 pp 138—141 See also the Taríkh-e Bedáuni, ff 161—163 The author Abdal Rader, then very young, was carried by his father to see Alái when he passed Besawer, on his route to Mekka See also the Nisabnama-e Afghanan, ff 111—114 Some authors place Alai's death in A ii 955, Bedauni, with more probability, in A ii 957, Tar Bed f 107

CHAPTER III

SULTAN FIREZ SHAH SUK, OFTEN CALLED THE SHAH-ZADA HPIZ KHAN

ACCESSION AND MURDER OF FIREZ SHAIL -- ACCOUNT OF THIS UNCIT AND MURDEPLIS MORARIZ KHAN

Ov the death of Islam, or Schm, Shah, the Afghan CHAP III chiefs who were with him at Gualian acknowledged his A D 1553, son Fuúz Khan, then only twelve years of age, as their Accession sovereign, and placed him on the throne Coin was of Firaz struck, and the prayer for the reigning prince offcred, in his name. But his reign was short. Mobarez Khan, his maternal uncle (the son of Nizam Khan Sur, Shii Shah's younger brother), hardened by a guilty ambition, on the third day after the death of his cousin Islam Shah, entered the private apartments of the prlace, with the intention of putting to death the young King Firuz's mother, Bibi Bate, was the sister of Mobarez Khan On hearing that her brother was forcing his way into the harem attended by armed men, alarmed at the danger which threatened her son, she rushed out, and seizing the hem of his robe, with prayers and tears besought him to spare his sister's boy, offering to convey the youth to some fur distant land where he would live as a private person, and never aspire to be king or, if that was not allowed her, she prayed her brother at least to spare her son's life, though doomed to imprisonment, however severe But His murdet. Mobarez, throwing her off, serzed the young King, and barbarously murdered him in his mother's arms

This lady is by different writers Bibi Mahi, the last probably by miscalled Bibi Banu, Bibi Bu, and take

BOOK VI.

A D 1553

Account of his uncle and murderer Mobárez Khan

This sad event was an unhappy consequence of the affectionate temper of the Queen Islám Shah, her late husband, who had formed the most unfavourable opinion of Mobárez Khan, and feared his attempts on the life of his son, had repeatedly resolved to put him to death, and was as often prevented only by her intervention and tears After he had taken to his death-bed, the King again told Bibi Bái that she must choose between her brother and her son, that if she valued her son's life, she must suffer her brother to be taken out of the way, that there was no other security for the prince But Bíbí Bái, who thought Islám's suspicions unfounded, and that Mobárez was too much of a voluptuary, and too much devoted to idle amusement to be ambitious, finally prevailed upon her husband to spare the future muiderer of their son

Abul-fazl remarks that Nızám Khan Súr, the younger brother of Shir Shah, left one son and three daughters, and that this son, as well as the husbands of all the three daughters, attained the regal dignity The son of Mobarez Khan now became king by his crime, one of the daughters had married the late King Islam Shah; another married Ahmed Khan Súr, the viceroy of the Penjáb, and the third, Ibráhím Khan Súr, both of whom, in their turns, we shall see proclaimed Kings of Delhi *

^{*} The authorities to be consulted f 91, Tar Bedáum, f 170, Ferishta, vol 11 p 141, Khol. ul Tow f 284, Kháfi Khan, f 61 for this short reign are the Tar Niz ff 222, 223, Albernáma,

CHAPILE IV

SUITAN MURAMMED SHAH ADEL SUL OLTEN CALLED ADELL

THOMBID SHOR -- HIS CHAIRCIDE - DIATH OF SHANDH BRICK DRIVER AT THE PAL -- INOUT AND DILLAT OF TAR -- CHALACTER OF THE DISALLI CTIO HIM KHAN IN TIANA -- HE TAKES DEEM AND ACLA AND ASSEMES SOMETHER NAME OF DISTRACTION STATE OF VOLUE OF ARMID WHAN IN THE TAB - OLI ISLD AT LALLA BY IN ARD KHAN, WHOM IN DITLEAT III - DICIALID INTILOT MORAN ANTELS THE LENIAR -- HIS CENTER BUILD AND DELECTS THE ATHAMATO MICH. 101(15 HIAMM, A DIESTON HIM IN MA A --- HAOLT OF MERANMED KIRS IN TINCUL - INTERAT OF BIME MINORID SHAR NIAR LATE - DITLATS AND DISTROLS THE ALMY OF RESIST - BUNGLES AT DEFINE - BIS DEATH - BIM AND KILLED AT 1 (SHAT - SUBMITSION OF ALCH (DINAST) - DILLAT, AND DISTH OF IN THE HER WILLIAM ACTER - HIS SO ON THE ALCHÁN DANASTA IN INDIA - COMELITATORS FOR THE SO VIRGINIANT AT THE TIME OF HUMANUAS ELSTORATION

AFTER this detestable murder, Mobirez Khan mounted the throne, with the consent of the nobles and vazirs AD 1553. who were on the spot, under the title of Sultan Muhammed Shah Adel, or the Just, an epithet which the of Mobilers common people changed into Adch, or, by a farther corruption, into Andli, or "the Blind"

Sult in Muhammed possessed no qualities fitted to mischarge

Sultan Mu

BOOK VI A D 1553 make him a good king or a good man. He was grossly ignorant, and hated learning. He paid little attention to public affairs, spending the greater part of his time in the recesses of the hairm, wholly given up to sensual indulgence and debauchery, varied only by the amusements of music and dancing. In music he is said to have acquired uncommon proficiency, and we haidly discover another commendable trait in his character. He was fond of low pleasures and of low companions who flattered him and confirmed him in his vices.

In his expenditure he was childishly profuse. Ilaving heard tales of the magnificence and generosity of Sultan Muhammed Toghlak, he became ambitious of rivalling him, and several times threw open the doors of his treasury, when he bestowed largesses lavishly on the common people, in the vain hope of gaining their affection. With a similar object he made a practice, in going through the streets of a town, to shoot goldenheaded arrows, and the person into whose house they fell or who found them, on bringing them back, was presented with the sum of five hundred tangas* in money. But these practices he did not long persist in

On his accession he bestowed the office of vasii and heutenant of the palace, with the chief management of affairs, on Shemshir Khan, who had been a slave of Shir Shah, and was the younger brother of the celebrated Khowás Khan, Doulat Khan Nouháni, a new convert and his protégé, was raised to rank, and got charge of the Nouhánis, and Hímú Bakál, a Hindu, was raised to offices of high trust, and soon became the Minister who exercised the most commanding authority.

laised to offices of high trust, and soon became the Minister who exercised the most commanding authority. Such appointments were not likely to conciliate the haughty Afghán chiefs who were near the throne, and thought themselves not much below it Discontent spread on every side Sultan Muhammed was hated, and, what for a king was more dangerous, he was de- char iv spised The government had lost the vigorous hand that directed it during the two late reigns. The general discontent was attended by its natural concomitant, a spirit of insubordination, and a disposition to revolt began to show itself from the very first month of his reign, and spread extensively, more especially among the King's own nearest connections of the Súi family, insomuch that, ere long, the kingdom was in reality broken down into a variety of different states That discord which had always been the bane of the Afghans in India reappeared in full operation *

^{*} About 50/

An incident which occurred in the palace soon after Beath of Schander the accession of the Sultan to the throne marked the khan crisis of this spirit Sultan Muhammed, who did not firmull in the Perbar often appear in public, having one day held a public A in 961, derbái in the foit of Gualiar, proceeded, in presence of his most distinguished nobles, to make a distribution of various jágíis Among the rest, the government of Kanaul, which was held by Shah Muhammed Firmuli, a nobleman of an eminent Afghán family, was taken from him, and conferred on Sumast Khan Sirpani, also an Afghan, but of inferior note † Schander Khan, Firmuli's son, a youth of handsome mein, but of a lofty and impatient temper, who, as well as his father, was present when this arrangement was announced, exclaimed, "What, are things come to such a pass, that our estate is to be given to a set of Supam dogmerchants?" at the same time audibly hinting something about the field of bittle. His father, who was unwell, chid him for indulging in such language, and attempted to restrain his impetuosity, but in vain Turning on his father, he asked him if he had forgotten that Shir Shah, intending to put him to death, had

^{*} Tar Niz f 223, Tab Akb † Kháfi Khan says, one who had f 184 Far Bed f 171, Akbermade a trade of selling dogs, which nama, f 92 does not seem probable

BOOK VL.
A. D 1554

kept him in an iron cage, from which he had been released only at the intercession of Selim Shah? Did he not see that it was now once more the plan of the Súr family to bring ruin on them and their race? Was he blind, or was he so dastardly as tamely to submit to such contemptuous treatment? This violent conduct occasioned considerable confusion in the Derbár mast Khan, a tall and powerful man, approached Sekander in a conciliating manner, saying, "My son, why all these hard words?" at the same time laying his hand soothingly on the young man's shoulder, but intending to secure him and make him prisoner. Sekander, aware of his object, drew his dagger, and plunged it into the breast of Sirmast, who fell lifeless on the ground The uproar and confusion upon this became extreme Sekander, infuriated with passion, drew his sword and attacked those nobles near him who attempted to secure his person, killing some, and wounding others. The King, availing himself of the disorder that prevailed, made his escape into the harem, when the doors were barred behind him was followed by Sekander, who made an attempt to force his way in, but it was too late Several Amírs, drawing their swords, prevented Schander's escape, while he continued for some time to slash around him like a mad man At last Ibráhím Khan Súr, who had married Adeli's sister, wounded him with his sword, and other Amirs rushing on, overpowered him and put hun to death Doulat Khan Nouhani, at the same time, with one blow of his sabre, slew Shah Muhammed Tirinuli, the unhappy and innocent father The whole affur lasted upwards of half an hour #

Revolt and drift of Toj khan It is said that Táj Khan Keráni, the brother of that Suleimán Khan Keráni who afterwards ruled Bengal under the name of Ali Shah†, as he was coming out of the fort of Guáliár that morning after having attended CHAP IV the levee, happened to meet Shah Muhammed Khan Firmuli, who was then on his way to the Derbar, and as they entered into conversation, told him, that affairs were going on so ill, and were managed by such contemptible agents, that he was resolved to return no more to the Court, but to set out and see what could be done elsewhere, and he invited Firmuli to go along with him and join him in the adventure This Shah Muhammed declined, and went on to the fatal meeting-while Tái Khan, hearing in the course of the day what had occuried, made his escape from Guáliár the same evening, and took the road of Bengal with his followers soon as it was known that he had left the city, Adeli sent a strong force to pursue him, and himself followed soon after, and overtook the Khan at Chibra-Mow*, where he defeated him, but Táj Khan, effecting his escape, retreated to Chunái. As he marched through the country, he seized such of Adeh's collectors of the revenue as fell in his way, and took possession of all the public money and other property on which he could lay his hands, with an hundred elephants He was soon joined by his brothers Imád, Suleimán and Khwája Elías, who held perganas on the banks of the Ganges, and in Khowaspur-Tanda, and no longer concealed his views, but appeared in open rebellion †

^{*} Tab Alb f 185, Tar Niz ff 171, 172, Nie din una, f 116

[†] Rather perhaps of Hazrat Ali, for he seems to have declined the name of king

Meanwhile Adeli, who had moved from Guáliár to Chunár, advanced to chastise the Keránis The two armies met on the opposite banks of the Ganges, and faced each other for some time, but without engaging At last Hímú, who was now high in the King's confi-

Agra, and thirty from Kanáuj, which is probably correct. It is a dependency of Kanáuj, and was the birthplace of the author of the Insha-e Medharam, Tar Bed ff 171, 172

^{*} Chibra-Mow, which is not in the maps, is a town of the Dóab, Briggs reads eight, Dow, eighty miles from Agra Another copy of Ferishta reads eighty miles from Agra, and sixty from Laknou, the Tab Akb f 185, has forty kos from

[†] As above

10yal confidence, and was employed in many important CHAP IV transactions, in both the political and revenue depart-In the offices which he filled when so promoted, ments he is accused of bringing numbers to misery, while he pretended to be acting only from zeal for his master's service, though in truth he was busy all the while en-11ching himself from the property of the oppressed, and by his misdeeds was whetting the axe against his master and himself. His pains and assiduity as a spy and an informer, a set of men too dangerously encouraged by those in power, is said to have gained him the favour of the late king, Selím Shah, by whom, among other offices of trust, he was raised to that of Superintendent of Bazars*, which includes an extensive exercise of police duties

When Sultan Muhammed Shah Adeh usurped the throne, being altogether ignorant of business, Hímú, who, from his office, had frequent access to him, by his address and insinuation, and by relieving him from the drudgery of business, contrived to become so useful, and to gain so complete an ascendency over the king's mind, that he was soon elevated to the highest rank, became Prime Minister, and the whole duties of government gradually devolved upon him, Adeli, in reality, retaining only the name of king Himú placed and displaced officers, gave and resumed Jágírs at pleasure, with absolute power He got possession of the royal elephants, as well as of the treasures which had been accumulated by the last two kings, and he freely expended what they had collected In this way, it is affirmed, he gained for himself a number of low and sordid adherents, who looked up to and worshipped him as their only hope and reliance He bore for some time the title of Basant Rái, and afterwards assumed that of Raja, vamly decking himself with the lofty title of Raja Vikramájít

^{*} Sheikhji-Bazar, Tar Bed

BOOK VI

In all this, there is certainly much prejudice and misrepresentation, for even Abulfazl is forced to give unwilling testimony, that in the Cabinet he directed affairs of state and the business of the country with singular success, and that though his frame was so feeble that he could not ride on horseback, and even in the field was forced to be carried about in a litter or on an elephant, yet such was his spirit that he maintained stout contests with the enemies of his King, and, by his determined courage, was victorious in many battles, and achieved exploits worthy of the highest reputation The truth is, that he was a man who had raised himself from a low rank by great and commanding talents, who was eminent both as a statesman and a general, and who sustained the throne of a worthless prince in difficult times, hated and envied by the nobles as a man of nothing, and detested by the Musulmans of all parties as an infidel and a Pagan, who stood in their way on the road to power To add to these misfortunes, he has been harshly treated by the writers of the opposite party, the only historians of the times, for what, in his situation, was a ment, -his having long been the prop of the Afghan dynasty, and the most formidable enemy of the In person, as we have said, he is reline of Taimui presented as having been of mean deportment, hardfavoured, and of low stature He never wore a sword, and was unable to ride on horseback Yet, with all his disadvantages, such were his good fortune and valour that he gained two and twenty battles for the King, whose cause he espoused against the various Afghán pretenders to the throne, and secured a complete ascendency over them all, establishing, with every class of men, the highest reputation for courage and conduct in the field and ability in the Cabinet *

^{*} Compare Aklernima, f 92, f 184, Tar Bedauni, f 171, Tar Niz ff 223, 4, Tab Akb Kholiset ul Fow f 284 This last

Perhaps the choice of a Hindu Minister, however CHAP IV. odious to the Afgháns, was a measure of sound policy ın a dissipated and depraved prince like Adeli From the aspect of the times, it is clear that such a monarch could not have raised any great Afghán noble to the power enjoyed by Himú, without exposing himself to the risk of being dethroned by his own servant Nothing of the kind was to be apprehended from a humble and almost despised Pagan, whose consequence depended altogether on that of his patron *

The timely vigour of Himú succeeded in quelling the spread of rebellion of Tái Khan Keráni, "but," says the historian, fection. "rebellion had roused herself from her deep slumber, and the line of firm and well-compacted policy of Shir Shah, and of the steady and stern command of Selím Shah was snapped, so that every where things fell into disorder" Adeli was at once hated and despised The governors of provinces were powerful, and possessed armies entirely under their controll The suspicious temper of Adeli hastened the crisis Having conceived Revolt of Ibrahim doubts of the fidelity of Ibrahim Khan Súr his cousin, Khan in the son of Gházi Khan Sui, an uncle of Shír Shah, he Biána. had resolved to arrest him Ibráhím's wife, a sister of the King's, having got intimation of this intention, communicated it to her husband, who, in consequence, fled in disguise from Chunár to his father Ghazi Khan, the governor of Biana and Hindaun Adeli despatched Isa Khan Kiázi in pursuit to chastise him They met near Kalpı, an action took place, in which Ibráhím had the advantage, and defeated Isa Khan He now openly threw off his allegiance, and collecting an army in his father's government was soon able to march towards He takes Delhi, of which he took possession, ascended the throne, Agra, and does him justice See also Ferishta. zam-ed-dín Ahmed, and could hardly vol. 11 who, as usual, follows N1have a better guide in general. * Tar Niz. f 224

BOOK VI

A D 1554
assumes the sovereignty

and assumed the title and all the ensigns of royalty Pursuing his success, he next marched towards Agra, which also he reduced, as well as many of the adjoining districts *

On receiving the news of this alarming revolt in the very centre of his dominions, which threatened to deprive him of his most important provinces and of the kingdom itself, Adeli, instead of following the Keránis to complete their ruin, hastily began his march from Chunár towards Agra When he reached the Jamna, he was met by an envoy from Ibráhím, craving forgiveness, and offering to submit once more to the King, provided his Majesty would send to his camp Rái Hasan Khan Jilwáni, Behár Khan Sirwáni, who now held the title of Azim Humáyun, and some other chiefs of distinction, at once to receive his submission, and guarantee his safety Adeli gladly agreed to this request, in which he saw an end of the contest But the deputed nobles, whether they were from the first in concert with Ibráhím, or whether they were gained over only after reaching his camp and conferring with him, in the end joined the rebel, who stood much higher than the King in the general estimation Adeli, thus betrayed, finding himself unable to meet his antagonist in the field, retreated, first to Panna, and then to Chunár, abandoning, for the present, Agra and the neighbouring provinces of Hindustán to his rival, who assumed the style of Sultan Ibráhím Súr The events that rapidly followed compelled Adeli to confine his attention for some time to the task of retaining Behár and the provinces to the east of the Ganges, where he appears to have firmly established his authority †

Distracted state of the Empire But the misfortunes of Adeli were not confined to the successful rebellion of Ibráhím Disaffection and revolt had spread into all the more distant provinces

Three other viceloys, the governor of the Penjáb, the CHAP IV governor of Malwa, and the governor of Bengal, all at the same time aspired to andependent power, so that, at this crisis, the dominions of Shir Shah, by the feuds among his family, were divided among five Afghán kings, Adeh possessed Behái, Juánpúr and great part of the country east of the Ganges, Sultan Ibiáhím Súr held Delln, Agra, the Doib and the provinces west of the Jamna, as low down as Kalpi, Ahmed Khan Súi, who assumed the title of Sultan Sekander Shah, emoved the Penjáb, Shupa, generally called Sazáwal Khan, the kingdom of Malwa, and Sultan Muhammed Shah Súr, the kingdom of Bengal, for which he had probably even already a competitor in Táj Khan Keráni

The first of these princes who now marched to in- Revolt of vade the dominions of his neighbours, was Ahmed khan in Khan Súr *, also a cousin of Shir Shah, and who, like the Penjab Ibrahim, had mailied a sister of Adeli He had for AD 1565 some time enjoyed the government of the Penjáb, and now, in the utterly disorganised state of the Afghán monarchy, resolved, like other members of the Súr family, to set up for himself, and not content with the possession of his own province, aspired to the throne of Delhi Having conciliated the different nobles who possessed influence in the Penjib, and especially Tátár Khan Kási, Haibat Khan and Nasib Khan Taghúchi, who had been Selim Shah's chief officers in that province, all of whom regarded Adeli with contempt and disgust, he assumed the title of Sekander Shah t, and at the head of ten or twelve thousand well appointed horse and a large attendance of less regular followers, marched towards Delhi and Agra His cousin, Sultan Ibráhím Súr, who was now in possession of all the pro-

sabnáma, f 117, more correctly make him his uncle's son

^{*} According to the Kholaset ul Towáríkh, f 286, he was brother's son to Shir Shah, and Ferishta calls him his nephew But the Tar Niz f 225, the Tar Bed, and the Ni-

[†] Sultan Sekander, Khol ul Towárikh

AD 1555

BOOK VI. vinces around these capitals, marched out to oppose him with much parade and splendour, at the head of an army of seventy or eighty thousand horse excellently equipped, in which there was a remarkable number of officers of high rank * He is said to have bestowed on not fewer than two hundred the privilege of having rich kanáts or screens round their tents, even in the royal camp, the Alem and tugh standards, and the right of having the nakára or kettle-drum

Is opposed at Farra by Ibrahim Khan,

The armies met at Farra, about ten kos from Agra Sekander Shah, struck with the great superiority in numbers, as well as with the composition of the aimy of his rival, became desirous of entering into a negociation, and sent to propose a compromise, expressing his willingness to retire from Ibráhím's dominions, that that prince should have absolute possession of Delhi and Agia, with their dependant provinces, and whatever he could conquer to the eastward of them, and on the other hand, that Sekander Shah should be acknowledged as sovercign of the Penjáb, Multán and the neighbouring territory, and that the whole of the Afgháns should unite, and make a common cause in repelling Humáyun and his Taitars, should they pass the Indus The two armies, composed of fellow-countrymen and relations, were delighted at the prospect of this accommodation But difficulties were started, and Sultan Ibráhím, trusting to the superiority of his numbers, broke off the negociation, and left the quarrel to be decided by the fate of This was not long delayed. The vigorous charge of Sekander's left wing, which routed the right of the enemy and pursued them as far as Agra, decided the day Ibráhím, seeing that the defeat of his army was complete, effected his escape to Sambhal Sekan-

whom he defeats

Husein Khan Jilwáni, &c , Tar Niz f 225, Tab Alb ff 185, 186 , Albernama, f 92 , Tar Bed ff 174, 175

^{*} Ishafi Ishan says that there were fifty or sixty Amirs in his army Among these vere chiefs of high distinction, especially Hiji Khan Sultan, the ruler of Alwar, der Shah, following up his victory, made himself chap iv master of Agra and of Delhi, and was soon in possession $_{\rm He\ occupies}$ of the whole extent of country from the Indus to the Agra and Ganges Successful thus far, Sekander was desirous of esta- and is deblishing his right to the throne by the appearance at clared Emperor by least of a free election by his countrymen. For this the Afghán purpose, soon after his arrival in Agra, he prepared a magnificent banquet, to which he invited all the chiefs of the Afghán race When assembled, he told them that he regarded himself as but one of their number, and claimed no kind of superiority over the other leaders of his countrymen He remarked to them that among the Afgháns, Sultan Behlúl had raised his tribe of Lodi to honour and reputation, that Shir Shah had, in like manner, rendered the tribe of Súr illustrious, that these distinguished princes, by living in harmony with the tribesmen of their nation and cultivating their affection, had done great things, while their successors, Sultan Ibráhím Lodi, and Muhammed Shah Adeli, by following a different course, had involved their kingdoms in ruin and misery, that, at present, civil discord and civil war prevailed on every side among the Afghans, cucumstances the more to be deploted, as their implacable enemy Humáyun, who had now conquered Kábul and had no longer any brothers who could thwart his designs, was ready to pour down upon them with the whole force of his dominions, and to reap the fruit of their infatuation, that the only hope of the Afghans lay in union, that if they consented to lay aside private feuds and act in concert like a band of brothers, they could still repel the son of Baber, that their interest was the same, that they had one common cause, that he had called them together to consult in common for the common good, that at such a crisis, all personal claims to superiority must cease, that he appeared among them only as a private individual, and invited them to choose, as their leader, the man who, from his talents, was best fitted to give unity to their great national efforts, and to lead them to victory, and that to such a person, whoever he might be, selected by their free choice, he was ready at once to swear allegiance, and to humble himself as his most faithful subject. The assembly, with one voice, called out that Sekander Shah, the worthy cousin of Shir Shah, was the wished-for person, and that he alone should be their leader and sovereign. They then proceeded to take a solemn out to be furthful to him proceeded to take a solemn oath to be faithful to him, and to live in peace and unanimity among themselves, and having seated him on the throne of Agra, they presented to him the usual congratulations and offerings, as their King But the distribution of honours and jágírs that followed, soon put to flight all their wise and virtuous resolutions, and once more introduced discord and heart-burnings into the camp of the Afgháns When Sekander, having settled affairs at the capital

^{*} Ibrahím escaped first to Etáwa, accounts of the battle are given 1 and thence to Sambhal Different follow that of Bedaum

BOOK VI

Humáyun enters the Penjáb When Sckander, having settled affairs at the capital and subdued the provinces around it, was preparing to pursue still farther the advantages he had gained over Sultan Ibráhím, and had even a fair prospect of attacking Adeli, and gaining possession of the rich kingdoms of Behár and Bengal, to which he was about to direct his march, the unwelcome news arrived that Humáyun, secure in the throne of Kábul, was on his march to recover the Penjáb itself, which he had entered, and occupied a large portion of the country. It is probable that Sekander, when he set out for Agra, had removed the most efficient part of the military force of the Penjáb. To protect a country that was the seat of his power, and to check the progress of an invader whose success would be alike fatal to all the Afghán candidates for power, Sekander, without loss of time, despatched Tátár Khan and Haibat Khan with forty thousand horse It is only necessary in this place to CHAP IV observe that these generals were defeated on the Satley at Máchíwára by Biram Khan with great loss, and re-Biram Khan tieated towards Delhi Sekander, collecting his whole Afgháns on force, was soon able to oppose the invaders with an the Salley aimy of seventy thousand men, and checked Biram's advance, near Sirhend Here, however, Biram having been reinforced by the arrival of Humáyun in person, a great battle was fought which proved unfavourable to Sekander That prince was forced to take refuge Humáyun among the Sewalik mountains, where he maintained a defeats and expels position for some time, and even overran a great por-Ahmed tion of the Penjab in the beginning of Akber's reign But, being again hard pressed, he was compelled to abandon that country, and found his way to Bengal, where he succeeded in seizing the reins of government, but soon after died defeats the Afgháns on

No sooner did Sultan Ibráhím Súr ascertain that Ibráhím Sekander had detached the strength of his army towards again takes the Penjáb, than, leaving his retreat in Sambhal, he crossed the Ganges, and directed his march towards Kalpi, resolved to recruit his army, and to attempt to regain the kingdom It so happened that, at the very Advance of same time, Muhammed Shah Adeli, influenced by the Shah s forsame motives, and burning to recover the territory that ces under he had lost, had detached Himi, now his Prime Minister. from Chunár with a formidable army, five hundred elephants and a powerful train of aitillery, to occupy Agra and Delhi Hímú, on arriving near Kalpi, encountered Sultan Ibiáhím, who was already once more at the head of a considerable force of Afgháns, Nouhánis and Zemíndárs of Biána, and made an attempt to surprise Hímú by night at Khanwa, about ten kos from Biana After a severe contest, Ibrahim, being who defeats him, and defeated, was compelled to take shelter in that fortress, besieges in which he was immediately shut up, and besieged by him in Him in His father Gházi Khan contrived, however, to

AD 1555 Revolt of

Muhammed Khan in

Bengal,

BOOK VI. supply the place with provisions which he sent from Hindaun by the neighbouring hills *

> While Himi was thus employed, Muhammed Khan Súr †,—also a near relation of Shír Shah, who had been governor of Bengal, but who during the confusion that followed the accession of Adeli, had declared himself king of that country by the title of Sultan Jilál-ed-dínencouraged by the insuboidination and disorder that everywhere prevailed, advanced into Behár, in order to expel Adeh and to add that province to his kingdom, having aims at the same time upon Júanpúr, and his ambition extending even to Delhi itself. This invasion made Adelı hastıly recall Hímú from the siege of Biána, after he had battered it for three months His army had wasted the country on every side, and added all the disorders of rapine and pillage to the horrors of a frightful famine, which at that time raged, and carried off thousands of the population on every side The starving inhabitants saw, with feelings of envy and anger, the five hundred elephants of Hímú regularly fed with fine rice and sugarcane, and a public table kept, to which all the Afghan Amirs and officers of note were invited, and entertained with wasteful profusion Himú, abandoning the siege with reluctance, retired by the village of Mundháker I, followed by Ibráhím, who hung upon his rear, and attacked him near that place But Hímú again proved victorious, and the Sultan fled to Alwar to ask succour of Háji Khan Hímú detached his nephew with a strong force, who pursued the flying prince for two or three stages, and then returned Háji Khan, who was little pleased with Sultan Ibiáhím's visit, afforded him no assistance Driven to extremity, therefore, he resolved to abandon

Retreat of Himu from Biána towards Bebár

^{*} Tar Niz f 226, Tar Bed ff 175, 176, Ferishta, vol 11 p 153

[†] He is also called Gouria from

Gour his capital, and sometimes Muhammed Khan Bengúli 1 Mundháker is about six kos from Agra that quarter and bidding a last adieu to his father, Chap iv brothers, and family whom he left in Hindáun, he took the road to the country of Panna, attended by a few faithful followers

The future history of Sultan Ibiáhím Súr may be Flight and given in few words The historian Abdal Kader re- fate of Ibra him Khan grets that a man possessed of so many valuable qualities should have been unsuccessful in war Handsome in person, polite, accomplished, generous and brave, he suffered sixteen or seventeen defeats in the course of two or three years His father Gházi Khan was taken by capitulation in Biana by one of the Emperor's generals not long after Ibráhím's departure, and the whole family young and old put to death, so that Ibiáhím himself was the only remnant of the race, whose pomp and power, says the historian, is now but n tale 🏝

After leaving his father, Sultan Ibráhím, who was very popular, having collected a considerable force, marched towards Bhatta†, a Hindu principality in the east of Malwa, and attacked Raja Ramchander the native chief, by whom, however, he was defeated, and taken prisoner The Raja treated his prisoner with distinguished courtesy He visited him in person and presented him with honorary presents, allowed him to retain all his tents and the ensigns of loyalty, seated him on his throne, and attended by his native Hindus, waited upon him as his subject. Here Ibráhím remained till after the death of Shujaa oi Sazáwal Khan, the Prince of Malwa, when the Afgháns of the Miána tribe, who had a quarrel with his son and successor Báz Behåder, invited Ibráhím to Ráisen where they had ing seems to be Bhatta, which is a district of Ghara or Garrah in Malwa See Hamilton's Hindostan, vol. 1 p 316, and Gazetteer, sub toce Garrah

^{*} Tar Bed f 175

[†] Bhatta This word is variously written in the manuscripts Dow reads it Bhetah, Briggs, Punna, the MSS of Khafi Khan have Tahta or Thatta The real read-

BOOK VI established themselves, offering to raise him to the throne of Malwa in opposition to their enemy. He joined them, and Durgáwati, the Rámi of Garrah, having been associated in the confederacy, their affairs were for some time prosperous But Báz Beháder having contrived to detach the Rám from the league, Ibráhím, finding that all prospect of success was gone, fled to Orissa, where he remained several years, till that province was conquered by Suleimán Keráni of Bengal, when he waited upon Suleimán, in consequence of a solemn agreement, and was treacherously put to death **
Meanwhile, Hímú, after defeating Sultan Ibráhím at

Hımú joins Muhammed near Kalpi

а н 975

Mundháker, continued his march down the Jamna with the utmost celerity, and joined Adeli Muhammed Shah Súr, the King of Bengal, had spread his detachments over the province of Juánpúr, and he himself had advanced to Chapergháta†, fifteen kos from Kalpi Here the hostile armies lay, divided only by the Jamna, and the Sovereign of Bengal, who had a large and highly equipped army of both horse and foot, with a number of elephants, was prepared to cross the river, and looked forward with confidence to a decisive victory But the sudden and unexpected arrival of Himi changed the face of affairs. The moment he came, he sent his troops across, and fording the river with his elephants, fell on the army of Bengal by surprise. The resistance made was comparatively trifling. The enemy, in the obscurity of the night, could distinguish nothing, and forsook their camp. The slaughter was great among the fugitives. Many Amirs of rank perished. Muhammad himself was never heard of many and the state of the hammed himself was never heard of more. The whole camp, and the property that it contained, became the prey of the conquerors ‡

Defeats and destroys the army of Bengal

Having thus removed another of the competitors for

^{*} Tar Niz f 226, Tab Alb † Chaper-ghat, Akb 92 and f 186, Tar Bed f 176, Kholáset ul Towáríkh, f 286. 145 ‡ Tab Alb and others as above his throne, Adeli returned to Chunár, in order to col- char iv ket i force with which to expel from Hindustán the Humayunat Linperor Humayun, who, after his victory over Schander Delhi Shith at Sirhend, had advanced as far as Della, which he had occupied, while his troops which had been pushed forward had taken possession of Agra and the surrounding provinces The death of Humáyun, which ill death. followed soon after, encreased the anxiety of Adeli to check the my iders, and in a short time Himi was despatched with an army of fifty thousand horse and Himu sent five hundred cleph ints towards. Agra, to take advantage ber of this occurrence, to recover what had been lost, and to expel the invaders from his kingdom

The events that followed will be related more in de-reoccupies tail in the reign of Akber Suffice it to say that, on Delhi. the approach of Himu's army, Schander Ishan Uzbek and the other generals of the Emperor Akber, who had succeeded his fither, sensible that they were unable to resist so powerful a force, retreated to Delhi Himú, hiving occupied Agri, pursued the retreating enemy Near Delhi he was encountered by the governor of that capital, the veteran Terdi Beg, who give him battle, but was defeated and retreated towards the Penjab, leaving Himu in possession of both capitals

The victorious Ilimu now moved out of Delhi with Defeated. all his force, and advanced to Panipit, on the plains of and killed at Panipat which the fate of India has been so often decided The invaders were commanded by Biram Khan, and the youthful Akber In a well contested buttle, the fate of wir was at length unfavourable to Himu, who was wounded in the eye by an arrow, taken prisoner and carried before Akber, and put to death by order of Biram Khan

This battle was decisive of the fate of the Afghan Subversion dynasty After the death of Hunú the fortune of of the Afghán Adeh rapidly declined. Before that event, Khizer dynasty Khan, the son of the late Muhammed Shah Súr, who had been defeated and slain at Chapargháta, having succeeded his father in Gour and assumed the title of Sultan Beháder, collected a large aimy, which he led against Adeli to levenge his father's death, and overlan a portion of the eastern provinces that Adeli still enjoyed. In spite of his character for effeminacy, that prince took the field in person, and met the invader, whom he bravely engaged in a well-contested battle, in which, however, he was unsuccessful and was slain, after a reign of nearly three years

BOOK VI

A D 1556

Defent and denth of Muhammed Shah in Behar

Ilis character after a reign of nearly three years

This depraved effeminate prince, while he seems to have been devoid of every moral excellence, had a refined taste, and was distinguished for his skill in music and dancing. Mian Tansín, the great master of these arts, acknowledged himself his scholar and Báz Beháder, the King of Malwa, and one of the most gifted musicians of his age, ascribed his excellence to the instructions of Adeli. It is added, that he was scrupulously exact in all religious observances, he never omitted the prescribed prayers, and was regular in fasting, and altogether abstained from intoxicating liquois. His body was never found

Ilis son Shír Shah His son Shir Shah is said to have assumed the ensigns of loyalty in the fortress of Chunár upon his death. His leigh was probably short and limited in power, as he has been wholly passed over by most historians.

Remarks on the Afghán dynasty in India, With him ended the Súr dynasty, which rose by the genius of one remarkable man, was sustained by the talents of another, and fell by the ignorance and vices of their successors. It illuminated Hindustán for a short time by its radiance, but its light, says Abulfazl, was only that of the glowworm, which shines in the darkness of the night, during the absence of the real sun, but vanishes as soon as that luminary once more ascends the firmament in its glory

The Afghan dynasty had ruled India about a hundred and six years, reckoning from the accession of Sultan CHAP IV Behlúl Lodi, without making allowance for what may be called the interregnum of Báber and Humáyun, and only twenty-six years since the accession of Shin Shah, and the Súr family

Of the five kings, who at the same moment con- and the five tended for independence in the Afghán empire of India, competitor for the sowe have seen, that Adeli fell in battle, that Sultan vereignt, at Ibiáhím of Biána, after repeated defeats, fled to Malwa, Humsyuns and finally perished in Orissa, and that Sultan Mu-restoration hammed Shah of Bengal, having been slain at Chapergháta, was succeeded by his son Sultan Beháder tan Sekander of the Penjáb, the fourth competitor, having been defeated by Humáyun and Biram Khan at Sirhend, took refuge in the Himaláya mountains, as has been mentioned, and after various transactions, which belong to the reign of Akber, fled to Bengal, where he contrived to seize the reins of government, but soon after died, and was succeeded by Tái Khan Keráni and Suleimán Keráni

competitors the time of

Shujaa or Sazáwal Khan, the fifth, who was the ruler of Malwa, does not seem to have invaded the territories of the Delhi kingdom On his death, which happened about this time, his son Behåder, stripping his brothers of their share of their father's dominions, mounted the throne under the name of Sultan Báz Beháder of Malwa, and held the sovereign power for many years

Such was the fate of the five kings who were contending in the heart of the Afghán empire, when Humáyun returned into India, and whose discord paved the way for the conquest of the country It is now necessary to retrace our steps, and to accompany Humáyun from Kábul in his successful invasion of Hindustán *

^{*} The chief authorities for this chapter are the Tab Akb ff 182-185, Tar Niz. ff 228-226, Akbernama, ff 91, 92, Tar Bedaum, ff 174-176, Ferishta, vol 11 pp 143-152 , iv pp 275, 276 , Kholaset ul Towáríkh, ff 281-286 , Khafi Khan, ff 61-65

BOOK SEVENTH.

HUMÁTUN'S RECONQUEST OF INDIA, AND DEATH

HUYALUN RESOLVES TO ATTEMPT THE RECONQUEST OF INDIA -HIS SUSPICIONS OF BIRAM KHAN - WHO ENTERTAINS HIM MAG-NIFICENTIY AT KANDAHÁR - AND ARRANGES TO ACCOMPANY HIM on his invision — humáyun's preparations at kábul — he IS JOINED BY BIRAM KHAN - SETS OUT ON HIS EXPEDITION, AND REACHES THE INDUS - STATE OF INDIA. - HUMÁYUN CROSSES THE INDUS - OCCUPIES RHOTAS AND THE NORTHERN PENJAB. AND ENTIRS LAHUR - SUCCESSFUL PROGRESS - OCCUPATION OF HEND — CONTINUED DISTRACTIONS IN HINDUSTÁN — BIRAM KHAN CROSSES THE SATLEJ - BATTLE OF MACHIWARA - ADVANCE OF SCHANDER SHAH --- HUMÁYUN SUPPORTS BIRAM --- BATTLE OF SIR-HEND - FLIGHT OF SEKANDER, AND DISPERSION OF HIS FORCES - SHAH ABUL MAAII - DECISIVE EFFECTS OF THE VICTORY AT SIRHEND -HUMÁYUN RI-OCCUPIFS DELIH - DISTRIBUTES THE PRO-VINCES, WHICH ARL RAPIDLY REDUCED - SURRENDER OF BIANA - FREQUENT INSUBORDINATION OF HUMÁYUN'S OFFICERS - REVOLT OF MÍRZA SULEINÁN IN BADAKUSHÁN - MISCONDUCT OF ABUL MAALI IN THE PENJAB - HI IS SUPFRSEDED DY AKBER, WHO EXPELS SEKANDER SHAH - ACCOUNT RECEIVED OF THE DEATH OF HU-MAYUN - HIS PLANS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE FMPIRE -PARTICULARS OF HIS DEATH, WHICH IS FOR A TIMP CONCENALED - ALARM EXCITID BY THIS EVENT - DANGER OF THE ORIGINAL CHARACTER OF HUMÁYUN

BOOK VII

A D 1554 Humby un resolves to attempt the reconquest of India No sooner was Humáyun released from the danger of rebellion and civil war by the blindness and banishment of Kámrán, his only surviving brother, than his mind reverted to his long-cherished wish for the recovery of the throne of Delhi But, before venturing on such an enterprise, it was necessary to secure himself in his kingdom of Kábul and its dependencies, that, while attempting the conquest of India, he might not see himself deprived of his older dominions in the West once into his power, professed the most unlimited devotion to his interests, and comported himself with so much submission and frankness, that he not only entirely removed the Emperor's suspicions, but, by his insinuating address and the sure influence of a strong mind over a weak one, soon regained his usual ascendency over him. Humáyun, faithful to his original plan, still offered Monaim Khan the government of Kandahár, but that honest Minister advised his master on no account to make any such change when about to set out on an expedition of so much importance, but intimated that, if successful in India, it would be in his power to act in regard to Kandahár as he might think proper, and with perfect safety. Humáyun spent the rest of the winter at Kandahár, where Briam Khan entertained him with unostentatious magnificence.

BOOK VII

and arranges to accompany him on his invasion In the spring, Humáyun set out on his return towards Kábul He was accompanied as far as Mukur by Briam Khan, now once more his prime adviser. Sensible, however, of the uncertain tenure by which even the most faithful subject holds his favour when at a distance from the court, and desirous, perhaps, of sharing the danger and the glory of a mighty undertaking, Brain requested that he might be allowed to leave a deputy in the government which he had so long held, and permitted in person to attend his Majesty in the expedition that he meditated. This was readily granted. He returned to Kandahár, to make arrangements for its government in his absence, and to prepare the chosen body of troops with which he was to join the invading army. He prevailed upon the Emperor to remove Terdi Beg Khan from the government of Zemíndáwer, which lay in his neighbourhood, and to

to the office of diwan, the duties of which he had so honestly discharged

^{*} At Kandahár, Humáyun found Khwája Gházi just returned from a mission to Persia, and restored him

BOOK VII

AD 1554

A 11 962 end of Moharem

Sefer 6, Dec. 31,

and reaches

reinforcements which were daily arriving Humáyun, on reaching Júi-sháhi, embarked on a raft, was floated down the Kábul river, and reached Pesháwer in the latter part of December, when he loaded Sekander Uzbek with praises for his gallant defence of the place and raised him to the rank of Khan. On the last day of the year 1554 his standard waved on the banks of the Indus, where he halted three days, and was joined by Biram Khan and the rest of the aimy from Kábul; at the same moment that he received with surprise the gratifying intelligence that Tátár Khan Kási, the Afghán governor of the northern part of the Penjáb, on hearing of his march, had abandoned the fort of Rhotas, the strongest in the Penjáb, of which it was regarded as the northern bulwark, and had retired with his whole force to the south

State of India Indeed no moment could have been more favourable for an invasion of India Selím Shah, a vigorous prince, had now been dead about a year, and had been succeeded by Adeli, whose accession, we have seen, was the signal for general revolt and rebellion. Four competitors for the throne of Delhi had appeared among the Afgháns, each possessed of a large extent of country and of a powerful army. The whole empire of Delhi was one scene of civil war and of intestine confusion. The capital itself had been repeatedly taken and retaken. Ahined Khan, the Afghán governor of Láhúr, who, under the title of Sekander Shah, was one of the candidates for the throne, had carried away the army of the Penjáb to Delhi, so that the province was left without troops for its defence, and the garrisons had been withdrawn or neglected while Sekander was at a distance, busily employed in playing the greater game of Delhi. The retreat of Tátár Khan from Rhotas was, therefore, probably only a measure of prudence or necessity. Humáyun crossed the Indus unopposed on the 2nd of January 1555, and pursued

Sefer 8 A D 1555 Jan 2 his march by Perhali, through the country of the Gikers He invited Sultan Adam Gaker, the chief of Humbyun that hardy tribe, to join him, but the Sultan, with crosses the Indus many protestitions of attachment, excused himself, illeging that he had most unwillingly been compelled to enter into a treaty with Schander Shah before that prince set out on his expedition against Delhi, and had given him his son as a hostage for its due observince. Humayun, believing that he was well disposed towards the family of Baber, and erger to push on, left him behind, with joy took possession of the fortress of Rhotas, which he found deserted, passed the Occupies Jolem and the Chenab, and, without striking a blow, the North saw himself mister of all the northern part of the ern Penjab Peniab

On arriving at Kilánúr, between the Rávi and the Biah, Humáyun divided his forces, despitching a strong body under Biram Khan and Teidi Beg to attick Nasib Khin, an Afghán general who liv encamped near Harhana", while he himself directed his march to the e upital, Lahur, which, being ab indoned on his approach, and Lahur he entered on the 21th of Lebruary, and was received Rebiti 2 with every demonstration of joy by the inhabitants

Feb 24

Not long after his arrival, Humayun, learning that a successful large body of Afghans† was near Dibálpúr, desprtched Shih Abul Maali with eight hundred horse to beat up

* This town is variously called Harlina, Harinhana, and Hariana, and seems to have lain between Kil inur and Jalindher

† The Muhammedan historians in general give the command of this army to Shahbiz Ishan and Nasir Ishan Touber represents it as led by Umer Ishan Gaker, who had collected it about Multan, and was marching towards Firuzpur to join the Afghan army on the south of Satley I his is not improbable, and the orthodox historians may have dropt the name of the Gaker as a semi-barbarian In the action, Abul Marli, who had rushed into the midst of the enemy and was surrounded, was saved only by the gallant exertions of Ali Kuli Sistam (afterwards Ichn Zeman), his eccond in command, who penetrated the masses of the enemy, shouting out the takeber, or Musulman war ery, and brought him off Akbernama, ff 92, 93, Jouher, 29, 30

BOOK VII their quarters Abul Maali, a brave but arrogant and presumptuous youth, and the especial favourite of Humáyun, charged them without hesitation, though they were found, it is said, to amount to twelve thousand men, and after a short but well contested action, defeated and dispersed them, taking their whole baggage, women and families. This victory, being the first gained in the campaign, was vauntingly extolled by Abul Maali and his partizans, and served still more to feed his already mordinate vanity.

Meanwhile, Biiam Khan pushed on to Harhána, which, after a slight skirmish, was given up, and much valuable plunder, as well as the wives and families of the Afghans, fell into his hands The prisoners were all set at liberty, and the women and children were collected and sent under the protection of an escort to Nasíb Khan, in consequence of a vow made by Humáyun, that if providence restored to him the sovereignty of India, he would allow no men who were servants of God to be made captives of man Several of the elephants and some of the more valuable property were sent, as was the custom, to be presented to the Emperoi

Biram now advanced to Jalindher, where the Afgháns had taken up a position but no sooner did he come near them than they again retreated "for such," says Abdal Káder, "was the terior which the Afgháns at Abdal Rader, "was the terror which the Afghans at this time entertained of the Moghuls, that, though they were thousands in number, if they saw the approach of but half a score of big turbans, though they might perhaps belong only to Láhúris, they instantly turned and took to flight, without looking behind them." In the present instance, the Afghans not only escaped with their lives, but carried off their baggage. This they were enabled to do, through an altercation that occurred in the imperial camp and the consequences of which, at a future time, were very important. Abulfazl tells us, that Terdi Beg was desirous to have pursued and brought the Afghins to action, but that Briam Khan did not approve of that movement, and refused to give orders for carrying it into effect. Terdi Beg, believing that a pursuit would complete the destruction of the enemy, sent Biltu Khan to Biram, with instructions to leave no means untried to induce him to follow the retreating enemy. Bultin accordingly delivered his messige when Khwaji Morzem Sultan, a wrong-headed mm Akbers uncle who happened to be present, rudely interfered and even proceeded to use insulting language, which Biltu in anger retiliated. On this the Khwaja, di iwing his sword aimed a blow it Baltu, and struck him on the um Hum yun no sooner heard of the occurrence than he assued a firman committing the examinition of the whole affair to a confidential officer, who hastening to Buam Khan's camp, by the use of his Myesty's name and by his own advice and concihatory manners, succeeded in pacifying, at least in appearance the angry Amer- Buam, who seems to have proposed hilting for some time in the Penjib cantoned his troops in Julindhei and the neighbourhood, and dis tributed the adjoining districts among his officers. But Schander Uzbek, who commanded the advance, and was stationed at Machiwara on the Satley, finding what he regarded as a favourable opportunity, crossed the river, and pushing forward took possession of the important town of Sirhend Biram, whose bravery was tempered Occupation of Sirhend. by prudence, and who seems to have been desirous to secure the country that had been gained and to concentrate his force, highly disapproved of this movement as being too much in advance, and the event seemed to justify his views

^{*} Akb ff 92, 93, Tab Akb Tar Bed f 188, Jouher, c 29, f 167, Tar Niz ff 201, 205, 30

VOL II LL

BOOK VII

A b 1555 Continued distractions in Hindus

While Humáyun thus overran the Penjáb, civil war continued to rage in Hindustán, which was wasted by the armies of various pretenders, and became the scene of the wildest anarchy Delhi, the ancient capital, and the point nearest to the invaders, had repeatedly changed masters Sekander Shah*, the late governor of the Penjab, was now in possession of it He had lately defeated Sultan Ibráhím, one of his competitors, and was preparing to march from Atáwa against Sultan' Adeli, another of them, when he heard of Humáyun's invasion and success The danger was pressing Not only was the Penjab the province from which his troops were chiefly drawn, and on which he most relied for support, but the victorious standards of Humáyun might be expected soon to wave on the towers of Delhi itself Sekander, therefore, was compelled to divide his army, and while, with the main body of it, he continued his operations against Adeli, he despatched a strong reinforcement to support Tátár Khan, who had now retreated out of the Penjab in the direction of Delhi, instructing him to march back, and crush, or at least keep in check, the invading army Tátár Khan, thus reinfoiced, advanced at the head of 30,000 men towards Suhend His approach induced Sekander Uzbek to abandon that place, and to retreat across the Satley to Jalindher, a movement for which he was severely censured by Biram, who regarded such a retrograde motion as ill-timed, and told him that, having advanced, however improperly, he ought to have maintained his post at Sirhend to the last, and sent to him for instructions

Biram Khan crosses the Satlej Without loss of time, Biram Khan now collected his troops, and proceeded against the enemy. On reaching Máchíwára, Terdi Beg and some others of the generals were against passing the Satlej at that time, as the

^{*} Ahmed Khan Sur, the governor Sultan Sekander He is also often of the Penjab, assumed the style of called Sekander Shab

1 mm serson was close at hand, and advised merely guarding the ferries and fords, and acting on the detensive till the monsoon was over Buam, on the other hand, was for crossing without delay, and he was not a man whose plans were easily to be thwarted His high expectly, his bold and determined spirit, and his discriminating pationage of ment, had brought about him a numerous puty, absolutely devoted to his interests. By great exertions, in which he was zerlously assisted by his partisms, he succeeded in transporting his division icross the river, and now, the sifety of the whole being compromised, Terdi Beg and the others saw themselves compelled to follow, however unwillingly?

The Afghans, who had already reached the banks Battle of of the river, and were preparing bundles of reeds to form rifts for crossing, on henring of this operation, and finding that Buram's army was very inferior in numbers to then own, resolved to engage them bittle begin towards evening Biram's troops, which he had driwn up nen the river, remuned firm on then ground, keeping up a discharge of arrows, till it grew duk, when they were forced to intermit it But a house having taken fire in a village that formed a large portion of the Afghan lines, the confliguition spread to the surrounding huts most of which were roofed with striw, and soon extended over the whole village 1 un's men were now enabled by the flames to see every motion of their enemies, and to take deliberate aim, so that all then arrows told, while those of the Afghans were discharged at random into the darkness around The Afghans continued, nevertheless, for some time,

* Many of them were Persians or Persian Turks, as Kasim Khan Nishapuri, Haider-kuli Beg Shimlu, &c The motley nature of Humiyun's army may be conceived from the tribes of the four generals commanding the divisions, Biram Khan was a Persian Turk, Khizer Khan Hazara an Afghan Hazara, Terdi Beg Ishan was a Turk of Lerghann, and Sekander Khan an Uzbek bravely to maintain their ground, but at length, harassed and worn out by the unequal contest, they took to flight, and resigned the field Next day, Birain resumed his march, and soon occupied Sirhend without opposition Humáyun, delighted with this important victory, honoured Biram Khan with the title of Khan-Khánán, Yar Vafádár (Lord of Lords, the Faithful Friend), and his army was, soon after, strengthened by reinforcements sent by the Emperor*

Advance of) Sekander Shah.

When the news of this discomfiture reached Sekander Shah, giving up every other enterprise, he collected the whole of his force, to check the progress of a torrent from which he had so much to diead With an aimy of 70,000 horse, a number of war-elephants, and a strong train of artillery, he marched for the Penjáb. On hearing of his approach, Biram Khan, whose army was still far from numerous t, despatched repeated expresses to Humáyun, who still remained at Láhúr, representing to him the urgent necessity of his hastening to his relief with the rest of the troops, and, in the meantime, he raised strong entrenchments round his camp, to enable him to keep his ground at Sirhend until the reinforcements arrived

Humávun supports Biram.

Rejeb 7 ! May 28

Humáyun was confined by sickness when he received Bnam's letters, but immediately despatched his son Akber, with a large body of troops, to his assistance, and, a few days after, was well enough to follow them On reaching Suhend, he found that Sekander Shah had already arrived, and had been a fortnight before the place, that he had strongly fortified his camp with ditch and parapet, "according to the practice of Shir Shah," and had made daily attacks on the imperial troops, who kept behind their trenches Humáyun

† Jouher says, it consisted of only

700 or 800 men, meaning, perhaps, northern men or Persians

The night of the 7th Rejeb, may have been the night of the 27th May ^{*} Albernama, ff 94, 95, Tar N1z ff 204, 205, Tar Bed 189, Jouher, c 31, Bayezid, ff 79, 80, Ferishta, vol 11 pp 174, 175, Khafi Khan established his head-quarters in a garden near the town, and for some time, skirmishes and single combats duly took place, conducted with much binvery and more courtesy than was usual in that age and country, the wounded and the slam being given up to their friends Great apprehensions of the result were, however, entertuned in Humáyun's camp, the number of fighting men in which is represented as amounting to only five thousand

Seeing that it was necessary to supply defect of numbers by increased activity and energy, Humiyun resolved to attempt cutting off the supplies of the Afgh in eamp, a system of innoyance which he had so successfully employed against Behåder Shah of Gujrát, I or carrying into effect a plan of camat Mandsur pugn, apparently so unsuitable to his diminutive force, he must have trusted to the great superiority of his Turks, Moghuls, and other northern men over the troops of his adversiry, whether in forgys or in combating man to man Terdi Beg was appointed to execute the details. He soon interrupted their communications, intercepted a large convoy of provisions, deteiting a detichment under one of Schander Shah's brothers, whom he slew, and brought back to the camp his binner and the insignia of his dignity. This action Battle of seems to have drawn the enemy from their trenches, to support and bring off the detachment, and, the engagement spreading from one division to another, brought on a general battle of the whole line sooner than was anticipated The Afghans directed the violence of their attack against Buam Khan's division, hoping that if it, which was understood to be the strongest, was defeated, they would more easily break the others But Buam, when attacked, retued into the works which he had thrown up in front of his encampment, and stood on the defensive, and the enemy were unable to force his position Meanwhile book an

A D 1555

Humáyun, seeing that Biram was able to maintain his ground, ordered the division under Shah Abul Maali and Terdi Beg to charge the attacking enemy in flank and rear, which was done with such effect that their whole army, now said to amount to nearly an hundred thousand men, soon became a mass of confusion, dispersed and fled from the field, leaving behind their whole baggage, field equipage and artillery. The battle was fought on the 22nd day of June, the summer solstice, during the rainy monsoon. The wind and rain, which happened then to be excessive, soon relaxed the pursuit. Sekander Shah escaped from the field of battle, and, with much personal danger, found his way to that part of the Sewálik mountains that skirts the Penjáb.

Shaban 2 June 22

Flight of Schander and dispertion of his forces

Shah Abul Maali

Hardly was the din of battle over, when a contest arose between Shah Abul Maali and Biram Khan upon the question to whom, in the official account, the honour of the victory should be ascribed. The young man who thus put forward his pretensions in opposition to the Khan Khánán, had been introduced to Humáyun only four years before, but had suddenly risen to the highest place in his favour. He was from Káshghar, but claimed descent from the celebrated Káshghai, but claimed descent from the celebrated saintly family of the Syeds of Turmez, was brave, enterprising and accomplished, but presumptuous and insolent. A striking instance of his bold contempt of authority had lately occurred at Kandahár. Shír Ali Khan had, without leave, quitted the service of Shah Tahmasp, in which he was Mír shikári, or giand huntsman, and entered that of Humáyun. Abul Maali, a keen Shía, intoxicated with religious zeal, and desirous of gratifying the Persian king, descended, like himself, of a religious family, boasted publicly, and even in the Emperor's presence, that he would put the tinitor to death wherever he met him. The Emperor, regulding this threat as a mere idle bravado, took no meisures to protect the fugitive One night, however, the borster did execute his threat, and assassinated Humayun, though he felt his authority insulted, yet, seduced by his partiality for the criminal, not only did not bring him to punishment, but soon after raised him to offices of the highest trust, made him the chosen prittier of all his pleasures, and familimity addressed him as, "My son" On the present occasion, the young fivourite, confident in his master's partiality, demanded that his name should occupy the most conspicuous place in the official announcement of the victory, under pretence that he had not only gained the first success in the campaign, but had had the most share in the present battle. The veteran Buam Khan, on the other hand, claimed that honour, as having had the management of the whole plan of the campaign, as well as having been the first to invade the enemy's country, which he had overiun and occupied Any formal decision of the question was evaded by bestowing the distinction contended for upon Akber, whose claim neither of the competitors was likely to dispute

^{*} Ut supra, and Khol ul Tow ff 286, 287

The battle was quite decisive No enemy any longer pecisive appeared in the field A pillar of heads was elected the victors. The Emperor despatched Sekander Uzbek towards Delhi, to clear the road to the capital, and himself followed, with the main body of the aimy, as fai as Samana, where, finding that Sultan Sekander had not retreated towards Hindustán, but had taken shelter in the highlands of Sewálik, whence he might threaten the low country of the Penjab, he halted, and sent back Shah Abul Maalı with a strong detachment to Jalindher, to keep him in check, and to hinder him from raising his old province in the rear of the advancing

The whole resources of the Penjab were placed Humayun had not remained long at Samana to find shelter from the heavy rains which were falling, and to rest and refresh his troops, when despatches reached at Abul Maali's disposal rest and refresh his troops, when despending to him from Sekander nin non Schanger Uzuek, who had have to the capital Delhi without opposition, earnestly unging to the capital Delhi without advantages, and to repair to his advantages, He accordingly out his advantages, without loss of time BOOK VII army without loss of time against and accordingly put his troops A D 1555 in motion, and on the 23rd of July once more ascended The first act of his government Was to distribute the throne of Delhi, in the imperial city " the provinces among his retainers the crown, he though not yet reduced, he reserved to the crown, he though not yet reduced, he reserved to the crown, he though not yet reduced, he reserved to the crown, he then the crown the assigned to Akber, as being the province which he harmant had received from Exhant when the province the province the province which he assigned to account from Exhant when he are the horizont from Exhant when he are the province the provi Hamáyan assigned to Akuer, as nemy when he first entered when he first entered from Baber, when he first entered argument of the compared of the compa reoccupies India Sirbend and some other districts were granted.

Toda Ricca R Delhl. Ramzán, 4 to Biram Khan, in addition to Kandahar, Which he still July 23 w Diram Ruan, in manifest the Penjab, Terdi Beg held, Shah Abul Maah got the Penjab, Toront There held Morret Distributes Khan had Mewat, which was not yet conquered, And Mewat, which was not yet conquered. the pro-Rumin man mewan, without was now yet conquered, Ali kander Uzbek was sent forward to occupy Agra, can kander Uzbek was sent forward to occupy. 1Inces Kuli Sistani was despatched to reduce Mirat and Sam-Null Distant was despatched to reduce mirat and Dambhal, and Haider Muhammed Khan, akhteh-begi (grand-bhal, and Haider Muhammed Khan, The Emperor that fort marshal) was sent against bood granters in the fort self remained stationary at head-quarters in the fort sen remained standary at near-years of his arms, and of Delhi, to watch over the progress of his arms, and The different Provinces fell rapidly into his hands the general settlement of the country Ilisát-Firúza surrendered after a short siege made no resistance

Transaction of the state pieu by one Rainber Divana, a man of popular talents, who singular habits, but brave and of popular to home home singular maples, but brave and appears to have been acknowledged the Emperor, and appears to have offen acknowledged the Emperor, and appears to Bistam, after recognized by him as Governor and a start and a second a Rapld rerecognized by min as Governor An Aur Sistam, which had been taking Possession of Mirat and Sambhal, which had been duction of the Pro-~!uccs * Akbernama, ff 91-95, Tab Akb ff 167, 168, Jouher, c 32

assigned to him, attacked Kamber, who was hated by the Amirs of family, and having taken Bedaun by stratagem and treachery, put him to death, and pretending ignorince of the Emperor's wishes, sent his head to Humáyun, who, though he felt and professed much displeasure, left the culprit unpunished *

While these events were passing to the eastward, surrender Haider Muhammed marched to reduce Biána, his new government That important fort had long been in possession of Gházi Khan Súr, one of the most eminent and powerful of the Afghán chiefs, whose son Ibráhím Shah was one of the five princes who, at the same moment, were contending for the sovereign authority in this distracted country We have seen that Ibráhím was defeated, and expelled from Delhi and Agra by Sultan Sekander, after which, he was defeated at Kalpi, and blockaded for three months in Biána itself, by Himi, the Hindu Minister of Adeli When relieved from this danger by the retreat of Hímú, who was called away to Behái to oppose an invasion of the King of Bengal, Ibráhím, having made an attack upon Bhatta in Malwa, was defeated and taken prisoner, and now remained in captivity in the hands of the Raja of that country His father, Gházi Khan, did not attempt to resist Haider Muhammed in the field, but retired into his strong fortress, where for some time he successfully defended himself, but finally entered into a capitulation, and surrendered the fort, under the most solemn

* The history of Kamber Diwana is related at considerable length by the contemporary historians Kuli was entirely devoted to Biram, and the whole proceedings against Kamber have much the appearance of one of the violent acts of Biram, who probably, considering his occupation of the country and eccentric doings to be inconsistent with regular government, contrived to effect his ruin, without appearing directly to thwart the Emperor Kamber was buried in Bedaun, and his tomb was frequented as a place of pilgrimage down to a late period, by the lower classes, among whom his reputation and popularity were very great See Akbernáma, f 96, Tab Akb f 168, Tar Bedaum, f 191, Briggs's, Ferishta, vol ii p 177

л д. 1555

BOOK VII assurances of personal safety No sooner, however, had Gházi Khan marched out, than Haider, burning with eageiness to possess the wealth which Biana was known to contain, shamefully violated his agreement, and put him to death with all his family, even to the children at the breast Humáyun, incensed at this act of perfidious cruelty, which he justly ascribed to avarice, instantly commissioned an officer of his household, known in the next reign as Sheháb-ed-dín Ahmed Khan, to proceed to Biána, to supersede Haider Muhammed in his government, and to place all his property under sequestration, which was done, but not before Haider had succeeded in embezzling some of the most valuable of Gházi Khan's jewels, substituting inferior ones in their place It must be allowed that the return of Humáyun into India was marked by many instances of insubordination and iapacity on the part of his officers They seem to have come back, thirsting after the riches of the land from which they had so long been banished, and eager to retrieve the time they had lost A stronger arm and a firmer purpose than Humáyun's were necessary, to restore the discipline of his hardy, but rapacious, followers

Trequent insubordination of Humáyun's officers.

> While Humáyun was thus making extensive conquests in Hindustán, he suffered some loss of territory in the north We have seen that when he finally regained Kábul by the aid of Mírza Suleimán, that prince, by grant or by connivance, had added Kunduz, and several other provinces beyond the mountains, to his own principality of Badakhshán The neighbouring districts of Anderáb and Ishkemish were the jágír of Terdi Beg, for whom they were held by Mokim Khan, as his lieutenant They lay temptingly for the Mirza, who endeavoured to add them to his dominions by corrupting the fidelity of Mokim Failing in this attempt, he threw off the mask, and besieged him in Anderáb Unprepared for such an attack, Mokim contrived, nevertheless, to escape from Revolt of Mirza Suleimán in Badakhshán.

the fort which he could not defend, and succeeded in fighting his way to the hills, whence he returned to Kabul

But the most important transactions of this period Misconduct were those of the Penjab When the Emperor marched of Abul from Lahur to oppose Sultan Sekander, he commit- the Penjah ted the management of the province to Feikhat Khan as hákim or governor, with suitable officers to support him After the battle of Sirhend, when Sultan Sekander was threatening the Penjab from the Sewálik hills, to which he had fled, Humayun, as we have seen, sent Shah Abul Maali to command the army opposed to him, with orders to proceed to Jalindher, and there to estrblish his head-quarters, to watch the Sultan's motions, and to prevent his entiring the low country Scarcely, however, had Abul Maali reached the Penjab, when his native airogince exceeded even its usual bounds assumed the deportment and pomp of a prince, acted in every respect like an absolute sovereign, and so despotically, as to disgust and alarm all the officers of govern-Instead of remaining at Jalindhei, as he had been ordered, he proceeded to Láhúr The Emperor's officers in authority there, having consulted together, agreed not to admit him into the city but this resolution was not acted upon, and he speedily usurped all

* Bapus Khan was made foujdar or military collector, Mirza Shah Sultan, Amin or civil administrator, and Mehter Jouher (the Memoirwriter, and lately Humayun's ewerbearer), treasurer of the Penjab and Mult in Some time before this, Humayun had appointed Jouher to be collector of Haibatpur-pati circumstances attending his introduction, when taking leave on setting out for his district, are illustrative both of the character of Humayun, and of the state of the public service "My lad," said Humayun,

"listen to what I say, -A Moghul having been sent from the camp on a duty similar to yours, took two blankets from a Jat, and seeing the man's surprise, exclaimed, 'What, you rascal, am I not come to collect ? ' On hearing this insinuation, continues the ewer-bearer, I replied, that having had the advantage of pouring water on his Majesty's hands, for so many years, I would acquit myself with credit and honour The Emperor replied, " Good comes of good, and evil of evil Joulier's Mem c 29

A D 1555

the powers of the government. Humáyun, however, partial to his favorite, for a long time would listen to none of the complaints preferred against him, till he found that he had gone so far as to displace Ferkhat Khan, the Emperor's governor of Láhúr, and to put a creature of his own in his place, and that he was squandering, with the wildest extravagance, the imperial treasure, and the revenues of the country At length, the Emperor was plainly told that Abul Maali undoubtedly aimed at independence, an imputation in that turbulent age by no means improbable. To add to the other evils, Sultan Schander, who hitherto had remained at Mánkót, collecting an army and taking into his pay all the mercenanes that were to be found, finding every check withdrawn, poured down his whole force into the Pennib Yet such was Humayun's delicacy to the feelings of his favorite, that he superseded him only by giving the Penjab to Akber, under the pretence that, as the imperial harem was about to pass through that country, he was the most proper person to be in command Abul Maali was nominated to the charge of the imperial domain of Hissái Firúza, which had been held by Akber, so that he seemed merely to have exchanged governments with the prince

He 14 8uperseded by Prince Akber

Beginning of A II 963 End of A D 1555 But while the nominal authority in the Penjáb was given to the youthful Akber, the efficient power was vested in the stern Buran Ishan, who attended him as his atálík or protector. It was about the end of the year when the prince and his governor set out. On reaching Sirhend, the object of Akber's coming being well understood, he was joined not only by the troops from Hissár, but by many imperial officers of the highest rank, serving in the Penjáb under Abul Maali, who came uncalled and without leave, the prince's approach being hailed as a fortunate relief from the extremities to which they were driven by the favorite's overbearing and tyrannical conduct. They were all graciously received, and the army being increased by the arrival of several bodies of troops from the neighbouring districts, proceeded across the Satler to Sultánpúr on the Bíah

The unmilitary movement of Abul Maali from Jalindher to Láhúr having left the low country along the hills defenceless, Sultan Sekander, having descended into the plains, was enabled to occupy, and collect the revenues of the perganas, to a considerable distance around Abul Maali, never deficient in bravery or in spirit, assembled the troops that were nearest Lahur, and advanced towards the enemy by slow marches, to give time to those at a distance to join him He gained some advantages in the field, but as soon as Akber's approach was known, he was deserted by his principal officers, to whom he had become odious He, therefore, retreated to Láhúr, whence being summoned to attend the prince, he found himself compelled, most unwillingly, to wait upon him at Sultánpúr, not long after his airival He was coldly received, but, humbled as he was, his presumption did not desert him Akber, from considelation for his father's partiality to the Syed, invited him to dinner, graciously pointed out to him his seat, and treated him, as his guest, with all politeness and attention On his return home from the party, he had the insolence to send a message to Akber, to say, that the prince was no stranger to the relation in which he stood to Humáyun, reminding him that when he dined publicly with the Emperor at the ring-hunt of Júi-Sháhi, the prince himself had seen that he sat on the same cushion, and eat out of the same dish with the Emperor, while the prince waited by, and dined afterwards on a portion sent to him whereas at the recent dinner, he had been placed on an ordinary rug, and served from a separate tray The prince, smiling, bad the messenger go back and express his surprise that Abul Maah could not distinguish between the becoming etiquette of princes, and the familiarity of private attachment, and

A D 1556

Who ex pels Sekander Shah

Account re celved of the death of Humáyun that, moreover, his pretensions betrayed an extreme ignorance of their relative situations. Abul Maali's Akbei, soon after, put his mortification was extreme army in motion, and attempted to come up with Sultan Sekander, who, on hearing of his approach, retreated into his mountain recesses, and once more pitched his camp at Mánkót

The army had reached Hariána in its advance, when it was overtaken by a messenger bringing Biram Khan information of an alarming accident that had befallen the Emperor, which rendered it inexpedient to move farther onward, or to commence active operations and the march of the army was directed on Kılánúr, to await the result As they approached that place, another express arrived bringing a despatch, said to be written by orders of the Emperor himself immediately after his accident, and giving good hopes of his speedy recovery But a third followed close after, with the authentic accounts of his death

Humáyun's empire

From the time when Humáyun arrived in Delhi, he plans for the government of the affairs of his kingdom, and to watching the progress of the armies which he had sent in various directions to neduce different provinces He saw clearly that there were great defects in the system of government of the empire, and set himself to devising means of improving It The plan which he projected was to separate the empire into several great divisions, each of them to have a local capital, and a board of administration for directing local affairs Delhi, Agra, Kanáuj, Juánpúr, Mándu, and Láhúr were among the capitals pitched upon To each of them was to be assigned a considerable military force, under an able general, so as to render it independent of assistance from the others, while the Emperor was to give unity to the whole, by visiting them in turn with an army of about twelve thousand horse, which were to be under his own imme-

A D 1556

faithful to evening prayer, and was preparing to sit down, out of respect, till the call was over, when his foot became entangled in the skirt of his mantle *, and the marble steps being smooth and slipperyt, his staff slid, so that he lost his footing, was precipitated forward, and lighted on his head on the ground below He was taken up insensible, was found to have received many bruises on his body, but in particular a violent contusion on the right temple, and a quantity of blood was observed to have oozed from his right ear According to some accounts, he for a time recovered his speech He lingered four days, being the greater part, or the whole of the time, in a state of insensibility, and expired on the evening of the 24th of January, in the forty-eighth year of his age, after a reign of lather

Rebl L 11 Jan 24

more than twenty-five years I

Which is for a time concealed

The heir apparent being at a distance, the great Amírs who possessed the chief influence very much dispersed, and the army still surrounded by formidable enemies, it was resolved by the nobles who were on the spot, to conceal this event till the suitable arrangements could be made Expresses were immediately despatched to inform Akber of his father's death, and to call a meeting of the principal officers The more effectually to lull suspicion, one Múlla Bekasi was dressed up in the imperial vestments, and presented to the public at the usual times, in an open gallery of the palace on the side next the river, which had been the late Emperor's

* Postin

† "The stairs" we are told by Mr Elphinstone (History of India, vol n p 175), "in such situations are narrow steps on the outside of the building, and only guarded by an ornamental parapet about a foot high,' - " so that the King fell headlong over the parapet"

‡ Abulfazl, Jouher, and Ferishta make his death happen on the 11th

Rebi I the Tabakát-e Akberi, followed by the Taríkh-e Bedáum, on the 15th Abulfazl (f 98) says that the Emperor, after his accident, sent a letter to Akber by Názir Sheikh Joli to inform him that he was doing well but this was probably a mere official intimation, issued for political purposes by those about his person favourite sent, and where he was accustomed to receive the salutations of his subjects, who assembled in crowds For seventeen days the truth was unknown in Delhi. At last, on the tenth day of February, Terdi Rebi I 28 Beg, who officiated on the occasion as Amir-al-omia, a dignity to which he aspired, throwing off the mask, and attended by all the Amiis of the surrounding districts who had repaired to head quarters, proceeded to the Grand Mosque, and caused the prayer for the Emperor to be recited in the name of Akber

The announcement of the Emperor's death, circum- Alarm exstanced as affairs then were, produced great alarm and this event. excitement all over the country, which the nobles, assembled at Delhi, used every means in their power to allay When the rites and ceremonies attending the sepulture and mourning for the Emperor were over, the leading Amírs hastened, each to his own government, to watch over the current of events, and to confirm the minds both of their own followers and of the natives of the country in their adherence to the new government Terdi Beg Khan, as the most eminent of the ancient nobility and governor of Delhi, by a kind of election or recognition of the Amírs who were on the spot, assumed the general direction of affairs One of his first acts was to send the insignia of empire with the crown jewels to the young Emperor, accompanied by the officers of the household, the imperial guards, and Mírza Abul-Kásím, the son of the late Kámrán Mírza, whose close alliance to the throne now made him an object of jealousy The crisis was one of the Danger of deepest importance, for at that moment the conquest the crisis. of India could be considered as only begun and three formidable rivals contended with the youthful Akber for the throne of Delhi *

M M VOL II

^{*} Akbernáma, ff 98, 99, Tar 178 , Tar Bedaum, ff 189-192 , Nizami, ff 205, 206, Jouher, kholáset ul Towáríkh, f 288, c SS, Ferishta, vol 11 pp 177, Kháfi Khan

BOOK VII

The leal character of Humayun may be better gleaned from the events of his reign than from the Character of influenced, not only by that reverence with which Orientals regard the sovereign authority, but by natural respect for the princes, his descendants, uncommendants A D 1556 whom they wrote. He was a man of great quickness of parts, but volatile, thoughtless and unsteady Personally of distinguished bravery, he was occasionally successful in war, without possessing the higher talents of a general In the earlier part of his reign, seconded by the veteran officers and well-trained army which his father had left him, he overran, first, the kingdoms of Malwa and Gujrát, and next those of Behar and Bengal, very important and glorious acquisitions, but, destitute of those powers of combination which are as necessary for consolidating and retaining a conquest as bravery and a well-disciplined army are for making it, he was compelled to abandon them all, and the great part of his reign presented a series of reverses, rebellions and anarchy, the fruit of his want of political firmness and determination His disposition was naturally generous, friendly and affectionate, his manners polite, frank and winning He had a ready wit, excelled in repartee, and, from the anecdotes by his ewer-bearer and other writers, seems to have been considerate to his servants, and popular in his intercourse with the lower classes But, though Haider Mirza, an excellent judge, speaks with much respect of his accomplishments, and of his talents and deportment as a prince, yet his generosity, guarded by no resolute sense of duty or steady feelings of self-respect, degenerated into prodigality, his attachments into weakness, and hence, down to the day of his death, he was the prey of flatterers and favourites From his father he inherited a fondness for literature and the arts, and he delighted in the society of literary and scientific men. Like many of the eminent personages of his age, he was not only an admirer of poetry, but lumself a writer of verses, and Abulfazl mentions that complete diwan of his composition was in the library or his son * He is also said to have made no inconsiderable progress in mathematics and astronomy liberally patronised such as were eminent in these sciences, and promoted several of them to offices of trust. At the time of his death he was about to construct an observatory, and had collected the necessary instruments for that purpose † But a fatality seemed to attend even his merits. His astronomical knowledge was directed chiefly to the frivolous or pernicious doctrines of astrology and the occult sciences, and the course of his policy, as well as the actions of his oidinary life, was too often regulated by an absurd and child sh attention to signs, omens and superstitious observances 1

An incident that occurred in his early years exercised a considerable influence on his mind. Going one day a-hunting with his tutor, Humáy un proposed to take an omen as to the fortune of his future life, from the names of the three first persons he should meet. The tutor suggested that he might content himself with the first alone, but the prince kept to his purpose. It happened, we are told, whether accidentally or by pre-arrangement, that the first was a decrepted old man called Murád (Desne), the second, a man driving an ass lorded with firewood, was Doulat (Dominion), the third, who was found tending some cattle, was Saadet

ing house or mosque, put his left foot first, and if he observed any of his attendants do so, he called him left-handed, and made him go back, and advance again. Lar Bed

^{*} Specimens of his poetry are given by Perishta and Khafi Khan, and may be found scattered over the works of other historians

[†] Akbernama, f 100

[#] He never, in entering or leav-

A n 1556

BOOK VII (Good Fortune, or Success); a coincidence which delighted the prince, and from which he was led confidently to augur the accomplishment of his aspirations for extended sovereignty. The impression thus made on him induced him, when on the throne, to institute an arbitrary classification of his whole court and household under three heads. His brothers and other near relations, his Amírs and officers of state, with all the military, he classed as Ahil-e doulat, or men of dominion, their aid being necessary for the attainment and exercise of power Doctors and men learned in the law, divines, syeds and religious men, múllas, poets, and such as were skilled in the sciences and arts, were ranked as Ahil-e-saadet, men of good fortune, as their presence was supposed to bring as well as to intimate the existence of prosperity, while the beautiful and elegant females of his domestic establishment, singers, musicians, dancers and other ministers of enjoyment, were the Ahil-e-murád, the objects of desire, as affording the means of elegant and sensual gratification.

These arrangements he mingled with his astrological fancies * He constructed an extensive pavilion, in the principal hall of which the revolutions of the spheres, the place of each constellation, especially the signs of the Zodiac and the course of the planets, were represented It contained also seven spacious apartments, each called by the name of one of the days of the week and of its presiding planet. These were richly fitted up with carpets and hangings, of the colour which custom had appropriated to the presiding star of each day, two of these apartments, with two days of the week, being devoted to each of the three before-are very ancient. See Pocock's Specimen Hist. Arabum, pp 143—150, Oxon 1806 See also the Dabistáne Mozáhib, and the Desátír

^{*} The astrological fancies entertained by Humáyun, and the doctrines regarding the chapels of the planets, and the corresponding dresses, mansions, days and seasons.

BOOK VIII

other professing to forward the means of redress, was commendable, and might be useful. But its revival in a more advanced age betrays an extreme want of legislative skill, and it must be confessed that in this, as in many other of Humáyun's regulations that have been noticed, there is a great want of plain practical sense, a pedantic application of inapplicable learning, and too great an appearance of playing at kings

He was a good Mussulman, rigid in the observance of the stated prayers and ceremonial of the law. He was, however, strongly suspected of leaning to the Shía sect, partly from his patronage of many Persians, or Shías, of distinction, such as Biram Khan Abul Maali, and others, partly, perhaps, from the show of adherence to it which his political situation induced him to manifest when in exile in Persia.

A floating palace several stories in height, with a garden and a bazar, or market, which he constructed at Agra on ships linked together and connected by platforms, and floated down the Jamna, has been celebrated, and, as well as several other of his contrivances, evinces his fondness for the inechanical arts

But though Humáyun was brave and good-tempered, liberal and fond of learning, his virtues all bordered

* Such, we are told, was his reverence for the name of God, that he never pronounced it till he had performed the stated ablutions (wazu) One day he was observed to address Mír Abdalla Hai, the Sadr, or Chief Judge, by the abbreviated name of Mír Abdal Having subsequently performed the legal purifications, "Excuse me, Mír," said he to the Sadr, "for not having a little ago given you your full name, but Hai being one of the names of God, I could not, situated as I then was, pronounce it."

Kámrán Mirza, who was a Sunni.

and fond of religious disputation, had frequent arguments with his brother on the differences between the two sects The Sunnis treat the Shias as being heterodox One day, as they were riding together, they observed a dog, an unclean animal, lift its leg irreverently against a tomb-stone "The man who hes there must be a heretic" (rafzi) said Kámrán "Yes," said the Emperor, "and the dog an orthodox brute" Briggs's Ferishta, vol 11 p 179 We have seen that he was himself occasionally a persecutor of such as he called herenes on neighbouring defects, and produced little fruit. There seems to have been a frivolity in his mind that neutralized his good qualities, and it is probable that, had he continued to fill his father's throne, he might have been the last emperor of India of his race. The bold, determined policy of Biram Khan, so different from the weak and vacillating conduct of Humáyun, had its full sway after that prince's death, and, aided by the rising genius of Akber, established the empire of the family of Taimur on the foundation which it has maintained, with more or less splendour, down to our own times.

* Akborn ff 97-100 , Tab Akb ff 168, 169, Tar Niz ff 205, 206 , Tar Bedaum, ff 191, 192 , Briggs's Ferishta, vol ii pp 177-180 Hum yun had deeply studied the religious and mystical poetry of the Persians, to which his warm feelings, and lively imagination, gave him a natural partiality bias may account for an incident related by historians who are willing to believe that he had some supernatural presentiment of his death They tell us that though, through life, he could not bear to hear death spoken of, and even forbad its being mentioned in his presence, yet that, just before his last accident, he frequently started the subject himself, and took pleasure in listening to conversations upon it. He mentioned an occurrence that befel him at that time, and by which he was much affected "I lately rose," said he, "after midnight to say the stated prayers, and afterwards retired again to rest, when, just before dawn, as I was lying, my eyes shut but my heart awake, I heard a supernatural voice clearly repeat these verses

" O Lord! of thine infinite goodness make me thine own

Make me a partaker of the knowledge of thy attributes

I am broken-hearted from the cares and sorrows of life,

O call to thee thy poor madman (lover)!
O grant me my release!"

He is said often afterwards to have repeated these mysterious lines with deep emotion, while the tears gushed from his eyes

SUPPLEMENTARY REMARKS

ON THE STATE OF GOVERNMENT AND MANNERS IN KÁBUL AND THE SURROUNDING COUNTRIES DURING THE REIGNS OF BÁBER AND HUMÁYUN.

As the course of events has brought us to the reign of Akber, when the Chaghatái government was finally established in India, and took a form which, with little change, it retained for nearly two centuries, it may be proper to take a slight review of the state of government and manners during the two preceding reigns in Kábul and the surrounding countries, where Báber and Humáyun spent most of their time. Though a space of more than fifty years, it was in general a period of war and confusion, leaving little leisure for any legislative efforts, or for the cultivation of the arts of peace

Government and regal etiquette,

The government was such as might be expected from a body of foreigners settling themselves by force in a country, with the inhabitants of which they had no sympathy but that of a common religion, and was necessarily military Everything was directed by the will of the King, who was surrounded by his Amírs and great officers He was nominally absolute, as in all Asiatic states His court exhibited, or affected, a great appearance of splendour, and had nearly the same establishment of officers that had existed under the powerful princes of Samarkand and Khorásán We find the Master of the Household, Master of the Horse, Grand Huntsman, Master of Requests and Chamberlains, with body and night guards - besides all the officers of the harem and female apartments The prince, whether in the capital or the camp, held daily levees-in the one case, in the Great Hall, in the other, in the Pavilion or Tent of Audience, at which the Amiis and men of note.

dresses During the dinner, the guests were entertained by music, vocal and instrumental, by wrestlers, posture makers and jugglers, rarely perhaps, if ever, at that period to the west of the Indus, by dancers. It was usual, on such grand occasions, to invest with khiláts those who had performed important public services, or whom it was meant to distinguish by the royal favour. These khiláts generally consisted of a dress of honour, sometimes made of rich stuffs, of satin, velvet, cloth of gold, or adorned with embroidery, sometimes even of diesses that had been worn by the Sovereign himself, with various additions according to circumstances, shawls, sabres of fine workmanship with enamelled hilts, often enriched with jewels and precious stones, daggers, coats of armour, horses, and, occasionally, sums of money

The charm which the courts of happier countries derive from the presence of female society, was of course entirely wanting to that of Kábul The ladies of every rank were kept strictly to private apartments, which were accessible only to females, and eunuchs, and, at times, to very near relations

The court

The court was composed chiefly of the Amírs and Begs, who held the different provinces and districts of the kingdom, and of the officers of state and of the household. Though the usual and official language was that of unreserved obedience to the prince, yet they formed a real check upon his power. The army which had effected the conquest was composed of many bodies of men of different races, who each followed a particular leader, generally the chief person of a tribe or family. They were all soldiers of fortune, and regarded themselves as entitled to their share in the success. Many of them had joined the King voluntarily with their tribe or followers, and considered themselves at liberty to withdraw, or to shift their allegiance, when displeased. By means of combinations among themselves, they were even able, on occasion, to overpower the monarch, who found it convenient, and indeed necessary, to keep them in good humour. Much, therefore, depended on the talents of the Sovereign. But even the romantic bravery and generous temper of Báber were not always sufficient to keep within the limits of duty haughty and ambitious tribesmen, who set a high, sometimes an mordinate, value on their own services, and dangerous revolts and rebellions occurred under both him and his There existed no hereditary nobility except in the heads of tribes, all was personal, and proceeded from the monarch And even the men of tribes, when they had left their wilds, and, for a series of years, had lived in towns, or followed their individual pursuits, scattered over the country, felt less connection with their chief, who was compelled to look to local influence of another description for the support of his consequence The power possessed by the leader of the tribe was thus gradually exchanged for that of governor of a province This change was, of course, extremely favourable to the royal authority But, though nobility was not hereditary, it generally continued to run very much in the same families, for the sons of Amírs and officers of note were generally, early in life, introduced at court by their fathers, and gradually promoted to situations of trust and influence

The information we possess concerning the state of state of the the provinces under the Kábul government is but scanty

They would seem to have been governed very much according to the form ascribed to the early feudal states The leading men in the conquering army, or at court, were sent to the various provinces, attended by their old followers, and districts were assigned to them Of the state of landed property we have few details The former inhabitants were not expelled from their lands The labour and skill of the peasant and farmer are necessary under every government, there were no

capitalists who farmed on a large scale Every village had probably, as in Persia, a kilanter or head man, and some village counsellors, who afforded a certain degree of protection and succour The person appointed to the jágír settled himself on the spot, took possession of the forts and public buildings, and placed his immediate retainers in offices of trust within his government, probably, at the same time, assigning to them some allotments of land Through them, though rarely by them, he collected the rents, or, more properly speaking, a share of the produce of the lands, and the public taxes, the measure and extent of which were often much at his discretion As all powers, military, civil, and criminal, were vested in his person, the comfort, or misery, of the inhabitants was in his power, and was essentially influenced by his character The complaint of a despised boor did not easily reach the court, and, if it did, was not likely, except in cases of crying and flagrant injustice, to be much attended to and woe to the unhappy wretch who made a complaint, and afterwards returned under the power of his oppressor! Every governor was like an absolute prince while his power lasted His chief danger arose from intrigues at court, where he was constantly obliged, either by his personal presence or through his friends, to maintain his in-He was liable to be removed at any time at the pleasure of the King It is plain that this system exposed the inhabitants to great extortions, and was, in many ways, unfavourable to the prosperity and improvement of the country The governor, who held his office by an uncertain, and probably a short tenure was anxious to make the most of his time, and apt to regard the possessions and property of the governed merely as the means of enriching himself and his dependents The hen was too often killed for the golden egg

The army

The army did not resemble that of European governments, divided into regular regiments and troops, with officers each commanding and exercising a certain number of men dressed in a national uniform and paid by the state. It was composed of the immediate followers of the King, and of those of the great chiefs, attached to them from various considerations of family, or hope, or gratitude, and of portions of the tribes, as the Aimáks, Moghuls, Hazáras, under their native chiefs. Almost every man of rank had retainers, who attached themselves to him to share his good fortune, and his consequence depended on their bravery and number. Every leader had his standard, which marked his rank, the highest being that of the tilgh, a standard surmounted by the flowing tail of the mountain cow, an object of great ambition, and granted only to a few. Round these standards they marched to battle, and round them they rallied, if broken. They had no uniform dress Each were that of his tribe or country, or such as he fancied.

Besides these greater leaders, there were independent warriors (Ekkeha) who joined the service, either alone, or with a few followers, as volunteer soldiers of fortune, some of whom rose to eminence

The fighting men were in general Tartars, chiefly belonging to Túrki tribes, or descended of tribesmen, with some Persians and Aimáks They consisted almost entirely of cavalry The old inhabitants of Kábul, whether of the cities or plains, seldom adopted the trade of arms, but remained shopkeepers or peasants A Tájik is sometimes, but rarely, mentioned as engaged in war

The army gradually changed its form in progress of time. When the first generation of conquerors died away, local levies became common, and regular bands of mercenaries were formed. The earlier troops, having little or no pay, depended for their support chiefly on plunder, and the leaders looked to the command of districts There was nothing like a standing force. The army was composed of local troops, with a few mercenaries raised on the spur of the occasion

When the royal army took the field, it was generally arranged in three divisions, centre, right wing, and left, with an advanced guard and reserve, and some flying pickets around. The household troops were generally placed in the centre, and officers of experience named to the command of each division arms were the sabre and dagger, sometimes the bow and arrow, and the spear or mace There were already some companies of matchlock-men in the army, who seem always to have been trained mercenaries Cannon had also begun to be used; but they were heavy and unmanagable, used chiefly in sieges or in distant can-Shir Shah seems to have been one of the nonades first who brought them with effect into the field. regular battles, the guns were frequently connected together by chains, or ropes of bulls' hides, which served as breast-works, behind which archers and matchlockmen were placed, to prevent the irruption of cavalry between the guns, especially during the rather long intervals between the discharge and re-loading of the ponderous ordnance

The fate of an action being generally decided by the sabre, plate and chain armour, and shields, were in use, with helmets, and sometimes chain-cloth coverings for the horse

Fortresses.

Their fortresses derived their strength from their situation on steep hills or grounds difficult of access, and from the height and thickness of their walls. They were sometimes regularly attacked by sap and battery, sometimes by mines, and defended by countermines. Night surplises, however, and assaults by scaling-ladders, were the most common modes of attack. Sometimes blockade was resorted to, and lines of circumvallation drawn round the place.

The country had few large cities, Kábul, Kandahár, Large cities Ghazni and Peshawer were the chief The amount of their population is uncertain The smaller towns and villages were numerous, as the peasantry did not live in scattered dwellings, but in villages surrounded by walls, as a refuge for themselves and their cattle, in case of any sudden attack, or against the rapacity of ma-The larger towns were inhabited by tradesmen and artisans, merchants, shopkeepers, the guardians of mosques and religious foundations and their dependents, public and private teachers, and labourers The streets were narrow and dirty, the exterior of the houses mean, any attempt at elegance being reserved for the interior The houses of the more wealthy were built in one or more squares, opening within into a court or parterre surrounded by piazzas

The principal buildings were the mosques and the tombs of the kings or holy men, and probably a few of the palaces of the kings Some of the bazars were built at considerable expense, and with some elegance, and were frequently arched over, and closed at night by gates There were also caravanserais, of which the large court within was surrounded by small apartments, usually with an upper story, and sometimes having a flat roof, in which merchants and traders could be accommodated, with their goods and cattle, on arriving from foreign parts

The kingdom of Kábul was inhabited by many dif- Inhabitants ferent races of men, and was composed chiefly of hillcountry, with some rich plains The greater part of the inhabitants of the hills were tribesmen, in a great measure independent and supported by their flocks The peasantry and shepherds of the lowlands were in general Tájiks, the descendants of the old inhabitants of the country, and used the Persian tongue They cultivated various grains, and reared some cattle, but were much exposed to be plundered by the tribes of the surrounding hills

Adminis tration of justice As to the administration of justice, there was, properly speaking, no regular court of justice in the country, except that of the Kázi could be considered as such, which, however, was confined to questions of mariage, dowry and others arising out of the Muhammedan law. The jágírdáis, and under them their collectors, and, in the royal domains, the collectors or other officers of government, decided in all questions, civil and criminal. There was little form. The parties appeared in person to state their own cases, and inquiries followed, liable to much partiality and corruption. The lower officers could fine and inflict corporal punishment to a certain extent. The powers of life and death, and of inflicting larger fines, were reserved to the higher officers alone.

But while the officers of government administered equity, according to usage or their ideas of light (for laws of enactment, except those of the Koran, there were none), in the plains or what may be called the conquered country, the tribes that wandered over and pastured the large mountain tracts, or partially cultivated the richer valleys and cattle lands, were little visited by the Sovereign's officers, but maintained, in a great degree, their independence. They made some annual payments as tribute, and preserved their ancient usages and customs. Each had its acknowledged chief, and a council of the principal men of the leading families, who managed its affairs and decided controversies.

The most difficult cases were such as related to blood-feuds, which, however, were left to the revenge of the injured family, according to the principle of retaliation of the Muhammedan law, and when the price of blood could not be fixed, or was refused, the prosecution of private revenge frequently occasioned assassinations and feuds for several generations

The religion of the country west of the Indus was Religion the Musulman. This may be called the legal religion of the country, though, properly speaking, there was no establishment. The Muhammedans have no stateestablishment of then religion, which, however, they consider as the only true faith, and as not given to them only, but to the whole world They have no order of priesthood, as in patriarchal times, every fither of a family is its priest. Everywhere, indeed, mosques often of great magnificence, have been built for public use, and endowed often with extensive lands for their support, and that of the servants of the mosque But this has been done by private piety, and not by the state, which makes no general provision for the celebration of religious services, or the extension, or purity of religious instruction Yet, in no country does religion present itself more to the eye of the observer, or seem more deeply and habitually to influence individuals of every rank Every mosque has its guardian, generally some descendant of the founder The futhful are daily summoned five times to pinyer by the voice of the moizzin from the minaret of the mosque Some Mulla, or man of supposed piety, acts as Peshnamaz, by reciting the stated privers, the congregation repeating them along with, or after him, and carefully following him in all the bendings and humble prostrations which he makes at the proper parts of the service, towards the kibleh, which marks the position of Mekka is qualified for his office by no imposition of hands, or other ceremony, but owes the preference he enjoys, to his piety, the favour of the guardian of the foundation, or the silent adherence of the people His office confers, or implies, no supernatural effusion of sanctity, or of spiritual gifts He may quit his situation at will, and return, like any other man, to the business of the world

Men of learning and piety I recollect no mention of any colleges founded in Kábul for the instruction of students in the sacred or profane sciences, though such were common, and often very magnificent, in Mawerannaher, in Khorásán and in India But there were always men of learning and piety, who devoted themselves, as private guides, to the teaching of others, and when they acquired reputation, numbers flocked to them for the benefit of The ordinary schools taught the pupils their lessons who frequented them, to read and write the Arabic and Persian languages, with something of accounts Men often read the Koran in Arabic, and recited their prayers in the same tongue, without knowing one word of the meaning, but, in so doing, they performed a religious duty The superior instructors devoted themselves to various employments, such as teaching the artificial mode of reading the Koran, with its sacred intonations, delivering lectures on its import, and expositions of the hidden or recondite meaning of its texts, and the mystical sense of its facts and The various teachers and various schools, of course, took different views of God and nature, some leading to the wildest enthusiasm and bigotry, others to the humblest piety The mystical tendency of their speculations, directed to the annihilation of self and the exaltation of the Deity, often ended with a long course of metaphysical meditations on the doctrine of the non existence of matter, and the non-entity of everything, except the Divinity. One of the most remarkable of these schools is that of the Sufis, which seems to terminate in a refined philosophical deism or pantheism, yet has produced volumes of the most beautiful poetry The disciples of these meditative schools, whom research and reflection had rendered tolerant, lived retired, and mixed little in the world But the men destined for public life, who had studied only the Koran and its observances, with the traditions of the prophet, were distinguished above all others for their intolerant natives of the kingdom of Kábul, some of the hill tribes excepted. The doctrines of the Shías were introduced from Arabia, and diffused chiefly in Persia, and by the Persian conquests in Khorásán and elsewhere. There were some Kizelbásh, or Persian Shías in Kábul. The hatred of the partizans of the two sects towards each other was often extreme.

Almost every man had his spiritual guide, whom he consulted in his difficulties and doubts, and by whom he was much influenced in his conduct. Men eminently distinguished for piety were supposed to be sometimes visited by gleams of divine light, and though the Mahomedans are unitarians of the strictest kind, admitting of no partner to God, yet such men were reverenced after death, and pilgrimages were made to their tombs

Literature

Kábul could not be said to have any native literature or science. It appropriated, and imitated, that of the Persians. The poeins of Ferdausi, Háfez, Sádi, Jámi and the other great Persian poets, were familiar to every man of education. But though the country produced no great poet, many individuals, some of the highest rank, wrote agreeable verses, and a taste for poetry was fashionable with every class. The subjects were generally love and religion. One is sometimes surprised to see so much tenderness and respectful delicacy of feeling, flowing from the pen of sturdy warriors, and addressed to females, who were shut up, and guarded, as prisoners and slaves. But war, which calls out and exercises many of the higher parts of our nature, is not necessarily hostile to the gentler affections, and, in every situation of life, nature vindicates her rights. This was the age of the great historians, Mír Khwánd and Khwánd Amír, who wrote chiefly in Khorásán, but, except Báber's own Commentaries, we know of no historical work produced in Kábul

The sciences, like the literature, of Kábul were bor-

Sciences.

rowed from those of the Arabs and Persians, but little proficiency and no improvement was made in them Some few studied mathematics and astronomy chiefly as subservient to astrology, in which all were believers, and the marches of armies, and the movements of kings were directed by the conjunctions of the heavenly bodies No journey or march was undertaken, no great work begun, but at the hour fixed by the astrologer

Their medicine, where it was not empirical, they borrowed from the Arabs, and they, probably from constant experience, possessed considerable knowledge in the treatment of wounds

Of their architecture we learn little—It was probably Architecture borrowed from Herát and Samarkand—Some of the tombs still remaining are said to possess considerable clegance. The times were too turbulent to admit of attempting many of the works of peace and means were not found to restore even the noble reservous and witer-courses, constructed in earlier times for ningating and enriching the country, but which had fallen into decay

To estimate the condition of morals, and the degree state of of happiness or comfort existing in such a state of morals society, is never an easy task. The practice of polygamy, accompanied, as a necessary consequence, by the seclusion of women, and the existence of slavery, which are common to all Musulman countries, have always a powerful and demoralizing influence on manners the plurality of wives and concubines is nearly confined to the upper ranks, and the more wealthy, and though the evil consequences of the practice are felt, in the undue importance and the prominence given to the sensual passions, in the debasing effects of jealousy and mistrust on the character, in the mischief of entrusting the education of the rising generation, the young of both sexes, to the nurture of women, totally strangers to the business and the virtues of active life, and in addition to this, in the endless discords and enmities, which the claims of rival mothers introduce into the bosom of families; yet, being avowed and sanctioned by the law, it is attended with none of that degradation of feeling and character that attends the pursuit of promiscuous debauchery, or of unlawful concubinage, when the sense of duty is overpowered by the influence of a passion acknowledged to be guilty, and the indulgence is pursued with the feelings of a criminal, who is conscious that he is breaking the law The connection of wife and concubine are equally lawful, and alike recognized by the Musulman religion, and the issue of both have their shares in the succession. The practice of slavery appears to have been confined to domestic slavery, a condition, in the East, in which the slave is generally treated as a favoured and confidential servant, often as a child of the family We find no traces of agricultural servitude The lower ranks seem all to have been fice Their wives were more fortunate than those of their superiors, since their duties required them to move about, and probably sometimes to assist in field-labour

Condition of the higher ranks, The higher ranks, who lived in the possession of comparative wealth and plenty, seem to have had the usual and almost necessary virtues of their station—bravery and liberality towards the dependents and followers who formed their strength. They were generally hardy, and with some skill in war, which was their trade, but was practised rather in the way of foray and skirmish than of regular tactics. Having the virtues and the vices of adventurers, they were not uniformly steady in their allegiance and fidelity to their Sovereign, their adherence to whom they considered as a matter to be regulated by considerations of mutual convenience, in which they were too often directed by notions of mere temporary expediency. Some of them we have seen were men of talent and generosity, and many had some tiste for liberal studies, and delighted in the Persian and Turki poets and moralists

The great body of the inhabitants, agricultural and pastoril, were probably a good deal oppressed. The exaction tions of government joined to the constant march and devistation of armies and the plundering incursions of the hill tribes, must have left them little that they could call their own. There was indeed, generally, some eastle, or walled town, to which they could, in such cases, retire. But they were nevertheless, often taken by surprise, when then fumilies and cittle, and hourds of gram were hable to be carried away, and their stunding corn trampled down, or consumed by the horses of the invaders. But, even in the most unfivourable encumstances there is an elisticity and spring in the human mind that long resist the pressure of the herviest columnty Oppression is never, indeed directly favourable to the moral habits. Where force cannot be opposed to it, it calls up artifice and cunning. But it also sometimes calls up the nobler The bonds of union between the members passions of communities and the members of families, are drawn closes by their sufferings, and by their exections to avert them. The generous affections are brought actively into play, united efforts are made to oppose the common enemy, great sacrifices are submitted to for the sike of one mother, the disinterested and domestic affections duly gain strength in the midst of suffering, and through the very agency of suffering Men become more affectionate parents, more attached children and friends, and better members of the little community There are little numberless pleasures that the eye of oppression cannot detect, or its hand interrupt History in general gives little information as to the daily employment, and feelings of the great body of the lower classes, but, in this instance, what little can be gleaned, is not unfavourable

These remarks of course apply chiefly to the inhabitants of the plains, the inhabitants of the hills and mountains preserved their old independence unchanged

Revenue

As to the revenue, its extent and nature, we know little The principal was probably a land-tax, which from the mountaincers was levied in the form of Báber informs us that the revenue of Kábul from both these sources was only eight laks of Sháhrukhis, or about 33,333l 6s 8d. In addition to this, there were the tumgha, or custom duties, on all cattle, sheep and other articles brought into the country, and probably some transit duties and shop duties There were, besides, the péshkeshes, and other offerings made to the prince on festivals and other great occasions These consisted in money, horses, rich cloths and other rarities, and, though part of them went out again in the form of khiláts and gratifications to favourite seivants, the surplus in the king's favour was probably considerable At the same time the revenue of Kábul was never great Báber, soon after he conquered Kábul, levied on Kábul and another district, a contribution of thirty thousand loads of grain (kharwai) to distribute among the tribes who had accompanied him in his conquest, but the burden was found to be too great, he tells us, and the country suffered extremely

Absence of free institu-

The fixed and stationary condition of all large Asiatic kingdoms, which, from the first traces of history to the latest times, exhibit only the purely despotic form of government, has naturally excited the attention of all readers of history. No progress seems ever to have been made towards free or liberal institutions, or if any liberal laws or regulations were made under a good or great monarch, they totally disappear in the reign of his successor. Nothing is stable, but the absolute will of the sovereign. The great difficulty of obtaining anything like free or permanent institutions lies in this very

to support and maintain these checks Thus, in England, the power of the nobles never could have been brought as an effective check upon the power of the king, had they not been of hereditary rank, and accustomed to meet together in pailiament and elsewhere, as a recognized body, in a word, to consider themselves as a political corporation, having rights They might, otherwise, have formed combinations and leagues, and engaged in rebellions and commotions, but these, if successful, would have terminated to the advantage of one or two of the chief leaders, not of the nobles as a body opposed to the king Their rank, being here ditary, gave them both permanence and cohesion, and enabled them to act in concert for the common interest But in the East, nobility is only personal. Except where there are tribes, the personal influence of any individual is small The nobles hold no assembles as a separate body, and have no duties to perform as such They cannot, therefore, combine or act in union, but by rebellion There are no public institutions (not religious), in which they, or any other subjects of the state, meet for deliberation on ministerial or any other public purposes, no county meetings, no boards of justices, no juries, no town meetings. The means of combining, or of coming to a common understanding, are, therefore, limited. Absolute princes never favour the growth of privileges to nobles, or cities, or districts, they are more willing to destroy these rights. They centralize every thing, and make every thing depend on their own will and pleasure. Thus, were a movement to take place, even for the most beneficial objects, no hereditary leader can be found, no political body to assist, no permanent institution to give security to the object if attained It is a rebellion which, if successful for the moment, falls away of itself, like a house built on sand, and leaves not a trace behind. Thus such despotic governments do not afford the fulcium to support the political lever, and the force is applied in vim Inferior, internal political institutions, scattered over the country, or means of consultation and combination among powerful hereditary chiefs, are necessary, as checks to absolute power. They cannot long exist, without bringing a considerable degree of freedom in then train Counties, and the public meetings they produce, towns, purishes, corporations, and, at a later period courts of law and junes, are the great elements of liberty. They bring men together, make them reison, and accustom them to act with foresight, with moderation, and in concert The Mahomedan governments of the I ist have only two checks, the dangerous one of rebellion — and the power of religion and popula opinion, or custom, represented, sometimes successfully, sometimes without effect, by the Ulema, the heads of the religion and law But revolution produces a change of governors, not of government Any effectual change must go deeper, and begin with the fundamental elements of civil and political society. Yet, now that the Jamissanes are gone, the Ulema is perhaps the nearest approach to a corporation of any body in Turkey

TO THE

SECOND VOLUME

Abis Siltin in mics Humasins sister

Ab Baran 0

Abdal aziz on of Obcid Khan hurries to Heret to support his father 100 Marches to the relief of the Uzbek in Halkh 1773 Al Ial Ghafur, Mir Mal) sent on a mis-Sion to Yndgar 2.5

Abist Has (Mir) his conduct to Humaxim in the German 272. Surreal is to Lumavin 04. Brings him intelligence of the death of Mirza Hindal 402.

Abdal Ktalik advi ex Kamran to concili ti Sulciman Mirra 313

Alslal Makri his party expelled from Kallimir 17. Applies for aid to Konrol and Humayun 3.5.

Abdal Reshid Khan can of Sulta di Khan of Ka ligher sends an embassy to Hun (vun 16). Receives from Humayun an account of his conduct towards Kamran 42).

Abdal Simd (Khwaja) deserts Kamran

Abdal Wahab his mission to Sind 265. Protects Humaxim in his flight from the rout of Kipchak 35%. At the bittle of Shutergerden 302. His death at Iirbar 402.

Abdalla (Kazi) his mission to Shir Shah 200 Taken by the Mirzas, Abdalla Khan, draven from Nousari,

Abdalla Moghul (Mirrs) engaged in the defence of Ialikan 355. In courages Kamran to return to his brother, 356. Escapes from the rout at Rostak 373.

Abdalla Niazi (Sheikh) a leader of the Mehdevis, 476 His humility and ferrour 478 Abdalla Sultan, son of Sekander Sultan, defeated at Balkh 372

Abdatla Sultinpuri (Mulla), declares Sheikh Alai guilty of heresy 480 Abderch Pa se(the) Humayun s passage through 397 bul Baka (Mir) prevails on Kamran to give way to his brother, 206 Brings back Hindal and Yadgar to Humayun 207 His mission to Yadk it 221. His death 222 Multirl his remarks on the conduct of Mildeo 242. His account of Humanin's treatment in Persia 280 Abul Hasan (Mir), sent to detain Hu-

mayun 270

Abul Kasını (Mirza) son of Kamran, ent to Akber on Humáyun's death, 5-2

Abul Ka im Beg Governor of Guáliar, surrenders it to Shir Shah, 429 His devoted friendship to Biram Khan 259 Is put to death, 259

Abulkhair, proposes to scize Humayun, 267

Abul Maali, his descent and character, Shoots one of Humiyun's refrictory leaders, 420 Defeats a large body of Mahans near Dibalpur 512 His bravery and conduct at the battle of Sirhend, 518 Shir Alı Khan, 518 Left at Jalindher 520 Obtains the government of the Penjáb 520 His arroganec and misconduct, 528 Is superseded by Akber, and nominated to Hissar luruza 524 Ilis insolence to Ak ber 526

Abussid Khan, son of Kuchum Khan (Grand Khan,) disapproves of the war with Persia, 99

Abyssinian slaves in the army of Behåder Shah 82

Acht Chak (Malek) Governor of Kash-

Defeats and puts to death 406 Himu Bakal, 503 Appointed to Hissar Piruza, 520 Appointed to the Penjab, 524 Expels Schander Shah, 526 Expresses sent to inform him of his father's death, 528 prayer for the Emperor recited in his name, 529 Has three formidable competitors for the throne of Delhi, 5.9

1k Sultan Governor of Ghazni Joins Humayun 323 Commands Kamran and ance at the Dera Kipchak, 351 Commands Kamrans left at the battle of Shutergerden 392

Ala cd din or Alim Lodi (Sultan), escapes from Kiln Zefer to Gujrat, 41 Puts forward his pretensions to the throne of Delhi 44 Lends a force to Kalinger 44 His army retreats 46 Alai (Shukh) leader of the Mehdevis, account of him and his sect, 475 482 Alama Taklu his rebellion against Shah

Ismacl 99 Quelled 100

Alem Khan discovers Behader Shah s treasure at Champanir, 66, note

Along Kazan, Humávun encamps there,

Alı (Mir Sved), his congratulators em bassy to Humáyun, 326 Receives the government of Duki 327

Ali (Sheikh) proposes to surprise De rawal 239

Alı Akber Jami (Sheikh) his daughter married to Humávun 220

Alı Biklishi (Sultan) Humávuns pavmaster brings instructions for blind ing Kamran 413

Alı Beg Jeláir (Sheikh) offers to surprise Shah Husein, 225 His skir mish with Maldeo's troops, 245 De feats Jáni Big 256 Commands a detachment again t Shah Husein, 260. Is defeated and slain 261

Alı Dost, refuses to blind Kamran 415 Alı Kulı Korchi, attends Kumran on his flight from Kabul, 345

Alı Kuli Sistánı despatched to reduce Mirat and Sambhal 520 Puts Kam ber Diwána to death 520

Alı Penjshiri (Malek), assists Mirza Ibrahim of Badakhshan 353 feats Temir Shagháli, 353

Alı Reza (Imám), his tomb visited by Humávun, 297

Alı Sultan Taklu, bıs death before Bist, 504

Alika Arghún (Mir), his defence of Sehwan 224

Alım Khan (Sultan) See Alim Khan Jigat

Alım Khan Jılál Khan Jigat, acquires Raisen, Bhilsa and Chanderi, 37 Joins Behader Shah, 51 Is mutilated by Humáyun, 58

Alım Lodi Sec Alá ed din Lodi Alla dost (Mir) his mission to Sind, 265

Alwar See Mewat.

Ambála, battle of, 458

Amber (Khwaja), recaptures Askeri Mirza 321

Amerkot Humayun hospitably received there 219 His stay there, 252 Birth of Akber there 254

Ander to battle of, 303 Placed under Abandoned by Kam-Hindal, 332 rán 351 Given to Terdi Beg 509 Besieged by Suleiman Mirza, 522

Anka Arghún (Mir) his mission from Shah Husein to Humávun, 213

Arab Mekki (Mir), mediates between Kamran and Humávun, 356

Artillery that of Behåder Shah under Rúmi Khan, 49 That of Humáyun at the battle of Kanáuj, 185

Aru, Humayun's encampment at 23" Army (the) of Baber and Humáyun described, 540

Asir fort of 79

Askeri Mirza, son of Baber appointed to the government of Sambhal Commands the advanced guard in Gujrát, 75 Is surprised, 75 Defeats the Guzratis, 76 Made Governor of Ahmedabád, 76, and Vicerov, 77 Ilis arrogance, 89 camps at Sirganj 84 Advised by Hindú Beg to declare himself independent, 85 Declines, but afterwards consents, 85 Retreats from Ahme-Is pursued by Behader dabad, 85 Shah 86 Reaches Champanir, 86 Is refused admittance there by Terdi Marchestowards Agra, 88 Beg 87 Submits to Humayun, 88 Accompanies Humáyun against Shír Shah, His disgraceful stipulation, as thereward for as isting Humáyun 154 Forces the passes into Behar, 155 Commands the right at the battle of Kanauj 190 Joins Humayun in his flight, 192 His quarrel with Yadgar, 192. Leaves Delhi to proceed to Sambhal, 195 Meets his three brothers at Lahur, 197 Receives the government of Ghazni from Kamran, 264 and that of Kandahár, 265His hostile preparations on the approach of Humayun, 266 He advances to take him 267 Arrives at Shal-Mustung 270 Captures AL-

Besieged in Kandahar by ber. 270 Surrenders to the Humáyun, 306 Disclosure of his Emperor, 311 treasonable designs, 312 Imprisoned, Escapes, 321 Recaptured, 312 321 Committed to the custody of Nadım Kokıltaslı, 321 Released. Appointed to the government Left in charge of of Karatigin, 360 Defeated by Chaker Kuláb, 377 Joins Kamrán, 378 Alı Beg, 378 Flies from the route at Rostak, 378 Appointed by Kumran to the golaken vernment of Jelálábád, 387 prisoner by Humáyun at the battle of Shutergerden 393 Sent a prisoner to Badakhshan, 397 Dies between Mekka and Damascus, 397 Asof Khan, left with the Gujrát troops at Mándu, 32 Slain in battle, 33 Astáneh, Humáyun surprised at, 371 Asterábád, overrun by the Uzbeks, 99 Astrology in the East, 135, note Atkeh Khan, or Mir Atka See Shemsed-din Muhammed Ghaznevi Aulia (Shah), shrine of, 371

Azerbáiján, rebellion in, 99

Azím Humáyun See Haibat Khan Niazi

Bába Beg Jilair, defends Juánpúr, 151, 152 Is slain, 171

Bába Jujkeh, his expedition to Kashmir, 203

Bába Kuli, an officer of Shah Husein, his negotiation with Yádgár Mirza, 227 His Mission to Humáyun, 262

Bába Said, aids Kámrán in his escape from Selim Shah, 409

Babai of Kuláb, wounds Humáyun, 382 Baban, or Biban, Khan Jilwani, supports Sultan Mahmud Lodi, 9 ferred in command of his army to Shir Khan 133

Babek Beg, Humáyun's mehmándar in Percia, 282

Báber, his invasion of Malwa, 34 cupies Behar, 131

Baberlú garden of, Humáyun resides at, 214

Badakhshán the kingdom of, confirmed to Sulcimán Mirza, 6 Invaded by Kumtun 265 302 Submits to him, Kásım Birlás appointed Governor, 103 Itsaffairs under Kamran, 313 Suleiman restored to the go vernment, 313 Taken by Humáyun, 329 Given to Hindal Mírza, 330 Restored to Mirza Suleimán, 932

Badeh Tyeb Danishmend (Sheikh), his fetwa against Sheikh Alái, 481

Bagh (Khwaja), surrenders the fort of Eibek to Humáyun, 370 large, 376

Baiké Begum, 153

Bakhshi-banu Begum, daughter of Humayun, removed from Kandahar to Kábul, 305 Betrothed to Mirza Ibráhím, 394

Bakhshui Langa, of Uch, receives the title of Khan Jehán, 208 Furnishes Humáyun with supplies, 208 Offers obstructions to the progress of Humúy un, 238

Baklan, or Baghlan, taken by Kamran, Humáyun arrives there, 370

Balkh, in possession of the Uzbeks, 368 F xpedition of Humáyun against, 368

Baltu Khan, his quarrel with Khwaja Moazem Sultan, 513

Balúches, their merciless robberies, 266 Their detention of Humáyun in the desert, 271 Their settlement in the Penjáb, 424

Bámián, government of, given to Shírefken, 331

Bangash, given to Hindal, 400 Laid waste by Humáyun, 406

Bápus Beg, chief minister of Kamrán, 313 Is appointed Atalik to his Pardoned by Huson-in-law, 323 máyun, 323 Joins his camp, 324 His wife dishonoured, and his children murdered by Kámrán, 342 Deserts from Humáyun to Kámrán, 351 Forgiven by Hamáyun, 357 Appointed by Kamran to Talikan, 377

Baróda, under Dost Beg Ishekágha, 77 Baruch, under Kasım Husem, 77 Taken by the partizans of Behader Shah, 82

Basant Rái, title of Himú Bakál, 491 Bayezid, his account of the rout of the Dern-Gcz, 374

Bayerid Khan Fermuli, preferred to Shir Shah in the command of Sultan Mahmud s army, 133

Bayezid (Sheikh), supports Sultan Mahmúd Lodi, 9 Slain at the battle of Doura, 10

Báz Beháder (Sultan), King of Malwa, his skill in music, 504 his father, 505

Bedaun, conquered by Kamber Diwana,

Behåder (Sultan) See Khizer Khan Behåder Khan Sistáni, appointed to Zemin-dawer, 509

Behåder Shah, ascends the throne of Gujrát, 21 33 Invades Malwa, and takes Chándéri 34 Again invades Malwa, and takes Mandu, 35 thrones Sultan Mahmud, and pro claims himself King of Malwa, 35 His further Seizes Silah-ed din, 36 His power in Gujrat, successes, SS Alarms Humavun by his progress in Malna and Nagor, 11 Sends an embassy to Humayun, 12 Receives Muhammed Zeman Mirza, Besieges Cheitur, 14 41 Retires on receiving large presents, 15 Forms a league against Huma vun, 41 Anecdote of his magnificence, 42, note Assists the Lodis, 44 Again besieges Cheitur, 45 and sacks the city, 48 Encamps at Mandsúr, 49 Entrenches his camp, His troops disheartened, 51 Joined by Sultan Alim of Kalpi 51 Distress in his camp 52 His flight He reaches Mandu 54 Makes overtures to Humavun, 55 prised in Mándu, 56 Escapes to Champing, 56 Thes to Cambiy, Burns his flect 60 Fines to Diu 60 72 Negotiates with the Portuguese, 73 81 Deputes Imad ul mulk to collect the revenues of Gujrat, 74 Reaction in Gujrat in his favour, 81 Joins his troops at Pursues the imperial Patan, 83 forces, 86 Occupies Champanir and recovers all Guirat 89 Returns to Diu 91 His transactions with the Portuguese, 91 His death 92 99 His character, 94 note His alleged reappearance, 96 His mother and nobles retire to Ahmedabad 96 His immediate successors 96

Behár overrun by Shír Shah 89 Invaded by Nazret Shah 126 Seized by Sultan Mahmád 129 who is expelled by Baber, 150 Reoccupied by Shir Shah, 151

Behar Khan Lohani. See Sultan Mu-

Behir Khan Sirwani, converted to the sect of the Mehdevis, 481 Deserts Adeli 494

Behbud Chobdár, 245

Behram Mirza, brother of Tahmasp ap pointed viceroy of Khorá an 99 His presents to Humayun, 283 His enmity to him, 290

Behsúd, Humavun's winter encamp ment at 405

Bekasi (Mulla) personates Humavun on his death 524

Bekram (now Peshawer), rebuilt by Humayun, 420

Belgram, the capital of Muhammed Sultan Mirza, 89 Taken by Hindal, 90 Benures, besieged and taken by Shir Shah, 151

Bend kusha, Humáyun s stav there, 359 Bengal, invaded and reduced by Shír Shah, 136 142 Submits to Humáyun 149 The government assumed by Khizer Khan Sirwani, 428 Placed under the Amín Kázi Fazilat, 428

Berar kingdom of, attacked by the Kings of Beder and Ahmednagar, 38 who are driven out by Behåder Shah, 38 Bhatta, the Raja of, defeats Sultan

Ibrahím, 501

Bheker, city and fortress of, 209 Besieged by Humáyun, 218 Description of it, 226 Progress of the siege, 226 The siege raised 229

Bhílsa, reduced by Sultan Mahmud, 22
Assigned to Muhammed Shah, 29
Given to Siláh ed-din, 30
Given to Alem Khan Jigat, 37

Bhira Shir Shah's stay there, 424 Bhopal Rai, chief of Bijagar, occupies

Mandu, 90 Bhopat Rai, son of Siláh ed dín of Bhílsa 37 Escapes with Beháder

Bhilsa 37 Escapes with Behader Shah 56 Recovers Raisen and Chandern 429 Bhul, or Behlúl (Sheikh), notice of Bhul, or Behlúl (Sheikh), notice of him, 162. Sent on a mission to Hindal, 150 162. Is put to death by Hindal 152 163

Biána, fortress of 13 Pays tribute to Mahmud I hilji 22 Seized and ravaged by Tatár Khan Lodi, 45 Recovered by Humayun, 46 Be sieged ! y Muhammed Shahi 449 Siege raised 500 Reduced by Haider Juhammed Khan, 521

Bibi Dúdú, her management of affairs in Behar, 125

Bidagh Khan Kajar, surrenders Kandahar to Kamran, 106 Appointed Atalik of Sultan Murád Mirza, 294 Claims Kandahár for the King of Persia, 312 Dispossessed of Kandahár, 320

Bidágh (Shah), taken prisoner by the Uzbeks, 376

Bikermájít, (Rana) of Cheitúr, succeeds his brother Ruttonsi 40 Besieged in Cheitur by Behader Shab, 40 Purchases a peace 15 41

Biram Khan sent to clear the passes between Behár and Bengal 145 Fails, 146 Joins the imperial camp at Jun, 258 Sketch of his history since the battle of Kanauj 258 Accompanies Humávun to Persia, 261 Sent as envoy to Shah Tahmasp, 281

AOF II

from Humavun to Shali Tahmasp, 273

Cities, (the large,) of Baber and Humayun, 549

" Combat of Friends," the 51

Court, (the,) of Baber and Humáyun, 596

D Acuña (Nuña), Vicerov of Goa, furnishes assistance to Beháder Shah, 73 Sulls to Diu 91 Receives Behader Shah on board his ship, 92 Ilis part in the death of Behader Shah, 92 His subsequent proceedings, 94

Dawa Beg, joins Humavin, 310 S22 Deh - Afghanan, a suburb of Kábul, battle of, 338

Delhi disruption of the empire of, under Sultan Muhammed Toghlak, 17 The city entrusted to Mir Fakhr Ali, 139 Attacked by Hindal Mirza, 165 Occupied by Shir Shab, 196 Occupied by Humavun 503 520 Taken by Himu Bakal, 508

Dera-Gez (the) the rout at, S74

Dera Kipeliak (the), the battle at 381 Deriwal, fort of, Humasun's halt there, 239

Derwish Ali, governor of Ujein, his death, 79

Derwish Koka, his skirmish with the troops of Maldeo 245

Derwish Maksud Bengali, rejoins the Emperor after the defeat at Chonsa, 175

De Souza, (Emanuel) Governor of Diu Castle 92 His death 98

Dhar battle of, 19 Taken by Mozeffir Shah 19 Taken by Sultan Mahmud II of Mulwa, 32 Given by Shir Shah to Haji Khun 431

Dhamon, assigned to Muhammed Shah, 29

Dibalpur, defeat of the Afghans at 511 Dilawer Khan, assumes the sovereignty of Malwa 19

Dilawer Khan Khan Khanán Lodi, commands Humavuns advance 153 Carried off by Khowás Khan, 154 His death in prison 154 note

Dildar Aguchch, or Dildar Begum mother of Hindal her reproach of her son 164. She entertains the ladies of the court at Pater, 220 Makes up the quarrel between Humavun and Hindal, 220

Diu, 21 Behader Shah's flight thither, 60 Its commercial importance 72 Settlement of the Portuguese there, 72 The death of Behader Shah there, 93 Is retained by the Portuguese, 95 Dost Beg Ishekagha, entrusted with Cambay and Baroda, 77

Doulat Khan I odi, his friendship for Shir Shah, 117, 118

Doulat Khan Nouháni, his elevation at the court of Adeli, 486 Slays Shah Muhammed Firmuli, 488

Doura, battle of, 10

Durgáwati, daughter of Rina Sanga, her determined conduct and death, S7

Eder reduction of by Mozeffer Shah, 19 Eibek, be reged and taken by Humávun, 870

Ekbal Khan, suspected of treason, 468 Ekhtur Khan defends Champanir, 63 65 Surrenders to Humavun, 65 His acquirements, 65

Elias Khan (Khwája), joins his brothers in rebellion, 489

Fakhr Ah (Mir) entrusted with the government of Delhi, 189 His energy in favour of Humávun, 160 164 His advice to Kumran, 166 His death 194

Farakh (Shah), advises Shah Husein not to join Humavun 71

Farra, besieged by Obeid Khan 98 Fateh Khan Baluch Dudai, submits to Shir Shah 424 Seizes Multan, 498 Is expelled by Haibat Khan, 498

Fateh Shah the Chiragh Kush, defeated by Monum Khan, 407

Tatehpur Gandava, 265

Fazacl Beg or Fazil Beg descrts Humávun 233 Descrts Kamran, 310 Blinded by Kamran, 336

Fazilat or Fazilat (Kazi), appointed Amin of Bengal, 428

Fazlı (Mir) Governor of Benares, slain by Shir Shah, 151

Ferdausi, allusion to his works, 25 Ferid See Shir Shah

Ferid Gur (Mir), opposes Humayun, 174 Sent in pursuit of Humayun, after the battle of Kanauj, 195

Feringi Khan. See San Jago Ferkhat Khan, appointed to Lahur, 523

Displaced by Abul Maali, 524
Piludi 240

Firuz Shah, King of Bengal his accession 186 His murder 186

Firuz Shah Súr, King of Delhi, his accession, 488 His murder 489

Fortresses (the), of Baber and Humayun, 542.

Grgrown, held by Medini Rao, S2

Besieged by Mahmud II, 32 Reduced by Bihader Shah, 40

Gakers, account of their country and its princes, 411, note They defeat Shir Shah's detachments, 425 Their contests with Islam Shah, 465

Germsir (the), Humáyun's visit to, 272 Its surrender to Ilumáyun, 304

Gházi (Khwája) of Tabriz, insults the Rána of Amerkot, 257 Quarrels with Kerácha Khan, 350 Bestored to the office of Dewan, 508, note

Gházi Khan, chief of a Baluch tribe, submits to Shir Shah, 424

Gházi Khan Súr, dcfends Chunár, 140 Receives his son, Ibráhim Khan, 493 Provisions Biána, 500 Is besieged in Biána, 521 Surrenders to Haider Muhammed, 522 Is put to death, 501 522

Gházi Mahah, ordered to seize Addl Khan, 451 Imprisoned by Khowás Khan, 451

Ghaznevi (Mir) See Shems-cd din Muhammed

Ghazni, government of, bestowed by Kûmrûn on Asl cri, 264 Bestowed on Hindal, 326 Surprised by Kûmrûn, 336 Shah Muhammed sent to secure it, 384 Given by Kûmrûn to Kerûcha Khan, 387 Given to Hindal, 400 Bestowed, on the death of Hindal, on Akber, 404

Gholám Alı Sheshangusht, blinds Kámran, 414

Ghurbend, given by Kamran to Yasan Doulat, 387

Ghuri, placed under Hindal, 332
Faken by Kamrán, 345 Coft in charge of Shir Ali, 345
Taken by Kerácha Khan, 346
Recovered by Kamrán, 347

Ghurjistán, reduced by Shah Tahmasp, 100

Girnál, or Júnagar, fortress of, tal en by Mahmúd Shah Bigara, 20

Gondevána, the Rais of, join the Musulman confederacy against Medini Rai, 27

Gour, the capital of Bengal, captured by Shir Shah, 142 Occupied by Humáyun, 149

Government, state of, during the reigns of Baber and Humayun, 536

Gowar tribes, they attacl Humayun's camp, 62

Gházanfer, 11 imprisoned by Askeri, and escapes, 84 Flies to the camp of Beháder Shali, 84

Guáliár, surrendered to Shír Shah, 429

Gujrát, becomes an independent lingdom, 17 Its early history, 18 Moreffer Khan, 18 Its prosperity under Ahmed Shah and Mahmud Shah Bigara, 20 Description and importance of the country, 21 Overrun by Mahmud Khilji, 22 Behader Shah succeeds to the throne. Conquest of Humáyun, 60 73 Anarchy, 73 Reaction in favour of Behåder Shah, 81 Abandoned by the Moghuls, 87 Recovered by Bcháder Shah, 88

Gul Baluch, Humáyun's stay there,

Gulchehrch-Begum, married to Abas (Sultan), 369

Gurdiz, given to Hindal Mirza, 400

Habshis (the), in the army of Bchader Shah, 81

Háfez, his works, 25

Haibat Khan Niazi, charged by Shir Shah with the building of Rhotas, 426 Reduces Multán, 433 Honoured with the title of Azim Humáyun, 433 Governor of the Penjáb, 155 Gives up Kuth Khan, 455 Exeites the jealousy of Islám Shah, 457 Joined by Khowás Khan, 457 Defeated, 458 Defeats Khwája Veis Sirwáni, 464 Is totally defeated, 464 Slain, 467

Haider Mirza Doghlat, accompanies the Partars in their inroad into Kashmır, 365 Returns to Káslighar, Joins Kamran, 105 365 in charge of Lahur, 105 His account of Kamran's retreat from Delhi, Hc adheres to Humáyun, 183 His account of the campaign against And of the battle Shir Shah, 185 of Kanáuj, 187 He joins Humáyun in his flight, 195 furns his thoughts towards Kashmir, 199 Arranges for its conquest, 203 365 Enters that country, 366 Defeats Malck Achi, 366 Acl nowledged as ruler of Kashmir, 205 Sends an envoy to invite Humáyun to Kaslimír, 366 Ilis character and administration, 367 Is slain, 368 His work, the Larikh C-Reshidi, 368

Haider Muhammed Khan, sent to reduce Biána, 520 His perfidy, 522 Superscdcd, 522

Haider Sultan, appointed to Kilát, 320 Iláji Begum, Empress of Humáyun, taken prisoner, 171 Shir Shah's generosity to her, 173

Haji Khan Sultan left in charge of Dhar 131 Recalled 130

Hami's Bom Beyon, her marriage with Homavon 220. Her descent 220. Crees birth to Alber in the earth of Amerkot 251. Her hur ried flight from Stid Mustong 269. Gives birth to a doughter 296.

Harlyan taken by Biram Khan 512 Hari Ki hen Birkis (Raja) of Rhotas, 147 Treacherously expelled by Shir Shah 148

Hasan father of Shir Shah, 111 His hi tax 112 Receives Salisarian and Khawa pur Tenda in jugar 112 His family 113 Gives Shir Shah the mana emeat of his jugars 115 His death 118

Hasan (Shah) of Suid SceShah Husein Hasan (Shaikh) of the Meldeviseet 175 Hisan Akhtch brings Akber to his father 12

Ha an Khalifat with the artillery in the battle of Kanaug 187

Hism Khin Jilwini (Rni) de erts Adeli 191

Hasin Koka, joins Humasun in Sistan 270

He hem Big his lovalty 211

Hatis in the Gaker country 425

II ziris predators libits of the 318

Herat taken by Obed Khan, 98
Recovered by Shah Fahm 89, 99
A₅ am besiged by Ob id Khan, 99
Reheard by Shah Tahmasp 100
Taken and pilliged by the Uzbeks,
103 Recovered by Shah Tahmasp
104 Visated by Humayan 278
Hang Rd al by deviation in the Court

Himu Bakal his elevation in the Court of Adeli 18e. Defeats Lighton Ker ini 400 His origin and character, 410. Sent by Islam Shah to receive Kamran 168 note Becomes Prime Minister 191 Assumes the title of Rhia 191 Defeats Sultan Besieges him in Hirahim 199 Bim, 499 Abandons the siege, Agun defeats him at Mun 500 dhicker 500 Defeat and destroys the arms of Bengal 502 Sent against Reoccupies Agra and Akber, 503 Delhi, 503 Defeats Terdi Ben Defeated and slain at the battle of Panipat 503

Hindal Mirza son of Biber has Alwar assigned to him 6 His success ful campaigns in the Gangette Provinces 69 90 Returns to Agra 90 Accompanies Humavun against Shir Shah, 139 Receives Firhut and

Purnia 119 Proceeds to his lagirs. Marches to Agra, 150 159 Determines to revolt, 162 Brought back to his allegiance by Sheikh Bhul, 162 Revolts, and puts Sheikh Bhul to death 152 163 Proclaimed I mperor, 152 161 Marches for Dellu, 161 Besieges it, 165 Abandone the siege and returns to Agra. 166 Retires to Mwar, 166 Sub mits to Kamrin 166 Is pardoned by Hum cyun, 178 His humiliation, 178 Commands the advance at the battle of Kanauj 190 Accompanies Humayun in his flight, 194 cccls to Maar, 195 Rejoins Humixun at Rahtak 195 His trenty with his brothers, 198 Recommends an attack on Sind and Gujrat 199 Sets out on this expedition 202 Joined by Humayun at Gul-Baluch, Marches to Pater, 215 His camp visited by Humáyun, 220 Their quarrel, 220 Deserts Humixun and marches to Kandahar. Besieged in Kandahar by Kumrun 258 265 302 Surrenders, and is carried prisoner to Kabul, 26 002 Appointed to the jagir of Li Shahi 265 302 Placed under surveillance at Kabul 302 Escapes, Joins Humavun at Tiri 322 Is rebuked by Humayun for his indiscrect advice 322 Commands the ndvanec agrunst Kamrun 324 pointed to the government of Ghazni, 326 and to Bidakhshan and Kunduz, 330 His conduct on Hum wun's illness, 330 Made governor of Kunduz Anderab and the provinces beyond the mountains, 832 Intertains Humayun at Kunduz. 333 Cleurs the Abdereh pass 337 Defeats Kamran's forces at the battle of Dch Afghanan 338 Pursues Kamran, 344 Overtakes, but nllows him to escape, 344 Throws himself into Kunduz 317 Joins Humavun 354 Takes part in the siege of Talikan, 354 His division repulsed by Kamran, 355 Humayun in his expedition against Balkh 369 Engaged in the defeat of the Uzbek advance, 372 His part in the retreat from Balkh 379 Distinguishes himself at Dera Gez 375 Thes to Kundur 376 Besieged there by Kamran 377 Declines Kimran's advances 977 Joins Hum iyun at Khinjan 385 Commands the left at the battle of Shutergorden,

Pursues Kámrán, 393 trusted with the governments of Ghazni, Gurdiz, Bangash, and Lo gher, 400 Is slain at the surprise at Jirbár, 402 Particulars of his death, 403 His remains conveyed to Ká bul, 403 His daughter betrothed to Akher, 403

Hindia, invaded by Sekander and Milu

Khan, 79

Hindu Beg Kochin (Mir), left in charge of Muhammedabad, 60 His services m Guirát. 77 79 Advises Humáyun to settle the country, 77 comes Humáyuns Amir-ul-omra and commander-in-chief, 133 Left in charge of Juánpúr, 143 His death, 151

Hindus, their religion compared with Muhammedanism, 4 Character of the Hindu rule 23

Hisám-ed-dín Ali (son of Mír Khalifa), repulses Kamran in Zemin-dawer. 335 Cruelly slain by Kámrán, 386

Hissár-Firúza, granted to Kámrán, 9 Given to Akber, 520 Assigned to

Abul Maalı, 524

Hosheng Ghúri (Sultan), King of Malwa, 19 Defcated and made prisoner at Dhár, 19 Released and Founds Mándu, 21 reinstated, 20 His death, 21

Hosheng II, or, Mahsos, King of Surrenders to Sultan Malua, 26 Mahmud, 27 Escapes and joins Muhammed Shah, 29

Hoshengábád, reduction of, by Sultan Mahmud, 22

Huma, the, 291

Humávun (Nasir ed-dín Muhammed), succeeds his father, 1 Time and place of his birth, 1, note Aspirants Unsettled state of to the throne, 3 the empire, 4 Formidable power of the Afghans, 4 Foreign relations, Humayun's character, 5 assigns jágirs to his brothers, 6 tensions and progress of Kamian, Humayun confirms him in his provinces, and gives him Hissar, 8 Besieges Kalinjer, 9 133 Is in raded by the Afghans, 9 133 feats them at the battle of Doura, 10 133 Returns to Agra, 10 134 Besieges Chunár, 10 131 Concludes a peace with Shir Khan, 11 Receives an embassy from Be háder Shah, 12 Quells the rebel lion of Muhammed Zeman Milza, Proceeds to the aid of the Raja of Chestúr, 14 Sends an ambassador to Behåder Shah, 14 Withdraws his forces, 15 Marches against the Afghans of Behar, 15 Returns Calls on Behåder Shah to Agra, 16 to dismiss the fugitives from his Court, 42 Behåder refuses, 49 Humayun prepares for hostilities, 43 He returns to Agra, 46 Defeat of his enemies at Mundráck, 46 invides Malwa, 47 Encamps at Meets the army of Sarangpur, 47 Behåder Shah at Mandsur, 49 "Combat of Friends," 51 Flight of Behåder, 53 Pillage of the camp, Humáyun pursues the fugitives, Invests Mandu, 55 Receives overtures from Behåder, 55 Mándu taken and plundered 57 Humá yun's supremacy in Malwa, 58 marches into Gujrát, 59 Arrives at Champanír, 60 Flight of Be-Arrives hader to Cambay and Diu, 60 Hum ivun pursues him, 61 Night attack Pillage of Cam on his camp, 61 bav. 62 He escalades Champanir, Takes an immense booty, 66 IIIs indolunce and revelry, 67 His cruel punishment of a party of revellers, 67 He puts an imam to death, 70 His remorse, 70 Induces Shah Hasan to aid him from Sind, 70 Neglects the settlement of Guirát, 73 Marches against Imád-ul-mulk, 75 Surprise of his advanced guard, 75 He defeats Imád ul mulk, 76 arrangements for the government of Gujrát, 77 Rejects the advice of Hindu Beg, to restore Behåder Shah, Receives alarming intelligence from Agra and Malwa, 78 Returns to Mandu, 79 Halts at Buranpur, His troops abandon Gujrát, 87 He intercepts Askeri and Yádgár, 88 They return to Agra, 88 State of the Gangetic provinces, 89 Mirza s successful campaign, 89 Humayun loses Malwa, 91 State of his empire at this period, 108 dolence at Agra, 109 He prepares to attack Shir Shah, 129 Is reconciled to Muhamed Zemán Mirza, 139 Besieges Chunár, 140 Capitulation of the fortress, 141 He advances to Benures, 142 Calls on Shir Shah to Shir Shah refuses, 143 submit, 143 Humayun marches towards Bengal, Receives the expelled King of 143 Bengal, 144 Approaches the Terra garhi Pass, 144 His advanced guard surprised and routed, 146 He occupies Gour, 149 Subjugates the whole province, 140 His indolence, 1.0 In stisfictory state of his afford 100. He depatche Sheikh Bhul to bring lack Hindal to his duty 150. Shir Klein's progress in in Behar, 151 Revolt of Hindal at Agen 152. Hum vun retires from Ben, al 153. His dangerous ituation 171 The pases into Behar forced by Askeri 175. He approaches the army of Shir Shih, 15. Reaches Chensy 15" Distress of the imperial ring 157 Rebellion of Hindal, 159 Kainran Streacherous conduct, 147 Hum wun's continued di tress nt Chon 107 Sends en envoy to Shir Shah 108 Segotiates with him 169 No, ligenee of Humavun Trescherous attack of Shir 150 Shah 170 Slaughter of the Impe rishists 171 Humayun's danger, Is wounded 172 Thes neross 171 the river 172. This life swed by a water currer 172 Annihilation of his army 172. He flus with Askeri to Agra 171 Joins Kim rin there Remarks the water carrier 179 I repaires again to attack Shir Shah 179 Is abandoned by Kamrin 191 Defeat of Shir Shihs ad vanced army, 181. Hum is un marches from Arra 182 Is joined by Haider Mirza 18. Haider's character of Humayun 153 Inefficient state of He marche to Ka lus army 181 1 mg 18 Pame and descritions in his army 180. He is defeated at the Inttle of Ismanj 189. Thes from the field, 101 Is noted by Shems ed din Muhammed 191 - Joined by Arrive at A kerrand Yalgar 192 Agra 193 Vilts Sved Ratin eddin 193 Proceeds to Sil ri 191 Joined by Hindal, with his family 194 Pursued by Mir Lerid 195 Reaches Dellii 195 Thes towards Arrives at I ahúr the Penids 195 19" His treats with his brothers 198 Their want of umon, 199 Ireneliery of Kamren 200 Hu mayun abandons I ahur 201 fu es to male away with Kimran, Is left by his brothers, 202 _01 Meditates an expedition to Kashmir, His plans thwarted by Kum ran, 204 Again refuses to have Kamran put to death 205 Resolves to join Hindal and Yndgar against Blicker, 205 Proceed towards Sind, 205 Arrives at Gul Baluch, 206 Is joined by Hindal and Yudgar, 207

Passes the territory of Bakhshui Langa 209 Confers on him the title Khan Jehán, 208 Lucamps near Blicker, 209 Review of his present state and part erreer, 209, 210 State of Sind on his arrival, 213 Conduct of Shah Husein, 213 Humayon resides at Lohri 214 tress in his camp 215. His embassy to Shah Hu ein 216 The Shah endeavours to induce him to quit Sind, 217 Humayun besieges Bheker, Visits the camp of Yadgar, 219 Visits Hindal at Pater, 220 --0 His marriage with Hamida Begum, 20 He icturns to his camp, 21 Sends Abul Bak's to prevent the desertion of Hindal, 221 His conces sions to Hindal 222 He dismisses Shah Husein s envoy 222 Advances to Schwan, 2.3 Besieges Schwan, Approach of Shah Husein, 224 Humiyuns difficulties, 224 Desertions from his camp 225 urges Hindal to act against Shah Husein 227 Sends Abdal Ghafur to Yudgar, 227 Defection of Yadgar 2.7 Humavun's flotilla scized by Shith Husein 228 He retreats from Schwin and loses his baggage, 29 Arrives at Rohm 229 Crosses the Indus, 231 Rebellious conduct of Yadgar, 231 Dispersion of Hu mayung force, 232 Threatened attack of Yulgar 231 Humayuns despuir 294 He retrents to the desert of Marwar, 235 Marches to Uch .36 Obstructed by Bakhshui Langa, 238 Marches to Derawal, Arrives in the Judpur terri-234 tory 240 Sends Mir Samander to Maldeo 240 Deputes Shems ed din Atkeh and Rai mal Soni to Maldeos court 241 Learns Mal deo s insincerity, 241 towards Jeselmir, 242 Retreats Torms a covering party, 241 Skirmish of the cavalry, 245 Receives a hostile embassi from Jeselmir, 246 Reaches Jeselmir, 246 Proceeds by the Greater Desert, 246 Sufferings from want of water, 247 Receives a second embassy from Jeselmir 248 Receives a Arrives at Amerkot, 249 Hospitably received by the Rána, 249 Anecdotes of Humavun, 250 251 His stay at Amerkot, 252 Humayun resolves to invade Jun, 254 Places his family in Amerkot, 254 His rejoicings at the birth of Akber, 255 Sends to attack Jam Beg,

256 Entrenches his camp at Jun, 256 Increases his forces, 256 Is opposed by Shah Husein, 257 Deserted by his Hindu allies, 257 Is unsuccessfully attacked by Shah Husein, 258 Is joined by Biram Khan, 258 Renewed scarcity in the Imperial camp, 259 Destruction of the foraging detachment, 261 He receives an envoy from Shah Husein, 262 Concludes an agreement with him, Abandons Sind, 269 Advances towards Kandahár, 265 Hostile preparadifficulties, 266 tions of his brothers, 267 He turns off towards Mustung, 267 Askeri's advance to seize him, 267 His flight towards Sistán, 269-271 Detained temporarily by the Balúches, 272 Hospitably treated by Malek Khati, 272 Enters the Germsir, 272 Sends a letter to the King of Persia, 273 Takes refuge in Sistan, 274 His reluc tance to enter Persia, 275 ception in Sistán, 275 Is joined by many of his followers, 275 Sets out for Herát and Meshhid, 277 regal entertainment, 277 He proceeds to Herht, 279 Visits Jam and Proceeds to join Meshlud, 279 Shah Tahmasp, 280 Sends forward Biram Khan as envoy, 281 Shah's treatment of Biram 281 Humayun's arrival and residence at Kazvin 282 He receives a deputation from the Shah, 282 IIIs in terriew with Shah Tahmasp, 283 He proceeds with the Court to Sul tania, 284 Is neglected, 281 Visits the shrine of Sultan Muhammed Khudabendeh, 284 The Shah's intolerance, 285 His desire to convert Humayun to the Shia faith, 285 Humayun visited by Kazi Jehán, Signs a paper of conformity to the Shia faith, 286 Attends a grand hunting party, 286 Misunderstanding between the sovereigns, Humávun makes Behram Mirza his enemy, 290 Change in the conduct of the Shah, 191 I cague between the monorche, 291 Parting fc tivities 292 Humayun's pre paration for his journey to Kandahar, Remarks on his treatment by the Shah, and his own conduct 297 His arrival in Sistan, 301 Affairs of his brothers 302 The Germser surrendered to him, 303 Bist reduced, 204 hamran's preparations, 304 Alber removed to

Humáyun besieges Kábul, 304 Kandahár, 306 Sends Biram Khan as envoy to Kábul, 307 Progress of the siege of Kandahar, 308 surrender, 311 The Emperor's leniency to Askeri Mirza, 311 delivers the fort to the Persian auxiliaries, 313 Dissensions between the Imperial and Persian troops, 316 Humáyun supplies himself with horses by plunder, 317 Uncertainty of his counsels, 317 He seizes Kandahár, 318 Sends ambassadors to Persia, 320 Divides the district among his nobles, 320 Proceeds to Kábul, 321 Is joined by Hindal and Yadgár, 322 Advance of Kamrán, 323 Desertions to Humáyun, Embassy from Kumran, 324 Humáyun occupics Kábul, 325 Recovers his son Akber, 325 Receives congratulatory embassies, 326 prisons and tries Yadgar, 327 Marches against Brdakhshan 328 Puts Yadgár to death, 328 Defeats the army of Badakhshán, 329 Submission of the country, 330 Dangerous illness of Humayun at Shahdan, 390 Hıs recovery, 331 Kábul retaken by Kumran, 332 Humáyun concludes a treaty with Suleimán Mirza, 332 Leaves Hindal governor of Kunduz and other provinces, 332 Marches against Kabul, 333 Received by Hindal at Kunduz, 333 Halts at Khuája Syaran, 333 Is deserted by many followers, 337 Holds a a council, 337 Resolves to attack Kabul, 338 Proceeds by the Laván pass, 338 Defeats Kámráns Takes the outer fortigeneral 338 fications, 339 Joined by many of Kumrun's chiefs, 340 Intercepts and defeats Shir Ali, 340 Threatens to retaliate Kamran's cruelties, 342 Receives submissive overtures from hım, 349 Enters the town, and gives it up to pillage, 316 Sends Kerácha Khan in pursuit of the fugitive Kamrán, 346 Marches against Kumrun, 349 Returns to winter at Kabul 348 Rebellion of Kerácha Khan and others, 348 He sends in pursuit of the rebels, 348 Collects his forces, 352 Marches to Kárabágh, The Governor of Badal lishan declares for him 352 He advances, 353 Is joined by Hindal, 351 I neamps in the Aleng Kazan of Anderab 354 Besuges Inlikán, 354 His troops repulsed, 355 Joined by Sulcim in Mirra and Chaker Khan, Submis ive offers of Kamran, Kamran surrenders 57 Humayun pardons the relyl-Concrously receives Kamrus, 319 His stay at Bend Kusha 30 Settles la porthera dominions 359 Restores Tamur's fort of Perian 361 Returns to Ivabul 301 State of his Court Orders Keraelin Klinn and Mosdah Bey to proceed to Mckka Receive an embas a from Ab dal Reshid Khan of Kashiar, 361 Depatches one to Sinh Lahma p Invited by Mirza Haider to Ka limir 60 Pr parex and conducts an expedition a unit Bilkh of a Joned by Mirras Ibraham Handal and Suleman (9 Likes Libek, 10 Advances 71 Sud lenly at tacked by the Uzbek 171 Repul es the Uzbek advance 7. Resolves to retreat 373 Panie in lus arms 374 Rout at the Deri Ger 371 towards Kubul 57 r The Imperors adventores, 37 Winters in Kabul 5-6 Proceedings of Kamrin 3"" His party in Humiyun's Court 379 Hum comprepares to care hum 350 Marche to Ab Baran 550. Is ur pri ed by Kame in at the Dera Kipchik, 381 Want of real among Hu mayon chick, 242. He flies and is wounded 59 Reaches the Sirt in pr. 35. Is joined by a remfored ment 53 Proceds to Kalimerd 354 Joined at Khingin by Hindal and other 385 Prepares to return to Kabul 385 Conduct of Kamrin, 18) He occupies Kabul 586. The Imperor advances from Ander ib 357. His compact with his chiefs 357 The armies meet near Shutergerden 90 Humayun endervours unsuccessfully to negotiate 591. Or ders an attack of Defeats and compels Kamein to fly 393 occupies Kabul 91 Sends Askeri to Mckka 397 Preceeds igaining unst Kimran 397 Puts to death Haji Muhammed and his brother Change in Humavan's policy 400 Lenguillization of Afghanistan 100 The I imperor marches against K un-Night attack on his camp r in 101 nt Juliar, 102 Renels the assailants 102 Winters at Behsud, 105 Surpri es Kamr m s camp soo turns to Kabul 106 Invs waste Bang ish 406 Receives in offer from the Gakers to surrender Kamrán, 107 Kamrin submits and joins Humayun 111 Humáyun consults ns to his fate 112 Deprives hun of his evesight 112 Permits him to proceed to Mekka, 116 Has an interview with him, 416 Humayun plunders the country, 119 Proposes to attack Kashmir, 119 Defection among his troops, 419 Recrosses the Indus, 120 Rebuilds and provisions Peshawer, 120 Returns to Kabul 121 169 Lavourable state of his affairs 121 Resolves to reconquer India, 122 506 Suspects Birani Khan 507 Proceeds to Kandahar, 507 Is magnificently entertuned by Birani Khan 507 Proceeds to Is magnificently Returns to Isabul 509 Is found by Biram Khan 500 Sets out and reaches the Indus, 509, 510 State of India at this time 510. He crosses the Indus, 510 Occupies Rhotas, the Northern Penjab and Lahur. He occupies Sirhend, 513 Continued distractions in Hindustan. His army under Biram Khan crosses the Satley 514. He gains the battle of Machiwara, 499 515 Hum wun obtains a complete victory over Schauder Shah and the Afghans, at the battle of Sirhend, 199 518 Decisive effects of the victory, 519 He reaccupies Dellii, 520 Distributes the provinces 5.0 Surrender of Bring 521 Prequent insubordiration of Humayun's officers, 522 Revolt of Mirra Sulciman 522 Misconduct of Abul Maali 523 Humayon e plans for the government of the empire, 526 Particulars of his death, 527 His death concealed for a time 328. Alarm excited by the event #29 Danger of the crisis, 529 His character 530

1NDEX 569

Husein Arahun (Shah), or Shah Husein Mirzy or Shah Hasan Ruler of Sind. makes a diversion in favour of Humayun 71 Ravages Gujrat, 71 Retreats, 72 His character, 218 Humavun enters his territory, 213 His apprehensions, 213 Receives a mission from Humayun 216 erastmates, 216 Attempts to induce Humayun to quit Sind, 217 His detensive operations 221 Intrigues with Yulgar 227 Scizes Humayun's flotilla, 228 His proceedings at Bheker and Sakar 252 Advances n_ainst Humayun 257 Attacks Humay un unsuccessfully, 258 Prepares for battle, 262 Concludes a peace with Humivun, 2/2 Receives Kam ran 395 Cives him his drughter in narriage 593 Aids him in recovering Kahul 556 Receives him when blinded 419

Husein Kuli Sultan his visit to Humivum 270 Serves with Humavun's Person allie 291. His part at the rout at the Dera-Ger 773-975, and at Kipel ik 182. Taken pri oner by Kimian 786. Hown to pieces by Kimian's order 386.

Ibrahim grandfither of Shir Shah, 111 Ibrahim (Khwaja) his priident conduction the death of Mirzi Hindal 103 Ibrahim Khan son of Kuth Khan invides I char, 127—His defeat by Shir Shah and death 128

Heralum Khan Sur, or Sultan Ibr dum Sur slave Schander Khan Lirmili, 188 Rebelsing unst Adeli in Brinn, Defeats Isa Khan Neon 193 Likes D the ind Agra and a times the overeights 194. I stent of his t rritors, 195 Op, o c Ahmed Khon at I irrah, 196 Defeated by Ahmed 400 I capes to Simblal, 17 Again takes the field, 400 D feeted by Mulcinimed Shih, who t sieres him in In ni 149. fited by Hima Bikil it Klim i 5.0 Hi flight and fite 01 Hr lim Le li (Soltin) of Delhi, his hammed Shah at Malwa, 28 His differences with Bohjat Khan 29

Isa Khan the Mir Hajib, his advice to Sultin Islam 153

Isa Khan Hijab Sirwani, waits on Huraivun with Kuth Khan 12 Causes Sultan Islam to be proclaimed, 448

Isa Khan Nizi, answers for the safety of Adel Khan 149 Retires with him to Brina, 451 Retires, on Adels defeat, to Mewit 151 Advances with Khowis Khan against Islum Shah, 157 Withdraws his forces, 158 Retires to the mountains, 160 Defeated by Ibrahim Khan Sur, 193

In Khan Súr, placed in the government of Malwa 163

Isa Terkhan, his command against Sheikh Ali Beg 260

Ishak (Sved) See Shitab Khan

Islaak Sultan, defends Kila Zefer against Kamrin 377 Joined by Suleimin Mirza 378

Islam Laimur Sultan, accompanies Humayun in his retreat from Júdpur, 211–219 - Sent to support Sheikh Ah 260 - Is defeated, 261

Islander Mirra, commands Kamrin's auxiliaries with Humiyun 183

Iskander Sultin decres from the camp of Humiyan 337

Islam Shah (Sultan) or Schin Shah Sur, cond on of Shir Shah proclaimed King of Della 118. Cause province, 463 Obtains a victory over Azım Humayun, in the Peniab. His disgraceful conduct after the victory, 464 Advances to Rhotas, 465 His contests with the Gakers, 465 Discontents in his Makes peace with the camp, 465 Gakers, on their expelling the Ninzis, 466, who are exterminated in the defiles, 467 Builds Mankot, 467 Narrowly escapes assassination, 467 Visited by Kamran, 408 468 haughty reception of him, 408. Islam s alarm at the approaching invasion of Humivun, 468 He meditates the destruction of Lahur, and the removal of the capital to Mankot, 469 Mutual suspicions of Islam and his nobles, 470 His death, 471 His character, 471 His administration of His treatment of the justice, 475 Mehdevis, 480

Islamabad See Perián

Ismael Beg Duldi appointed to the government of Zemin dáwer, 320 Deserts Humavun, 351 Escapes to Kamran Mirza, 352 Pardoned by Humávun, 357

Ismael Khan, a Beluch chief, submits to Shir Shah, 424

Jabar Kuli Korchi, his proposal to slav Kamran, 205

Jami his poems, 25

Jamil Beg joins Humiyun in the march on Kabul, 323

Jamu, Raja of, refuses to receive the fugitive Kunran, 410

Janúha tribe, their fort given up to Sultan Adam Gaker, 419

Jehán Kazvini (Kazi), minister of Shah Tahmasp, urges Humávun to adopt the Shia faith 28... His friendly feeling towards Humavun 290

Jehan Shirázi (Khan) his operations ngainst Humayun's officers in Gujrat,

Jehanger-Kuli Beg, his service in Be hur and Bengal, 145-146 Left in charge of Bengal, 153 Defeated by Shir Shah, 175 His death 175

Jemil (Mir), his diffence of Kandahár, 806 Jenkirson, his reception at the Persian court 298, note

Jeselmir, Humavun's distresses in 246 Jh irejas, (the.) 71 Chastised by Shah Hasan, 72

Jiji Anka, 271

Jilal Khan, son of Sultan Muhammed Loham See Sultan Jelal ed dan Jilal Khan, second son of Shir Khan, left to defend Chunár, 11 Engaged in the siege of Gour, 142 Occupies the Teria garhi Pass, 144 Surprises Humáyun s advance 146 Abandons Defeats Yusef Beg, the pass, 147 152 His share in the battle of Kanauj, 190 Proclaimed King of Dellu, under the title of Islam Shah, See Islam Shah

Jilal Khan Jilwani, repels the attack of the Rajputs on Shir Shah's camp, 438 Joins in the rebellion of Adel Khan, 451 Is put to death by Islám Shah, 454

Jilal ed din Lohani (Sultan), succeeds to the throne of Behar, 125 Engages in a conspiracy with his relations against the minister Shir Khan, 126 Thes to Bengal, 127 Returns with an army, 127 Is defeated, and returns to Bengal, 128 Submits to Bûter, 130 Is assigned a jágir by Buber, 131

Jilal ed din Mahmud (Khwája), joins Humáyun, 273 Appointed Mír Saman 278 His advice to Humayun, 329, note Appointed to the government of Kábul, 411

Julul ed din Sherki (Sultun), his claim to the throne of Behar, 128

Jirbár, surprise of, 402

Jogi Khan, a servant of Kámrán, 407 409 Jouher, notice of his "Memoirs," 280 His account of the death of Hindal, 402 His details of the blinding of Kamran 418

Juanpur, taken by the Afgháns, 9 Besieged by Ulugh Mírza, 89 Besieged by Shír Shah, 151

Judpur See Marwar

Jui-Shahi (now Jelalabad) bestowed on Hindal Mirza, 265 Given by Kamrán to Mirza Askeri, 387 Given to Khizer Khwaja Khan, 400

Jun, Humavun's invasion of, 254 Description of it, 255 Humáyun's in trenched camp at 256

Júnagar See Girnál

Juneid Bulas (Sultan), reinstated in the government of Juanpur 10 Governor of Karra Manikpúr, 122 Assists Shir khan to regain his jagirs, 122, 123 Appointed to the government of Behár, 131 Abandons Juánpur, 133 His death, 110 139 Justice, administration of, during the right of Baber and Humavun, 544

Kabul, the kingdom of, confirmed to Kamrán, 6 Festivities there on the triumphant return of Kamrán, 309

Retaken by Kámrán, 332 336
Besieged by Humáyun, 338 The outer enclosure taken, 339 Siege of the town and citadel, 339 Surrendered, 344 Again taken by Kámrán, 386 Reoccupied by Humáyun, 394
Kabuli, his death, 371

Kåder Shah, or Milu Khan, assumes the soveregnty of Malwa, 429 He quarrels with Shir Shah, 430 Shir Shah marches against him, 430 Ap parent reconciliation between them, 430 Ordered to Laknou, 431 Escapes to Gujrát, 431 Totally defeated by Shujaa Khan, 432

Kafur, the eunuch, 191

Kahmerd, government of given to Shir-efken, 331 Given to Hindal, 332

Kalinjer, besieged by Humáyun, 9 133 Siege raised, 9 133 Description of the fort, 440 Besieged by Shír Shah, 440 Captured, and Shír Shah s death there, 441

Kulpi placed under the government of Yadgar Nasir Mirza, 139

Kalúr, Raja of, entertains Kámrán, 410 Kambelmér reduced by Mahmúd Khilji, 22

Kamber Alı, slays Kerácha Khan, 393 Kamber Diwána, his conquest of Bedáun, 520 Attacked and put to death by Alı Kulı Sıstánı, 520

Kambhu (Raja) receives and entertains Kámrán, 409, 410

Kamran Mirza, son of Baber, confirmed in the kingdoms of Kábul and Kandahar 6 His ambitious views, 6 He marches towards Hindustán, 6 Captures Lahur, 7 Occupies the Penjab, 8 Concessions of Humayun to him, 8 He acquires Hissár-Γiroza, 9 Relieves Kandahár, 101, and Labur, 102 Retakes Kandahar from the Persians, 105 His power, 165 Called in to relieve Dellii, 165 Pursues Hindal Mirza, 166 Receives his submission, 166 Commands the confederates against Shir Khan, 167 His ambition, 167 Returns to Agra, 167 Is joined by Humáyun at Agra, 177 Meeting of the brothers, 178 His illness, 181 Hercturns to Lahur 183 Receives Humávun at Lahur, 197 His selfish conduct, 197 His treaty with his brothers 198 Their want of union, 199 Kamran's treachery. 200 He makes overtures to Shir Shah, 200 Receives his ambassador. 201 Abandons Lahur, 201 Departs for Kábul, 202 Thwarts the plans of Humáyun, 204 Besieges Hindal in Kandahar, 253 Assumes the royal ınsıgnıa ın Kabul 264 Invades Badakhshán, 265 302 Sends an ambassidor to Shah Husein of bind, 265 His power when Humayun entered Persia, 274, and at the invasion of Kandahár by Humáyun, 302 again invades Badaklishán, 303 feats Mirza Suleimán at Anderáb, 303 Captures Kıla-Zefer, 303 His apparent royal prisoners, 303 His apprehensions prosperity, 303 and preparations on the approach of Humáyun, 304 He removes Akber to Kábul, 304 Receives Biram Khan at Kábul, 307 His irresolution, 308 Defection of his chief nobles, 309 His perplexity, 313 Desertion of all the mirzas, 315 His isolation, He advances to oppose Humáyun, 323 Amount of his army, 323, note His alarm, 324 He sends an embassy to Humáyun, 324 Flies to the citadel of Kabul, 325 Proceeds to Ghazni, 325 Is refused admittance there, 326 Takes refuge in Sind, 326 335 Marries Chuchak Begum, 335 Leaves Sind on hearing of Humávuns illness, 335 Plunders Afghan horse-dealers, 335 Surprises Ghazni, 336 Retakes Kabul, 332 Puts the governors to death, 336 His cruelties, 336 His general defeated by Hindal, 338 Besieged in Kabul by Humávun, 339 Kám-rán's brutal conduct, 341 His distress and submissive applications, 343 He escapes from Kabul, 344 Robbed by the Hazaras, 345 Takes Ghuri, 345 Thes to Badakhshán, 345, and thence to Bálkh, 346 Loses Ghuri, 346 Engages Pir Muhammed Khan in his interest, 346 Returns with an army from Bálkh, 347 Recovers Ghuri and takes Baklán, 347 Attacks Badal hshán, 347 Receives Kerácha and other rebels from Humáyun's camp, 352 Advances to relieve Talikán, 354 Repulses the besiegers, Retires to the town, 356 Is besieged, 356 His distress, 356 His submissive offers to the Emperor, 356 Surrenders to Humáyun, 357 His generous reception by him 358 Receives the province of Khutlán, 360 His dis atisfaction, 360 Sets out for his government, 360 Quarrels with Chaker Khan, 368 Declines to repair to Kabul, 368 Fails to join Humay un in his expedition against Balkh,

His continued absence, 372 Attemps to conquer Badakhshan, 377 Besieges Kunduz, 377 Calls in the U2bcks, 377 Raises the siege, 378 Returns to Kuláb, 378 His camp plundered by the Uzbeks at Rostak, His army dispersed, 378 tires to Khost, 379 Excites a revolt m Kábul, 379 The Emperor prepares to seize him, 380 Kamrán surprises him at the Dera Kipchák, 381 Defeats him, and compels him to fly, 382 Kámrán occupies Kábul, Increases his army and divides the provinces, 387 The Emperor advances against him, 387 Kámrán refuses the terms offered, 391 defeated at Ashterkeram, and escapes from the field, 393 395 Plundered Takes refuge by the Afghaus, 396 with Malek Muhammed of Mundráwer, 396 Driven to the country of the Khalil and Mehmend Afghans, 397 Collects troops, and plunders the country, 397 Besieges Charbagh, 397 Retreats to Peshawer, 398 Retires to Lamghan, 398 Thes towards the Indus, 400 Collects troops and again advances against Humáyun, Retires on the Empirors ap-Attacks the Emperors proach, 401 Repulsed, 402 camp by night, 402 His distress at his brother Hindal's death, 403 Surprised by Humáyun, Flies to Selim Shah, King of His humiliating re-Delhi, 406 ception, 408 His escape, 409 subsequent wanderings and detention by the Gakers 407 410 He surrenders to Humáyun, 411 cussions as to his fate, 412 deprived of his eyesight, 412 His De interview with Humáyun, 416 serted by his attendants 418 cceds to Sind and Mekka, 418 Their Devotion of his wife, 418 deaths, 419

Kanáuj, taken by Muhammed Sultan, 89 Recovered by Hindal Mirza, 89 Bestowed on Núr ed din Muhammed Mirza, 139 Battle of, 167 et seq Bestowed by Muhammed Shah on Sirmast Khan 487

Kandahár the kingdom of, confirmed to Kámran, 6 The town besieged by Sam Mirza, 101 Reheved by Kámran, 101 Taken by Shah Tahmasp, 104 Surrendered to Kámrán, 105 Delivered by Keracha Khan to Hindal, 265 Besieged and taken by Kamrán, 253 265 Bestowed on

Askeri Mírza, 265 Besieged by Humáyun, 306 Distress and desertions in the garrison, 310 Surrender of the town, 311 Given over to the Persians, 313 Seized by Humáyun, 319 Joy of the inhabitants, 319 The provinces of, distributed by Humáyun, 320

Kanji Khwaja, delivers the keys of Kandahar to Shah Fahmasp, 105

Karábágh, 352

Karatigin, government of, given by Humayun to Askeri, 360

Karra-Manikpur, reduced by Shah Mirza, 85

Kashmír, the exiled nobles of, apply to Haider Mirza for aid, 203 Unsuccessful expedition of Bába Jujkeh, 203 Its invasion recommended by Haider Mirza, 199 Humáyun resolves to attempt the conquest of, 202 He abandons the attempt, 205 Haider Mirza proceeds on the enterprise 364 History of the country, 364 Haider Mirza takes possession of the capital, 366, and becomes master of the kingdom, 366

Kásım Alı (Moulana), slain at Chonsa,

Kásım Birlás, taken prisoner by the Badakhshán nobles, 314 Sent against Humáyun, 323 Occupies the Khimár pass, 323 Is dislodged, 323 Left in charge of Kábul, 380 Surrenders Kábul to Káinrán, 386

Kásım Husein Sultan Uzbek, appointed to Barúch and Nousári, 77 Abandons his capital, 82 Advises an instant attack on Shir Khan at Chonsa, Aids in the defeat of Kutb Khan, 181 At the battle of Kanauj, 190 Joins Humáyun at Delhi, 195 Joins Hindal in his attempt on Gujrat, 202 Deserts to Ladgar Mırza, 233 Advises Askeri not to move against Humáyun, 267 serts Kamrán, 310 Joins Humayun against Kámrán, 352 Thes at the rout of Kipchak, 382 Deserts to Kamran, S86

Kásım Mokhlis, Kámrán's Master of Ordnance, 323

Kattiawar, reduced by Mozeffer Khan, 19 Kazvín, Persian royal residence of, 281 Humáyun s sojourn there, 282

Kemul Gaker, his escape at Guáliár, 456, nete.

Keracha Beg or Khan, seizes Lahur by stratagem, 7 Is Humayun's prime minister, 330 350 His decided conduct on the illness of Humayun, 111 Clears the Abdereb Pa-His part in the battle of D h M ghamin, 199 Inke Kamein of enc ral pri oner, 9 19 His ron cruelly treated by Kamein 10 Jakes Ghuri, 116 His unsuccessful expedition into Badakh lein 🕠 🗀 🤭 11. quarrel with Khwali Chies He revolt against Humayan 151 Desert 351 I capita to Kamran, Brought in chains b for Hu bacobreq but, and predoned Ordered to proceed to Mcklin 1/3 Allowed to return 303. He s, un desert from Huntisin 180 111-47 pointed by Kamian to Gleizor Slun at the listtle of Shuter, erden

Khalid Beg presents his bor e to Hu mayan 219

Khalifa Sultan Shamlu has defence of Khori in 102 Is defited and *latu 10.

Ishahi (Sheikh) bis mi sion from Shir Shift to Humiyan 108

Khan Khan'ın title of bistored br Humayun on Birim Ishin 300

Khan Khan at Lodi. See Dilawee Khan Khanzida Begum bereare of the infect Akber, 309 Her journey to Askers at Kandahar 308 Her medertem between Humiyun and Allen 311 Her death 342

Khati (Malck) has ho , i ality to Humayon in the desert, 272

Khimar Pass (the) cleared by Humh vuns troops, 323

Khizer Khan, his defence of Patin Nehrwala 70, 71

Khizer Khan son of Muhammed Shah Sur, succeeds his fither in Gour 701 Assumes the title of Sultan Behader, 501 Is defeated by Muhammed Shah, 501

Kluzer Khan (Kluwaja) accompanies the I mperor in his retreat from Deri Appeliak, 383 Appointed to the government of Jui Shidu, 100

Khizer Khan Hazara, escapes from Kandabar, 310 Receives Kamrin, I scapes from Rubul 349

Khizer Khan Sirwani, assumes the sovercignty of Bengal, 428 thrown into prison 339

Khodaidad Khan, put to death by Islam Shah, 454

Khodhwend Khan See Rumi Ishan Khondemir, author of the Kabil us seir, his death, 79, note

Khorásán, invaded by Obeid Khan, 98 Relieved by Shah Tamasp, 100 Ar ain invaled by the Tabeks 102 O copy of by Shift I damage 101 Committed to the circ of Sultan Mulcimized Marx 101

Khose in De Kokilte li, her tree mable d igns 100

Kho rou Shih parten of at Kunfuz,

Kho rou Sultin del etal by Haji Ma bringed 7...

Khe t collectorite of piren to Monium Pr 10 Coven to Hard d (2 Khowa Khan his operations in the eriquet of Ber, d 112 He f etc fic-the leres who P . 111 fate Raje Minter 169 His part in the lett' of I ar of 160. Ap pointed Sydresfier by Shir Side Acknowl dges Sultin Islan . , Centra ex-Ad I Khins 11: wafets 417 Receives Adel Floor 1-1 The are just be one of the chief a sur-I list mirch on Agr. 151. Difficable Solting Islam 45 Take ren in Memat and Keminn . 1 Joins in the reb Box of the Pentab 1 " With dene his forces 158. Diff its I his Silver 160. Is jut to death by In Khan 10. The character 10. Veneration of his merory 101

Khurem B sum motter of Saleman Mitter old

Khutha - Nr Kulab

Kliv ifa Pushteb, Passof 3.1

Khwiji Sviran, Hun ivan Inli

Kichere an Indian delt. 295

Kilin (Amir Khwija) his brive defence of Kandahar, 101 Surrenders it to the Persons 104 Is Kimrin prince minister 181 Proceed to I have 201 Is cized there by Kamran 205

Kilit, bistomed en Sinretken Be-320

Kill Zefer, fort of, 11 Block aded by Surrenders, 20 Kamran, 301 Liken by the Budakhshan con purators 911

hazelb ober See Persinne

Koh Jakabem 119

Kokan the Northern included in the kingdom of Gurat, 20

Koli trib 4, (the) attack. Humiyans Camp, 61, 62

Kota psystribute to Mahmud Khilji 22 Kuláb or Khutlan, bestowed by Humayun on Kamran, 350 by Chaker 1h Bek 378

Kuli Choli (Mirza) his disaster at the

Dera Kipchik, 992

Kumbha, a Rájpút chief, his bravery, 488 His death 489

Kunduz, given to Hindal, 350 332 Beseiged by Kámrán, 377 Given to Mir Birkeh, 400 Taken by Ibráhim Mirza, 401

Kutb Khan, son of Shir Shah, joins Humayun's camp 11 Escapes to his father, 12 Retires from Chunar, 140. Defeated and slain in battle, 181

Kuth Khan, Governor of Mongeir, his defeat and death in Behar, 126

Kutb Khan Naib, mediates between Shir Shah and Puran Mal, 434 Guarantees Adel Khan s safety, 449 Empowered by Selim Shah to negotiate, 452 Recalled to camp, 453 Sent in pursuit of the rebels, 454 Flies to the Penjab, 455 Surrendered to Selim Shah, 455

Kutb-ed-din (Mulla), of Shiráz, 96

Lad Malek, wife of Taj Khan, 181 Her marriage with Shir Shah, 132

Lahur, captured by Kamrán, 7 Unsuccessfully besieged by Muhammed Zeman Mirza, 102 Occupied by Shir Shah 424

Lankern (Ru) Raja of Jeselm r, 246 Latif Khan, his imprisonment in Bur hanpur, 97

Lawang Baluch, acknowledges Huma vun, 327 His appointment to the government of Shal and Mustung, 927

Law, Muhammedan General Kennedy's 'Abstract" of, notice of, 28, note

Literature, (the,) of Persia and Arabia, its value 24

Lohri or Rohri, Humávun's encampment at, 209 Description of the place 214

Logher given to Hindal Mirza, 400

Machiwara, battle of, 515
Maham Ecgum mother of Humayun,

2, note Mahum Anka, Akber's nurse 271

Mahmud II (Sultan) King of Malwa 25 Intrigues of his minister 26 Thes from his palice, 26 Supported by Medini Rai, 26 Repels the invasion of Muhammed Shah, 28 Makes peace 29 Determines to dismiss his Ráiputs, 31 His imprudence 31 Attempts to assassinate Medini Rai and Salbhan 31 Escapes to Gujrat, 31 Is replaced on the throne, 32 Besieges Gagrown, 32 Is defeated and made prisoner

by Rána Sanga, 33 Restored, 93 Receives Chand Khan of Gujrat, 33 Attacks Rána Rattonsi, 34 Is besieged in Mándu by Beháder Shah, 35 Taken prisoner, 95 Put to death, 35

Mahmud Khan Bhekeri (Sultan), his command in the army of Shah Hasan, 70 Plunders in Gujrat, 71 Is governor of Upper Sind and Bheker, 214 Declines to surrender Bheker to Humayun 215 Defunds the fort, 218 Relieves Humayun's distress for provisions, 232 His disgrace, 252 He defuats Sheikh Ali Beg Je láir, 260

Mahmád Khilji (Sultan), becomes King of Malwa, 21 His conquests and power, 22 His defeat near Ahmedabád, 22

Mahmud Lodi (Sultan), his clum to the throne 5 129 Proclaimed king, 130 Acknowledged by Shir Khan, 130 Expelled by Baber, 130 Flies to Bengal, 5 130 Again collects an army, 132 Joined by Shir Khan, 133 Iakes Juanpúr, 9 133 Deserted by Shir Khan, 153 Defeated by Humáyun at Douri, 10 194 Fhes to Patna, 154 Dies, 134

Mahmud Shah Bigara, his successes, 20 Origin of his name, 20, note

Mahmud Shah (Sultan), King of Bengal, his murder of his nephew, 136
His usurpation, 136 Besieged in Gour, 136 142 Takes refuge with
Humáyun 142

Mahmud Shah, son of Latif Khan, his reign in Gujrat 97

Mahmud Shah Purabi, his daughter married to Khizer Khan Sirwani, 428 Mahmudabad, ravaged by Shah Hasan,

71 Under the government of Mir Bochak Behader, 77

Malisos. See Hosheng II

Makhdum Alim Khan, allies himself with Shir Shah, 126

Makhduma Jehan, mother of Behader Shah, 96

Makri, family of in Kashmir, 364

Maldeo Rai of Judpur or Marwar, his dominions 235 Sends spies into Humavun's camp, 240 His insincerity, 241 His power and domin-He quarrels with Shir 10ns, 495 Shah, 436 Is attacked by him, 436 Advances to oppose Shir Shah, 437 Suspects treachery, 489 Retreats, Discovers the plan to deceive 438 him, 459

Maldeo, son of Rai Lankern, 246

Malek Saka, his defeat and death, 122 Malu Khan See Milu Khan

Malwa, becomes an independent kingdom under Dilawer Khan, 17 21 Hosheng, 21 Its power under Sultan Mahmud Khilji, 22 Power of the Hindu chiefs, 25 Character of its princes, 25 Sultan Mahmud II, 25 Power of the Rajputs, 27 Confederacy of Musulman nobles, 27 Their struggle for the ascendancy, 28, et seg Prace concluded, 30 quent history, 30-39 Its dismemberment, 33 Invaded and conquered by Behåder Shah, 11 35 Invaded and conquered by Humáyun, 46 58 Insurrections, 79 Quelled by Hu-The province wrested máyun, 79 from Humáyun by Káder Shah, 91 429 Invaded by Shir Shah, 429 Conquered, 431 The government bestowed on Shujaa Khan, 432

Mandelgar, conquered by Mahmud

Khilji, 22

Mandráel, battle of, 46

Mandsur, conquered by Mahmud Khilji, 22 Rout of, 50

Mándu foundation of, 21 Taken by Sultan Mahmud, 32 Massacre of the Raputs, 32 Besieged and taken by Behåder Shah, 35 Date of this capture, 35, note Invested by Humay un, 55 Description of the city, Escaladed, 56 Plundered by Humayun's troops, 57 Abandoned by Humayun, 90 Occupied by Bhopal Rai, 90

Mánkot, or Mánghar, built by Islám

Shah 467

Marwar, or Judpur, under the government of Maldeo, 485 Invaded by Shir Shah, 486

Matter Sin (Raja), delivers up Biram Khan to Shir Shah, 258

Medini Rao or Rai, aids Sultan Mahmud II to regain the throne of Malwa, 26 Becomes prime minis-Musulman league against ter, 27 hım, 27 Defeats Mozeffer Shah of Gujrat, 28 Advances against Muhammed Shah, 28 I ffects a peace, Receives Chanders, 30 Rcquired by the Rajputs to depose Sultan Mahmud, 31 Attempt to assassınate lum, 31 Attacked by Sultan Mahmúd, 31 Applies for aid to Advances to re-Rana Sanga, 32 lieve Gagrown, 32 Defeats Sultan Is defented by Baber, Mahmud, 35 and slam in Chándéri, 34

Mchdevis, account of the, 475

Mehdi Kásim Khan, his service under Askeri Mirza, 267

Mehdi Khwajh (Syed), a competitor for the throne of Delhi, 3

Mehter Sagu (afterwards Ferkhat Khan), saves Humáyun from death, 983

Mehter Vakıla, blinded by Kumrán Mirza, 336

Mehter Lambur, his flight to Ujein, 79
Meshhid, taken by Obeid Khan, 98
Overrun by the Uzbeks, 99
Again
besieged by Obeid Khan, 103
Visited by Humayun, 279
296

Mewat, assigned to Hindal Mirza, 6 Given to 1 erdi Beg Khan, 520

Mharta (Raja) his defeat and death, 169 Mhow, in Sind, 238

Mian Tansın, 504

Milu (or Malu) Khan, Governor of Malwa Flies with Behåder Shah from Mandsúr, 53, and on the capture of Mándu, 56 His position in Malwa, 56, note Plunders Hindia, 79 Assumes the crown of Malwa, 91 429 See Kåder Shah

Mirak (Beg), appointed to Chunar, 142
Mirak (Sheikh), his mission to the Emperor Humayun, 217
His return to 7 atta, 222

Miran Muhammed Khan Farukhi, Prince of Kandesh, 38 Flies from the intrenchments of Mandsúr, 53 Joins Bhopal Rao in Mándu, 91 Raised to the throne of Gujrát, 97

Mirza Beg, joins Kámrán in his flight from Kábul, 345

Mirza Beg Birlás, Governor of Ghuri, defeated by Kámrán, 945

Moazem Sultan (Khwaja), left in charge of the family of Humayun, at Amerkot, 254 He divides Humayun's presents among the Persians, 295 His quarrel with Baltu Khan, 518

Mobárek Bokhári (Syed), his engagement with Yádgár Násir Mirza, 86

Mobarez Khan, his position in the army of Shir Shah at Kanaui, 190 See Sultan Muhammed Shah Adel Shah

Mohafez Khan, places Muhammed Shah on the throne of Malwa, 26 Driven into exile, 26 Invades Malwa, 28 Is defeated and slain, 29

Mokadam Beg, 191

Mokim Khan, besuged by Mirza Suleimán in Auderáb, 522

Monaim Beg, or Khan, sent on a mission to Shah Husein, 229 His attempted desertion, 233 He retreats tempted descriton, 233 He retrents with Humáyun, 244 249 Descrits Humáyun, 258 Arrives in the camp mands the reserve at the battle of Shutergerden, 392. Appointed minister to Akber, 394 Withdraws to Ghazni, 396 Summoned to attend Humáyun against Kámrán, 397 Entertains Biram Khan in Ghazni, Suspected of treachery, 398 Prevailed on by Biram to accompany him to Kabul, 398 Escapes from Kábul, 399 Returns, and 18 reconciled to Humáyun, 399 Found guilty of rebellion, and put to death, 400

Muhammed Khodábendeb, shrine of,

Muhammed Khorásani (Shah), 251
Muhammed Murád Mirza (Sultan), son of Shah Tahmasp, commands the Persian auxiliaries, 294, 302 Receives possession of Kandahár, 313 His death, 318

Muhammed Shah, King of Kashmir, expelled from the throne, 365

Muhammed Shah Adel Shah (Sultan), or Adeli, or Mobárez Khan, murders his nephew, Firuz Shah, 483 count of him, 484. His accession to the throne of Delhi, 485 His character, 485 Hated and despised by his subjects, 487 Up roar and murder in his derbar, He quells the revolt of 487 488 the Keránis, 488 Sketch of his minister, Himu Bakál, 491 of disaffection, 493 Revolt of Ibrá-Adeli abandons him Khan, 493 Agra and Delhi, 494. Distracted state of the kingdom, 495 of Ibrábím, 499 Adeli defeats the Ling of Bengal, 502 Prepares to oppose Humayun, 503 Defeated by Sultan Behåder, and slain, 504

Muhammed Shah Chandéri, raised to the throne of Malwa, 26 His exile, 26 Invited to return, 27 Returns with powerful auxiliaries, 28 Concludes a peace with Sultan

Mahmud, 29 Dies, 30

Muhammed Shih Súr (Sultan) King of Bengal, 495 Defeated and slain at Chapergháta, 502

Muhammed Sultan (Shah) of Hissar, attacks Humáyun's camp, 372

Muhammed Sultan Mirza, aspires to the throne of Delhi, 3 Rebels, is defeated and made prisoner, 13 Ordered to be blinded, 13 Lscapes, 14 Assumes the sovereignty in Behár, 78 89 Fixes his seat of government at Belgrám, 89 Defeated by Hindal, 90 Again defeated by Hindal, 90

feated at Oud, 90 Flies to Kuch-Behár, 90 Is pardoned, and joins Humáyun, 180 Deserts Humáyun, 185 Joins Kámrán, 206 303

Muhammed Zemán Mírzs, made Governor of Juánpúr by Baber, 131 Aspires to the throne of Delhi, 3 His parentage and history, 12 Is defeated and made prisoner, 13 doned. 13 Escapes to Guirát, 19 His conduct at Mandsur, 52 42 Flies on the dispersion of Behåder Shah's army, 53 His fruitless expedition against Lahur, 96 102. Joins Behåder Shah's family, 96 Proclaimed King of Gujrát by the Portuguese, 97 Defeated and driven from Gujrát, 97 Reconciled to Humáyun, 97 102 139 Slam at Chonsa, 173

Muhammedábád-Champanır, burnt by Beháder Shah, 60

Mujahid Khan, of Junagar, his junction with Imad-ul mulk, 75

Multán, submits to Shir Shah, 433

Múlúk (Beg), waits upon Kámrán, 415 Deserts him: 418

Murád Afshár (Sultan) of Farra, joins Sam Mirza in his invasion of Kandahár, 101

Murad Mirza (Sultan) See Sultan Muhammed Murád Mirza.

Mustung, given by Humáyun to Lawang Balúch, 327

wang Baiúch, 327

Musulmans, their religion contrasted with that of the Hindoos, 4 Their early position in India, 22 The nature of their rule, 22

the extension of their influence, 23 Their literature, 24 Their confederacy against the Rájpúts in

Causes of

Malwa, 27

Nadım Koka, 244

Nadım Kokiltash, his charge of Askeri Mirza, 321

Nagór, invaded by Behåder Shah, 11 Nander, hills of, 426

Nasır Khan, supports his father, Moyin Khan, 482. Defeated by Shujaa Khan, 432

Nasir-ed-din Muhammed Humáyun See Humáyun

Nasret Shah, King of Bengal, invades Behár, 126 Repulsed, 126 Receives Sultan Jilál ed-din, 127 Aids him with an army, 127 His death, 136

Nazer Alı (Mir), his rebellion against Kámrán's governor of Badakhsbán, 313

Názúk Shah King of Kashmír, driven out by Mirza Haider, 366

Nehrwala See Patan

Niazis, the defeated by Islâm Shah, 464 They are exterminated, 467 Nilber valley, beauty of 369

Nishabar, Humayun's visit to the turquoise mines of, 280

Nizam, brother of Shir Shah, 113
Left in charge of his brother's jagirs.
123
Accompanies him to Patna, 125
Nizam, the water-carrier, 172
179
Nizam Aulus 172 and vote

Nizám Aulia, 172, and note. Nizam Khan Sur, his family, 484

Nizám-ed-dín Ahmed, his remarks on the conduct of Maldeo 242

Nousári, under Kásim Husein Sultan Uzbek 77 Occupied by the friends of Behåder Shah, 82

Núr-ed din Muhammed (Hakim), physician of Shah Tahmasp uses his influence with the Shah in behalf of Humáyun, 290 292

Nur-ed din Muhammed Mirza, appointed to the government of Kanauj, 139 Plots against Humayun, 161 Puts Sheikh Bhul to death, 163

Obeid Khan, invades Khorasan 98
Expelled, 99 His second invasion,
99 His repulse, 100 Lays siege to Meshhid and Herát 103 Retreats, 104 His death, 106
Oulía (Sheikh), 29

Pakheli, added to Kashmir, 367 Panipat, battle of, 503

Panuj pass of, surmounted by Mirza Haider, 366

Parsád (Rána), Raja of Amerkot, generously receives Humayun Gives up Amerkot, 254 Proceeds against Jun, 254 Leaves Humáyun's camp in disgust, 257

Patan-Nehrwala, capital of Gujrát, 19 Its defence by Khizer Khan, 70 71 Bestowed on Yádgúr, 77 Taken by the troops of Beháder Shah, 83

Patna, 125 Confusion in the native historians in writing the name, 129 note Reduced by Shir Shah, 195

Pchlewan Badakhshi (Mir), his death,

Penjáb, occupied by Kamrán Mirza, 8 Confirmed to him by Humáyun, 8 Penjshír, valley of, 353

Perian, fort of, founded by Taimur, 361 Restored by Humistun, and its name charged to Islamabad, 361 Persia, Humayun's residence in, 275 Persian auxiliaries, the, with Humayun, 302 Their operations in Kandahar, 309 509 Their quarrels with Humáyun's troops, 316 Are driven out of Kandahar, 319

Persians, the, lose Balkh, 368

Pesháwer See Bekrám

Piraneh, chief of the Januha tribe, surrenders to Humayun, 419 Delivered to Sultan Adam, 419

Pir Muhammed Atkeh, slain at Kipchák,

Pir Muhammed Khan, assists Kámran, 346 Takes Balkh from the Persians, 368 Defeats Humáyun at the Dera-Gcz, 376 His generous treatment of the prisoners, 378

Portuguese, their wars with Mahmud Shah Bigara, 20 Their settlements in India 72 Their fortress at Diu, 73 Their treaty with Behåder Shah, 73 They possess themselves of Diu, on his death, 95

Prubhan (Raja), covers Humáyun's

flight from Chonsa, 174

Puran-Mal, recovers Ráisen and Cháuden, 429 Surrenders Ráisen to Shir Shah, 484 Treacherously put to death, 424

Purnia, given in jagir to Hindal, 149

Rafía, defeated by Biram Khan, 307 Rafía-ed din (Syed), 193

Rafik Koka, repulses Suleimán Mirza, 947

Rahik, the pass of, 933

Rai mal Soni, his secret mission to the Court of Judpur, 241

Rai-Ráian, the, of Malwa, 31

Raisen, assigned to Muhammed Shah, 29 Given to Silhádi, 30 Catastrophe of, 37 Given to Alem Khan Jigat, 37 Submits to Humávin, 47 Recovered by the sons of Silhádi, 429 Surrenders to Shír Shah, 434

Ráputs, their power on Humayun's accession, 5 Their ascendency at the Court of Malwa, 27 30 Nineteen thousand massacred at Mándu, 32 Their successes in Malwa, 33 Defeated by Baber, 34 Their despair at the sack of Cheitur, 48 Their slaughter at Ráisen, 435 Their power in Márwár, 437 Defeated by Shír Shah, 439

Rájuri, annexed to Kashmír, 367

Rakn Daúd, causes a night attack on Humayun's camp, 61

Ramchander (Raja), defeats Ibrahim Khan Sur, 501

Rantambor, annexed to Malwa, 22 Surrendered to Shir Shah, 432

Regalia, the celebrated, given by Rána Bikermájít to Behúder Shah, 15 Their history, 15, note. 94, note

Rhotas, in Behár, 145 Treach rously taken by Shír Shah, 147 Its importance, 148 Sir A Burnes's description of it, 427, note Abandoned by the Afgháns, 510 Faken by Humáyun, 511

Rohri See Lohri Rostak, rout at, 379

Roushen Beg Koka, his services in Sehwán, 230 Informs Humáyun of the intended desertion of the Begs, 233 Sent to get guides, 243 Takes his horse from Humáyun's Begum, 249 Visits the Persian Court, 288 Intrigues against Humáyun, 288 His punishment, 292

Rumi Khan, or Khodáwend Khan, his artillery under Behåder Shah, 48—50 He deserts to Humáyun, 55 His operations at Chunár, 140 Anecdote of him, 140, note His death, 149

Rúmi Khan Sefer, builds Surat Castle, 82 Defends Surat, 82 His narrow escape at the time of Behåder Shah's death, 93

Ruttonsi (Rána) of Cheitúr, succeeds his father Rána Sánga, 34 His war with Sultan Mahmúd, 34 Overruns Malwa, 36 His death, 40 Length of his reign, 40 note.

Sadr Khan, deserts Sultan Mahimud, 29
His advice to Behåder Shah, 47, 49
His flight from Mandsur, 53
His
Ballantry at Måndu, 57
Honourably received by Humáyun, 58
Slain
In the night-attack near Cambay, 62,

Sadi, his works, 25

Sahsaram, given in jagir to Hasan, 112 Managed by his son, Ferid, 115 Disputes regarding, 117—121

Said Khan, brother of Azim Humáyun, visits Islam Shah, 456 Escapes from his camp, 457 Attacks Islam Shah, 159 Is slain, 467

Said Uzbek, plunders Kamran's camp at Rostak, 378

Saker, description of, 226

Salbhan, his assassination, 31

Samander (Mir), his mission to Shah Husein, 216, and to Judpur, 240 Sent on a mission from Haider Mirza to Humayun, 366

Sambal Khan, commands Humáyun s artillery, 343

Sambala, battle of, 464.

Sambhal, assigned to Askeri Mirza, 6 Sám Mirza, brother of Shah Tahmasp, Viceroy of Khorasán, 100 Besieges Kandahár, 101 Defeated, 101 Flies to Tabas, 102 Pardoned by Shah Tamasp, 104

Sanga (Rána), his aid solicited by Medini Rái, 32 Defeats Mahmúd II,
 33 Restores him his kingdom, 33
 Defeated by Báber, 34 His death, 34

Sangái Nagóri, his secret mission to the camp of Humáyun, 240

San Jago, or Feringi Khan, his employment by Behader Shah, 49

Sanjer (Mirza), 253

Sarang (Sultan), refuses to submit to Shir Shah, 425

Sarangpúr, Humáyun's encampment there, 47

Sazáwal Khan See Shujaa Khan Sebzáwár, overrun by the Uzbeks, 99 Sehwan, or Siwi, or Siwistán, invaded by Humáyun, 223 Description of the province, 223 The fort besieged,

22^d The siege raised, 229
Sekander Khan of Bhilsa, adheres to Sultan Mahmud, 27 Rebels, and defeats Mahmud's army, 28 Invades
Hindia, 79

Sekander Khan Firmuli, his death in the derbar, 487

Sekander Khan Uzbek, appointed to the command of Bekrám, 421 Repels the Uzbeks, 421 Raised to the rank of khan, 510 Occupies Sirbend for Humáyun, 513 Retreats, 514. Sent by Humáyun to occupy Agra, 520

Sckander Lodi (Sultan) of Delhi, called into Malwa against Medini Rái, 27 Withdraws his troops, 29

Sekander Shah (Sultan) See Ahmed Khan

Sekander Sultan, assists in the defeat of Kuth Khan, 181

Sekander Topchi, his junction with Haider Mirza, 204 His retirement into the mountains of Sarang, 205

Selim Chishti (Sheikh) 452 475 Selim Shah See Islam Shah

Selimgarh, foundation of, 457

Scnjer Birlas (Mírza), deserts Humáyun, 337 Taken prisoner by Humáyun, 340

Seráis, established by Shír Shah, 442 Setelmír, Humáyun's halt at, 244 Shadi, his success against Shir Shah's troops, 122

Shahbaz Khan Niazi, given up to Islam Shah, 455 Slain, 467

Shah-berdi Khan, his arrival in the camp of Humayun, 324

Shir Humayun's approach, 144 Khan orders the Term-garhi Pass to Surprise and rout of the Imperial be fortified, 144 Shujaa Khan, advanced guard 146 Reoccupies nequires Rhotas, 147 Behar and the passes, 151 Takes Benáres, and besieges Juinpur, 151 Assumes the title of Shah, or king, 155 Raises the siege of Juanpur, 156 Sivás, 491 Blockades Chunar, 152 Meets the army of Humain at Chonsa, 157 His tacties, 156 Receives Hu-Proposed terms tifies his camp, 157 432 He attacks Humayun's envoy, 168 Slaughters the of treat, 169 His proceedmáyun s camp, 170 ings, 173 His generosity to the Imperialists, 171, 172 captive family of Humayun, 173, 174 445 His supremacy in Behar and Bengal 175, and in the loner He ad-Gangetic provinces, 176 vances to meet Humayun, 180 He defcats the Imperialists at the battle of advance defeated, 181 Occupies Agra Sends in pursuit of Kanhuj 187, et seq Negothe fugitive Emperor, 197 and Delhi, 196 tiates with Kamran, 200 Occupies Afghan supremacy in India, 210, 211 the Penjab, 201 423 Assists the fugitive Malek Ali Chak Opposed by the They defeat his de of Kashmir, 366 He creets the strong Gakers, 425 Returns to tachments, 425 Delhi and Agra, 427 Quells a revolt fortress of Rhotas, 426 Resolves to reduce Gualiar surrenders, m Bengal, 428 Malwa, 428 Guanar Kader Shah 429 He quarrels with Kader Shah 429 Areques against of Malwa, 430 Marches against him 430. Their apparent reconcilia Shir Shah's artifice, 481 Compels Kader to fiv to Guzrat, 481 Attempts to seize the nobles of Malwa, tion, 430 lukes Runtambor, 432 turns to Agra, 432 Multan occuturns to Agra, 332 His adpired by his forces, 432 He returns to His ad-Compels Raisen to ministration, 433 His treacher) and massacre of the garrison, 434, 435 Malwa, 434 capitulate, 434 His schemes on Marwar, 435 111rades it with a large army, 436 cites dissension among the Rapputs, His eamp desperately attacked he the Raputs, 438 He marches into Mewar 479 Besieges Kalinjer, 440 Captures the place, 440

His character, abili-Scanty ties, and great designs, 441 His death, 440 records of his civil administration, Anecdotes of him, 444-446 Shitab Khan, or Syed Ishak, recovers Cambay for Behader Shab, 68 or Sazawal Khan, Ordered to perform obersance to Kader Shah, 481 blockades Gualiar, 429 Appointed to the government of Seizes and imprisons Defeats Moyin Khan of Sivas, 431 Moyins son, Nasir Khan, 482 Totally defeats Kader Shah, 482 Appointed sole governor of Malwa, His nearly despotic power, Joins Islam Shah, 457 Attempt on his life by an Afghan, He quarrels with Islam Shah, 455 461 who invades Malwa, 463 Thes from Malwa, 463 His death, 505 Shutergerden, battle of, 392 Sikri, Humayun's halt there 194 Stah-ab, affair of, 401 Silah ed din, or Silhad, receives Raisen and Bhilsa from Rana Sanga, 32 Deserts to Rána Ruttonsi, 35 Neets Beháder Shah at Dhár, 36 Is made Behader Shah at Dhar, 96 prisoner, 36 His death, 97 Sind, its condition under Shah Husein, 213 Humayun's residence there. 213 Silhádi Sirhend, occupied by Sekander Uzbek,
513 Evacuated, 514 Reoccupied The battle of, Given to Biram Klian, 520 by Biram Khan, 516 Sirmas Khan Sirpani, appointed to the Sirkich, in Gujifit, 77 government of Kanauj, 487 Swas given by Shir Shah to Shujaa by Schander Firmuli, 488 See Sehwan Khan, 431 Siwi, or Siwistin Soliman the Magnificent, his celebrated Sodha tribe, the, 72 crown and girdle, 15, note. Solicited for assistance by Behader Shali, 73 Invades Persia, 100 Srinagar, capital of Kashmir, taken by Songar, fort of, 56 Suffan Khalifa, defeats the Uzbeks in Suleiman, brother of Shir Shali 113 Appointed to manage his father hagirs, 117 Disladged by his brother, 118 Flies to Muhammed Khan Fx-Suleimán Klinn Keráni, brother of Táj

Khan, joins his brother in rebellion,

Suleimán Mírza, or Mirza Suleimán, confirmed in his government of Bi-Defeated by Kamran dakhshan, 6 Mirza, 265 Recovers his terri torv, 902 Defeated by Kainran Carried captive at Anderab, 307 into Kábul, 303 Restored to his covernment of Badakhshán, 314 His congratulatory mission to Humávun, 326 He seizes Kunduz, Khost, and Anderab, 328 mavun's expedition against him, 328 Suleimán defeated at Tirkeran, S29 His flight, 329 Restored to Badakh shan by Humayun, 832 the overtures of Kanirán, 345 Joins pulsed by Rafik Koka, 347 Humávun befort Talikán 356 Ohtains Talikan from Humayun, 860 Joins Humáyun in his expedition ngainst Balkh, 369 Attacks the Uzbek advance, 372 Flies to Badakhshan after the route at Dera Gez, 376 Driven thence by Kam-Forms a junction with rán, 377 Iskak Sultan, 378 Joins Humáyun at Khinjan, 385 Commands the right at the battle of Shutergerden, 392 Rewarded by Humáyun, 394 His daughter betrothed to Humáyun, His revolt in Badakhshán, Besieges Mokim Khan in Anderáb, 522

Sultanum Begum, wife of Askeri Mirza, placed in charge of the infant Akber,

270

Sultanum Khánum sister of Shah Tah masp, her friendship for Humáyun, Sunnis, their persecutions of the Shias ın Herát, 98, 104 Their religious tenets, 276.

Sur dynasty, the, its character and effects, 461

Under Kásım Husein Sul-Surat, 21 Occupied by the partizans er Shah 82 The castle of, tan, 77 of Behader Shah 82 built by Rumi Khan Sefer, 82, note Surajpur, battle of, 136

Taher Sadr (Mir), his mission to Shah Husein, 216

Tahmasp (Shah), King of Persia, expels the Uzbeks from Khorásán, 99 lieves Herát, 100 Again drives the Uzbeks from Khorásán, 104 cupies Kandahár, 104 Quits Kan His regal reception of dahár, 105 the Emperor Humayun, 277 Meeting of the two monarchs, 283 The Shah's insulting behaviour to Humávun 284 His intolerance, 285 He gives a grand hunting party, 286 His unfriendly feeling towards Hu-He attempts to conmayun, 289 vert the Emperor to the Shin faith, 290 Changes his conduct, 291 League between the monarchs, 291 The Shah punishes Roushen Beg, Parting banquets of the two Remarks on the Shahs princes, 295 treatment of the Emperor, 297-300 His congratulatory embassy to the Emperor, 326

Táj khan, at the rout of Mandsur, 49 Táj Khan Keráni, his treachery to Khowas Khan, 460 Escapes from Guúliár, 489 Routed at Chibra-Mow, 489 Appears in open rebel-Defeated at Chunár, 490 lion, 489

Flies to Bengal, 490

Taj Khan Sarangkhani, holds Chunár, 131 Murdered by one of his sons,

Takhji Beg, put to death by Kamran, 386

Takhtch púl, defeat of the Uzbeks near the 372

Talıkan, given to Bapus, 350 steged by Humáyun, 354 Given by Humávun to Suleiman Mírza, 360 Given by Kainran to Bapus Beg, 377

Taríkh e Reshidi, valuable work of Haider Mirza, 368

Tátár Khan Kási, retreats from Rhotas, 510

Tátár Khan Lodi, son of Ala ed-dín, advances to claim the throne of Delhi, 16 Takes refuge in Gujrát, 41 His operations against Humáyun, 45 Advances to Agra, 45 Seizes Biána, 45 Is defeated and slain at Mandráel, 46

Temir Shagháli, left by Kerácha Khan in charge of Penjshir, 352

Teria garhi Pass, the, fortified by Jilál Khan, 144 Description of it, 145. Abandoned by the Afghans, 147

Terdi Beg Khan, left in command in Champanir, 75 Appointed to the government of the place, 77 loyalty, 86, 87 Abandons Champanir, 88 His honourable reception by Humáyun 88 Accompanies Humáyun to Sind, 204 Brings him assistance in Schwan, 227 His quarrel with the Ishek-Agha, 230 His mission to Malimud Bhekeri, 232 His attempt at desertion, 233 Retrents with Humbyun from Jadpar. Askert, 270 He arrives in the camp 211 248, 219 of Humbyun, 322 Left to rebuild Defined by Himh Bakal, near Dellin, 507 Removed Bekram, 120 from the government of Zemin dancer, Appointed to Anderlib, 509 His service at the battle of Sirhead, Appointed to the government Appointed Gover-The conduct on of Menni, 520 nor of D.llin, 527 the death of Humayun, 529 Terdi Beg Kuch Beg, slain at Chonsa,

Tibet, Great and Lattle, added to Mirra 7 crain Beg, his death, 243 Hander's dominions of Kashmir, 967

Lirkeran, battle of, 129

Lirenda, slays Hindal, 103 Lirhut, given in Jugir to Hindal, 119 Liri, bestowed on Ulugh Mirza, 320. Ioder Khetri, employed to build Rho

Julik Khan Kochin, at the rout at the Lugh, the, 187, note Dera Gez, 176

Uch, Huma un's encampment at, 298 Ujein, besieged and taken by the Af

Defeated by Yadgar 13 Sentenced to be blinded 13 Ulugh Mirza, rebels, 13 I scapes, 11 Revolts with his father Besieges Juliphir, 80 Defeated by Shir Shah, 195 Deserts in Behar, 78 Humayun at Kanuul, 185 surveillance at Kabul 303 Jours IIu Is appointed to the government of Pil 920 Appointed máyun, 310 driving Kamran Mirza from Zemin to Jemin daner, 326 Slam by some Hazaras, dawer, 335

Urf, the, the customary law of the Ma

Ustful Ahmed Rami, commands in Humay un's artiflery at the battle of Uathu Belizhd, a famous painter, 62,

Uzheka, the, invade Khorhan, Expelled, 99 Again appear, Again appear, 99 Agnin in vade Khorasan, 102 Pillage Heint, Are again repulsed, 100 Driven out of Kherhsan Their po session of Balkli, 368 Their country by Shah Iahmasp, 104 I heir invaded by Humayun 368 sudden attack on his camp, 371 repulsed at the They Pursue Their udannee and rout Hum'yun's army at Dera-Ger, 171, Plunder Kumran's camp by mistake, 378

Valad Beg, his mission from Shah Tah Ver Sirwan (Khwaji), defeated by Airtumbir (Hala) title usanung ph

Himű Bakul, 191 Will Plup Mitty defeated and made prisoner by Yadgar, 13 Washing Humaying halt at, 210 Water, mode of drawing it in the desert, Yadgar Nasir Mirra, defeats the rebels Appointed to nt Bhajpar, 13 Attends Askers gine Gujritis 51 Ingages the Patan Schewala, 77 Appointed to Kalpi at Ahmed abad 83 His loyalty to Humiyun, 160 He defends Dellit agranst Hin Gujrhus, 86 dal, 165 Defeats Kuth Khan, 181 Commands the left at Kan iii, 190 louis Humayan in his flight 192 161 Suts out Quarrels with Askers 102 with Hundal for Sund and Gulrat, 202 Driven back by the Baluches 207 Joined by Humayun at Gul Balueli, Mores to Dirbila 215 risited there by Humiyun I neouriges Hindal to descrit 221 ნმი Reconciled to Humayun 222 222 pulates for certain territory, Sind, 229 Blockades Blicker, 226 Sind, 223 Blockades Ducker, 227 Intrigues with Shah Husein, 1 lies Renounces his allegiances 2000. These from Sind, 259. Under surveillance at Kabul, 303 I sesper to the camp of Humham, 915 J22 Pscorts Humiyuns family from Kandahar, 326 Pat to Imprisoned for trenson 327

Yadgar Taghai, Governor of Bunn, cscopes with his prisoner, Muhammed Acman, to Gujrat, 13 12

Yakub Seferelu, lus murder in Persia,

Yasan Doulat, sent in pursuit of Hu-Appointed by Kamran to the Rovernment of Ghurbend, 387

Yanis Ali (Mir), Governor of I ahur deprived of the city by stratagem, ? His release, 8

Yusuf Beg, assists in the defence of Juaupur, 151 His defeat and death,

Yusef Korchi, attends Kamián at his interview with Humayun, 426

Zalud Beg, his insolence to Humáyun, 153 Flies from Bengal, 153 Rebels with other nobles 160 Surprised by Kámrán in Ghazni, and put to deith, 536

Zemin-dawer, bestowed on Ismael Beg,

920 Entered by Kamrán, 335 Governed by Hısám cd-dın Alı, 935 Bestowed on Ulugh Mírza, 336 Given to Beháder Khan Sıstánı, 508

Zhindah fil Ahmed Jáin, his tomb at Herat, 279

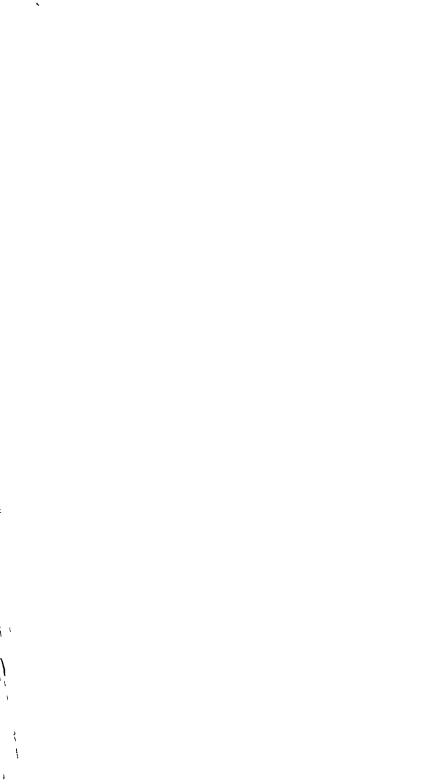

Zindar Beg his flight from Humáyun s camp 153

Zirefshán garden, the, at Agra, 179

Zohák, government of, given to Shírefken, SS1

END OF THE SECOND VOLUME

A and G. A. Spottismos de New street Square

A CATALOGUE

NEW WORKS AND NEW EDITIONS

General and Miscellancous Ziteralure,

· ·	OWN, GRIEN, AN
The retrieve the row, to box er estind indix
Agriculture and Pural		r ~
ለምለነናክ	(172 1	31 (a " w ew 11) t 2 sy 1 3 1 1 1 12
To the state of th	7 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	7 T " (Hu er 12 1 Hut 1 mr 1 1 Hut 1 mr 1 1 U Hut 1 mr 2
100 100 11	Totale and Cardenine	H To Sterom A 1
•••	Rotany and Gardening	3 4 11 143 12 2 31
Arts, Nanufactures, and Architecture	7 4 1 1 4 1	I tent full y t
4	Inn x 11 1	that the Training -3
ीर जन्म सम्बद्धाः		that non te something the something the second to
	1 1-4	And The It is
Lotter on to me t		Thera ly es talls or the later of the later
tests to the et of the true to	• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	I dang for this to it and I make the Moral trend itale (*1.) The respect to the trial	T C1 + 1713 6	Tiltier
	11 1 not laint 11 13 13	Training de Come
Blography	Commerce and Herean-	T I of addresses Mul
1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	tile ACalra	Zamet Lata Grammar 32
11 1 m kg me 1 751 m	The state of the s	1
I to New or I	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	Geography and Atlanta
3 4 t 1 12 m xry 19 3 m r et #1 f M = 1 m 1	() (common and A to comp	TitreCorr pard Atlane &
The first one of the first of t	Thomas letter (7 be	If I Investif 17 Atta 12.
	Criticism, History, and	 (N) M them t 1 Cerc 13  An Lin Ord nor 31
7 " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "	Memoirs
Hatric A seritation of	to ship to the state of the sta	M Cul w Grown pivalinction rp 19 M I to d W lies wright til a 18 Man T clm (Geography m pp Brt 1 Gas there
Books of General Utility	I trail to a literature and a literature at	Juvenile Books
A forling 1	I from examination of the first	Amy Herbert 23 And he oc pe to Hi tory 3 Uli fall nermess 6
f tfatter f	tempter lift was NiPal 7. In term DA 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1.	Corr Cillian bunday Rock e larie Du hit r (Th.)
11 m1t wt 11 11 11 m1s or (1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	tent link (1 ml w	• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •
lar Critii 🖛 a 15	a facitiiim y	Gr t a Statics from the Fn 1 1
Jan + (1 tm t n 17	हा अधिति है	H t R t Chapter Dock 12
Jacon bill trait n 17 Jact Congress 1 Man urf beerer 16 Man er Teas er of house 1	Fi klai ge Cli le (mp Lu 31 Gure i liter alekti 11	H t Ry thuntry Book 13 May) Child na her 1
Is in h fit truit in 17 Lat (my time 1) Main unit herer 16 Main era Trea profits in 1 er in m 1 ery 1 Tre uny 19 m hight fre	Tt kla) gr 31 Cli Le (my Lu 31 Gurry Hitrathki) ti H milt n 1 frenthe Ha tu Hesi w fir tyTal-r n	H t By Shuntry Book 12 Meryl Clid naber 1 Inc. and red re- Hor three t to resitions 19 Mart I red 1
Is in hill trait n 17 Lat Cripton 1 Main urf herer 16 Hai eratres profib wi se m	Tt List of Control of	II t Ry Grantry Rock 12 Marylet M newer 1 Law all reners 19 Mo Mare t corrections 19 Mo Art t rei 1 Artificial process 12 Artificial

An Alphabetical Catalogue

413

NEW WORKS AND NEW EDITIONS

11/11 1110 113

MISSES LONGWIN, BROWN, GETIN, & LONGWINS,

TATLENOSTER FOR TOTALES

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK

Modern to Very in a bill transfer relice I to a System of Laxy Fractice. For the use of Irisate Fan 113 Min Sinc. If I could be his blick which have been strictly tested and are given with the restriction execution. Its Little Service New Listion with Directions for Carasic and Cora Millions. Lee System to the test and Woodcuts, "a Globb

ADAMS -A SPRING IN THE CANTERBURY SETTLE-

ADDISON -HISTORY OF THE KNIGHTS TEMPLARS

P) C. G. Annis, S. of the Inner Temple, Logi, Barrister at Law., 34 Dilition, corrected, and improved, with a Lattic rapine and 3 Wellicut Illustrations. Square crown 8vo 10s 6d cloth.

AIKIN—SELECT WORKS OF THE BRITISH POETS,

It in Henge on to Beattie. With Biographical and Critical I refaces by Dr. Aikin. New Edition with Superment by Loca Aikin, consisting of additional Selections from more recent Port. See La. of the

ANCELL —A TREATISE ON TUBERCULOSIS,

The Constitutional Origin of Consumption and Scrofile. By Hilbary Andreus, late Lecturer on Materia Medica at 1Tl erapeutic, and on Medical Jurisprudence, at the School of Anatemy and Medicine adjoining 5t. George & Holpital, 800, price 21s. cloth

ANTHONY -FOOTSTEPS TO HISTORY

Being an I p tome of the Histories of I ugland and I rance—to which are added slight Sketches of Literature—Art—and Manufactures—By Lot 183 ANTHONY—The Second Edition, thoroughly revised with considerable Additions—Lep 810—wice 48—6d cloth

A TREATISE ON THE STEAM ENGINE,

in its Application to Mines Mills Steam Navigation and Railways. By the Artisan Club Edited by Johns Bot has C.E., New Edition. With 30 Steel Hates and 349 Wood Engrayings. 4to 27s. cloth

JOANNA BAILLIE'S DRAMATIC & POETICAL WORKS,

Complete in One Volume Comprising the Plays of the Lassions Miscellaneous Dramas, Metrical Legends Lugitive Licees (including several now first published) and Vhalya Baee Second Litition; including a Life of Joanna Baillie now first published: With a Portrait engraved by H. Robinson and a Vignette View of Bothwell Manse. Square crown 810-21s cloth, or 42s bound in morocco by Hayday.

BAINES.—THE LIFE OF EDWARD BAINES,

Inte M P for the Borough of Leeds By his Son, Poward Barris, Author of The History of the Cotton Manufacture With a Portrait engraved in line by Greatbach 8vo 9s cloth

BALFOUR.—SKETCHES OF ENGLISH LITERATURE

from the Fourteenth to the Present Century By CLARA I UCAS BALFOUR, Author of Women of Scripture, &c 1 cp 8vo 7s cloth

BANFIELD-THE STATISTICAL COMPANION ·

Pyhibiting the most interesting Facts in Moral and Intellectual, Vital, Leonomical, and Political Statistics, at Home and Abroad Corrected to the Present Time, and including the Results of the Census of the British Population taken in 1851 Compiled from Official and other Authentic Sources, by T C Banfird, Esq., Statistical Clerk to the Council of Education Fen 850 price 58 cloth

BAYLDON'S ART OF VALUING RENTS & TILLAGES.

And Tenant's Right of 1 ntering and Quitting Farms, explained by several Specimens of Valuations, with Remarks on the Cultivation pursued on Soils in different Situa ions Adapted to the Use of Landlords Land Agents, Appraisers, Farmers, and Tenants New Edition, corrected and revised by John Donaldson 810 108 6d cloth

LORD BELFAST —LECTURES ON THE ENGLISH POETS and POFTRY of the NINETI LNTIL CLAUTE By the Right Hon the LARL of BELFAST

Icp 8vo price 6s 6d cloth

BLACK'S PRACTICAL TREATISE ON BREWING,

Based on Chemical and Leonomical Principles: with I ormulæ for Public Brewers, and Instructions for Private Families New Edition, with Additions 870 10s 6d. cloth

BLAINE'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF RURAL SPORTS,

Or, a complete Account, Historical, Practical, and Descriptive, of Hunting, Shooting, Fishing, Racing and other Field Sports and Athletic Amusements of the present day. A new and thoroughly revised Edition, with copious Additions and Improvements, and numerous additional Illustrations. The Hunting, Racing, and all relative to Horses and Horsemanship, revised by Harny Hiecover; Shooting and Fishing by Friederica, and Coursing by Mr A Graham. With upwards of 600 Woodcuts. 8vo 50s. half bound.

BLAIR'S CHRONOLOGICAL AND HISTORICAL TABLES,

From the Creation to the present time with Additions and Corrections from the most authen the Writers, including the Computation of St. Paul, as connecting the Period from the Exode to the Temple. Under the revision of Sir. Henry Llies, K. H., Principal Librarian of the British Museum. New Ldition, with Corrections. Imperial 8vo. 31s. 6d. half morocco.

BLOOMFIELD-THE GREEK TESTAMENT

With copious English Notes, Critical, Philological, and Explanatory Especially formed for the use of advanced Students and Candidates for Holy Orders By Rev S T BLOOMFIELD, D D T S A New Edition 2 vols 8vo with a Map of Palestine, £2 cloth

THE REV DR BLOOMFIELD'S ADDITIONAL ANNOTATIONS

On the NEW TESTAMENT Being a Supplement to his larger Edition of The Greek Testament with English Notes New Edition 8vo 15s cloth

BLOOMFIELD -COLLEGE AND SCHOOL GREEK TESTA-

MEN F With shorter English Notes, Critical, Philological, and Explanatory, formed for use in Colleges and the Public Schools By the Rev S T BLOOMFIELD, D D F S A New Edition, greatly enlarged and improved Fcp 8vo 10s 6d cloth

BOURNE -A TREATISE ON THE SCREW PROPELLER

With various Suggestions of Improvement By JOHN BOURNE, C. I., Editor of The Artisan Club & Treatuse on the Steam Engine With 20 large Plates and numerous Woodcuts 4to price 38s. cloth

BOURNE -A CATECHISM OF THE STEAM ENGINE,

Illustrative of the Scientific I rinciples upon which its Operation depends and the Practical Details of its Structure, in its applications to Mines, Mills, Steam Navigation, and Railways: with various Suggestions of Improvement By John Bounne, C E. New Edition, corrected. Fep. 870-63 cloth

BRANDE -A DICTIONARY OF SCIENCE, LITERATURE, and ART, comprising the History, Description, and Scientific Principles of every Branch of Human knowledge, with the Derivation and Definition of all the Terms in General Use Edited by W T Branch 1 R S I S F; a sisted by Dr J CAUVIN The Second Edition, revised and corrected including a Supplement, and numerous Wood Engravings 8vo price 60s cloth—The SUPPLEMENT separately, price 3s 6d

BULL —THE MATERNAL MANAGEMENT OF CHILDREN

in HEALTH and OISI VSI.. By T Bull, M D Member of the Royal College of Physicians; formerly Physician Accoucheur to the Finsbury Midwifery Institution New Edition, revised and enlarged Fcp 800 5s cloth

BULL-HINTS TO MOTHERS,

For the Management of their Health during the Period of Pregnancy and in the Lying in Room with an Lyposure of Popular Friors in connexion with those subjects Sc; and Hints upon Nursing By T Bull, M D New Lehtion, revised and enlarged Fep 8vo 5s cloth

BUNSEN-HIPPOLYTUS AND HIS AGE,

Or Doctrine and Practice of the Church of Rome under Commodus and Alexander Severus: And Ancient and Modern Christianity and Divinity compared By C C J BUNSIN, D C L. With the Ffligy of Hippolytus 4 vols post 8vo price 42s cloth

The alames will be acceptable to every right in inded the logian. The could inquier will receive them gratefully as suggesting in witness of such a sum of a noisy present and the guitance of the fatter. It has either a shall full and tracing they must be not the true spirit of the age who look to the fatter frames in letter easy of the true will be seen in and une optimized in the sum of the s

BUNSEN -EGYPT'S PLACE IN UNIVERSAL HISTORY.

An Historical Investigation, in Five Books By C C J Bunser, D C L Translated from the German, by C. Il Cotterll, F q M.A.—Vol I containing the First Book, or Sources and Primeval Facts of Exyptian History: with an Exyptian Grammar and Dictionary, and a complete List of Hieroglyphical Signs, an Appendix of Authorities, embracing the complete Text of Manetho and I ratosthenes Ægyptians from Pliny Strabo, &c, and Plates representing the Egyptian Divinities With many Illustrations 8vo 28s cloth

 The Second Volume is preparing for publication

BURTON-THE HISTORY OF SCOTLAND,

From the Revolution to the Extinction of the last Jacobite Insurrection (1689—1748) By John Hill Burton, Author of The I ife of David Hume, &c 2 vols 8vo [In the press

BISHOP BUTLER'S GENERAL ATLAS OF MODERN AND

ANCIENT GLOGRAPHY, comprising Fifty-one full coloured Maps, w'th complete Indices New Edition, nearly all re-engraved enlarged, and greatly improved, with Corrections from the most authentic sources in both the Ancient and Modern Maps, many of which are entirely new Edited by the Author's Son, the Rev T Butler Royal 4to 24s half bound

Separately The Modern Atlas 28 full coloured Maps Royal 8vo 12s half bound Royal 8vo 12s half bound Royal 8vo 12s half bound

BISHOP BUTLER'S SKETCH OF MODERN & ANCIENT

GEOGRAPHY New Edition, carefully revised, with such Alterations introduced as continually progressive Discoveries and the latest In ormation have rendered necessary Edited by the Author's Son, the Rev T BUTLER 800 cloth

THE CABINET GAZETTEER

A Popular Exposition of all the Countries of the World, their Government, Population, Revenues, Commerce and Industries, Agricultural, Manufactured, and Mineral Products, Religion, Laws, Manners, and Social State With brief Notices of their History and Antiquities From the latest Authorities By the Author of The Cabinet Lawyer In One Volume, with a coloured Map Fcp 8vo price 10s 6d cloth, or 13s calf lettered

THE CABINET LAWYER

A Popular Digest of the Laws of England, Civil and Criminal, with a Dictionary of Law Terms, Maxims, Statutes, and Judicial Antiquities, Correct Tables of Assessed Taxes, Stamp Duties, Excise Licenses, and Post-Horse Duties, Post Office Regulations, and Prison Discipline 15th Edition, with Supplements Fcp 8vo 10s 6d cloth

CAIRD.—ENGLISH AGRICULTURE IN 1850 AND 1851,

Its Condition and Prospects By JAMES CAIRD, Esq of Baldoon, Agricultural Commissioner of The Times Second Edition 8vo 14s cloth

THE CALLING & RESPONSIBILITIES OF A GOVERNESS B) AMICA FCP 8vo price 4s 6d cloth

CATLOW .- POPULAR CONCHOLOGY,

Or, the Shell Cabinet arranged being an Introduction to the Modern System of Conchology with a sketch of the Natural History of the Animals, an account of the Formation of the Shells, and a complete Descriptive List of the Families and Genera. By Agnes Catlow With 312 Woodcuts Fcp 8vo 10s 6d cloth

CAYLEY .-- DANTE'S DIVINE COMEDY.

Translated in the Original Ternary Rhyme By C B CAYLEY, BA. Vol I The Vision of Hell. Fcp 8vo price 6s cloth -Vol II The Purgatory Fcp 8vo price price 6s cloth

CECIL —STABLE PRACTICE,

Or, Hints on Training for the Turf, the Chase, and the Road, with Observations on Racing and Hunting, Wasting Race Riding, and Handicapping addressed to Owners of Racers, Hunters, and other Horses, and to all who are concerned in Racing, Steeple Chasing, and Fox Hunting By Creil. Fcp 8vo with Plate, price 5s half bound.

CECIL-THE STUD FARM,

Or, Hints on Breeding Horses for the Turf, the Chase, and the Road Addressed to Breeders of Race Horses and Hunters, Landed Proprietors, and especially to Tenant Farmers By CECIL. Fcp 8vo with Frontispiece, price 5s half bound

THE CHILDREN'S OWN SUNDAY-BOOK.

By JULIA CORNER, Author of Questions on the History of Europe With Two Illustrations engraved on Steel Square fcp 8vo 5s cloth

CONVERSATIONS ON BOTANY

New Edition improved Fcp 8vo with 22 Plates, price 7s 6d cloth, with the plates coloured, price 12s cloth

CONYBEARE AND HOWSON-THE LIFE & EPISTLES

of SAINT LAUL. Comprising a complete Biography of the Apostle and a Translation of his lipities inserted in Chronological Order. By the Rev. W. J. Connelland, M.A. Interclow of Trinity College Cambridge and the Rev. J. S. Howson, M.A. Principal of the Collegiste Institution, Liverpool. With 40 Ingravings on Steel and 100 Woodcuts: Including Views of the 1 rincipal Places visited by the Apostle from Original Brawings made on the apost by W. H. Burtlett and other Travellers; also Maps. Charts, Hans, Coins, Antiquities, &c. 2 vols 4to price £2.85 cloth.

COPLAND -A DICTIONARY OF PRACTICAL MEDICINE,

Comprising Ceneral Pathology the Nature and Treatment of Di cases, Morbid Structures, and the Di orders especially incidental to Climates, to Sex, and to the different I pochs of Life; with numerous approved I ormulæ of the Medicines recommended By James Copland, M 1) Consulting I hysician to Queen Charlotte & Lying in Hospital, &c Vols I and H 8vo £3 cloth; and larts V to VVI 48 6d. each, sewed

CRESY —AN ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF CIVIL ENGINEERING,

Hi torical Theoretical, and I ractical By I DWARD CREAT ISA C.F. Illustrated by upwards of 3 000 Woodcuts explanatory of the I rinciples Machinery, and Constructions which come under the Direction of the Civil Engineer 600 price ±3 13s 6d cloth

THE CRICKET-FIELD,

Or the Science and History of the Came - Illustrated with Diagrams and enlished with Anecdotes - By the Author of Principles of Scientific Batting - Lep 810 with 2 Plates price as half bound in Two Parts: The First Part being Church Services adapted for domestic use, with I rayers for every day of the week selected exclusively from the Book of Common Prayer; I art II comprising an appropriate Sermon for every Sunday in the year. By the Rev. Thomas Dally M.A., Canon Residentiary of St. Paul & Cathedral. 2d I dition Post 410, 21s. cloth. or, bound by Hayday, 31s. Gd. calf lettered; $2,20s. morocco.

DALE -THE DOMESTIC LITURGY & FAMILY CHAPLAIN.

Separately { THE FAMILY CHAPLAIN price 12s cloth THE DOMESTIC LITURGY price 10s 6d c'oth

DAVIS-CHINA DURING THE WAR AND SINCE THE

PEACL. By Sir J 1 Davis Bart, F R S, late II M Plenipotentiary in China Governor and Commander in Chief of the Colony of Hongkong 2 vols post 8vo with Woodcuts, price 21s cloth

DELABECHE-THE GEOLOGICAL OBSERVER.

By Sir Henny C Delanctic F R.S. Director General of the Geological Survey of the United Kingdom New I dition, with numerous Woodcuts 810 185 cloth

DELABECHE-REPORT ON THE GEOLOGY OF CORN-

WALL DEVON and WIST SOMERSIT By SITHENRY T DELABERED, F.R.S Director General of the Geological Survey 800 with Maps, Woodcuts, and 12 large Plates, price 14s cloth

DE LA RIVE -A TREATISE ON ELECTRICITY,

In Theory and Practice By Ato Dr LA RIVE Professor in the Academy of Genera In Two Volumes, with numerous Wood Lagravings Vol 1 8vo price 18s cloth

DENNISTOUN -MEMOIRS OF THE DUKES OF URBINO;

Illustrating the Arms, Arts, and Literature of Italy, from MCCCCXL to MDCXXX By JAMES DENNISTOUN, of Dennistoun With numerous Portraits, Plates, Fac-similes, and Engravings on Wood 3 vols crown 8vo £2 8s cloth

DISCIPLINE

By the Author of Letters to my Unknown Friends, &c Second Edition, enlarged 18mo price Half a Crown, cloth

DOUBLEDAY, WESTWOOD, AND HEWITSON. - THE

GFNFRA of BUTTI RFLIFS, or DIURNAL LFPIDOPTERA: comprising their Generic Characters, a Notice of their Habits and Transformations, and a Catalogue of the Species of each Genus By Edward Doubleday, FLS, FZS, late Assistant in the Zoological Department of the British Museum, and John O Westwood, Esq, President of the Entomological Society of London Illustrated with Eighty six coloured Plates from Drawings by W C Hewitson, Esq, Author of British Cology 2 vols imperial 4to price Fifteen Guineas, half bound in morocco

EASTLAKE.-MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF OIL

PAINTING By Sir Charles Lock Eastlake, FR.S FSA, President of the Royal Academy 8vo 10s cloth

THE ECLIPSE OF FAITH,

Or, a Visit to a Religious Sceptic New I dition Post 8vo price 9s 6d. cloth

It is absolutely necessary to meet them. [infidel writers of the modern school, on their own ground, and fight them with their own weapons. And this is what the little book at the head of this article professes to do and it does its work well. It is learned and togletol and at the same time lively and entertaining. Its long is very powerful and cutting and yet it is not open to the apparent objection of grave and serious subjects being treated flippinity. While it, from the nature of the subject, it might fairly be entitled. The along its largements from the method in which the subject is treated it is as interesting as a collection of scenes of society.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK CONCORDANCE OF THE

NEW TESTAMENT: being an Attempt at a Verbal Connexion between the Greek and the English Texts; including a Concordance to the Proper Names, with Indexes, Greek English and English Greek New Edition, with a new Index. Royal 8vo 42s cloth

THE ENGLISHMAN'S HEBREW AND CHALDEE CON-

CORDANCE of the OLD TLSTAMENT, being an Attempt at a Verbal Connection between the Original and the English Translations with Indexes, a List of the Proper Names and their occurrences, &c. 2 vols royal 8vo £3 13s 6d cloth, large paper, £4 14s 6d

EPHEMERA.—THE BOOK OF THE SALMON

Comprising the Theory, Principles, and Practice of Fly Fishing for Salmon with Lists of good Salmon Flies for every good River in the Empire, with the Natural History of the Salmon, all its known Habits described, and the best way of artificially Breeding It explained. With numerous coloured Engravings of Salmon Flies and Salmon Fry By EPHEMIERA, assisted by ANDRFW YOUNG, of Inversion Manager of the Duke of Sutherland's Salmon Fisheries. Fcp 8vo with coloured Plates, 14s cloth

EPHEMERA.—A HAND-BOOK OF ANGLING,

Teaching Fly fishing, Trolling, Bottom fishing, Salmon fishing; with the Natural History of River Flsh, and the best modes of Catching them By EPHEMERA New Edition, enlarged Fcp 8vo with numerous Woodcuts, 9s cloth

THE EXPERIENCE OF LIFE

By the Author of Amy Herbert, Gertrude, &c Fcp 810 price 78 Gd cloth

FELICE'S HISTORY OF THE PROTESTANTS OF FRANCE,

From 1321 to 1831 Translated from the Second revised and corrected Lehting, by L. West 2 vols post 6vo [In the press

FORBES-DAHOMEY AND THE DAHOMANS

Being the Journals of Two Missions to the Ling of Dahomey, and Residence at his Capital in the Years 1849 and 1850. By Farbraick 1. Forance, Commander, R.N., F.R.G.S., With 10 Plates and 3 Wood Fagravings. 2 role post 8vo. 21s. cloth

FORESTER AND BIDDULPH'S NORWAY.

Norway in 1849 and 1849; containing Rambles among the Fjelds and Fjords of the Central and Western Districts, and including Remarks on its I olitical Military, Leclesiastical and Social of Organisation. By Thomas Forestern, Lag ; and I leutenant M. S. Bippi arm, Royal Artillers. With Map, Woodcuts, and Ten coloured Plates. See 185 cloth.

FOSS-THE JUDGES OF ENGLAND

With Sketches of their Lives, and Miscellaneous Notices connected with the Courts at West minster from the time of the Conquest. By I DWARD LOSS, I S A of the Inner Temple Nots I II III and IV 800 30s cloth.

FRANCIS -THE HISTORY OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND, Its Times and Traditions By John Leaners Third I dition 2 vols po 1 8vo 21s cloth

FRANCIS.—A HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH RAILWAY; Ita social Relations and Revelations By John Bancin 2 vols 8vo 24x cloth

FRANCIS - CHRONICLES AND CHARACTERS OF THE

FREEMAN -THE LIFE OF THE REV WILLIAM KIRBY,

MARS, FLS, &c., Rector of Barham; Author of one of the Bridgewater Treatises, and Joint Author of the Introduction to Entomol &c. By the Res. John Entrinas, MAR, Rector of Ashwicken Norfolk and Rural Dean. With a Lorirait of Mr. Kirby (cugraved by Henry Robinson), a Lac-simile of his Handwriting and a View of Barham Parsonage. See price 13s cloth.

GOLDSMITH. - THE POETICAL WORKS OF OLIVER GOLDSMITH Illustrated by Wood Engravings, from Designs by Members of the Fiching

GOLDSWITTI Hustrated by Wood Figravings, from Designs by Members of the Fiching Club With a Biographical Memoir, and Notes on the Poems Fidited by Routes Conney, Eaq Square crown 8vo price One Guinea, cloth; or, bound in morocco by Hayday, price £1 16s

GOSSE.—A NATURALIST'S SOJOURN IN JAMAICA.

By P II Gosse, Esq. With coloured Plates Post 810 145 cloth

GRAHAM -STUDIES FROM THE ENGLISH POETS:

Comprising Selections from Milton, Shakspeare, Iope, Gray, Goldsmith, Cowper, and Collins; with the strikingly beautiful passages printed in Italics; Laplanator, Notes and Illustrations; and Examination Questions for exercise in English Composition By G F GRAHAM 12mo price 7s cloth

GRAHAM -ENGLISH, OR, THE ART OF COMPOSITION

Explained in a Series of Instructions and Examples By G F GRAHAM New Edition, revised and improved Fcp 8vo 6s cloth

R. GREG'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE EDIN-MR. W

BURGH REVIEW -ESSAYS on POLITICAL and SOCIAL SCIENCE Contributed chiefly to the Edinburgh Review By WILLIAM R GREG 2 vols 8vo price 24s cloth

GURNEY -HISTORICAL SKETCHES,

Illustrating some Memorable I vents and Epochs, from A D 1,400 to A D 1,546 By the Rev JOHN HAMPDEN GURNEY, M A., Rector of St. Mary's, Mary le-bone Fcp 8vo 7s 6d cloth

GWILT -AN ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ARCHITECTURE, Historical, Theoretical, and Practical By Joseph Gwilt Illustrated with more than

One Thousand Engravings on Wood, from Designs by J S Gwilt Second Edition, with a Supplemental View of the Symmetry and Stability of Gothic Architecture, comprising upwards of Lighty additional Woodcuts 8vo price 52s 6d cloth -The Suprementation, price 6s cloth

SIDNEY HALL'S GENERAL LARGE LIBRARY ATLAS

OF FIFTY THRIE MAPS (size 20 in by 16 in), with the Divisions and Boundaries care fully coloured, and an Alphabetical Index of all the Names contained in the Maps New Edition, corrected from the best and most recent Authorities, with the Railways laid down and many entirely new Maps Colombier 4to £5 5s half bound in russia

HAMILTON — DISCUSSIONS IN PHILOSOPHY

LITERATURE, EDUCATION and UNIVERSITY REFORM Chiefly from the Edinburgh Review, corrected, vindicated enlarged, in Notes and Appendices By SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON, Bart 8vo price 18s cloth

HARRISON —THE LIGHT OF THE FORGE,
Or, Counsels drawn from the Sick Bed of E M By the Rev William Harrison, MA, Rector of Birch, Essex and Domestic Chaplain to H R H the Duchess of Cambridge With 2 Wood Engravings Fcp 8vo price 5s cloth

HARRISON -ON THE RISE, PROGRESS, AND PRESENT

STRUCTURE of the ENGLISH LANGUAGE By the Rev M HARRISON, MA late Fellow of Queen's College, Oxford Post 8vo 8s 6d cloth

HARRY HIEOVER—THE HUNTING-FIELD

By HARRY HIROVER With Two Plates-One representing The Right Sort, the other, The Wrong Sort Fep 8vo 5s half bound

HARRY HIEOVER.—PRACTICAL HORSEMANSHIP.

By HARRY HIBOVER With 2 Plates-One representing Going like Workmen, the other, Going like Muffe Fcp 8vo price 5s half bound

HARRY HIEOVER-THE STUD,

For Practical Purposes and Practical Men: Being a Guide to the Choice of a Horse for use more than for show By HARRY HIEOVER With Two Plates-One representing A pretty good sort for most purpo es; the other, 'Rayther' a bad sort for any purpose Fcp 8vo 5s half bound

HARRY HIEOVER.-THE POCKET AND THE STUD;

Or, Practical Hintson the Management of the Stable By HARRY HIRONER Second I dition with Portrait of the Author on his favourite Horse Harlegula 1 cp 8vo 5s half bound

HARRY HIEOVER.—STABLE TALK AND TABLE TALK;

Or, SPECTACLES for YOU'S SPORTSMEN By HARRY HIPOVER New Edition 2 vols 800 with Portrait, 219 cloth

HAWKER-INSTRUCTIONS TO YOUNG SPORTSMEN

In all that relates to Guns and Shooting By Lieut Col P HAWKER New I dition, corrected, colored and improved with Fighty five Plates and Woodcuts by Adlard and Branston, from Drawings by C. Varley, Dickes, &c. 800 21s cloth

HAYDN'S BOOK OF DIGNITIES.

Containing ROLLS OF THE OFFICIAL PERSONAGES of the BRITISH PMPIRE, Civil, Ecclesiastical Judicial, Military, Naval, and Municipal from the PARIJEST PERIODS to the PRESENTTIME Compiled chiefly from the Records of the Public Offices Together with the Soverieus of Europe from the foundation of their respective States the Peerage and Nobility of Great Britian and numerous other lists Being a New Polition improved and continued, of HPATON SPOILTICAL INDEX By JOSEPH HAYDY, Compiler of The Dictionary of Dates and other Norks 800 205 half bound

SIR JOHN HERSCHEL-OUTLINES OF ASTRONOMY

By Sir Joux F W. Henschel, Bart &c. New Ldition, with Plates and Wood Engravings. See 18s cloth

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE AND THE USAGES OF SOCIETY

With a Glance at Bad Habits Ry Aywyds 'Manners make the man'' New Edition revised (with additions) by a Lady of Rank Fcp 8vo 2s 6d cloth

LORD HOLLAND'S MEMOIRS

Memoirs of the Whig Party during my Time By Henny Richard Lord Holland Edited by his Son Henny Foward Lord Holland Vol I Post 800 95 6d cloth

LORD HOLLAND'S FOREIGN REMINISCENCES

FOREIGN REMINISCENCES BY HEARY RICHARD LORD HOLLAND Comprising Anecdotes, and an Account of such Persons and Political Intrigues in Foreign Countries as have fallen within his Lordship's observation Edited by his Son, Henry Edward Lord Holland, with Fac simile Second Edition Post 8vo 10s 6d

HOLLAND - CHAPTERS ON MENTAL PHYSIOLOGY.

By Heway Holland, M.D., F.R.S., Physician Extraordinary to the Queen; and Physician in Ordinary to His Royal Highness Prince Albert Founded chiefly on Chapters contained in Medical Notes and Reflections by the same Author So price 10s. 6d cloth

HOOK.—THE LAST DAYS OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY

A Course of Lectures on the principal Events of Passion Week By WALTER FARQUITAR HOOK, D D, Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen New Edition Fep evo 6s cloth

HOOKER-KEW GARDENS.

Or, a Popular Guide to the Raval Botanic Gardens of Kew Ry Sir William Jackson Hooker, K H D C.L. F R A. & L.S &c &c Director New Idition 16mo with numerous Wood Engravings, price Supence

HOOKER AND ARNOTT.—THE BRITISH FLORA;

Comprising the Phenogamous or Flowering Plants, and the Ferns The Sixth Edition, with Additions and Corrections; and numerous Figures illustrative of the Umbelliferous Plants, the Composite Plants, the Grasses, and the Ferns By Sir W J Hooken, FR A and LS &c., and G A WALKPR-ARNOTT, LLD F L.S 12mo with 12 Plates, 14s cloth, with the Plates coloured, price 21s

HORNE -AN INTRODUCTION TO THE CRITICAL STUDY

and KNOWLEDGE of the HOLY SCRIPTURES By THOMAN HARTWFLL HORNE, B D of St John's College, Cambridge, Prebendary of St Paul's New Edition, revised and corrected; with numerous Maps and Facsimiles of Biblical Manuscripts 5 vols 8vo 63s cloth or £5, bound in calf

HORNE -A COMPENDIOUS INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY of the BIBLE By Thomas Hartwell Horne, B D of St John's College, Cambridge Being an Analysis of his Introduction to the Critical Study and Knowledge of the Holy Scriptures New Edition, corrected and enlarged 12mo with Maps and other Engravings, 9s boards

HOWITT.—THE CHILDREN'S YEAR.

By Mary Howitt With Four Illustrations, engraved by John Absolon, from Original Designs by Anna Mary Howitt Square 16mo 5s cloth,

WILLIAM HOWITT'S BOY'S COUNTRY BOOK ·

Being the real Life of a Country Boy, written by himself, exhibiting all the Amusements, Pleasures, and Pursuits of Children in the Country New Edition, with 40 Woodcuts Fcp 8vo 6s cloth.

HOWITT.—THE RURAL LIFE OF ENGLAND.

By WILLIAM Howitt New Edition, corrected and revised, with Engravings on wood, by Bewick and Williams uniform with Visits to Remarkable Places Medium 840 21s cloth

HOWITT.—VISITS TO REMARKABLE PLACES;

Old Halls, Battle Fields, and Scenes illustrative of Striking Passages in English History and Poetry By William Howitt New Edition, with 40 Progravings on Wood. Medium 8vo 21s cloth

SECOND SERIES, chiefly in the Counties of NORTHUMBERLAND and DURHAM, with a Stroll along the BORDER. With upwards of 40 Engravings on Wood Medium 8vo 21s cloth

HUDSON —THE EXECUTOR'S GUIDE.

By J C Hubson, Esq late of the Legacy Duty Office, London, Author of Plain Directions for Making Wills New Edition. Fcp 8vo 5s cloth

HUDSON-PLAIN DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING WILLS

In Conformity with the Law: with a clear Exposition of the Law relating to the distribution of Personal Estate in the case of Intestacy, two Forms of Wills, and much useful information By J C Hunson, Esq. New Edition, corrected Fcp 8vo 2s 6d cloth

 These Two works may be had in One Volume, 7s cloth

HUGHES (E.) - A NEW SCHOOL ATLAS OF PHYSICAL,

POLITICAL, and COMMERCIAL GEOGRAPHY By Foward Hudges, FRGS, Head Master of the Royal Naval Lower School, Greenwich Hospital Containing Seventeen coloured Maps, with Descriptive Letterpress The Maps engraved on Steel by E. Weller, FRGS Royal 8vo price 10s. 6d half bound

HUGHES (W.)-A MANUAL OF MATHEMATICAL GEO-

GRAPHY: comprehending an Inquiry into the Construction of Maps: with Rules for the Formation of Map Projections By William Illumins, FRGS, late Professor of Geography in the College for Civil Pagineers Second Edition; with 5 Plates Fcp 8vo price 4s 6d cloth

HUMBOLDT -ASPECTS OF NATURE

In Different Lands and Different Climates, with Scientific Elucidations By ALEXANDER VON HUMBOLOT Translated, with the Author's authority, by Mrs. Santan New Edition 16mo 6s cloth; or in 2 vols 3s 6d each, cloth, Half a-Crown each, sewed

HUMBOLDT'S COSMOS,

Or, a Sketch of a Physical Description of the Universe Translated, with the Author's authority by Mrs. Sabine \oldots is and II i6mo Half a Crown each, sewed; 3s 6d each, cloth: or in post 8vo 12s each, cloth —\oldots iII post 8vo 12s 6d cloth: or in 16mo Part 1 2s 6d. sewed, 3s 6d cloth, and Part II 3s sewed, 4s cloth

HUMPHREYS -SENTIMENTS AND SIMILES OF SHAK-

BPEARE: a Classified Selection of Similes Definitions, Descriptions, and other remarkable Passaces in Shakspeare's Plays and Poems With an elaborately illuminated border in the characteristic style of the Elizabethan Period, and other Embellishments Bound in very massive carved and pierced covers containing in deep relief a medallion Head and Cypher The Illuminations and Ornaments designed and executed by Henry Noel Humphreys Square post 870 One Guiges

MRS JAMESON'S LEGENDS OF THE MONASTIC

ORDERS, as represented in the Fine Arts. Containing St Benedict and the Early Benedictines in Italy, France, Spain, and Fianders; the Benedictines in Fingland and in Germany, the Reformed Benedictines; early Royal Saints connected with the Benedictine Order, the Augustines, Orders derived from the Augustine Rule; the Mendicant Orders, the Jesuits; and the Order of the Visitation of St Mary Forming the Sacond Series of Sacred and Legendary Art Second Edition, corrected and enlarged; with 11 Etchings by the Author, and 63 Woodcuts Square crown 8vo 29s cloth.

MRS JAMESON'S SACRED AND LEGENDARY ART;

Or, Legends of the Saints and Martyrs. First Series Containing Legends of the Angels and Archangels; the Evangelists and Apostles; the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Magda Iene, the Patron Saints, the Virgin Patronesses, the Martyrs; the Bishops, the Hermits; and the Warrior Saints of Christendom Second Edition, with numerous Woodcuts, and 16 Etchings by the Author Square crown 8vo 28s. cloth

MRS JAMESON'S LEGENDS OF THE MADONNA.

As represented in the Fine Arts Forming the THIRD SERIES of Sacred and Legendary Art With 55 Drawings by the Author, and 152 Wood Engravings Square crown 800 288 cloth

"Gf all our writers upon secred art, there is none in whose hands the subject acquires so deep an interest, or is treated with such profound knowledge, such genial yet acute criticism such deep sympathy for the poetic, and such high reverence for the secred as we find in the works of Mrs Jameson. A noble style dignified yet hatural, simple yet impressive at once capitrates the reader; while the utter absence of pedantry even in the fathers of the atoriest's knowledge of obscure subjects, adds not its least graceful characteristic to this book.

Mrs. Jameson s very scholarly and artist like volume is one which every at itherary must possess; and of the high qualities and merits of which even the faint and meracre sketch which we have drawn can hardly we hope fall to afford some indication Mozation Chronicale.

LORD JEFFREY'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE EDIN-

BURGH REVIEW A New Edition, complete in One Volume, uniform with Mr Macaulay's Essays and Sir James Mackintosh's and the Rev Sydne; Smith's Works; with a Pertrait engraved by Henry Robinson, and a Vignette View of Craigerook engraved by J Cousen Square crown 8vo

[Nearly reu ty

 Also, the Second Edition, in 3 vols 8vo price 42s cloth

BISHOP JEREMY TAYLOR'S ENTIRE WORKS:

With the life by Bishop Henra Revised and corrected by the Rev Charles Paur Frey, Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford In Ten Volumes Vols II to X 8ro price Half a Guinen each

 The First Volume, comprising Bishop Heber's I ife of Jeremy Taylor, extended by the Editor, is nearly ready for publication

BISHOP JEREMY TAYLOR-READINGS FOR EVERY

DAY in LEN1 compiled from the Writings of Bishor Jersmy Taylon By the Author of Amy Herbert, The Child's First History of Rome, &c Fcp 8vo price 5s cloth

JOHNSTON.-A NEW DICTIONARY OF GEOGRAPHY,

Descriptive, Physical, Statistical, and Historical forming a complete General Gazetteer of the World By Alexander Reith Johnstof, FRSE FRGS Geographer at I dinburgh in Ordinary to Her Majesty In One Volume of 1,440 pages, comprising nearly 50,000 Names of Places 8vo price 36s cloth, or strongly half bound in russia, with flexible back, 41s

KEMBLE.—THE SAXONS IN ENGLAND.

a History of the Fuglish Commonwealth till the period of the Norman Conquest. By John Mitchell Kembler, MA, FCPS, &c 2 vols Svo 28s cloth

KIPPIS.—A COLLECTION OF HYMNS AND PSALMS FOR

PUBLIC and PRIVATE WORSHIP Selected and prepared by Andrew Kippis, DD, Abraham Rees, DD, the Rev Thomas Jervis, and the Rev Thomas Morgan, LLD New Edition, including a New Supplement by the Rev Found Kell, MA 18mo 45 cloth, or 48 6d bound in roan—The SUPPI EMENT separately, price Eightpence

KIRBY AND SPENCE.—AN INTRODUCTION TO ENTO-

MOLOGY; or, Elements of the Natural History of Insects comprising an account of noxious and useful Insects, of their Metamorphoses, Food, Stratagems, Habitations, Societies, Notions, Noises, Hybernation, Instinct, &c By W Kirby, M A FRS & L.S Rector of Barham, and W Sprace Esq FRS & L.S New Edition 2 vols 8vo with Plates, 31s 6d cloth

LAING .- OBSERVATIONS ON THE SOCIAL AND POLI-

TICAL STATE of DENMARK and the DUCHIES of SLESWICK and HOLSTEIN in 1831 Being the Third Series of Notes of a Traveller By Samuel Laing, Lsq With a Plan of the Battle of Idstedt 8vo price 12s cloth

LAING-OBSERVATIONS ON THE SOCIAL AND POLI-

TICAL STATE of the EUROPEAN PEOPLE in 1848 and 1849: Being the Second Series of Notes of a Traveller By Samuel Laino, Esq. 6vo 14s cloth

LANG - FREEDOM AND INDEPENDENCE FOR THE

GOLDEN LANDS of AUSTRALIA, the Right of the Colonies, and the Interest of Britain and of the World By John Dunnore Lang, MA, DD With a coloured Map Post 800 price 7s 6d cloth

LANG -AN HISTORICAL AND STATISTICAL ACCOUNT of NEW SOUTH WALES, including a Visit to the Gold Regions, and a Description of the Mines, with an Estimate of the probable Results of the Great Discovery By John Dunnore Lang, MA, DD Third Edition (three fourths entirely new) bringing down the History of the Colony to July 1, 1852; with a large coloured Map 2 vols. post 8vo price 21s cloth

LARDNER'S CABINET CYCLOPÆDIA

OF HISTORY BIOGRAPHY, LITTERATURE THE ARTS AND SCIENCES, NATURAL BISTORY AND MANUFACTURES A Secret Original Works by

SIR JOHN HERSCHIE. SIR JAMES MACKINTONI, ROBERT FOLTHET. SIR DAVID BREWSTER.

23 Lardner's Geometry

THOMAS RESOUTLET, JOHN LOR TER SCOTT, THOMAS MOORE.

Hate THIRLWALL Heller G R Girio, J (Latin Meniner) Jone Littler, 1 B + C *

3s 6d | 62 Thirlmall a History of Greece, 8 vols

234.

An Lether en ir ent Writers

Complete in 132 role fep 810 with Lightle Tiller, once Suctem lexices of th The north separately, in School Series price Tires willings and Six spice ex hill sire

A List of the Works or govern the Calinet C . , al x -

	A List of the H	CLYR C dian	7411 60 171.1
1	t ell's History of Russia 3	12012 102 61	31 fantner on Heat 11c' 21 (1
2	L Bell's Large of firstish Locis 2	1101 71	25 fands i . Hydroitatica and
		1101 = 64	Parametics 1 vil 2s G	4
4	Cooley a Maritime and Inland	i,	2" landers Walker allers of
	The covery 2	13:16 10: 61	Att 1 Magn tiem 2 as Ta Ta	ţ
!	5 Crowe a History of France	10 est elar t	3" Ma Lintoile Berst r at 1
1	6 De Morgan on Leobabilities :	trol 36 Cd	Courter by a Larent fill in the	ì
١ ٠	7 De zismonili s History of the		"tatren en " sc e "is f	3 i
1	•	TO 12 101 1		i
١	5 Detismondi s fallofthelloman
1	Empire	3 4cj# 2#	33 Month mery at 1 a cley a
,	•	1 kg 2r cq	Largert Italian h, anish
	O Donoran aDomestic Leonomy		and lattoguese butters - 3 acts 16a C	(1
	I Dunbam a spain & Loringal		49 No reallistory of Iroland 4 to a 144
1	2 Dunham sHistory of Deninark		41 Smokes Claub loggifflat trol 20 t	63
1		3 vols 10s Cl
	13 Dunham a History of I oland.		1
	14 Danham s Germanic Empire			W
11	15 Dunham's Europe during the		44 Torter a Treatme on the Muna
I.		4104 146	facture of milk 1 tol 31 (લ
- 1	16. Dunham a British Dramatista	3 40,1 11	43 Turter a Manufa tures of
1	17 Dunham & Lives of Larly Wel		I creetain and Glass 19 1 34	-
1		1 401 29	, , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,	(4)
1	18 Fergus allistory of the United		47 "co tallutory of "cotland 2 to a "a
1	Etates 19 Fosbroke's Greek and Roma	2 tols 7s	44 Shelley a Liters of Lininent
١	Antiquities	n 2 vols *e.	French Authors 2 vels "s
١	20 Forster a Lives of the States		49 Thockerd & Trainson a Inject a feel 34 100 Southey a Lives of lighted Ad	C.
ì	men of the Commonwealth		. 1
1	21 Gleig's Lives of British Mil			(c)
	tary Commanders	3 vols 10s Gd
,	22. Grattan's History of the		1 .
	therlands	1 501 34 64	1
	23 Henslow a Botany	1101 3: 64
	24 Herschel & Astronomy	1 vol 3. 64		63.
	25 Herschel's Discourse on \		47
	tural Philosophy	1 vol 2 Gd	d 3 Swainson a Habits & Instincts	ш,
	26. History of Rome	2 vols 7s	of Amironals
	27 History of Switzerland	1 vol 3s 6d		64
	28. Holland's Manufactures	in	AT Smalmon a but D
	Metal	3 vols. 10s &		લ
	29 James sLives of ForeignState	8-	59 Swainson's Shells & Shell date 1 and 3.	Ed)
	men	5 rols 17= G	d 60 Swainson's Animals in Mena	w
	30 hater& Landner & Mechanic	s I vol 3. G	ki geries 1 vol. 30	. 64
	31 Leightley's Outlines of Hist		d Gi Swainson's Taxidermy and	· ou
	32. Lardner's Arithmetic	1101 24 G	M [Bibliography 1 tol 3s	Ga
	33 Lardner's Geometry	1 vol 3 6	d 67 Thelast att as a co	44

LARDNER.—THE GREAT EXHIBITION AND LONDON

in 1851 Reviewed by Dr. Landyle, Mignird Chryaling John Lemonyle, and Hector Brillioz With Wood Pagravings Crown 810 price 144 cloth

DR. LATHAM ON DISEASES OF THE HEART.

Lectures on Subjects connected with Clinical Medicine: Diseases of the Heart By P M LATHAM, M D, Physician Extraordinary to the Queen New Edition 2 vols 12mo 16s of

DR FALCK LEBAHN.—GOETHE'S FAUST

With copious Inglish Notes, containing the whole of the Text in German and Inglish classified according to the Rules of Grammar, for Students of the German Larguize By Falck I rhally, Ph D Author of German in One Volume &c. 800 price 155 cloth

LEE —ELEMENTS OF NATURAL HISTORY;

Or, First Principles of Zoology: Comprising the Principles of Classification interspersed with annusing and instructive Accounts of the most remarkable Animals—By Mrs. It. Les. New Edition, enlarged, with numerous additional Woodcuts—Fep. 870-78-64 cloth

- L E. L.—THE POETICAL WORKS OF LETITIA ELIZA-BETH LANDON; comprising the IMIROVINATRICI the VINETAN BRACFIET, the GOI DENNIOLET, the TROUBANOUR and other Poetical Remains New I dition; with 2 Vignettes by Richard Doyle 2 vols 16mo 10s cloth; moroeco, 21s
- LETTERS ON HAPPINESS, ADDRESSED TO A FRIEND.

 B) the Author of Letters to My Unknown Letends, &c. | Lep 600 &c cloth

LETTERS TO MY UNKNOWN FRIENDS

By a I ady, Author of Letters on Happiness 3d Edition | Fep 8vo & cloth

LINDLEY.—INTRODUCTION TO BOTANY

By J. LENDLEY, Ph.D. F.R.S. L. Q. &c. Professor of Botany in University College. London New Lelition, with Corrections and copious Additions. 2 vols. 8vo. with Six Plates and numerous Woodcuts, 21s. cloth

LINWOOD -ANTHOLOGIA OXONIENSIS.

Sive Florilegium e lusibus poeticis diversorum Oxoniensium Crecis et Latinis decerptum Curante Gultplmo Innwood, M A Ædis Christi Alumno 810 148 cloth

LITTON -THE CHURCH OF CHRIST,

In its Idea, Attributes, and Ministry With a particular reference to the Controversy on the Subject between Romanists and Protestants By the Rev Foward Arthur Litros, MA, Vice Principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford 870 168 cloth

LORIMER -LETTERS TO A YOUNG MASTER MARINER

On some Subjects connected with his Calling By the late CHARLES LORINLE New Edition Fcp 8vo 5s 6d cloth

LOUDON -THE AMATEUR GARDENER'S CALENDAR

Being a Monthly Guide as to what should be avoided, as well as what should be done in a Garden in each Month: with plain Rules how to do what is requisite Directions for Laying Out and Planting Kitchen and Flower Gardens, Pleasure Grounds and Shrubberies, and a short Account, in each Month, of the Quadrupeds, Birds, and Insects then most injurious to Gardens By Mrs Loudon. 16mo with Wood Engravings, 7s 6d cloth

LOUDON.—THE LADY'S COUNTRY COMPANION.

Or, How to Enjoy a Country Line Rationally By Mrs Loupon, Author of Gardening for Ladies, &c. Fourth Edition, with Plate and Wood Engravings | Fep 8vo 5s cloth

LOUDONS SELF-INSTRUCTION FOR YOUNG

DENERS, Foresters, Bailiffs, Land Stewards, and Farmers, in Arithmetic, Book keeping, Geometry, Mensuration, Practical Trigonometry, Mechanics, Land-Surveying, Levelling, Planning and Mapping, Architectural Drawing and Isometrical Projection and I crep ctive, with Examples shewing their applications to Horticulture and Agricultural Purpo es With a Portrait of Mr Loudon, and a Memoir by Mrs Loudon Sro with Woodcuts, 74 Cd cloth

LOUDON'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF GARDENING,

Comprising the Theory and Practice of Horticulture Floriculture Arboriculture and Land scape bardening including all the latest improvements a Gen r l Hi ter of Gardening in all Countries, and a Statistical View of its Present State: with Suggestions for its Future Progress in the British Isles - Illustrated with many hundred Engravious on Wood by Branston. New Edition, corrected and improved by Mrs Loudon 810 .05 cloth

LOUDON'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF TREES AND SHRUBS

Being the Arborelum of Fru'icelum Britannicum abridged containing the Hardy Trees and Shrabs of Great Britain, Native and Foreign Scientifically and Popularly Described with their Propagation, Culture, and Uses in the Arts and with Engravings of nearly all the species Adapted for the use of Nurserymen, Gardeners, and Foresters With about 2,000 Engravings on Wood. See £2 10s cloth

LOUDON'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF AGRICULTURE:

Comprising the Theory and Practice of the Valuation, Transfer, Laying-out Improvement, and Management of Landed Property, and of the Cultivation and Leonomy of the Animal and Vegetable productions of Agriculture including all the latest Improvements, a general listory of Agriculture in all Countries, a Statistical View of its present State, with Suggestions for Its fature progress in the British Isles New Edition 810 with 1,100 Woodcuts, 50s loth

LOUDON'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF PLANTS,

Including all the Plants which are now found in, or have been introduced into Great Britain giving their \atural History, accompanied by such descriptions, engraved figures, and elementary details, as may enable a beginner, who is a mere English reader, to discover the name of every Plant which he may find in flower, and acquire all the information respecting it which is useful and interesting New Edition corrected throughout, and brought down to [In the press

LOUDON'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF COTTAGE, FARM, AND

VILLA ARCHITECTURE and FURNITURE, containing numerous Designs, from the Villa to the Cottage and the Farm including Farm Honses, Farmenes and other Agricultural Buildings Country Inns, Public Houses, and Parochial Schools, with the requisite Fittingsup, Fixtures, and Furniture, and appropriate Offices Gardens, and Garden Scenery each Design accompanied by Analytical and Critical Remarks New Edition, edited by Mrs LOCDON With more than 2,000 Engravings on Wood Svo 23 35 cloth.

LOUDON'S HORTUS BRITANNICUS,

Or Cetalogue of all the Plants indigenous to, cultivated in, or introduced into Britain An entirely dew Edition, corrected throughout With a Supplement, including all the dew Pints, and a New General Index to the whole Work Edited by Wrs Loudon assisted by W H BAXTER, 2nd DAVID WOOSTER STO 31s 6d. cloth.—The SUPPLEMENT separatel

LOW.—ELEMENTS OF PRACTICAL AGRICULTURE.

Comprehending the Cultivation of Plants, the Husbandry of the Domestic Animals, and the Economy of the Farm By D Low, Lsq FRSF New Edition, with 200 Woodcuts 870 21s cloth

MACAULAY.—THE HISTORY OF ENGLAND FROM THE

ACCESSION OF JAMFS II By THOMAS BABINGTON MACAULAY New Edition Vols 1 and II 840 328 cloth

MR MACAULAY'S CRITICAL & HISTORICAL ESSAYS

CONTRIBUTED to The LDINBURGH REVII W Three I ditions, as follows -

- 1 LIBRARY POITION (the Seventh), in 3 vols 8vo price 36s cloth
- 2 Complete in One Volume, with Portrait and Vignette Square crown 8vo price 21s cloth or 30s handsoniely bound in calf by Hayday
- 3 A New Edition, in 3 vols fep 8vo price 21s cloth

MACAULAY -LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME,

With IVRY and the ARMADA By THOMAS BABINOTON MACAULAY New Edition 16mo 4s 6d cloth, or 10s 6d bound in moreoco by Hayday

MR MACAULAY'S LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME

With numerous Illustrations, Original and from the Antique, drawn on Wood by George Scharf, Jun and engraved by Samuel Williams New Edition Fcp 4to 21s boards, or 42s bound in morocco by Hayday

MACDONALD-VILLA VEROCCHIO,

Or, the YOUTH of LFONARDO DA VINCI n Tale By the Inte Diana Louisa Macno (ALD Fcp 810 Gs cloth

MACKINTOSH —SIR JAMES MACKINTOSH'S MISCELLA-

NEOUS WORKS, including his Contributions to The FDINBURCH RIVIIW A New Fdition complete in One Volume, with Portrait and Vibnette Square crown 810 218 cloth, or 30s calf extra by Hayday

M'LEOD AND WELLER'S SACRED ATLAS

An Atlas of Scripture Geography Adapted for the use of Training Colleges Pupil Teachers, and the Upper Classes in Elementary Schools Comprising Fifteen coloured Maps and a Section engraved on Ten Plates with Illustrative Letterpress, by Walter Malon, Frank Regard Master of the Model School, and Master of Method in the Royal Military Asylum, Chelsea The Maps compiled and engraved by Edward Weller, Frank Royal Stopping Stopp

M'CULLOCH —A TREATISE ON THE CIRCUMSTANCES which DETERMINE the RATE of WAGES and the COADITION of the LABOURING CLASSES By J R M'CULLOCH, Esq. Fcp 810 38 6d cloth

M'CULLOCH — A DICTIONARY, PRACTICAL, THEO-REFICAL, and HISTORICAL, of COMMERCE and COMMERCIAI NAVICATION Illustrated with Maps and Plans By J. R. M'Culloch, Esq. New Edition, corrected, enlarged, and improved: Including a New Supplement. 810 50s cloth or 5-s half bound

M'CULLOCH -A DICTIONARY, GEOGRAPHICAL, STAin russia with flexible back -The Supplement separately, price 4s 6d

TISTICAL, and HISTORICAL, of the various Countries Places, and Principal Natural Objects in the WORLD By J R McCulloch, Esq. Illustrated with 6 large Maps New Foltion, with a Supplement, comprising the Population of Great Britain from the Census of 1851 2 vols 8vo 63s cloth—The Supplement separately, place 2s 6d

M'CULLOCH.—AN ACCOUNT, DESCRIPTIVE & STATIS-

TICAL, of the BRITISH LMPIRE, exhibiting its Extent, Physical Capacities, Population Industry, and Civil and Religious Institutions By J. R. McCulloch, Esq. New Edition, corrected, enlarged, and greatly improved 2 vols 8vo 42s. cloth

M'CULLOCH.—A TREATISE ON THE PRINCIPLES AND

PRACTICAL INFLUENCE of TANATION and the FUNDING SISTLM By J R M'CULLOCH, Esq. Second Edition, corrected, enlarged, and improved 8vo 16s cloth

MAITLAND - THE CHURCH IN THE CATACOMBS

1

A Description of the Primitive Church of Rome Illustrated by its Sepulchral Remains By Charles Maitland New Edition, with numerous Woodcuts 8vo 14s cloth

MRS MARCET'S CONVERSATIONS ON CHEMISTRY,

In which the Elements of that Science are familiarly 1 xplained and Hiustrated by Experiment New Edition, enlarged and improved 2 vols fep 8vc 14s cloth

MRS MARCET'S CONVERSATIONS ON NATURAL PHI-

LOSOPHY in which the Elements of that Science are familiarly explained A w Edition, enlarged and corrected | Fep 800 with 23 lintes, 105 Cd cloth

MRS MARCET'S CONVERSATIONS ON POLITICAL

FCONOMY, in which the Llements of that science are familiarly explained New Edition Fcp 810 75 6d cloth

MRS MARCET'S CONVERSATIONS ON VEGETABLE

PHYSIOLOGY; comprehending the Elements of Botany, with their application to Agric : ture New Edition Fcp 810 with 4 Plates 95 cloth

MRS MARCET'S CONVERSATIONS ON LAND & WATE?

New Edition, revised and corrected. With a coloured Map, showing the companion altitude of Mountains. Fep. 810-58 fel. cloth

MARIOTTI-FRA DOLCINO AND HIS TIMES.

Being an Account of a General Struggle for heck stastical heform, and of an Anti-Heist Crusade in Italy, in the early part of the Fourteenth Century. By L. Maniocci. Authoritally, Past and Present, &c. Post 840 price 10s. 6d. cloth

MARTINEAU.—CHURCH HISTORY IN ENGLAND,

From the Earliest Times to the period of the Reformation By the Leve Annua Menters of M.A., late Fellow of Trinity College Cambridge 111mo [In the print]

MAUNDER'S BIOGRAPHICAL TREASURY;

Consisting of Memoirs, Sketches and brief Notices of above 12 000 Eminent Persons of all \ c and \ \ ations, from the Larliest 1 cried of History; forming a new and complete Diction of Universal Biography A New and carefully revised I dition corrected throughout the extended by the introduction of numerous additional Lives | kep 8ve 10s cloth, bound roam 12s., calf lettered, 12s 6d

MAUNDER'S HISTORICAL TREASURY

Comprising a General Introductory Outline of Universal History, Ancient and Modern, at Series of separate Histories of every principal Nation that exists their Rise Progres, a Present Condition, the Moral and Social Character of their respective inhabitants, the Religion, Manners and Customs &c. An entirely New Edition revised throughou a brought down to the Present Time. For Svo 10s cloth bound in roan 12s. call letter [12s]

MAUNDER'S SCIENTIFIC AND LITERARY TREASURY.

A new and popular Encyclopedia of Ecience and the Beller Letter; including all Branches of Ecience, and every Subject connected with Literature and Art New Polition For 810 106 cloth, bound in roan, 12s.; calf lettered, 12s. 6d

MAUNDER'S TREASURY OF MATURAL HISTORY:

Or, a Popular Dictionary of Animated Nature: In which the Zoological Characteristics that distinguish the different Classes, Genera, and Species are combined with a variety of interesting Information illustrative of the Habits, Instincts, and General Economy of the Animal Kingdom With 900 accurate Pugravings on Wood New Edition Fep 8vo 10s cloth; bound in roam, 12s: calf lettered, 12s 61

MAUNDER'S TREASURY OF KNOWLEDGE,

MERIVALE - A HISTORY OF THE ROMANS UNDER

the FMPIRP By the Rev Charlis Mirrally, BD, late Fellow of St John's College, Cambridge Vols I and H 8vo 28s cloth —Vol III completing the History to the Pstablishment of the Monarchy by Augustus, 8vo 14s cloth

MERIVALE.—THE FALL OF THE ROMAN REPUBLIC:

A Short History of the Last Century of the Commonwealth By the Rev Char Merivale, BD, late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge 12mo [In the press

MILNER-THE HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

By the late Roy Joseph Milnin, A M. With Additions by the late Rev. Isaac Mil. fr, D D, FRS. A New Edition, revised, with additional $^{\circ}$ otes by the Rev. Thos. Gra. tham, B D. 4 vols. 8vo. price 52s. cloth

JAMES MONTGOMERY'S POETICAL WORKS

With some additional Poems, and the Author's Autobiographical Prefaces A New Edition, complete in One Volume, with Portrait and Vi_nette Square crown 8vo 10s 6d. cloth; morocco, 21s - Or, in 4 vols fep 8vo with Portrait, and Seven other Plates, 20s cloth; morocco, 36s

MONTGOMERY -ORIGINAL HYMNS

For Public, Focial, and Private Devotion By James Montgomphy 18mo 5s 6d cloth

MOORE-HEALTH, DISEASE, AND REMEDY,

I amiliarly and practically considered in a few of their relations to the Blood By George Moone, M.D. Member of the Royal College of Physicians Post 8vo. 7s. 6d. cloth

MOORE—MAN AND HIS MOTIVES.

By Gronov Moonr, M.D., Member of the Royal College of Physicians - Third and cheaper Polition - Pep 8vo 6s cloth

MOORE-THE POWER OF THE SOUL OVER THE BODY,

Considered in relation to Health and Morals By Gronge Moore, MD Member of the Royal College of Physicians Fifth and cheaper Edition Fep 8vo 6s cloth

MOORE-THE USE OF THE BODY IN RELATION TO

THE MIND BY GEORGE MOORE, M.D. Member of the Royal College of Physicians. Third and cheaper Edition. Pep. 8vo. 6s. cloth

MURE-A CRITICAL HISTORY OF THE LANGUAGE

AND LITPRATURY OF ANGIENT GREECE. By WILLIAM MURE, M.P., of Caldrell Scola 810 364 cloth - Vol. IV comprising Historical Literature from the Rise of Prose Composition to the Death of Herodotus. 810 with Map, price Les cloth

MURRAY'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF GEOGRAPHY,

Comprising a complete Description of the Larth exhibiting its Relation to the Heavenly Bodies, its Physical Structure the Natural History of each Country, and the Indu try, Commerce, Political Institutions, and Civil and Social State of ril Nations Second I dition, with 82 Maps, and upwards of 1,660 other Woodcuts 800 $35, cloth

NEALE-RISEN FROM THE RANKS,

Or, Conduct rersus Caste. By the Rev. I uski. 1 Nextle, MA, Rector of Kirlon, Sucolk Pop. 800. [Nearly ready.

NEALE-THE RICHES THAT BRING NO SORROW

By the Rev. Prop. 18 L. Ni ali, M.A., Rector of Fir on, Suffelk. Tep. 850. Es. cloth

NEALE.—THE EARTHLY RESTING PLACES OF THE JUST By the Rev I narral Niarr, M 1, Rector of Firton, Surolk I op 870 with Woodcuta, 78 cloth

NEALE-THE CLOSING SCENE,

Or, Christianits and Infidelity contrasted in the Last Hours of Remarkable Persons. By the Rev. Phaker. Nextee, M.A., Rector of Kirton Suffolk. New Lehtions of the First and Second Series. 2 sols fep. 850-128 cloth, or separately, 64 each.

NEWMAN -DISCOURSES ADDRESSED TO MIXED CON-GRIGATIONS By Jone Hanny Newman, Priest of the Oratory of 4 Philip Neri

GRI GATIONS By John Hinny Newstan, Priest of the Oratory of 4 Philip Neri Second I dition 800 12s cloth

LIEUTENANT OSBORN'S ARCTIC JOURNAL

Stray Leaves from an Arctic Journal, or, Lighteen Months in the I olar Regions in Search of Sir John Franklin's Expedition. By Heat Surveyor Osnows R.S., Commanding H.M.S.V. Ploneer. With Map and Four coloured Plates. Post 8vo. price 124 cloth

OWEN JONES-WINGED THOUGHTS

A Series of Poems By Mary AN r Bacon. With Illustrations of Birds designed by F I Bateman, and executed in Illuminated Printing by Owen Jones. Imperial 810-318-6d elegantly bound in calf.

OWEN JONES. - FLOWERS AND THEIR KINDRED

THOUGHTS: A Series of Stanzas By Many Anni Bacon With beautiful Illustrations of Flowers, designed and printed in Colours by Owen Jones | Imperial 810 315 6d elegantly bound in calf

OWEN JONES-FRUITS FROM THE GARDEN AND THE

FII LD: A Scries of Stanzas By Many Anne Bacon With beautiful Illustrations of Pruit, designed and printed in Colours by Owen Jones Imperial 840 818 Gd elegantly bound in calf

OWEN-LECTURES ON THE COMPARATIVE ANATOMY

and PHYSIOLOGY of the INVERTIBRATI ANIMALS, delivered at the Royal College of Surgeons in 1843 By Richard Owin, 1 R 4 Hunterlan Professor to the College New Edition, corrected 8vo with Wood Ingravings

OWEN.—LECTURES ON THE COMPARATIVE ANATOMY

and PHYSIOLOGY of the VERTEBRATE ANIMALS, delivered at the Royal College of Surgeons in 1844 and 1846. By RICHARD OWEN, I'R S Hunterian Professor to the College In 2 vols The First Volume; with numerous Woodents 8vo 14s cloth

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF BLAISE PASCAL:

With M Villemain's Essay on Pascal considered as a Writer and Moralist prefixed to the Provincial Letters; and the Miscellaneous Writings, Thoughts on Religion, and Perdences of Christianity re-arranged, with large Additions, from the French Edition of Mons. P Tau gère. Translated from the French, with Memoir, Introductions to the various Works, Idii torial Notes, and Appendices, by George Peance, Esq 3 rols post 8ro with Portralt, 25s 6d cloth

Vol I - PASCAL'S PROVINCIAL LETTERS with M Villemain's Essay on Pascal pre fixed, and a new Memoir Post 8vo Portrait, 8s 6d Vol II -PASCAL'S THOUGHTS on RELIGION and ENIDENCES of CHRISTIANITA, with Additions, from Original MSS: from M Faugère & Edition Post 810 Es Cd Vol III - PASCAL'S MISCELLANEOUS WRITI \GS, Correspondence, Detached Thoughts,

PASHLEY -PAUPERISM AND POOR-LAWS

&c : from M Faugère's Edition Post 870 85 6d

By Robert Pastley, M A, F C.P S, One of Her Majesty's Counsel, and late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, Author of Travels in Crefe 8vo price 10s 6d cloth

CAPTAIN PEEL'S TRAVELS IN NUBIA.

A RIDE through the AUBIAN DESERT. By Captein W. PEEL, R.A. Post 8vo with n Route Map from Caro to hordofan, price 5s cloth

" A ve y pleasant little book written by one who let no hing worthy of notice except him, and knows how to describe His little book put forward without any pretension, is not only highly amo ing but it is full of the most valuable information." UNITED SERVICE MADASINE

PEREIRA -A TREATISE ON FOOD AND DIET

With Observations on the Dictetical Regimen suited for Disordered States of the Digestive Organs, and an Account of the Dietaries of some of the principal Metropolitan and other Establishments for Paupers, Lunstics, Criminals Children, the Sick, &c. By Jon Pereira, M D FRS & LS Author of Elements of Materia Vedica 8vo 16s cloth

PESCHEL'S ELEMENTS OF PHYSICS

Translated from the German, with Notes, by E. WEST With Diagrams and Woodcuts 3 vols fep 8vo 21s cloth

PETERBOROUGH - A MEMOIR OF CHARLES DAUNT, BARL of PETERBOROUGH and MONMOUTH with Selections from his Corre spondence By the Author of Hackelaga and The Conquest of Canada 2 vols post 800 [In the press

PHILLIPS'S ELEMENTARY INTRODUCTION TO MINE-

RALOGY A New Edition, with extensive Alterations and Additions, by H J BROOKE, FRS, FGS, and W H Miller, M.A., FRS, FGS Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Cambridge 1 ith numerous Wood Engravings Post 8vo price 18s cloth

PHILLIPS-FIGURES AND DESCRIPTIONS OF THE

PALEOFOIC FOSSILS of CORNWALL, DEVON, and WEST SOMERSET, observed in the course of the Ordnance Geological Survey of that District By John Phillips, FR.S I G > &c Sto with 60 Plates, comprising very numerous figures, 93 cloth

PORTLOCK - REPORT ON THE GEOLOGY OF

COUNTY of LONDONDERRY, and of Parts of Tyrone and Fermanagh, examined and described under the Authority of the Master General and Board of Ordnance By J E PORTLOCK, F R.S &c Sto with 48 Plates, 24s cloth

POWER.—SKETCHES IN NEW ZEALAND,

with Pen and Pencil By W TYRONE POWER, DACG From a Journal kept in that Country, from July 1846 to June 1848 With 8 Plates and 2 Woodcuts Post 8vo 12s cloth

PULMAN -THE VADE-MECUM OF FLY-FISHING FOR

TROUT being a complete Practical I reatise on that Branch of the Art of Angling, with plain and copious Instructions for the Manufacture of Artificial Flies By G P R PULMAN Third Edition, re written and enlarged, with several Woodcuts Rop 8vo 6s cloth

PYCROFT —A COURSE OF ENGLISH READING,
Adapted to every Taste and Capacity with Literary Anecdotes
Pycroft, B A Author of The Collegian's Gaids, &c New Ldition Fcp 8vo 5s cloth

DR REECE'S MEDICAL GUIDE,

For the Use of the Clergy, Heads of Families, Schools, and Junior Medical Practitioners; comprising a complete Modern Dispensatory, and a Practical Treatise on the distinguishing Symptoms, Causes, Prevention, Cure, and Palliation of the Discases incident to the Human Frame With the latest Discoveries in the different departments of the Healing Art, Materia Medica, &c Seventeenth Edition with considerable Additions; revised and corrected by the Author's Son, Dr HENRY REECE, MRC 3 &c. 8vo 12s cloth

RICH —THE ILLUSTRATED COMPANION TO THE LATIN

DICTIONARY AND GREEK LEXICON forming a Glossary of all the Words representing Visible Objects conn cted with the Arts, Manufactures, and Every day Life of the Ancients With Representations of nearly Two Thousand Objects from the Antique By ANTHONS RICH, Jun BA Post 810 with about 2,000 Woodcuts, 21s cloth

JOURNAL OF A BOAT VOYAGE THROUGH RUPERT'S

LAND and the ARCTIC SEA, in Search of the Discovery Ships under Command of Sir John Franklin With an Appendix on the Physical Geography of North America By Sir JOHN RICHARDSON, M D, F R.S, &c, Inspector of Hospitals and Fleets With a coloured Map, several Plates, and Woodcuts 2 vols 8vo 31s. 6d cloth

RIDDLE'S COMPLETE LATIN-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-

LATIN DICTIONARY, for the use of Colleges and Schools New Edition, revised and corrected. 8vo price 21s cloth

Separately The English Latin Dictionary, price 7s cloth The Latin-Lnglish Dictionary, price 15s cloth

RIDDLE -A COPIOUS AND CRITICAL LATIN-ENGLISH

IFMCON, founded on the German Latin Dictionaries of Dr. William Freund By the Rev J E. Riddle, M A of St Ediaund & Hall, Oxford New Polition Post 4to 31s 6d. cloth

RIDDLE'S DIAMOND LATIN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY

A Guide to the Meaning, Quality, and right Accentuation of Latin Classical Words New Ldition Royal 32mo price 48 bound.

RIVERS-THE ROSE-AMATEUR'S GUIDE,

Containing amp'e Descriptions of all the fine leading varieties of Roses, regularly classed in their respective families, their History and mode of Culture By T Rivens, Jun New Edition, corrected and improved | Fcp 8vo 6s cloth

ROBINSON'S LEXICON TO THE GREEK TESTAMENT.

A GPEFK and ENGLISH LEXICON of the NEW TESTAMENT By EDWARD ROBINSON, D.D., LL.D., Author of Biblical Researches in Palestine, &c. A New Edition, revised and in great part re written 8ro 18s cloth

ROGERS-ESSAYS SELECTED FROM CONTRIBUTIONS to the EDINBURGH REVIEW By HEVEY Rogers 2 role 8ro. 24s. cloth

ROGERS'S VEGETABLE CULTIVATOR;

Containing a plain and accurate Description of every species and variety of Culinary Vege tables: With the most approved Modes of Cultivating and Cooking them New and Cheaper Edition Ten 6re 51 cloth

ROGET —THESAURUS OF ENGLISH WORDS & PHRASES

Classified and arranged so as to facilitate the Expression of Ideas and assist in Literary Com position. By P. M. Roger, M. D. F. R. S. &c.; Author of the Bridgewater Treatise on Animal and Venetable Physiology, &c. New Edition, revised and enlarged. Medium 870 148 cloth

ROWTON.—THE DEBATER,

Bring a Ceres of complete Debates, Outlines of Debates, and Questions for Discussion , with ample References to the best Sources of Information on each particular Topic. By FREDERIC Rowrow \em Lalition Fep 870 price 6s cloth

ST JOHN (H.)-THE INDIAN ARCHIPELAGO;

He History and Present State By Houses Sr John, Author of History of the British Conquests in India Life of Christopher Columbus, &c 2 vols post 870 price 21s cloth.

MR. ST JOHN'S NEW WORK ON EGYPT.

1-12 an Expense I december Branes Acoustes Sr John 2 rols post 870 21s cloth

THE SAINTS OUR EXAMPLE

By the author of Letters to me Unknown Friends Letters on Happiness, &c. Fop 840 prive is circle.

SIR EDWARD SEAWARD'S NARRATIVE OF HIS SHIP-

WIICh and con equent Discovery of certain Islands in the Caribbean Sea: with a detail of r are extraordinary and highly interesting Events in his Life, from 1783 to 1749, as written in I seem Dury Edited by Jane Ponzen. Third Edition, with a Nautical and Geographical Irtic action 2 rols, post 870. 21s. cloth -Alsoan Abritonnext, in 16mo price 2s 6d. cloth

SELF-DENIAL THE PREPARATION FOR EASTER. By the Author of Le less to my Lakanen Friends, &c Fep 650, price 22 6d cloth

SEWELL-AMY HERBERT.

By a lank Fored by the Rev William Sewell, B B Fellow and Tutor of Rieter Cr ere Chind New Lattien, complete in One Volume. For 640 price 61. cloth.

SEWELL-THE EARL'S DAUGHTER.

to the A ... of the Herter Edited by the Rev W SEWELL, BD 2 vols, fep 810

SEWELL-GERTRUDE

A Tel 11 the And 1 of Ace Perhert Edited by the Rev W Sewell, BD New - riblig beene tep ero pricels eloth

SEWELL.-LANETON PARSONAGE:

A Tale for Children, on the Practical Use of a portion of the Church Catechism By the Author of Amy Herbert Edited by the Rev W Sewell, B D New Edition 3 vols fcp 8vo price 16s cloth.

SEWELL.—MARGARET PERCIVAL

By the Author of Amy Herbert Edited by the Rev W SEWELL, B D New Edition 2 vols fcp 8vo price 12s cloth

THE FAMILY SHAKSPEARE;

In which nothing is added to the Original Text, but those words and expressions are omitted which cannot with propriety be read aloud By T Bowdler, Esq FRS New Edition (1853), in Volumes for the Pocket 6 vols fcp 8vo price 30s cloth

 Also a Library Edition, with 36 Engravings on Wood, from designs by Smirke, Howard, and other Artists 8vo 21s cloth

SHAKSPEARE'S SONGS ILLUSTRATED BY THE ETCH-

ING CLUB —SONGS and BALLADS of SHAKSPEARE illustrated in Eighteen Plates by the Etching Club — Imperial 4to price 42s boards

 The first Nine Plates were originally published in 1843, and the Subscribers to that Part may purchase the last Nine Plates separately, price One Guinea

SHARP'S NEW BRITISH GAZETTEER,

Or TOPOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY of the BRITISH ISLANDS and NARROW SEAS Comprising concise Descriptions of about Sixty Thousand Places, Seats, Natural Features, and Objects of Note, founded on the best Authorities; full Particulars of the Boundaries, Registered Riectors, &c of the Parliamentary Boroughs; with a reference under every Name to the Sheet of the Ordnance Survey, as far as completed, and an Appendix, containing a General View of the Resources of the United Kingdom, a Short Chronology, and an Abstract of certain Results of the Census of 1851 2 vols 8vo £2 16s cloth

SHORT WHIST

Its Rise, Progress, and Laws, with Observations to make any one a Whist Player, containing also the Laws of Piquet, Cassino, Ecarté, Cribbage, Backgammon By Major A * * * * * New Edition To which are added, Precepts for Tyros y Mrs B * * * * Fcp 8vo 3s cloth

SINCLAIR.—THE JOURNEY OF LIFE

By CATHERINE SINCLAIR New Edition, corrected and enlarged. Fcp 8vo 5s cloth

SINCLAIR—POPISH LEGENDS OR BIBLE TRUTHS

By CATHERINE SINCLAIR, Author of The Journey of Life, &c. Dedicated to her Nieces Fcp 8vo 6s cloth

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY.

From The Speciator With Notes and Illustrations, by W HENRY WILLS, and Twelve fine Wood Engravings, by John Thompson, from Designs by Frederick Tayler Crown 8vo 15s boards, or 27s bound in morocco by Hayday—Also a Cheap Edition, without Wood Engravings, in 16mo price One Shilling

SKETCHES BY A SAILOR,

Or, Things of Earth and Things of Heaven By a Commander in the Royal Navy Fcp 8vo price 3s 6d cloth

CONTENTS:-1 The Shipwreck; 2. The Model Prison, 3 The Foot Race, 4 A Man Overboard, 5 The Assize Court, 6 The Fugitive

SMEE-ELEMENTS OF ELECTRO-METALLURGY.

By ALTRED SHEE, FR.S., Surgeon to the Bank of England Third Islition, review, cer rected, and considerably enlarged, with Electrotypes and numerous Woodculs Test Fro 10s. 6d. cloth.

SMITH.—THE WORKS OF THE REV. SYDNEY SMITH Including his Contributions to The Edinburgh Review New 1 dition, complete in One Volume; with Portrait, and Vignette View of Combe Florey Rectory, Semerted crown 8vo 21s cloth , 30s calf extra, by Hayday -Or in 3 vols 8vo with Portrait, 2'e cloth

- SMITH.—ELEMENTARY SKETCHES OF MORAL PHILO-SOPHY, delivered at the Royal Institution in the Years 1801 1803, and 1805. By the Is c Ret Sydner Smith, M.A. Second Edition 8vo 12s cloth
- SMITH,-THE VOYAGE & SHIPWRECK OF ST PAUL. With Dissertations on the Sources of the Writings of St. Luke, and the bilps and Savigat on of the Antients. By James Suitu, Esq FRS 670 with Illustrations, i.e. cloth
- SNOW.—VOYAGE OF THE PRINCE ALBERT IN SEARCH of SIR JOHN FRANKLIN A Narrative of Every-day Life in the Arctic Scase By W PARKER Sxow With a Chart, and 4 Illustrations printed in Colours Post 810 124 cloth.
- THE LIFE AND CORRESPONDENCE OF THE LATE ROBERT SOUTHEY Edited by his Son, the Rev Charles Cuthbert Couther, M 1, Vicar of Ardleigh. With numerous Portraits, and Six Landscape Illustrations from Designs by William Westall, A.R.A 6 rols, post 870 63s cloth.

SOUTHEY'S THE DOCTOR &c

Complete in One Volume Edited by the Rev John Wood Warten, B.D With Portrait, Vignette, Bust and coloured Plate. New Edition Square crown 810. 21s cloth

SOUTHEY'S COMMONPLACE BOOKS.

The COMMONPLACE BOOKS of the late ROBERT SOUTHEY Comprising-1 Choice Passages: with Collections for the History of Manners and Literature in England; 2 Special Collections on various Historical and Theological Subjects; 3 Analytical Readings in various branches of Literature, and 4 Original Memoranda, Literary and Miscellaneous Lidited by the Rev J W WARTER, B.D 4 vols square crown 8vo £3 18s. cloth.

Each Commonplace Book, complete in itself, may be had separately as follows:--FIRST SERIES-CHOICE PASSAGES, &c 2d Edition, with medallion Portrait. Price 18: SECOND SERIES—SPECIAL COLLECTIONS 181 THIRD SERIES-ANALYTICAL READINGS 21s FOURTH SERIES-ORIGINAL MEMORANDA, &c 21s.

ROBERT SOUTHEY'S COMPLETE POETICAL WORKS,

Containing all the Author's last Introductions and Notes. Complete in One I olume, with Portrait and View of the Poet's Residence at Keswick; uniform with Lord Byron's and Moore's Poems Medium 870 21s. cloth; 42s bound in morocco -Or, in 10 vols. fcp 8vo with Portrait and 19 Plates, £2 10s cloth; morocco, £4 10s

SOUTHEY -SELECT WORKS OF THE BRITISH POETS; From Chancer to Lovelace, inclusive. With Biographical Sketches by the late Robert

SOUTHEY.—THE LIFE OF WESLEY;

And Rise and Progress of Methodism By Robert Southey New Edition, with Notes by the late Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Esq., and Remarks on the Life and Character of John Wesley, by the late Alexander Knox, Esq. Edited by the Rev. C. C. Southey, M.A., Vicar of Ardleigh 2 vols. 8vo. with 2 Portraits, 28s. cloth

STEEL'S SHIPMASTER'S ASSISTANT,

For the use of Merchants, Owners and Masters of Ships, Officers of Customs, and all Persons connected with Shipping or Commerce: Containing the Law and Local Regulations affecting the Ownership, Charge, and Management of Ships and their Cargoes; together with Actices of other Matters, and all necessary Information for Mariners New Edition, rewritten throughout, and containing the New Passenger's Act, passed during the last Session of Parliament Fdited by Graham Willmore, Esq MA Barrister at Law; George Clements, of the Customs, London; and William Tate, Author of The Modern Cambist 8vo 28s cloth

STEPHEN.—LECTURES ON THE HISTORY OF FRANCE;

By the Right Hon Sir James Stephen, k C B LL D, Professor of Modern History in the University of Cambridge Second Edition 2 vols 8vo 24s cloth

"These ma teriv Lectures by Sir James Stephen successor to the lamented Professor Smythe in the University of Cambridg, altit outh they take rather new ground will be found to cast a flood of light on the external and internal bistories of the French people discussing as they do fully and with consummate ability as was to be expected from the author of Ecclesiatical Biography the monarchical judicial and economical institutions of the Great Nation. The present Lectures are at once professional (and) discriminative. They are written in a style of singular fascination, and even to the general reader they present historical truth in the attractureness of romance. We indulge the hope that they will attain a large circulation especially among those classes who are so latetudinarian as to ignore the painful but palpable facts of ecclesiastical history."

STEPHEN —ESSAYS IN ECCLESIASTICAL BIOGRAPHY,

From The Edinburgh Review By the Right Honourable Sir James Stephen, k C B LL D Professor of Modern History in the University of Cambridge Second Edition 2 vols 8vo 2is cloth

SUTHERLAND.—JOURNAL OF A VOYAGE IN BAFFIN'S

BA1 and BARROW'S STRAITS, in the Years 1850 and 1851, performed by H M Ships Lady Franklin and Sophia, under the command of Mr William Penny, in search of the missing Crews of H M Ships Erebus and Terror with a Narrative of Sledge Excursions on the Ice of Wellington Channel, and Observations on the Natural History and Physical Features of the Countries and Frozen Seas visited By Pitre C Suthfraind, M D, M R.C.S.F., Surgeon to the Expedition With Two coloured Charts by A Petermann, Six Plates (four coloured), and numerous Wood Engravings 2 vols post 8vo price 27s cloth

STOW.—THE TRAINING SYSTEM, THE MORAL TRAIN-

ING SCHOOL, and the NORMAL SEMINARY By DAVID STOW, Esq. Honorary Secretary to the Glasgow Normal Free Seminary 8th Ldition, corrected and enlarged; with Plates and Woodcuts Post 8vo 6s cloth

SWAIN -ENGLISH MELODIES

By CHARLES SWAIN Fep 8vo 6s cloth; bound in morocco, 12s

SYMONS-THE MERCANTILE MARINE LAW.

By I DWARD WILLIAM SYMONS, Chief Clerk of the Thames Police Court 5th Edition, in cluding the Act passed in 1851 to amend the Mercantile Marine Act of 1850, and the provisions of the New Act relating to the Merchant Scamen's Fund 12mo 5s cloth

TATE - EXERCISES ON MECHANICS AND NATURAL

PHILOSOPHY; or, an Easy Introduction to Engineering Containing various Applications of the Principle of Work: the Theory of the Steam Engine, with Simple Machines; Theorems and Problems on Accumulated Work, &c By THOMAS TATE, F.R.AS, of Kneller Training College Twickenham New Edition 12mo 2s cloth—KFY: Containing full Solutions of all the unworked Examples and Problems 12mo 3s 6d cloth

TATE - THE PRINCIPLES OF MECHANICAL PHILO-SOPHY applied to INDUSTRIAL MECHANICS Forming a Sequel to the Author's Exer

ciees on Mechanics and Natural Philosophy By THOMAS TATE, F R.A S , of kneller Training College, Twickenham With about 200 Wood Engravings 8vo price 10s 6d cloth College, Twickenham With about 200 Wood Engravings 500 pinter on the lightratic Nactives.

"The object of this work is to remore an erd pointed out by Professor Moseley in his Report on the lightratic Nactives of crustic and of much mechanical ingrantity in English mad inergia a term of the Great Exhibition—the impured surprise of mechanical laws. Mr. Tate causeable the principles of his sacket parts with French from the want of a knowledge of mechanical laws. Mr. Tate causeable the principles of his sacket instruction of exercises conducted for the nort part on algebraical and geometrical principles.

Frectards.

TATE.—ON THE STRENGTH OF MATERIALS;

Containing various original and useful Formulæ, specially applied to Tubular tiridges, Wrought Iron and Cast Iron Beams, &c. By THOMAS TATE, F B.A.S 810 58 6d. cloth

TAYLER.-MARGARET; OR, THE PEARL By the Rev Charles B Taylen, M.A New Edition Fcp 870 64 cloth.

TAYLER.—LADY MARY, OR, NOT OF THE WORLD

By the Rev. C. B. TAYLER, M. A. New Editor, with Frontisplece. Pcp. 810 66 6d cloth

TAYLOR.—THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF B. R. HAYDON.

Historical Painter Edited and continued to the Time of his Death, from his own Journals, by Ton Taylon, M.A. of the Inner Temple, Esq , late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge ; and late Professor of the English Language and Literature in University College, London [In the press 3 rols post 870

TAYLOR.-LOYOLA: AND JESUITISM IN ITS RUDI-

MENTS By Isaac Taylor Post 870 with Medalhou, price 101 6d cloth

TAYLOR.—WESLEY AND METHODISM.

By Isaac Taylor. With a Portrait of Wesley, engraved by W Greatbach Post 500 10s 6d cloth

"All the characteristics of early Methodism are analyzed in the present volume with a discrimination and described with a clearners such as we mistif expect from the philosophical and choquent author of the letherian Connection; the soul of it, while partly almost the thirt body was translused his of Christian Charches. How that great movement became a starting road is one modern history and how it was the source of what is the most characteristic of the present time as a contracted with the corresponding period of last contact, most in religion only but in the general tone of national feeling and manners, and historians "Ar Taylor ship above."

THIRLWALL—THE HISTORY OF GREECE.

By the Right Rev the Lord Bishor of St David's (the Rev Counce Thirlmall) An improved Library Edition, with Maps 8 vols 8vo 24 16s cloth -Also, an Edition in 8 vols fcp 8vo with Vignette Titles, 21 8s cloth.

HISTORY OF GREECE, FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES to the TALING of CORINTH by the ROMANS, & c 146, mainly based upon Bishop Thurtwall's History of Greece By Dr LEONHARD S-HMITZ, F R.S E., Rector of the High School of Edinburgh. Second Edition. 12mo 70 fd. cloth

THOMAS'S MODERN PRACTICE OF PHYSIC.

M D and H. LETHERT, M.D 2 rols 8vo 281. cloth.

Exhibiting the Symptoms, Cames, Prognostics, Morbid Appearances, and Trestment of the Diseases of All Chimates. Elerenth Edition, thoroughly revised, corrected, and to a consider able extent re-written, by Algernon Frankton, MD, Herbert Davies, MD; PARKER, MLD G CRITCHETT, F.R.C.S.; J WORDSWORTH, F.R.C.S., HENRY POWELL,

THOMSON'S SEASONS

Educed by Bolton Conner, Esq. Mustrated with Seventy seven Designs drawn on Wood by Members of the Etching Club Engraved by Thompson and other eminent Engravers. Square crown 800 21s cloth, or, bound in morocco by Hayday, 36s

THOMSON'S TABLES OF INTEREST,

At Three, Four, Four and a Half, and Five per Cent, from One Pound to Ten Thousand, and from 1 to 365 Days, in a regular progression of single Days; with Interest at all the above Rates, from One to Twelve Months, and from One to Ten Years Also, numerous other Tables of Exchanges, Time, and Discounts New Edition 12mo 85 bound

THE THUMB BIBLE:

Or, Verbum Sempiternum By J TAYLOR Being an Epitome of the Old and New Testaments in English Verse A New Edition, printed from the Edition of 1693, by C Whittingham, Chiswick 64mo 18 6d. bound and clasped.

TOMLINE'S INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE containing Proofs of the Authenticity and Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures; a Summary of the History of the Jews, an Account of the Jewish Sects, and a brief Statement of the Contents of the several Books of the Old and New Testaments New Edition Fcp 8vo 5s 6d. cloth.

TOWNSEND'S MODERN STATE TRIALS.

Revised and illustrated with Essays and Notes By William Charles Townsend, Esq M A, Q C 2 vols 8vo 30s cloth

TOWNSEND. — THE LIVES OF TWELVE EMINENT
JUDGES of the LAST and of the PRESENT CENTURY By W CHARLES TOWNSEND, Esq
MAQC 2 vols 8vo 28s cloth

TURNER.—THE SACRED HISTORY OF THE WORLD,

Attempted to be Philosophically considered, in a Series of Letters to a Son By Sharon Turner, FSA and R.A.S L New Edition, edited by the Rev Sydney Turner. 3 vols post 8vo 31s 6d cloth

TURNER.—A NEW EDITION OF SHARON TURNER'S

HISTORY of ENGLAND during the MIDDLE AGES: comprising the Reigns from William the Conqueror to the Accession of Henry VIII 4 vols 8vo [In the press

TURNER.—THE HISTORY OF THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

From the Earliest Period to the Norman Conquest. By Sharon Turner, F.S.A. and R.A.S L. The Seventh Edition 3 vols 8vo 36s cloth

DR. TURTON'S MANUAL OF THE LAND AND FRESH-WATER SHELLS of the BRITISH ISLANDS A New Edition, with considerable Additions

WATER SHELLS of the BRITISH ISLANDS A New Edition, with considerable Additions By John Edward Gray Post 8vo with Woodcuts, and 12 coloured Plates, 15s cloth

URE.—DICTIONARY OF ARTS, MANUFACTURES, AND

MINES Containing a clear Exposition of their Principles and Practice By Andrew Ure, M D F R.S M G S M.A S Lond., M Acad N L. Philad., S Ph Soc N Germ Hanov, Mulii &c New Edition, corrected. 8vo with 1,241 Engravings on Wood, 50s cloth—Also,

SUPPLEMENT of RECENT IMPROVEMENTS New Edition. 8vo with Woodcuts, 14s cloth

WATERTON.—ESSAYS ON NATURAL HISTORY,

Chiefly Ornithology By Charles Wateron, Esq, Author of Wanderings in South America With an Autobiography of the Author, and Views of Walton Hall New and cheaper Edition 2 vols fcp 8vo price 10s cloth—Separately—Vol I (First Series), 5s 6d Vol. II (Second Series), 4s. 6d.

THE TRAVELLER'S LIBRARY,

In course of publication in Parts at One Shilling and in Volumes price Half-a Crown each Comprising books of valuable information and acknowledged merit, in a form adapted for reading while Travelling, and also of a character that will render them worthy of preservation, but the price of which has hitherto confined them within a comparatively narrow circle of readers

Already published -

WARREN ASTINGS By THOMAS BEENSOTON MACAULAY Reprinted from Mr. Macaulay's Critical and Hultorical Essays. Price One Shilling

LORD CLIVE. By THOMAS BABINGTON
MACATLEY Reprinted from Mr Macanley's Cretical and Historical Essays. Price One Shilling

Mr Vacanlay's Two Essays on Warren Hastings and Lord Clive may be had in One Volume price Half-a-Crown.

WILLIAM PITT, EARL of CHATHAM By Trones Basington Merchat Regulated from Mr Merchay's Critical and Historical Essays. Price One Skilling

RANKE'S HISTORY of the POPES And, GLADSTONE on CHURCH and STATE. By TRACKLAS BUSINGSON MURCHES REPRINTED FOR SHILLING CHURCH EMBERGE Price One Shilling

Mr Macaulay's Essays on William Pitt, Ranke s History of the Poper and Gladricose On Church and State may be had in One Volume price Half-a-Crown.

THE LIFE and WRITINGS of ADDISON and HORSCE WALFOLE. By TROMS BARKSTON MECKELAY Reprinted from Mr Macabley's Critical and Historical Lisays. Price One Shalling

LORD BACON By THOMAS BABINOTON
MARKELLY Reprinted from Mr. Macrollay's Critical and Ministral Energy. Price One Shilling

Mr Maran.ay a Three Essays on Addison, Horace Walpole and Lord Baron, may be had in One Volume price Half a Crown.

LORD BYRO \ And, the COMIC DRAMA-TISTS of the RESTORATION By THERMS BAPTOTON MIGRICAL Reprinted from Mr Michael by Ordical and Historical Emops. Frace One Shilling

LORD JEFFREY'S TWO ESSAYS on SWIFT and RICHARDSON Reprinted from Contribution to the Edinburgh Review Price One Shilling

THE AUSTRALIAN COLONIES, their Origin and Present Condition. By William Hrongs F.R.G.S. Two Parts, pince One Skilling each or in One Tolume price Halt-a Crown.

LONDON in 1850 and 1851 By J R. MCCLLOCK Esq. Reprinted from Mr McCullock's Geographical Dictionary Price One Milling

MR. S. LAING S. JOURNAL of a RESI-DENCE in NOTWAY during the Years 1944, 1943 and 1855. Two Part. price the Edilling each on in One Volume price Halfs-Orden.

EOTHE \ or, Traces of Travel brought Home tem the East. Two Parts price One Stilling each or in One Volume price Half-a-Crown.

IDA PFEIFFER'S LADY'S VOYAGE FOUND the WOPLD A condensed Transalam by Min Parts Finder: Two Parts price Deer Shilling each of the Country from Half-a-Crown

HUC'S TRAVELS in TARTARY, THIBET, and CHIVA. A condensed Translation, by Mrs. Pract SEXETT Two Parks, price One Shilling each or in One Volume prace Half-a-Crown.

Mrs JAMESO V's SKETCHES in CANADA and RAMBLES among the RED MEN Two Parts price One Shilling each, or in One Volume price Half a-Crown.

WERNE'S AFRICAN WANDERINGS Translated by J. H. Johnston Two Parts price One Shilling each or in One Volume price Half-a-Crown.

JERRMANN'S PICTURES from ST PETERSBUBG Translated from the German by PEEDERICK HARDKIN Two Parts price One Shilling each or in One Volume price Half-a-Crown.

MEMOIRS of a MAITRE D'ARMES; or, Eighteen Months at St. Petersburg. By ALEXANDER DUMAS. Translated by the Margues of Caronell. Two Parts, price One Shilling each or in One Volume price Half a-Cown.

SIR EDWARD SEAWARD'S NARRATIVE of his 5HIPWRECK. Abridged from the last Edition of the Original for the Traveller's Library. Two Parts, price One Shilling each or in One Volume, price Hall-a-Crown

BRITTANY and the BIBLE, with Remarks on the French People and their Affairs. By I Horz. Price One Shilling

RANKE'S FERDINAND the FIRST and MAXIMILIAN the SECOND of AUSTRIA or a View of the Religious and Political State of Germany after the Reformation. Translated by Lady Dutt Gordon Price One challing.

MEMOIR of the DUKE of WELLINGTON
Reprinted by permission from The Times newspaper Price
One Shilling

THE LEIPSIC CAMPAIGN By the Rev G R. GLEIO M.A. Chaplain General of the Forces. Two Parts price One Shilling each or in One Volume price Balling-Crown.

THOMAS HOLCROFT'S MEMOIRS written by Hussilf, and continued from his Diary and Papers Revented (18-5). Two Parts price One Shilling each ct in One Volume price Hall-a-Crown.

LORD CARLISLE'S LECTURES and ADDRESSES Including a Lecture on the Poetry of Pope and the Lecture on Lord Carlisle's Travels in America. Price One Shifting

THE NATURAL HISTORY of CREATION By T Living Erry M.D Author of Agricultural Physiology Price One Skilling

ELECTRICITY and the KLECTRIC TELEGRAPH To which is added The CHEMISTRY of the CILES By Dr GLOROX WILLOW Price One SHELDS

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY From the Specialist With Notes and Mustrations by W. H. Wills Price One Shilling

ALARIC WATTS'S POETRY AND PAINTING-LYRICS

OFTHE HEART, and other Poems By ALARICA WATTS With lorty one highly finished Line Engravings, executed expressly for this work by the most eminent Painters and Fn gravers Equare crown 850 price 31s 6d boards, or 4-s bound in morocco by Haydry, Proof Impressions, 63s boards—Plain Proofs, 41 Plates, demy 4to (only 100 copies printed), 22 2s in portfolio, India Proofs before letters, columbiar 4to (only 50 copies printed), 25 5s in portfolio

WHEATLEY—THE ROD AND LINE;

Or, Practical Hints and Dainty Devices for the Sure Taking of Trout, Grayling, &c By Hewett Wheatley, Esq Senior Angler 1cp 8vo with Nine coloured Plates, 10s 6d cloth

WEBSTER AND PARKES'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF DO-

MESTIC FCONOMY; Comprising such subjects as are most immediately connected with Housekeeping: as, The Construction of Domestic Edifices, with the modes of Warming, Ventilating, and Lighting them—A description of the various articles of Furniture, with the nature of their Materials—Duties of Servants, &c New Edition 8vo with nearly 1,000 Woodcuts, 50s cloth

LADY WILLOUGHBY'S DIARY (1635 to 1663).

Printed, ornamented, and bound in the style of the period to which The Diary refers New Edition, in Two Parts Square fep 8vo 8s each, boards, or 18s each, bound in moroeco

WILMOT'S ABRIDGMENT OF BLACKSTONE'S COMMEN-

TARIES on the IAWS of PNGLAND, intended for the use of Young Persons, and comprised in a series of Letters from a Father to his Daughter A New Edition corrected and brought down to the Present Day, by Sin John F. I Andley Wilmor, Bart, Barrister at Law, Recorder of Warwick Inscribed, by permission, to HRH the Princess Royal 12mo price 65 Gd. cloth

WOOD'S ELEMENTS OF ALGEBRA.

Designed for the use of Students in the University Fourteenth I dition, revised and enlarged, by Thomas Lund, B D, late Fellow and Sadlerian Lecturer of St John's College, Cambridge 8vo price 12s 6d cloth

LUND'S COMPANION TO WOOD'S ALGEBRA,

Containing Solutions of various Questions and Problems in Algebra, and forming a KE1 to the chief Difficulties found in the Collection of Examples appended to Wood's Algebra Second Edition, enlarged Post 8vo price 6s. cloth

YOUATT—THE HORSE

By WILLIAM YOUATT With a Treatise of Draught A New Edition; with numerous Wood Engravings, from Designs by William Harvey 8vo 10s cloth

Messrs Longman and Co 's Edition should be ordered

YOUATT—THE DOG.

By WILLIAM YOUATT A New Edition; with numerous Wood Engravings, from Designs by William Harvey 810 6s cloth

ZUMPT'S LARGER GRAMMAR OF THE LATIN LAN-

GUAGE. Translated and adapted for the use of English Students by Dr L. SCHMITZ, FR.S. R., Rector of the High School of Edinburgh: With numerous Additions and Corrections by the Author and Translator The Third Edition, thoroughly revised, to which is added, an Index (by the Rev J T White, MA) of all the Passages of Lutin Authors referred to and explained in the Grammar 8vo 14s cloth.

[March 31, 1853